OHIO FLOODS.

Cincinnati Steamers Sunk When River Rose Ten Feet.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 13.—Half a million dollars' worth of river property was placed in jeopardy, one steamer sunk, another carried down the river in the ice, 150 barges torn loose and sent down the river and several other steamers seriously damaged here yesterday from the breakup of the ice gorges at this point in the Ohio river. The gorge at North Bend broke first, causing some damage when the ice in the local harbor passed out. Soon afterward the gorge at the Covington waterworks broke, sending tons of ice rushing toward the city. The crews of all boats in the harbor and extra men who had been employed for the emergency were on duty all night, and a full head of steam was kept up on all steamers.

The first accident was to the towboat Relief, which was sunk at the foot of Lawrence street. Captain Williams and two men on the steamer narrowly escaped drowning. One of the men, Charles Moore, was thrown into the river, where he was struck by a cake of ice, being unconscious when hauled out of the water.

Only the smokestacks of the Relief are above water. The steamer New South, one of the best boats on the river, was torn from her moorings and carried down the river in the ice. She is somewhere below the city, lodged in the ice pack, and it is feared she will be a total loss.

The rise of ten feet in the river, which occurred during the day, probably caused the regorging of the ice at some point farther down, forced the steamer Bonanza out of the water on to the shore near the foot of Main street, where she is in a bad position and in serious danger in case of any sudden movement of the ice.

At least 150 barges, thirty of them loaded with coal, were caught in the ice and have gone down the river, probably all of them being a total loss.

GAS EXPLOSION AT ERIE.

Two Seiters May Die From Injuries Received.

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 13.—An explosion of natural gas at the home of the caretaker of the city waterworks reservoir seriously injured four persons last night. Two of the injured were so badly shocked and burned that they may die. All were blown through a second story window and down an embankment thirty feet high.

The injured are: Louis Seiter, aged forty years, hair and skin burned off head and face and body badly burned, may die; Mrs. Anna Seiter, wife of Louis Seiter, face and arms terribly lacerated and injured internally, may die; Harry Seiter, aged fourteen, burned on face and hands, and Samuel Pfister, aged sixty-five years, father of Mrs. Seiter, caretaker of the reservoir, severely shocked and bruised.

The debris of the house caught fire, but the flames were extinguished after a loss of $3,000. The explosion was heard in all parts of the city within mile of the reservoir, and soon the story started that some person had attempted to dynamite the heavy stone wall of the 50,000,000 gallon reservoir upon which the caretaker's house is built with the intention of flooding the city and drowning hundreds of people. Fire Chief McMahon says there was no evidence of a dynamite explosion.

New York Theater Burned.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—In a fire which started soon after noon Saturday the interior of the Casino theater, at Broadway and Thirty-ninth street, famous as the home of successful musical comedies, was ruined. It will be two or three weeks before the place can be reopened. Although the "Lady Teazle" company was rehearsing at the time, because of the coolness of the stage manager, Gerald Coventry, and the chorus girls themselves, no body was hurt. Lillie Camille, after she had escaped from the burning building, insisted on going back to recover her dresses. She was overcome by the dense smoke and had to be carried out by policemen. Lillian Russell was not present. Thankfulness was expressed by every one concerned that the fire had not happened two hours later. If it had, a disaster equaling the Iroquois theater fire in Chicago would probably have occurred.

Religious Education Convention.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—A service of "devotion, spiritual fellowship and inspiration" opened the third annual convention of the Religious Education association at the new Old South church, Copley square, last night. The convention will continue five days, and three sessions will be held daily. Last night nearly every seat in the spacious aditorium was occupied, and the galleries were well filled. Dr. Francis G. Peabody of Harvard university, first vice president of the association, presided. The speaking was informal.

Nantucket Ice Embargo Raised.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Feb. 13.—The twelve days' ice embargo of Nantucket was raised yesterday by the little revenue cutter Mackinac, which landed passengers, mail and a few sides of beef at Quidnet and took away fourteen persons who had been unwilling inhabitants of the island for nearly two weeks.

Monarchists' Victory In Spain.

LISBON, Feb. 13.—The general election held yesterday resulted in a large ministerial majority being returned. The Republicans obtained a majority in Lisbon city, but Monarchist successes in surrounding districts and some in the capital give the latter an absolute preponderance.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair and cold; northwest winds.

ROOSEVELT AT NEW YORK.

To Celebrate Lincoln's Birthday at Waldorf and "Little Hungary."

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt comes here today from Washington for a two days' visit, during which he will make a speech at the Lincoln birthday celebration at the Waldorf-Astoria, spend a short time at the Press club banquet at the Hotel Astor, lunch at the University club, dine in "Little Hungary" and visit friends. Accompanying him to New York are Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary and Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Cowles, Mr. and Mrs. Emlen Roosevelt, who have been guests at the White House, and Secretary Loeb. The party left Washington in a special train on the Pennsylvania railroad at 11 o'clock this morning.

In the metropolis the New York Republican club will take charge of the chief magistrate and escort him to the clubhouse, where he will receive the members of the organization informally and rest until it is time to go to the Waldorf-Astoria, where the Republican club's Lincoln day banquet will be held. The president will deliver a notable address upon Lincoln at the dinner. After the Lincoln day address the president will attend the Press club banquet.

Tomorrow the president will divide his time between visits with friends and relatives, a luncheon at the University club and a dinner with the Hungarian Republican club at "Little Hungary." The Hungarian club had the honor of entertaining the president when he was governor of New York, and on that occasion he promised to join its members again if he ever became president. This promise, made in fun, will thus be kept in earnest. During the course of the Hungarian banquet the president will make a short speech, and at the conclusion of the dinner will depart at midnight for Washington, reaching there early Wednesday morning.

SQUASH AT TUXEDO PARK.

Reginald Fincke and Grenville V. Clark to Battle For Championship.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 13.—In the second day's play in the annual squash championship of America here yesterday the semifinals were finished, leaving Reginald Fincke and Grenville Clark, both of the New York Tennis and Racket club, in the finals today. The match between Jay Gould of Lakewood and Grenville Clark of New York attracted an unusual amount of interest. Gould won the first set comparatively easy, but at the beginning of the second Clark began to hit harder and played stronger throughout the game, winning by the score 3—15, 15—9, 15—5.

The most interesting match of the day was between Clark and Adams, which took two hours to decide in favor of Clark.

First Round.—Grenville V. Clark, New York, defeated Jay Gould, Lakewood.

Semifinals.—Reginald Fincke, New York, defeated Rolland Mallory, New York A. C.

Grenville Clark, New York, defeated A. W. Adams, Rockaway.

Cubans Won First Auto Race.

HAVANA, Feb. 13.—The first international automobile race run in Cuba was won by the car owned by a Cuban, E. K. Conill, and driven by a Cuban, Ernesto Carricaburn, beating C. J. S. Miller's car, driven by Joseph Tracy, by 1 minute 32 2-5 seconds. Carricaburn's time over the course, which was 99 36-100 miles, was 1 hour 50 minutes 53 3-5 seconds, and his average per hour was 53 7-10 miles.

Crowd Opened Fire on Holdups.

INDEPENDENCE, Col., Feb. 13.—Two men entered the Silver Bell saloon here and attempted to hold up the place. Both were masked and, approaching the bar, ordered the crowd within, numbering fifteen or twenty men, to hold up their hands. At the same time the robbers commenced to shoot. Nearly all the men at the bar drew revolvers and opened fire on the robbers, with the result that both were wounded before they could get out of the place. Of those in the saloon three were wounded, Edward Fay fatally and Henry Drach shot in the leg and groin. Frank Edmondton is very seriously injured. The robbers escaped.

Alleged Race Track Swindlers Held.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—N. C. Collins has been arrested in Milwaukee, under indictment for alleged complicity in racing pool swindles. Collins was arrested in a hotel where he had registered as S. H. Slider of Chicago. F. C. Barrett was arrested in Chicago a week ago. Barrett and Collins are said to have operated the Co-operative Turf association, which, it is alleged, agreed to place on races money sent by investors and to pay dividends of 10 to 17 per cent a week. It is alleged that in their operations in New Orleans they accumulated more than $60,000.

Broken Rail Caused Wreck.

CRESTON, Ia., Feb. 13.—Passenger train No. 3, drawn by two engines, on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, was wrecked near here yesterday afternoon. E. P. Allen, engineer, was killed, and three were injured. Both engines left the track and rolled down an embankment, being badly wrecked. The passenger coaches did not leave the track, and none of the passengers was injured. The wreck was caused by a broken rail.

Standard Oil Lost Benzine.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Leakage from a break caused by frost in a 15,000 gallon benzine tank at the plant of the Standard Oil company here caused a loss of several thousand gallons. For some time there was serious danger of the benzine becoming ignited by sparks from passing engines.

SPORTING NEWS

DIAMOND DUST.

Frank Remsen, who has been manager of the baseball team at East Millstone, is now arranging to have a strong team represent that town this summer.

As yet "Smiling Jimmie" Montross has made no plans for the coming season. He claims to be in the best of condition and believes that he can twirl the leather-covered sphere as well as ever.

There will soon be a meeting of the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club when the team for the coming season will be selected and other plans made. The club will probably use last year's grounds on Clinton avenue.

Garwood will be represented by a first-class ball team this season. At a recent meeting, William Woodhead was elected manager and Samuel Colwell, assistant manager, with Fred Hanegan as captain. Preparations are being made to open the season in April.

The thousands of ball players throughout the country are rapidly getting into condition for the coming season's work, and in the major and minor leagues managers are laying plans to take their teams to warmer climes for a few weeks prior to the opening of the schedules.

BASKET BALL.

Jewett, center of the Leal's School basketball team, who injured his ankle in the recent game with the Plainfield High School, is able to be about, and hopes to be in condition by the time of the indoor interscholastic athletic meet, on March 11.

Manager Collier, of the Plainfield High School basketball team, has officially announced that his schedule has been concluded. He has cancelled the game with the South Orange High School, which was to have been played here on March 1. There may be a game with the P. H. S. alumni later in the season, but no more regularly scheduled contests will take place.

No Lincoln Birthday Dinner.

Because they are going to whoop things up at Washington on March 4, the Union County Republicans did not celebrate Lincoln's birthday as usual, today. Ten years ago the Republican Association of Union County was formed for the express purpose of giving a dinner on February 12 but the custom has gradually grown less observed. The colored Republicans celebrated the occasion in a quiet way.

N. J. Fire Chiefs to Meet.

There will be a meeting of New Jersey fire chiefs at Elizabeth, Wednesday morning. Chief T. O. Doane will attend. One important matter to be introduced will be the advisability of petitioning the Public Service Corporation for the use of flat cars upon which apparatus can be placed when calls from one town and another come for help.

Election Law Unconstitutional?

The counsel for the indicted election officers in New Brunswick has begun certiorari proceedings. The certiorari application is based upon the claim that the election law of the State is unconstitutional, in that it provides for boards of election composed of four members, two from each of the two dominant parties, thus debarring other parties.

Plain Peter Smith Pleads Guilty.

Answering the court officer's call of plain Peter Smith, one lone individual faced Judge Runyon this morning and pleaded guilty to a plain drunk. Roundsman Flynn picked him up on Front street, yesterday, as he was telling a snowbank what he knew about Abraham Lincoln. He was let go on suspended sentence.

Success of Former Plainfielder.

Young People's Concert.

The second anniversary concert under the auspices of the Young People's Association, of the Swedish Pilgrim church, was held on Saturday night and comprised vocal and instrumental music by members of the regular choir. In addition there was an address by Rev. O. Nelson, of New York

Church Receptions.

The first of the series of receptions for the members of his church and congregation, will be held tomorrow night by Rev. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church. There will be a musical programme, and women of the church will assist in the serving of refreshments.

Teachers' Meeting Postponed.

The February meeting of the Union County Teachers' Association, which was announced for Saturday at Elizabeth, was postponed until Saturday next.

CO. K'S FAIR OPENS TONIGHT IN THE ARMORY

TWELVE DAYS ATTRACTION TO RAISE NECESSARY FUNDS.

Company K's fair opens tonight at the armory in West Front street and will continue for twelve days, including Washington's birthday. It will surpass all previous efforts of the kind ever made by the local soldier boys.

The object of the fair is to raise money to defray the expense of the trip to Washington. Co. K will be in line at the Inauguration Day parade, and the 100 or more Plainfielders who will go on the Union County Republican excursion will have reason to feel proud of the boys from this city when Co. K marches by.

Don't neglect to attend the fair and help the boys along. The place has been handsomely decorated with flags and the booths, where various goods are sold, present an attractive appearance.

Some of the newspapers throughout the State have detected what they thought were inconsistencies in Mr. Black's attitude at present and his attitude when he stumped the State last fall as a candidate for Governor.

GARBAGE TAX BILL READY

Measure Giving Plainfield the Right to Raise Revenue.

FOR SANITARY PURPOSES

When House Passes It, Mr. Cross Will Present Proposed Law in the Senate—Its Provisions.

J. Stephen Higham, chairman the Councilmanic committee on public affairs, has succeeded in having a bill drafted and sent to the Legislature intended to give Plainfield the right to raise by taxation, money for the operation of a municipal garbage plant. The city has the right to purchase such a plant and maintain it, but no authority is given by the ordinances or laws to raise money to operate the same by levying a tax the same as for the maintenance of other departments. Mr. Higham sent the measure to Assemblyman Coyne and secured his assurance that he would do all in his power towards the passage of it in the Assembly and Senator Cross will be asked to give it his attention.

If Plainfield is given the right to levy a tax for the operation of the garbage plant, the cost to each property-owner will be comparatively small, approximately estimated at $3 per year. On this basis it is realized that it is impossible for any family to have its garbage removed for that amount during the year, and besides under the proposed system the work would be done in a sanitary and up-to-date method. The Board of Health has considered the question of the collection and disposal of garbage and conservatively estimates that $6,000 a year will cover the cost of carrying on his work.

Of course, it is realized that it will require a considerable sum to place the newly-purchased plant in good condition so that it will burn the garbage properly, but with the proposed changes it is believed that the plant will do all that may be required of it.

The Board of Health hopes that favorable legislative action may be secured early so that the garbage plant on be improved and put in operation before warm weather arrives. Those who favor the scheme see no obstacles in the way of adopting the proposed system, except the authority to levy a tax for the operation of the plant, and this being secured it is believed that the Common Council will give its sanction and approval and thus the system in operation. Mr. Fisk, president of the Board of Health, has put forth every effort toward the improvement and he feels assured that it will soon be adopted.

The Board of Health has presented the committee from the Common Council with statistics showing the practibility of the municipal system and the committee is strongly inclined to favor it as being an economical and desirable system for the city.

MEN'S CLUB ENTERTAINED.

Variety Artists Delight First Baptist Men.

The Men's Club, of the First Baptist church, held its first meeting since organization, last night, in the lecture room of the church, and the members were entertained for two hours by Hal Mertens, the well-known sleight-of-hand performer and magician, and Malcolm Shackelford, the banjoist and humorist. Some of the tricks shown by Mr. Mertens were unusually clever, and as a ventriliquist he was excellent.

Mr. Shackelford was at his best in story-telling, his sketches of the Southern negro, as well as every day life in the metropolis, were true to nature. He also favored the club with several songs, imitating the Indian, Japanese and the negro at camp-meeting revival services.

At the conclusion of the entertainment refreshments were served by a committee of the club and a social time followed.

File License Petitions Now.

As all licenses, liquor, cartmen, hackmen, auctioneers and those of any other business for which the Common Council grants privileges, expire on March 1, City Clerk MacMurray today gives notice that all applications for renewals must be in his hands by Wednesday night, February 22, to secure action at the March meeting.

Dr. Wilifred Grenfell, of the English Mission for Deep Sea Fishing, will give an illustrated lecture at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tonight, under the auspices of the Boy's Mission Band. He will tell of the work among the fishermen of the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts.

MRS. TOME WILL NOT FORSAKE HER HUSBAND

GIRL WHO ELOPED RETURNED HOME ONLY ON HER MOTHER'S ACCOUNT.

Although it was stated in yesterday's Daily Press that the former Miss Mabel Hockridge had been induced to leave James Tome, who was her father's coachman and with whom she had eloped, it was said authoritatively today that she had not given him up. She returned to her home only on her mother's account, as the latter has been prostrated since learning of her daughter's infatuation, but with the announced intention of returning to Tome at an early date. Her father has been seeking a method to effect a legal separation but he has been prevented through the stand taken by the girl.

It was also said today that Mr. Hockridge realized several weeks ago that Miss Mabel was beginning to have more than a liking for the coachman and he thought to end it by returning to Plainfield. He had selected a home on Hillside avenue and the transferral of the property was all but accomplished when the elopment ended negotiations. At the present time it seems probable that the family will remain at St. Remy, N. Y., to which place they went from here.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY MEET.

Quarterly Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Society Addressed by Miss Chapman.

Miss Carolin B. Chapman, of Montclair, an experienced worker in Y. M. C. A. auxiliary societies, was the speaker at the meeting of the local organization yesterday afternoon, the subject being "Opportunities for the Auxiliary." Previous to the address, a short business meeting was held. Eight new members were received by the society, which is already the largest, yet the youngest in the State.

Miss Chapman told of the work which other and older auxiliary societies are conducting, and complimented the local organization upon its work. The auxiliary movement, she said, has only been in operation for a little over ten years, and in the two years of its existence, the Plainfield society has accomplished in many respects more than the original organizations.

Is Wood a Moral Coward?

According to despatches sent out by the Somerville correspondent, there is grave doubt in the minds of the Somerset county authorities that George Wood will ever be executed for the murder of George Williams. A most searching investigation has shown that Wood has a clean record and the more they inquire the more they believe the crime was committed in a fit of temporary insanity. Among those most intimately acquainted with Wood's characteristics, the theory of accidental shooting is most readily accepted, believing him to be a moral coward and that he ran away after Williams expired.

Farmer-Orator's Fall.

Just as he was about to descend the cellar stairs at his home for the purpose of fixing his furnace on Sunday, James E. Martine, of Cedar Brook Farm, stumbled over a pair of rubbers and was pitched headfirst the full length of the stairs, striking his head on the cement cellar bottom. An ugly bruise and cut over the left eye, together with a sprained wrist and hand comprised the injuries.

PYTHIANS' CONVENTION

Plainfield to be Represented at Annual Session.

MEETINGS AT TRENTON

May Alter the Constitution—Programme Outlined—History of the Order.

Plainfield Pythians will be represented at the thirty-seventh annual convention of the New Jersey Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, to be held tomorrow and Thursday in Trenton.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, will be represented by Asa O. Pope and David Howden and Unity Lodge, No. 106, by Jere VanWinkle.

The session is usually attended by all of the past Grand lodge officers and the representatives of the subordinate lodges, besides a number of past chancellors, who attend for the purpose of having the Grand Lodge rank conferred upon them.

The morning of the first day's session will be occupied with the reading and adoption of the reports of committees. The afternoon will be devoted to the discussion of pending amendments, etc., and the introduction of new business. The election of officers will take place tomorrow evening. On Thursday morning the newly elected officers will be installed, and in the afternoon the business will be concluded.

The most important legislation to come before the present session will be the adoption or rejection of an amendment to the Grand Lodge constitution, altering the manner of electing Grand Lodge officers. Under the present system Grand Lodge officers are voted for annually by the past chancellors of the subordinate lodges, and the candidate for each office receiving the majority of all votes cast is declared elected. There is usually no contention for any of the offices except that of grand outer guard, to which several candidates aspire every year. It is, therefore, very rare that a candidate receives a majority, which necessitates the holding of a new election by the Grand Lodge. The above system has been found unsatisfactory in many ways, therfore the proposed amendment, which provides that the candidates receiving the largest number of votes in the subordinate lodges shall be declared elected. Under the present system it often happens that the decision of the past chancellors in the subordinate lodges is reversed by the Grand Lodge representatives. It is believed that the proposed amendments will be adopted.

The order was instituted forty-two years ago in Washington, D. C., by Justice H. Bathbone. It has grown steadily ever since, and now numbers nearly 600,000. The membership in New Jersey is nearly 14,000. While it was intended originally to confine the order to the United States, it has extended to Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and Cuba, and a proposition to establish the order in England and other foreign countries is being agitated. There is an insurance feature connected with the order, known as the Endowment Rank. The rates for insurance in this branch are those established by the Fraternal Congress. Another branch is the Uniformed Rank. The order in this State during the last year has prospered, and it is expected that the report of the grand keeper of records and seals will show a substantial increase in membership and finances.

Rid of Fake Forecasts.

With the passage of the agricultural appropriation bill in Congress the day of promiscuous weather forecasting will have passed. A provision is contained in the bill making this act a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment. This provision will rid Atlantic City, Cape May and other big summer resorts on the Atlantic coast of a nuisance which has not only proven disagreeable but costly to business interests of those places.

Lectures by Scandinavian.

Under the auspices of the Scandinavian Good Templars Lodge two illustrated lectures will be given in the Coward building tonight and Saturday night by Charles Hager, of Jamestown, N. Y. The subject tonight will be "Temperance" and on Saturday night the subject will be "A Trip Through Scandinavia, the Land of the Midnight Sun." The lectures will be illustrated with hundreds of beautiful views.

CHAPEL 15 YEARS OLD

Anniversary Services at Wilson Memorial on Sunday.

DR. CHAMBLISS TO SPEAK

Special Music by the Choir of the First Presbyterian Church—Meeting at 2:30.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel at Watchung, will be appropriately observed on Sunday afternoon, when there will be a special programme, including an address by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, and music by the choir from the First Presbyterian church. The services will be held at 2:30 o'clock and it is expected that many persons from this city as well as from other places near Watchung will attend.

It was about fifty years ago that the Washingtonville Sunday-school Association was organized and for a long time religious meetings and sessions of the Sunday-school were held in an old school-house. E. L. Bonny, of the borough, was for several years the superintendent of the school, resigning the position three years ago. He was succeeded by Miss Nettie Beeching, who also teaches a large Bible class.

It was while Mr. Bonny was superintendent that he interested Former Mayor John F. Wilson in the work and in memory of his wife, who was a prominent and active member of the First Baptist church, he gave most of the money with which to erect the handsome chapel fifteen years ago. Oscar S. Teal, formerly of this city, was the architect, under whose direction the chapel was built.

TWO DISTINCT FIRES IN THE SAME HOUSE

MYSTERIOUS BLAZE OR BLAZES DAMAGE A WEST THIRD STREET HOME.

Another fire of the very mysterious sort, prevalent lately, broke out in the house in the rear of 510 West Third street at 11 o'clock last night and did $150 damage. The place is occupied by Mrs. White, colored, and is owned by V. W. Nash. Fifty dollars of the damage is placed on Mrs. White's furniture while the entire loss is fully covered by insurance.

Chief Doane and the department reached the place in response to an alarm from box 46 and found that there were really two fires in progress, one on the first floor and the other on the second. They were distinct from each other but the origin of both is a mystery. Mrs. White was not home at the home and the only explanation she can offer for the first floor blaze is an overheated stove, but no one could venture an opinion for the second floor affair. The firemen worked until after midnight before the flames were extinguished.

The department was called out yesterday afternoon by an alarm from box 21 for a supposed fire in Charles H. Hand's new building on Watchung avenue. Workmen had started a fire in the cellar to get the frost out of the ground and the smoke pouring out of windows and doors led to the belief that flames were smoldering in the walls.

SLIPPERY SIDEWALK MAY COST YOU $5

POLICE TO SUMMON OWNERS AND TENANTS TO CITY COURT.

Owing to the many persons hurt by falls on icy sidewalks, Chief Kiely has instructed the patrolmen in his department to enforce the ordinance which demands that property owners sprinkle sand, ashes or sawdust on ice within four hours after it adheres to the walks. The street department is also out after the offenders and it was said today that some of them would be summoned to appear before the city judge tomorrow morning. A violation of this ordinance upon conviction calls for a $5 fine for each offense.

The same action has been taken in the borough by Chief Marshal Weiss, acting under the instructions from the street department. The names of the property owners failing to observe the law will be given Recorder Doud for prosecution.

CO. K'S FAIR BEGINS

Armory Filled With Record-Breaking First Night Crowd.

MANY ATTRACTIONS

Will Continue for Two Weeks With Regular Changes of Programme—The Committees in Charge.

Replete with more than the usual number of attractions and topped off with an array of "boys in blue," Company K's second annual fair began in the armory last night. The initial attendance was beyond all records for affairs of this kind and if it is any indication, this year's success will be far in advance of last season's. The fair is to continue during the next two weeks and the committees have announced a nightly change of programme.

Flags and bunting are prominent in the decorations throughout the big drill room but there are many others, making a very pretty scene. The booths are arranged about the sides, also profusely decorated, in charge of two or more young women. As was done last year, the general committee has sought to remove all objectionable features at the fair, not the least of which has been a ban upon all book contests.

Dancing was the main attraction last night and the floor was crowded all evening but not so as to be uncomfortable. The members of the company were prominent in this respect and the scores of blue uniforms made a picturesque scene. One of those who enjoyed the dancing to its fullest extent was Captain William B. Martin, who is the chairman of the general committee and who has worked unceasingly to make the fair the success it should be. This feature will remain each night but specialties are to be introduced.

The different booths and tables and their attendants are as follows: Donation booth, Corporal George L. Apgar assisted by Miss Helen Apgar, Miss Lavera Linberger, Miss Jennie DeCamp and Miss Edith VanDyke passepartout table, the Misses Ethel and Bessie Reynolds; sofa pillows and fancy work, Mrs. A. I. Littell, Mrs. H. B. Kitchell, Mrs. Alfred Trancband and Miss Florence Bilyeu; ice cream table, Miss Gertrude Geier; refreshment able, Private Winter and Private Judson.

The general committee which has entire charge consists of Captain Martin, chairman, assisted by Lieutenant Lewis and Lieutenant Kitchell. Sergeant Hort is secretary and Sergeant Randolph treasurer. The floor committee comprises Quartermaster Sergeant A. I. Littell, Sergeant Charles Peterson, Corporal Lendrum Jennings and the following assistants: Privates Winter, Judson, Frasee, Lambert, Wilson, Mottley and Peterson. The other committees are as follows: Printing, tickets and advertising, Corporal Trencband, assisted by Corporal Bilyeu and Corporal Conklin, Privates Sampson, Ford, McDonald, Douglass and Hoffman; donations, Corporal Apgar, assisted by Sergeant Hort, Sergeant Peterson and Private Weaver; refreshments, Private Goldsack.

The object in giving the fair is to raise money enough to cover the company's current expenses and also if possible to defray the members transportation to Washington on March 4 to attend the presidential inauguration ceremonies. It has been generally supposed that this was done by the State but it only appropriates $250, about one-third the necessary cost.

B. M. TEAM WON.

Defeated High School Scrub Team at Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

Though the Plainfield High School basketball team kept pace for part of the first half, it fell behind eventually in the game with the Y. M. C. A. Business Men, last night, and was defeated by the score of 40 to 23. Better team work, and steadier playing won out for the Business Men, and showed the school boys to be outclassed.

A feature of the game was the goal shooting of Spicer, of the Y. M. C. A. He landed ten baskets. The guards were also strong, while Collier, of P. H. S. put up a good game. This was the line up: P. H. S.—Bentley and Gavett, forwards; Collier, center; Stateman and Manning, guards. Business Men—Miner and Spicer, forwards; Browning, center; Letson and Clark, guards.

In connection with this servce the residents in the vicinity of Berkeley Heights, Union Village and Gillette are preparing a petition in which they will ask the postal authorities to give them a rural free delivery service. In case the petition is granted the territory would be covered from the Scotch Plains postoffice. Those interested in the matter have thus far secured the signatures of about one hundred families and it is considered one of the best routes in this part of the State.

There is now a petition in Washington from other residents in the vicinity of Mr. Horeb, and it is said that still other residents are preparing a petition to take in additional territory in Somerset county. The people living in that section, noting the success of the present route in operation, are very anxious to have the system extended and favorable action is expected.

CAMERA CLUB EUCHRE.

Sixty Persons Participate in Game for Prizes.

An evening of euchre was given under the auspices of the Plainfield Camera Club in the clubrooms, last night, and so successful was the affair that another one will probably be given in the near future. There were sixty guests, fifteen tables, and eight prizes, four for the men and four for the women. The women receiving prizes were Mrs. Leonard Smith, Mrs F. S. Cutter, Mrs. Will F. Williams and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, and the men securing prizes were E. A. Lowe, H. W. Marshall, F. H. Smith and H. H. Coward.

After the play, refreshments were served and this was followed by a dance. The affair was given by the directors of the club, H. H. Coward being in charge.

Sues Alleged Reckless Cyclist.

Charging him with reckless driving, which he alleges caused injuries to the amount of $200, Frank E. Eakeley has brought suit for that amount against Thomas Whiteneck, and the trial will take place in Justice Huff's court this afternoon. While riding his wheel on Mountain avenue in November, Eakeley was run into by Whiteneck, another cyclist, thrown from his wheel and severely injured. The plaintiff claims that his wheel was a wreck, and that his injuries caused him to be confined in bed for some time. William Newcorn will represent Mr. Eakeley in the suit.

No Holiday Hunt.

Though the plans of the Watchung Hunt Club included holiday chase for yesterday, it was impossible to hold the event on account of the condition of the ground. The riders met at the practice field on Hillside avenue, and a pleasant time was spent exercising the horses. The club's schedule for February incides a chase for Saturday and one on Washington's Birthday. According to the weather predictions it is doubtful if either one will be held. If possible the meet will be held Saturday at 3:30 o'clock, starting from the corner of Plainfield avenue and Eighth street.

Good Show at Casino.

The audiences at the excellent production of Gilbert & Sullivan's two-act fairy opera "Iolanthe," given at the Casino yesterday afternoon and evening under the direct management of Miss M. Vallah Clapp, were pleased with the performance. The opera was well staged and each member of the large cast acted in a most creditable manner, calling forth hearty applause. The affair was considered one of the best holiday attractions witnessed here in several year and both young and old thoroughly enjoyed it.

Two Degrees Above Zero.

John Neagle, the weather man, gives the official temperature for the past three mornings at 8 o'clock as follows: Sunday, forty degrees above zero; yesterday morning, fifteen degrees above zero; this morning, two degrees above zero. A break in the cold wave is promised within a day or so.

SYMPATHY FOR RUSSIANS

Mass-Meeting in Reform Hall Largely Attended.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

The Czar's Oppression of the Workingmen Denounced in Speech and in Resolutions.

For the purpose of adding their voices to those protesting against the brutal treatment of the Russian workingmen by the Czar and his soldiers, Branch No. 84, of the Workingmen's Circle, conducted a mass meeting in Reform Hall last night. The attendance numbered over 150 and was composed for the greater part of expatriated Russians but there were more than a few native born Americans who participated and who showed in several ways the deep feeling they possess for the downtrodden subjects of the despotic ruler. Resolutions of sympathy were passed and a collection of $30 was taken to be forwarded to the county fund for the families of those killed in the Cossack slaughter of January 22.

Members of the circle occupied seats on the platform as did also Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, and William Walker, of Newark, who was candidate for mayor of that city on the Socialist ticket in 1894 and 1896 and who was on the ticket again last fall for Assembly, polling 3,000 votes. The latter two, with Donato DiLanardo, of this city, were the principal speakers, a fourth address in German being made by A. Karpel, chairman of the circle, an office corresponding to president.

Mr. Howard was introduced by the chairman and talked for several minutes on the condition of affairs in Russia at the present time, laying stress on the fact that a nation half civilized and holding its people in what amounts to slavery, could not long endure. He compared the struggles of the subjects with those of the Colonists in America and said that the movement began last month is sure to spread until in the end right will prevail and darkness will be succeeded by light.

Though born in Canada, Mr. Walker has been for years a student of Russia and its political conditions and his portrayal of despotic methods employed by the Czar and his parasites, as he termed them, was as vivid as though he himself had passed through the harrowing experiences which thousands are undergoing daily.

"Comprising one-fifth the land area of the globe," said Mr. Walker, "the vastness of Russia can hardly be realized and neither can its despotism. Its government is nowhere to be duplicated—it is a relic of barbarism. In Russia there are simply two rules for everybody: 'you mustn't do this and you mustn't do that' is practically what they amount to. Millions of people in all walks of life have been sent to the Siberian mines just because it pleased the Czar and there has been no one to say him nay."

He described in detail the formation of the parade of workingmen on January 22 and how it was charged upon by the Cossacks as it was moving along toward the winter palace, unarmed and with no other intent than to seek an audience with the man who is supposed to represent them.

"One thousand of them were cut down," said the speaker, "but the cause and Father Gopon still live and Russia is going to change. The people don't object to the Czar but they object to his methods and right and truth and justice are soon to prevail."

Mr. Walker was followed by Donato DiLanardo, who gave an address in which he dwelt upon the conditions of the Russian workmen and called for the earnest support of all their sympathizers to do all they could to aid them in their struggle for betterment. Chairman Karpel's speech in German was along the same lines. It was expected that Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, Rev. George Mooney and former Assemblyman William Newcorn would also speak, but they were unable to attend.

FINCKE IS SQUASH CHAMPION.

Tuxedo Park Tournament Ends In Defeat of Grenville Clark In Finals.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Reginald Fincke of the New York Racket and Tennis club defeated Grenville Clark, also of New York, in the finals in the sixth amateur squash championship of America at the Tuxedo Tennis and Racket club in two straight games—15 to 12, 15 to 13.

The first game was most evenly contested, both men playing carefully and strong. In the second game it was fully ten minutes before Clark scored the first ace. From then on the game was interesting and hard fought.

This gave Fincke one leg on the $500 cup presented to the club by President James Henry Smith.

On Washington's birthday the gold racket championship in rackets will open here. Among those who have already entered are Clarence Mackay, Milton Barger, Charles E. Sands and Erskine Hewitt.

LINCOLN'S IDEALS

President Roosevelt Outlines a National Brotherhood.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR WHITE AND BLACK

Celebration of Natal Day of the Martyr President by New York Republicans—The Guest of Honor's Speech.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14. — President Roosevelt was the guest of honor at the Lincoln dinner of the Republican club at the Waldorf-Astoria here last night.

At the guests' table besides the president and President Stern were Bishop Fowler, Lieutenant Governor Bruce, George A. Knight of California, Elihu Root, Senator Dolliver of Iowa, Andrew Carnegie, General Frederick D. Grant, Rear Admiral Coghlan, Whitelaw Reid, Secretary Taft and President Finley of the College of the City of New York.

The president was introduced by President Stern and said in part:

"The spirit in which mighty Lincoln sought to bind up the nation's wounds when his soul was yet seething with fierce hatreds, with wrath, with rancor, with all the evil and dreadful passions provoked by civil war, is surely the spirit which all Americans should show now when there is so little excuse for malice or rancor or hatred, when there is so little of vital consequence to divide brother from brother.

"We of today, in dealing with all our fellow citizens, white or colored, north or south, should strive to show just the qualities that Lincoln showed—his steadfastness in striving after the right and his infinite patience and forbearance with those who saw that right less clearly than he did; his earnest endeavor to do what was best and yet his readiness to accept the best that was practicable when the ideal best was unattainable; his unceasing effort to cure what was evil coupled with his refusal to make a bad situation worse by any ill judged or ill timed effort to make it better.

"All good Americans who dwell in the north must, because they are good Americans, feel the most earnest friendship for their fellow countrymen who dwell in the south, a friendship all the greater because it is in the south that we find in its most acute phase one of the gravest problems before our people—the problem of so dealing with the man of one color as to secure him the rights that no one would grudge him if he were of another color.

"The attitude of the north toward the negro is far from what it should be, and there is need that the north also should act in good faith upon the principle of giving to each man what is justly due him, of treating him on his worth as a man, granting him no special favors, but denying him no proper opportunity for labor and the reward of labor.

"Neither I nor any other man can say that any given way of approaching that problem will present in our time even an approximately perfect solution. Our effort should be to secure to each man, whatever his color, equality of opportunity, equality of treatment, before the law.

"The problem is so to adjust the relations between two races of different ethnic type that the rights of neither be abridged nor jeopardized; that the backward race be trained so that it may enter into the possession of true freedom, while the forward race is enabled to preserve unharmed the high civilization wrought out by its forefathers.

"The working out of this problem must necessarily be slow. It is not possible in offhand fashion to obtain or to confer the priceless boons of freedom, industrial efficiency, political capacity and domestic morality. Nor is it only necessary to train the colored man. It is quite as necessary to train the white man, for on his shoulders rests a well nigh unparalleled sociological responsibility. It is a problem demanding the best thought, the utmost patience, the most earnest effort, the broadest charity of the statesman, the student, the philanthropist, of the leaders of thought in every department of our national life.

"In the first place, it is true of the colored man, as it is true of the white man, that in the long run his fate must depend far more upon his own effort than upon the efforts of any outside friend. Laziness and shiftlessness—these and, above all, vice and criminality of every kind, are evils more potent for harm to the black race than all acts of oppression of white men put together.

"Let us be steadfast for the right, but let us err on the side of generosity rather than on the side of vindictiveness toward those who differ from us as to the method of attaining the right. Let us never forget our duty to help in uplifting the lowly, to shield from wrong the humble, and let us likewise act in a spirit of the broadest and frankest generosity toward all our brothers, all our fellow countrymen, in a spirit proceeding not from weakness, but from strength, a spirit which taxes no more account of locality than it does of class or creed, a spirit which is resolutely bent on seeing that the Union which Washington founded and which Lincoln saved from destruction shall grow nobler and greater throughout the ages."

Overdue Steamer Safe.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14. — The Red Cross line steamer Silvia has passed Cape Fear, about five miles from St. John's, N. F., en route to that port. The Silvia was five days overdue at St. John's from New York and Halifax. It is believed she was delayed by ice, which has now broken up.

SENATORS UP IN ARMS

Santo Domingo Protocol Is Called In Question.

CAN EXECUTIVE BIND GOVERNMENT?

Congress May Repudiate Arrangement to Take Over and Administer Little Republic's Financial Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Senator Bacon of Georgia offered in the senate a resolution directing the committee on foreign relations to investigate and report whether the agreement between the United States and Santo Domingo under the award to the Santo Domingo Improvement company, having been made without the advice and consent of the senate, is binding upon the government. It was referred to the committee on foreign relations. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, There has been signed by W. F. Powell, charge d'affaires, on behalf of the United States and by Juo Foo Sanchez, ministro de relaciones exteriores, on behalf of the republic of Santo Domingo a protocol of an agreement between the United States of America and the Dominican republic;

"Whereas, It has been publicly alleged and generally understood to be true that in pursuance of the protocol and of the award by the arbitrators made in pursuance thereof one or more custom houses of the Dominican republic have been taken possession of by officers of the United States; therefore be it

"Resolved, By the senate that the committee on foreign relations be and it is hereby authorized and directed to make investigation and report to the senate as follows:

"First, whether the said protocol of an agreement if authorizing the award as aforesaid is a valid and binding agreement or convention between the United States of America and the Dominican republic without having been made by and with the advice and consent of the senate, as prescribed by the constitution of the United States.

"Second, whether it is competent under the constitution of the United States for any agreement, convention or protocol not made by and with the advice and consent of the senate, but solely through and by the executive department or an officer thereof, with a foreign government and to constitute a constitutional agreement by and under which the United States government shall be authorized and empowered to take possession of the custom houses of such foreign government and to hold the said custom houses by the authority and power of the United States through its officers, employees or agents, either civil, military or naval."

In reply to inquiries at the state department Mr. Hay made in substance the following statement:

"The president regards the matter of the general arbitration treaties as concluded by the action of the senate on Saturday. He recognizes the right of the senate to reject a treaty either by a direct vote in that sense or indirectly by changes which are incompatible with its spirit and purpose. He considers that with the senate amendment the treaties not only cease to be a step forward in the cause of general arbitration, but are really a step backward, and therefore he is unable to present them in this altered form to the countries with which we have been in negotiation."

It is probable that there will be no more arbitration treaties submitted to the senate.

As an incident to the issue between the administration and the senate respecting their relative rights in treaty making, it has been developed that in giving its approval Jan. 11 last to the "treaty of arbitration of pecuniary claims," commonly known as the Pan-American arbitration treaty, the United States senate has committed itself to the recognition of its power to delegate to the executive the right to make special arbitration arrangements, and in executive circles it is held that this power is sufficient to warrant its action in the case of Santo Domingo.

HAD A WORDY BATTLE

Mr. Sullivan Denounced "the Gentleman From New York."

COMPLICITY IN MURDER CHARGED.

Sensation Arose Out of Article in New York American at Which Sullivan Took Offense—Editor Hurled Defiance.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Not in recent years has the house witnessed such a spectacle as it did when Mr. Sullivan (Mass.) and William R. Hearst (N. Y.) met in a wordy battle. Both indulged in personalities of the gravest character and so stirred the house as to arouse among certain members a feeling of the greatest indignation. Mr. Sullivan heaped upon Mr. Hearst a tirade of denunciation, while the latter by implication charged Mr. Sullivan with complicity in a murder.

The affair grew out of the recent discussion of the rate question in the house, when Mr. Sullivan inquired of Mr. Lamar (Fla.), who was favoring the Hearst bill, why Mr. Hearst did not defend his own bill, this being followed by a criticism of Mr. Sullivan in the New York American and Journal.

Several appeals were made to Speaker Cannon to cause the two men to desist in their abuse of each other. Speaker Cannon, however, allowed them to proceed. Mr. Sullivan entirely concluded, but in the case of Mr. Hearst the speaker on reconsideration, noting the temper of the house, decided that an accusation of homicide against a fellow member was not parliamentary, because it was calculated to provoke disorder and disturbance. Almost immediately thereafter Mr. Hearst took his seat, hurling defiance and declaring that it would be his pride to continue his hostility to individuals such as he charged Mr. Sullivan to be.

Mr. Sullivan took the floor immediately after the reading of the journal. After he had explained the purpose of his remarks he read an article from the New York American to which he had taken offense. This, he said, touched him in his representative capacity and was a deliberate insult from one member of the house to another. At this point Mr. Robinson (Ind.) interrupted to make the point of order that Mr. Sullivan was violating the rules of the house. Speaker Cannon ruled that the language used was strictly in order. Speaker Cannon sent for Mr. Sullivan's manuscript, and the reading clerk slowly repeated the paragraph questioned. This paragraph assailed the presidential aspirations of the "gentleman from New York."

When Mr. Hearst arose to reply, he had to wait some minutes for order. His reply was brief, the sensational part being contained in the concluding sentences, which by inference charged Mr. Sullivan with murder. Mr. Hearst said he assumed entire responsibility for the article which had aroused Mr. Sullivan's indignation, although, he said, he had not inspired it nor did he know in advance of its intended publication. He said he was glad to incur the hostility "of that class of individuals."

Senator Mitchell and Others Accused.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 14.—The United States grand jury last night returned an indictment charging United States Senator Mitchell, Congressman John N. Williamson, Binger Hermann and others with having conspired to have created the Blue mountain forest reserve, in eastern Oregon, with the intent of defrauding the government of public lands and also of conspiring to obtain possession of more than 200,000 acres of public and school lands situated in several states of the value of more than $3,000,000.

Five Indicted at Portland.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 14.—Indictments have been returned by the federal grand jury against former United States District Attorney John R. Hall, Private Detective H. P. Ford, former Major H. L. Rees, Deputy Sheriff John Cordano, A. P. Caylor, a local grain broker, and Saloonkeeper Fred Simpson. The charge against Rees, Ford, Cordano and Caylor is that they conspired to defeat the ends of justice by attacking the reputation of District Attorney Heney.

Balla Said to Be C. R. Maines.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 14.—"Robert Balla," under arrest at Juneau for murderfug William Deppe on Fox island, is said to be Charles R. Maines, an attorney, formerly of Battle Creek, Mich. There, it is alleged, he was tried for attempted murder and was indicted for perjury. He was arrested and convicted in San Francisco, it is alleged, for using the United States mails to defraud.

Missing Pastor In Hospital.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 14.—Rev. Dr. Bomar has been found in a hospital in Pensacola, Fla. He is quite ill, but it is said he will recover and be able to return home in a week. He was on his way to Alabama, having left here three weeks ago, since which time nothing had been heard of him.

New Governor General Appointed.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 14.—Captain Christian Cold has been appointed governor general of the Danish West Indies. It is understood that the change was necessitated by a disagreement between the high civil officers and the present governor general.

Conger to Go to Japan.

MANILA, Feb. 14.—Edwin H. Conger, American minister to China, will sail tomorrow for Japan, where he will complete his vacation. He will then return to his post at Peking.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 14, 1905.

Rev. Dr. MacArthur declares that the devil rules Tammany. Not very kind of him to speak that way of Charley Murphy.

Bill in Legislature aims to give Trenton better light. A little light on some things going on in that city won't do any harm.

"Crash in Subway!" dear reader, did not refer to an accident on Belmont's underground road; only a bottle broken in Bishop Potter's tavern.

Judging from the number of sermons on the subject reproduced in our exchanges we are inclined to believe that Lincoln's Birthday has been celebrated recently.

Dispatch from Rome says that many of the paintings bought by J. P. Morgan in Europe are bogus. Pass the hat; it would be a shame to send him to the poor house.

Timely warning is given by the authorities to property owners and tenants to obey the letter of the ordinance providing for covering icy pavements with ashes, sawdust or sand. It would be natural to suppose that no notice would be necessary inasmuch as human life is endangered by slippery footwalks, but the condition of the pavements throughout the city today show that few residents have much regard for the safety of pedestrians. The fact that a number of persons have been injured by falling on icy pavements seems to have had no effect whatever on those who are derelict. Chief Kiely's instructions to enforce this ordinance we hope will be followed by good results.

"CITIZEN'S" BRIEF FOR SALOON DISTRICT

DECLARES OPPOSITION COMES FROM MEN OF CONVIVIAL HABITS.

The following communication has been received from a representative citizen:

Editor, The Daily Press:

A good deal has been said in the last few days about the legality of restricting the saloons of this city to their present locations. I notice, with few exceptions, the writers opposed to restrictions are men of convivial temperaments, some having already begun to make reputations in that direction.

As an outsider, I would like to ask what all this hue and cry about property values in the restricted sections means. Is the demand for saloons going to crowd this section with such undesirable additions to the present number, as to destroy their property values? If such is expected, the position may be well taken. I would also like to know what humanitarian sentiment prompts the great anxiety of these individuals in their poor fellow citizens whose parched lips require alcholic beverages to reduce their feverish condition before they can reach the restricted section. We hear no word from them of anxiety for the wife and children.

If it is not legal to restrict the "firewater" limits, where is the legality in the so-called "fire limits?" It may be said that the building ordinance and fire limits are designed to protect an individual from the dangerous carelessness of his neighbor. As for me, I would rather see my house wrecked by fire than the lives of my fellows wrecked by dissipation. One may be a sudden and severe blow; the other is a living death.

Legalizing a crime or maintaining any partnership with the devil, even though under the guise of law is bad enough, but to stretch the law for the avowed purpose of making it a convenience for the exercise of the baser passions, is beyond the comprehension of the writer. One friend of those opposed to restriction says that it is useless to pass such an ordinance now as the next Council is likely to rescind such action. His views are probably based on his hopes, nevertheless I would advise passing the ordinance now so as to give the next Council or any other future body, the opportunity to exhibit their courage. And proof of fealty to those of their constituents who may possibly elect men of a different class from those who now seem to be in the majority, only thus may we surely and safely determined public sentiment.

For the benefit of those who are alarmed about a depreciation of property values in the proposed restricted limits, it would seem reasonable that the present Council should give some assurance that they see no reason why the present number of saloons (14) will not be able to supply all legitimate demands for many years to come; in which case the great property damage some anticipate has already been discounted, and the dangers to ladies in the shopping districts not greatly increased. At any rate the wives and daughters of most of our citizens can no doubt be relied upon to endure the test.

Citizen.

FREE SEEDS.

Federal Government Allots 600,000 Packages to Jersey.

New Jersey will shortly receive 600,000 packages of vegetable seeds, which will be sent out by the Senators and Congressmen and Representative Fowler as well as Senator Kean will see that their constituents in Union County, which is the home of both, are remembered. It is the annual gift of Uncle Sam to the constituents of the national Representatives, and it means lots of work for the secretaries. These 600,000 packages of seeds are put up in packets containing five packages, so that the number of packages actually distributed is 120,000, or 12,000 to each Senator and Congressman.

Some of the farmers receiving a single packet containing five different varieties do not view the distribution complacently, as it is "only a drop in the bucket," when they have twenty or thirty acres to seed down.

Miss Nellie Meade, of Brooklyn, is the guest of Mrs. Robert W. Davis, of Park avenue.

Earl and Kenneth Bigiow, of Montclair, are visiting relatives and friends here for a few days.

Councilman W. S. Bullock was in Philadelphia, yesterday, looking after some business matters.

Edward Bennett, of East Front street, has returned after a brief visit without of town friends.

Miss M. W. Ketcham, of Park avenue, has returned from a recent visit with out of town relatives.

G. H. Bellis, of Elmwood place, who has been spending some time in Virginia, has returned home.

St. Valentine's Mail.

This being St. Valentine's Day, the mail at the local postoffice is somewhat heavier than usual. Throughout the day the local office was filled with young people. The comic valentines of the cheap variety have rather given place to the more expensive ones and the local stores report the business unusually good this year.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

On account of the water over the tracks, which was at some places over a foot in height, the trolleys were very irregular in the schedule between Dunellen and Bound Brook yesterday, and it was not until 1 o'clock that the first trolley came in. Later in the day, the water over the tracks froze, and made it even more impassable. It was a source of great inconvenience to many who were in a hurry to connect with the long distance cars. The effects of the disagreeable weather were to be seen in all parts of the borough. Though no serious accidents were recorded there were several bad falls on account of the slippery sidewalks.

Parker Morris is arranging a straw-ride for tonight, which will take place if the weather is satisfactory. The party, which is largely composed of New Market young people, will go to Plainfield, and return for a social hour at the home of one of the group.

Archibald Brakeley and his roommate, John Cunningham, who have been spending a few days, between terms, at the home of Dr. P. W. Brakeley, have returned to Princeton College, where they are members of the sophomore class.

Among those of the sick list who are confined to their homes by colds and the grip are John Apgar, Miss Iva Dayton, A. A. Lake and Henry Weidenhaupt.

The condition of Mrs. William Conley, who has a bad attack of pneumonia, is reported to be no better and the attending physicians are worried.

Miss Augusta Long, of Plainfield, has recently returned after a visit with friends in the borough.

Miss Louise Brakeley, of North avenue, is visiting relatives in Jersey City for a few days.

Thomas Thomas, of New York, is visiting friends in the borough.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

With the weather against them, the pupils of the High School held a cake, candy and fancy goods sale yesterday from 3 to 10 o'clock in the Library rooms that was a success in every way, the rooms being filled during the afternoon and night with ready buyers who were ready to part with their money and help the pupils to raise the Library treasury. The main Library room was prettily trimmed with bunting and the Stars and Stripes, the colors of Old Glory being interwoven with a pretty effect. The several booths and tables were laden with tempting sweets and nick-nacks. At the cake table, where a rushing business was done, Miss Elsie Cook and Miss Ella Louise Goodwin presided. The candy table, in charge of Miss Marion Todd and Harry Goodwin, was loaded with a tempting array of sweets and toothsome morsels. The cash sale here showed a good profit for the sale. At the fancy goods table, Miss Madeline Renand and Frank Carter, had a way of making these present part with their money. Joe Carrone manipulated a nickel in the slot machine, which gave one hundred cents on the dollar in return for the loose change invested. For those who were thirsty, Amnel Jahn provided lemonade and was kept busy taking in the loose change. The ice cream department, with Gere Paff and Alfred Loomis, was a favorite spot for those who wanted to talk Library affairs over their cream and cake. John Todd, Willie Stanbury and Fred Renand, in their capacity as waiters, looked out for everyones wants in a most acceptable manner. Altogether the sale was most encouraging to the High School pupils and the result of their work will be most acceptable to the Library association.

The storm of yesterday made Lincoln's Birthday anything but an ideal holiday. The members of the Brookside Gun Club held its scheduled shoot, but very few of the trap shooters were out. The members of the Baptist Sunday-school were disappointed in not being able to take the straw ride promised by Deacon David Hand. The day in general was generally observed by nearly all in town, but the pleasantest way to spend it was at home.

The total amount of uncollected taxes for 1904, according to the township report, is $1,856.63. This means trouble ahead for somebody, as the delinquent list will soon be put in the hands of the special collector.

The children of Hans Lambertson, of the borough, who have been quite ill with scarlet fever, are reported as convalescent now. No fear is felt that the disease will spread by the borough Board of Health.

Fanwood Council, R. A., holds its semi-monthly meeting tonight in the Library rooms. A delegation from the Grand Council are expected and a full attendance of members is desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Fiels, of East Sixth street, have been visiting Mrs. Fiels' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Frentz, of Westfield avenue.

William D. Johnston and daughters, Mrs. Atwood and Miss Addie, leave this week for a stay of several weeks at Maina, Florida.

The Suburban bowling team roll a match game with the Y. M. C. A. team on the latter's alleys tomorrow night.

Mrs. Ira G. Walker is quite ill at her home with a severe attack of the grip.

Miss Susie L. Parse has returned from a visit with friends in Brooklyn.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

For the benefit of the Maroonnier chapel, a valentine social will be held tonight at the home of W. E. Van Court, of Oak Tree. If the weather should be very stormy it will be held the next fair night.

The North Jersey Telephone Company is now putting wires on its line in this section. But there is still a gap in the line where the right of way has not been secured.

Rev. W. T. Derward, of Stelton, delivered his Scotch lecture entitled "Bonnie Scotland," at the Fifth Baptist church, Newark, last night.

The prayer and conference meeting of the Baptist church will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Teeple this evening at 7:30.

Miss Nellie B. Manning entertained her friend, Miss Williams, of New Market, over Sunday.

Randolph Morris, who resides with his brother, John C. Morris, is seriously ill at his home.

L. D. Randolph and family visited Mrs. Randolph's parents near Stelton Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS.

Carlotta, "The Marvel," still thrills the big audiences at Mr. Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre with her death-defying plunge on a bicycle. She will remain at that house for three weeks longer, and no one should fail to see this demure young woman accomplish her remarkable feat. The name of "Carlotta" has already become a household word in New York and vicinity, and no one should miss seeing this really wonderful accomplishment. The stock company located at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre, owing to its unparalleled success from the opening performance, is now a fixture. Only the most recent Broadway successes are being presented at this, the most beautiful of all the Proctor playhouses, and with the exceptionally strong organization which Mr. Proctor has gathered together, it is easily understood why they have launched into the tide of popularity so quickly. Another notable addition is about to be made to the company in the person of William Ingersoll, as leading man. His magnetic personality and excellent work are happily remembered by all the patrons of Mr. Proctor's 125th Street Theatre, where he was specially engaged for a number of weeks this season.

"The Nearness of God" will be the subject of the prayer meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Warren chapel Ladies Aid Society will be held in the chapel, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet in the church parlors Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The Ladies Aid Society of the German Reformed church will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. P. Bach, 207 Somerset street, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday night for the missionary study of Japan under the direction of W. D. Murray, Miss Scribner and Mr. Cochrane.

The improvements, which have been in progress in Trinity Episcopal church at Elizabeth since last spring, are completed. The service of consecration was incorporated in the morning service Sunday, beginning at 11:30, and was conducted by the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., Bishop of New Jersey, who also preached the sermon. There was also an address by the Rev. Henry Hale Sleeper, D. D., rector of Grace church, Elizabeth. After the service the clergy and congregation proceeded by way of the cloister to the parish building, where there was a service of benediction and addresses by the Bishop and the Rev. John R. Atkinson, rector of the church.

"The opportunity of Christian growth, both as a church and as individuals, during the present period of religious peace," was the theme of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck's sermon at Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning. The preacher drew a parallel between the present time and the period in the Apostolic church, when under the balm of rest and peace, the church was edified, and walked in the fear of the Lord. "The present period," the speaker said, "is equally favorable for such a Christian growth. As not only the entire church, but the members grew individually grow, so Christians now, walking in the fear of the Lord, should increase in wisdom, power and success." Rev. Mr. Schenck defined walking in the fear of the Lord as an inward expression of reverence, which serves as an armour against all other fear. It was in this fear of the Lord that the church spoken of in the Acts, multiplied and increased in strength.

Vice Chancellor Bergen's Work.

Vice-Chancellor James J. Bergen has just completed the work of his first full term as a member of the Court of Chancery and it has been noted in connection with this fact that the vice-chancellor in his first term's work lived up to the standard of his predecessor, who is now a member of the Supreme Court, Justice Reed, by rendering opinions in almost twice as many cases as any other vice-chancellor.

To Bowl in Cranford.

The Park Club bowlers of this city will be the guests of the Cranford Casino tonight and will roll a match with them on the Cranford alleys. The two teams met before in December at the local alleys. The game tonight promises to be an interesting one, as the Parks and Cranfordites are evenly matched.

—A bright, twelve pound young baseball player arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. B. Dailey, of West Front street, last evening.

—It was Mrs. Eugene Johnson and Miss Elizabeth Dixon who served coffee to the firemen at the Yetman fire Saturday morning, and not Mrs. J. W. Brown and Mrs. Walker as stated yesterday.

—The petitions and various remonstrances against the Common Council granting any or additional licenses will be considered at the regular March meeting, at which time the applications for licenses will be acted upon.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

THROUGH STATUARY HALL.

It Contains Effigies of Many of the Nation's Great Men—Grosvenor Fighting Tariff Revision—Other Capital Notes.

WASHINGTON.—Statuary hall in the capitol is growing more and more into a national Valhalla, where the effigies of great men of various states appear marble and bronze. The late Senator John J. Ingalls is the last to be represented in this group of illustrious men, a fine Italian marble statue of the wit, satirist and statesman having been dedicated a short time ago. Each state is entitled to place for two of its noted sons and when the complement is filled the old house of representatives, now known as Statuary hall, will resemble an art gallery.

It is now Illinois' turn to present another statue and this she will do by honoring the memory and history of one of her most noted daughters, Miss Frances E. Willard, the great temperance advocate. This will be the first statue of a woman to appear in the capitol, but Illinois is proud to honor the great character and work of Miss Willard, which have made the state famous. One of the finest statues in this collection is that of a Jesuit priest, Pere Marquette, whose memory the state of Wisconsin has honored with a beautiful Parian marble presentment of this noted discoverer, missionary, priest and historian. At first there was some narrow-minded opposition to the admission of a statue of a Catholic priest, but as Wisconsin had selected Father Marquette as her greatest representative the statue could not be excluded from the hall.

So far there are but 19 states represented in Statuary hall, and some of them by only one noted son. Some of the newer states are waiting to see what the future and their history may reveal before selecting the man or men who might best represent them in this group. There is an unwritten rule that the noted sons who are given a place in Statuary hall must be selected from those who are dead and gone. Some of the newer states may have to wait a good many years before they will have a list of dead statesmen to select from.

Long List of Statues.

SUPERINTENDENT of the Capitol Elliott Woods has prepared a list of the statues now in place. There is a plaster statue of George Washington that came from Virginia, but is not credited to that state. The other statues are: Roger Sherman and Jonathan Trumbull, of Connecticut; James Shields, of Illinois; O. P. Morton, Indiana; John J. Ingalls, Kansas; John Winthrop and Samuel Adams, Massachusetts; John Hanson and Charles Carroll, Maryland; William King, Maine; Lewis Cass, Michigan; Thomas H. Benton and F. P. Blair, Missouri; John Starke and Daniel Webster, New Hampshire; Richard Stockton and Phil Kearney, New Jersey; R. D. Livingston and George Clinton, New York; James A. Garfield and William Allen, Ohio; Robert Fulton and Peter J. Muhlenberg, Pennsylvania; Daniel Greene and Roger Williams, Rhode Island; Samuel Houston and Stephen Austin, Texas; J. Collamer and Ethan Allen, Vermont; John E. Kenna and F. H. Pierpont, West Virginia; Pere Marquette, Wisconsin.

Statuary hall is a great show place for visitors at the capitol and the guides have the history of the statues at their tongues' end. In addition to the marble statues this hall is celebrated as a whispering gallery and for oddities in acoustics. Persons on the opposite side of the big room, when standing on particular spots, can converse with each other in whispers, although the hall may be crowded. In another spot when a person is spoken to by another at a distance the sound of the speaker's voice seems to be over his head and in tremendous volume. The ceiling of this old hall was reconstructed two or three years ago and some of the peculiar echoes were destroyed, but enough remain to help the capitol guides earn their fees by amusing the visitors.

Historic Little Room.

JUST off from Statuary hall is the office of the clerk of the house, a small room that was used by the speaker of the house when that body met in this old hall. It was there that ex-President John Adams, at the time a member of the house, breathed his last, having been stricken while on the floor. In this room there is now a genial gentleman who has been clerk of the house for ten years, or ever since the republicans regained control in 1895. He is Maj. Alexander McDowell of Pennsylvania, and he is likely to hold that office as long as the republicans remain in power in the house if he wants to. He is extremely popular, as much on account of his ability as a raconteur as anything else, as he has a fund of amusing and timely stories always on tap.

Maj. McDowell is a veteran of the civil war, but is never heard to boast of his exploits during that trouble. He is much given to joking his old comrades about war experiences and is inclined to "queer" some of the tales they are prone to tell about the part they played in the army. He relates an incident that occurred not long ago at a Grand Army reunion, where one of the veterans held his hearsrs spellbound as he told of a miraculous experience he had had with a confederate bullet in one of the biggest battles of the civil war. This old soldier related how in the din of battle he distinctly heard whispered in his ear the warning, "I'll hit you, I'll hit you!" A moment after he was struck in the arm by a ball.

Maj. McDowell followed this soldier and declared that he, too, had had a similar experience. At the battle of Fredericksburg he, too, had distinctly heard that whispered warning, "I'll hit you, I'll hit you, I'll hit you!" "When I heard that whisper," declared the major, "I said to myself: 'I'll be derned if you do' and got behind a tree."

Grosvenor in Fighting Mood.

GENERAL Grosvenor, of Ohio, usually termed the "Santa Claus" of the house, on account of his venerable white beard, is a busy man these days in fighting tariff revision ideas. The general is a rock-ribbed protectionist and has little patience with any proposition to amend the present tariff laws. He says he wants a bill of particulars brought in to show wherein the present law works any injustice to the country. The other day he called at the white house and had a talk with President Roosevelt on the subject. Much as these two men differ in their tariff views, they are very warm friends and all their conferences are characterized by good nature.

The president asked Gen. Grosvenor if he had studied the tariff schedules and found any on which the duties could be lowered. The general said that he had found just one. In looking over the law he found that there was a duty of one dollar a ton on basic slag. He said he did not know what basic slag was until he looked it up and found that it was used as a fertilizer. As it is the policy to admit all fertilizers, anything calculated to increase the productiveness of the farmer's land free of cost, he thought this one dollar a ton duty might be taken off basic slag.

Gen. Grosvenor's other nickname in the house is "Old Figgers." He earned this by predicting very closely the majority the republicans would have in the Fifty-fourth congress when they came back into power. He followed this up with very close predictions of the states which Mr. McKinley carried in 1896 and again in 1900.

A Favorite Haunt.

THERE is an humble little restaurant on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue, near Thirteenth street, which is a favorite resort for many of the old-timers in the house and senate. Occasionally these old fellows will introduce a new member to some of the attractive features of this place, but ordinarily the uninitiated congressman will pass the house with a look of contempt, as it is about as unattractive as any restaurant or saloon in the city. It is a low, two-storied brick house, wedged in between pawnshops, with old-fashioned small-paned windows, not over clean, and a step down from the pavement to the doorway. Few strangers recognize in this little dirty brick house the celebrated "Hancock's," of Washington.

The interior of this saloon or restaurant is as unattractive as the exterior. A little short wooden bar at one side, with an oyster counter at the other, and an extremely low-ceilinged, sawdusted, dark room do not appeal to esthetic tastes. Behind that bar, however, are some of the oldest and best liquors in Washington and the colored barkeeper is the son of the original dispenser of drinks whose secret decoctions tickled the palates of Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and other great dead and gone statesmen. The same brand of whiskies, rum, wines and brandies are there to-day and Hancock punch and Hancock cocktails are enjoyed by a few of the senators and representatives, just as they were 50 years ago by their predecessors in the capitol.

In the kitchen of this little restaurant reigns a genuine old-time Virginia "mammy," with a bandana handkerchief tied around her head. The kitchen is faultlessly clean and out of it come the most appetizing and delicious dinners of fried chicken, terrapin, quail and other delicacies that were ever eaten in Washington or anywhere else. It has become the fad lately to have little dinner parties at Hancock's for a "fried chicken dinner."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To Be Handsome a Woman Must First Be Healthy.

Good digestion, perfect cleanliness of the body, abundant exercise and fresh air, plenty of sleep, a serene, sunny mind—these are the essentials of good health. Next, good health is the foundation of all physical beauty whatsoever.

But life is too short for the average woman to spend half her time in breathing exercises and posturings merely for the sake of bodily culture. She has something else to do—at least let us hope so. But undoubtedly she can do useful work and by that very occupation get also the proper physical culture.

To begin, let us go at our housework in a cheerful, happy mind, knowing all the while that it is good for us, soul and body. Next, let us remember always to stand and stoop in the right way. How to stand you know already—spine erect, weight mainly on front of foot, chest up. The right way, and the only right way, to stoop is to stoop without slumping. Bend the body from the waist and hips, never in the slovenly, ugly way from the knees. Hold always the stomach and abdomen in, the knees rigid, then curve the spine over forward from the waist downward in a long, graceful sweep.

Arm and Chest Culture.

In performing that admirable physical culture exercise, housework, it is frequently necessary to lift the arms above the head, as in wiping dust from walls, brackets, chandeliers and the top of picture frames. Nothing will do more to develop a noble chest and shapely arms than just this. When a woman ties a cloth over a broom, then lifts the broom above her head and gives walls and ceiling a vigorous rubbing, she thereby lifts her whole muscular system. She thus raises muscles that have slidden down into ungraceful prominence around the waist and pulls them again into the place where nature put them when she was a child and gave her thus a full, fine chest. It really ought to be a privilege instead of an irksome duty to perform tasks that require using the hands vigorously while the arms are lifted above the head. The spine must necessarily be held erect in this position, and drooping, bowed shoulders are thus straightened and made flat.

The Scrubbing Exercise.

A word about scrubbing, which so strengthens back, shoulders and arms. It is usually not necessary for a woman to get down upon her poor, bruised knees to scrub a floor. She can do it quite as well except in places she cannot easily reach by stooping over from the waist and hips till her hands reach the floor. In this position she can do as effective work, and she does not grow weary or wear her knees out.

Developing the Lower Limbs.

Few men and almost no women have the full use of their lower limbs. The legs are apt to be stiff and clumsy with the best of us. To make them strong, nimble and graceful housework comes in as a beneficent agent, provided the woman does not peg around her kitchen and home wearing those nerve racking, foot and leg destroying high heels so commonly seen. They were never made to walk upon—never—though when a woman is "dressed up" she rather likes the looks of them.

Stooping forward with the knees rigid and the heels together strengthens and limbers the muscles of the back of the leg throughout its whole length. There are a few movements over which every woman alive can spend two or three minutes a day. One of these is standing upon the toes and moving the heels rapidly up and down. This limbers the ankles and instep. Next stand upon one leg while you shake the other vigorously. Also swing the free leg back and forth, then from side to side as far as possible in front.

Sweet Sleep.

It is certain that no woman can be either healthy or handsome without abundant sleep to brighten the eyes and soften the facial lines that the day brings. Some persons need much more sleep than others, but find out for yourself just how much you need, then take it in spite of everything. To skimp sleep makes a woman old and stupid twenty years before her time.

MARY ELIZABETH HART.

Feminine Snapshots

Are Women's Clubs on the Down Grade?

Now comes Mrs. Corinne S. Brown of Chicago and makes charge that the woman's club is losing ground; that it is taken up with tea and wafers and nice clothes to the exclusion of things useful and vital to human progress. This has been true, certainly, almost up to the last year, but now the woman's club is bursting the swaddling bands of infantile uselessness and coming into vigor of life as a world factor. I have been recently looking over the doings of club women in America and London for the past year, and really I never have seen so much hope for true progress among them as there is now. Child labor, city beautifying and sanitation, equal suffrage for their sex and the preservation of American forests and wild flowers are some of the causes in which our women's clubs the past year have been doing admirable work. In Philadelphia women have erected a club home large enough to house five feminine associations. Among these one is the very practical depository and exchange for women's work. Another is a kindergarten association that maintains a training school for its teachers; yet another is the Civic club, which is really educating itself in municipal matters. Now, isn't that practical usefulness?

With amazing rapidity women are learning the grand, rugged lesson of self dependence.

Recently some charitable women in New York heard of a family that was in want. They investigated and found in the so called home of the family a sickly woman who was the mother of nine children. The youngest of these was a girl baby six weeks old. During the six weeks of her life that baby had lived in a soap box filled with straw, only a piece of muslin keeping her tender skin from its sharp blades. How is that for nineteen centuries of civilization?

Let us love all mankind and keep our advice to ourselves till it is asked for. Eleanor Kirk remarks in her Idea. "If you want to do good, love every living creature, walk straight to the kingdom of heaven and mind your own business." But some women are so engaged in looking after other people's business that they never have time to attend to their own business.

A woman makes a very poor imitation man, especially when girl college students go in for hazing their sister students.

It really is beginning to dawn on a benighted world at last that the population of a country may be increased quite as well by a diminished death rate as by an increased birth rate.

The old maid and mother-in-law jokes have been worked overtime now many years. They have become at length so feeble that it is time to give them a good long rest.

"Women can't cook," cries Dr. Robert Ellis Thompson. Good! Women are quite ready to quit cooking and let the men have a try at it any day. Dr. Robert Ellis Thompson himself might, for instance, for the sake of setting a good example to his sex, enter the kitchen and begin frying, broiling, stewing and baking.

Did you ever observe a young woman in a street car chewing gum? Isn't she a sight?

Hon. Frank W. Higgins, the new governor of New York, is in favor of woman suffrage as an act of justice to the feminine sex.

It just makes me tired, that affectation of domesticity many so called professional women put on. If they love cooking and housekeeping so much better than a money getting life outside the home, why don't they do cooking and housekeeping? The field of household labor is a very wide one, the work well paid. Lately one of these women afflicted with the affectation of domesticity boasted to another lady thus: "I am the best cook in Penville." There upon the woman addressed looked the speaker over from head to foot and said to herself, "And I'd hate to eat your cooking." Of course every true woman performs perfectly such domestic duties as come her way, but to boast of it is like boasting of keeping one's skin clean.

The correct name for the trailing street skirt is tanglefoot.

The saddest part of being an inmate of a sultan's harem must be that not one among the whole assortment of wives can go to Paris and choose her own gowns. Lately the finance minister of the sultan of Morocco journeyed to Paris to execute the important state commission of buying clothes for his master's wives. In a great Paris shop the Moroccan finance minister sat hour after hour, and the handsome young saleswomen paraded before him, showing off robes and other garments. At length the minister bought seventy bath robes and fifty-six dressing gowns. Think of not being able to buy even one's own kimonos!

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

Four men sat in low-toned conference around the governor's writing-table, and if any one of them had looked up the silent witness must have been discovered. Kent marked them down one by one: the governor; Hendricks, the secretary of state; Rumford, the oil man; and Senator Duvall. For five pregnant minutes he stood looking on, almost within arm's reach of the four; hearing distinctly what was said; seeing the papers which changed hands across the table. Then he turned and went away, noiselessly as he had come, the thick-piled carpet of the anteroom muffling his footfalls.

It was midnight when he reached his quarters in the Clarendon and flung himself full length upon the bed, sodden with weariness. For two hours he had tramped the deserted streets, striving in sharp travail of soul to fit the invincible, chance-given weapon to his hand. When he came in the thing was done, and he slept the sleep of an outworn laborer.

CHAPTER XVIII.

DOWN, BRUNO!

For six days after the night of revelations Kent dived deep, personally and by paid proxy, in a sea of secrecy which, for the five pregnant minutes in the doorway of the governor's office might easily have proved fathomless.

On the seventh day the conflagration broke out. The editor of the Belmount Refiner was the first to smell the smoke and to raise the cry of "Fire!" but by midnight the wires were humming with the news and the entire state was ablaze.

The story as it appeared under the scare headlines the next morning was crisply told. An oil company had been formed with Senator Duvall at its head. After its incorporation it was ascertained that it not only held options on all the most valuable wells in the Belmount region, but that its charter gave it immunity from the laws requiring all corporations to have their organizations, officers, and operating headquarters in the state. By the time the new company was three days old it had quietly taken up its options and was the single big fish in the pool by virtue of its having swallowed all the little ones.

Then came the finishing stroke which had set the wires to humming. On the sixth day it was noised about that Senator Duvall had transferred his controlling interest to Rumford—otherwise to the Universal Oil company; that he had served only as a figurehead in the transaction, using his standing, social and political, to secure the charter which had been denied Rumford and his associates.

It had been managed very skillfully; the capping of the wells by the Universal's agent, the practical sealing up of the entire district, being the first public intimation of the result of Duvall's treachery and the complete triumph of a foreign monopoly.

The storm that swept the state when the facts came out were cyclonic, and it was reported, as it needed to be, that Senator Duvall had disappeared Never in the history of the state had public feeling risen so high; and there were not lacking those who said that if Duvall showed himself his life would not be safe in the streets of the capital.

It was after the Argus had gone to press on the night of explosions that Editor Hildreth sought and found David Kent in his rooms at the Clarendon, and poured out the vials of his wrath.

"Say, I'd like to know if you cuc-call this giving me a fair show!" he demanded, flinging into Kent's sitting room and dropping into a chair. "Did I, or did I not understand that I was to have the age on this oil business when there was anything fit to print?"

Kent gave the night editor a cigar and was otherwise exasperatingly perturbable.

"Keep your clothes on, and don't accuse a man of disloyalty until you have all the documents in the case," he said. "I didn't know, until I saw your bulletin a few hours ago, that the thing had been pulled off. In fact, I've been too busy with other things to pay much attention to the Belmount end of it."

"The ded-devil you have!" sputtered Hildreth, chewing savagely on the gift cigar. "I'd like to know what business you had to mix up in other things to the detriment of my news column. You were the one man who knew all about it; or at least you did a week or two ago."

"Yes; but other and more important things have intervened. I have been desperately busy, as I say."

"Well, you've lost your chance to get your grip on the capitol gang, anyway; that is one comfort," growled the editor, getting what consolation he could out of Kent's apparent failure. "They played it too fuffine for you."

"Did they?" said Kent.

"It looks pretty much that way, doesn't it? Duvall is the scapegoat, and the only one. About day after to-morrow Bucks' organ, the Tribune, will come out with an 'inspired' editorial whitewashing the entire capitol outfit. It will show how Rumford's application for the charter was refused, and how a truly good and beneficent state government has been hoodwinked and betrayed by one of its most trusted supporters."

Kent threw off his street coat and went to get his dressing-gown from the wardrobe in the bedroom. When he came back he said: "Hildreth, you have taken me at my word thus far, and you haven't had occasion to call me either a knave or a fool. Do it a little longer and I'll put you in the way of setting off a set-piece of pyrotechnics that will double discount this mild little snap-cracker of the Belmount business."

"Can't you do it now?"

"No; the time isn't ripe yet. We must let the Tribune's coat of whitewash dry first."

Hildreth wriggled in his chair.

"Kent, if I thought it would do any good, I'd cuc-curse you out; I would for a fact. You are too blamed close-mouthed for any newspaper use."

But Kent only laughed at him.

In spite of weariness, Kent was up betimes the next morning. He had a wire appointment with Blashfield Hunnicott and two others in Gaston, and he took an early train to keep it. The ex-local attorney met him at the station with a two-seated rig; and on the way to the western suburbs they picked up Frazee, the county assessor, and Orton, the appraiser of the Apache Building and Loan association.

"Hunnicott has told you what I am after," said Kent, when the survey party was made up. "We all know the property well enough, but to have it all fair and above board, we'll drive out and look it over so that our knowledge may be said to be fully up to date."

Twenty minutes afterwards the quartet was locating the corner of a square in Gaston's remotest suburb; an "addition" whose only improvements were the weathered and rotting street and lot stakings on the bare, brown plain.

"'Lots 1 to 56 in block 10, Guilford & Hawk's addition,'" said Kent, reading from a memorandum in his notebook. "It lies beautifully, doesn't it?"

"Yes; for a chicken farm," chuckled the assessor.

"Well, give me your candid opinion, you two: what is the property worth?"

The Building and Loan man scratched his chin.

"Say $50 for the plot—if you'll fence it."

"No, put it up. You are having a little boom here now: give it the top boom price, if you like."

The two referees drew apart and laid their heads together.

"As property is going here just now, $50 for the inside lots, and $100 apiece for the corners; say three thousand for the plot. And that is just about three times what anybody but a land-crazy idiot would give for it." It was Frazee who announced the decision.

"Thank you both until you are better paid. Now we'll go back to town and you can write me a joint letter stating the fact. If you think it will get you disliked here at home, make the figure higher; make it high enough so that all Gaston will be dead sure to approve."

"You are going to print it?" asked the Building and Loan appraiser.

"I may want to. You may shape it to that end."

"I'll stand by my figures," said Frazee. "It will give me my little chance to get back at the governor. I had it assessed as unimproved suburban property at so much the lot, but he made a kick to the board of equalization and got it put in as unimproved farm land at $50 an acre." Then, looking at his watch: "We'd better be getting back, if you want to catch the accomodation. Won't you stay over and visit with us?"

"I can't, this time; much obliged," said Kent; and they drove to the Building and Loan office where the joint letter of appraisal was written and signed.

Kent caught his train with something to spare, and was back at the capital in good time to keep a dinner engagement at Miss Van Brock's. He had understood that Ormsby would be the only other guest. But Portia had a little surprise in store for him. Loring had dropped in, unannounced, from the east; and Portia, having first ascertained that Mrs. Brentwood's asthma was prohibitive of late dinings-out, had instructed Ormsby to bring Elinor and Penelope.

Kent had been saving the results of his deep-sea divings in the oil-field investigation to spread them out before Miss Van Brock and Ormsby "in committee," but he put a padlock on his lips when he saw the others.

Portia gave him Elinor to take out, and he would have rejoiced brazenly if the table talk, from the boullon to the ices, had not been persistently general, turning most naturally upon the Universal Oil company's successful coup in the Belmount field. Kent kept out of it as much as he could, striving manfully to monopolize Elinor for his own especial behoof; but finally Portia laid her commands upon him.

"You are not to be allowed to maroon yourself with Miss Brentwood any longer," she said dictatorially. "You know more about the unpublished part of this Belmount conspiracy than anyone excepting the conspirators themselves, and you are to tell us all about it."

Kent looked up rather helplessly.

"Really, I—I'm not sure that I know anything worth repeating at your dinner-table," he protested.

But Miss Van Brock made a mock of his caution.

"You needn't be afraid. I pledged everybody to secrecy before you came. It is understood that we are in 'executive session.' And if you don't know much, you may tell us what you know now more than you knew before you knew so little as you know now."

"Hold on," said Kent; "will you please say that over again and say it slowly?"

"Never mind," laughed Ormsby. "Miss Portia has a copyright on that. But before you begin, I'd like to know if the newspapers have it straight as far as they have gone into it?"

"They have, all but one small detail. They are saying that Senator Duvall has left the city and the state."

"Hasn't he?" Loring asked.

"He hadn't yesterday."

"My-oh!" said Portia. "They will mob him if he shows himself."

Kent nodded assent.

"He knows it: he is hiding out. But I found him."

"Where?" from the three women in chorus.

"In his own house, out in Pentland place. The family has been away since April, and the place has been shut up. I took him the first meal he'd had in 36 hours."

Portia clapped her hands. The butler came in with the coffee and she dismissed him and bade him shut the doors.

"Now begin at the very tip end of the beginning," she commanded.

Kent had a sharp little tussle with his inborn reticience, thrust it to the wall and told a plain tale.

SAND DUNES MURDER.

Edward Donahue, on Trial at Crown Point, Pleaded Not Guilty.

CROWN POINT, Ind., Feb. 14.—Edward Donahue, arrested in Syracuse, N. Y., on Christmas day on a charge of murdering Arminter Northrup, a veterinary surgeon of Benton Harbor, Mich., was placed on trial in the circuit court here. Donahue pleaded not guilty.

It is charged that Donahue enticed Northrup from Benton Harbor to the sand dunes along Lake Michigan in Indiana and there killed and robbed him.

Dr. Northrup was shot five times, beaten terribly and secreted among weeds and bushes. The slayer then escaped in the doctor's buggy, taking the victim's watch and money. Donahue later sold Dr. Northrup's watch, buggy and horse, saying he had bought them of a tramp.

The session of court was spent in securing a jury.

DEFENDS NEW STATE.

Colonel Prichard Denies That There Is Polygamy In New Mexico.

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 14.—Colonel George Prichard, solicitor general of New Mexico, has addressed the following telegram to United States Senator John C. Burroughs of Michigan: "The Congressional Record of the 7th inst. contains these words uttered on the floor of the senate by you: 'Today polygamy exists in New Mexico. It has been declared that it is a breeding ground of polygamy. If this territory is not admitted these violators of law will be brought to justice.'

"I challenge the truth of the above utterance and will put up $1,000 to be turned over to any charitable organization you may name if you furnish the names of ten men in this territory out of a population of 300,000 here who have plural wives in New Mexico."

"NOT LOVE, BUT BUSINESS."

"Bluebeard" Hoch Denies That He Posed as Romeo With Women.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—"Bluebeard" Hoch has made a statment that his matrimonial ventures were not love affairs.

"I want to correct one impression of me given the public," he continued. "All are led to believe I am a regular Romeo. I am not. I did not love any of my wives. I have no use for women. It was purely a business proposition with me. When I found they had money, then I went after that. When I got it, I left them. They had no charms for me. I advertised for women over forty-five. I found they were easier to separate from their money. Flattery was my chief stock in trade. You can win a woman quicker that way than any other."

Efforts to Preserve Niagara Falls.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The effect upon Niagara falls of withdrawing water for electric power purposes was the subject of a concurrent resolution introduced last night by Assemblyman Palmer, leader of the Democrats. A similar resolution was a feature of last year's session. It provides for a memorial address to the president and congress of the United States "requesting that they, by treaty or otherwise, enter into negotiations with his majesty's government of Great Britain looking to some joint action for the preservation of Niagara falls from further waste and diversion of the waters thereof."

Sympathy With Atkins Family.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The Washington correspondents met at the senate press gallery and appointed a committee to draft resolutions upon the death of Addison B. Atkins, the Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle, and also to arrange for the attendance of correspondents at the funeral. A suitable floral tribute also will be sent. President Roosevelt sent flowers and cheering letters during Mr. Atkins' illness and since his death has written the widow a touching letter of sympathy.

Miller Did Not Call on Higgins.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Much interest was aroused here by the report that William F. Miller, the 520 per cent man, lately pardoned, would stop at Albany and thank Governor Higgins for his commutation of sentence. The train upon which he was supposed to arrive reached here at 6 o'clock last night, but if Miller was among the passengers he was not recognized. Governor Higgins at a late hour said he had neither seen nor heard from him.

Washout at Dehattahoochee.

CORDELE, Ga., Feb. 14.—The eastbound Seaboard Air Line train from Montgomery arrived at Cordele about four hours late owing to a washout at the Dehattahoochee river trestle, five miles west of Omaha, Stewart county. It is thought that it can be repaired in a few days. The river is greatly swollen on account of the recent rains.

Georgia Man Shot Dead In His Home.

MILAN, Ga., Feb. 14.—Joseph Studstill has been found murdered in his home here. He was shot through the head by robbers, who then ransacked the house. Studstill was a wealthy bachelor of seventy-five years. A party of boys who went to visit him discovered the body. There is no clew to the murderers.

Paroled Russian Officers on Siberia.

HONOLULU, Feb. 14.—Three Russian captains and ten lieutenants who surrendered at Port Arthur and gave their parole to the Japanese arrived here on the steamship Siberia, on the way to San Francisco, whence they will go to Russia through New York.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; northwest winds.

NORTH SEA INQUIRY.

Admiral Fournier Will Shortly Announce His Decision.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The work of the international commission is practically closed until a decision is reached, when Admiral Fournier, the president, will call a meeting for the public announcement. The admirals in the meantime will hold daily private sessions to deliberate upon the decision.

The British summary of facts has been stated as follows:

First.—That no torpedo boats or torpedo boat destroyers were in the vicinity of the incident, as shown by the declarations of the fishermen and the official statements of various governments that no torpedo boats belonging to their fleets were in that neighborhood, and that therefore the Russians made a mistake largely as the result of apprehension that an attack was about to occur.

Second.—That fire was opened without sufficient reason and was continued for an unreasonable time after the mistake had been detected.

Third.—That no effort was made to succor the sinking ships or wounded.

Fourth.—That not the slightest irregularity was shown in the conduct of the innocent fishing fleet.

The Russian summary, after setting forth the justification under four heads, concludes as follows:

"The imperial Russian government therefore maintains that the fire of the Russian squadron was ordered and executed in the legitimate accomplishment of the military duties of the commander of the squadron. Consequently no responsibility whatever is chargeable against Vice Admiral Rojestvensky or any of the officers of the squadron.

"The imperial government sincerely deplores that the incident resulted in innocent victims and, therefore, the admiral's responsibility being obliterated, the Russian government expresses its readiness to make material reparation by indemnifying the innocent victims."

BOTH WILL BE HANGED.

Supreme Court Has Refused to Reopen Case of Samuel Greason.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—The supreme court here has refused to reopen the case of Samuel Greason, colored, of Reading, who, together with Mrs. Kate Edwards, was convicted of murdering the latter's husband. Unless the board of pardons, which meets in Harrisburg tomorrow, interferes the woman and Greason will both be hanged on Thursday.

The news of the decision of the supreme court in refusing to reopen the case of Samuel Greason was received with consternation last night in the death chambers of Mrs. Kate Edwards and Greason. The woman's grief is agonizing, and she refuses to be comforted. For two hours last night she paced her cell, crying and moaning piteously. The woman is in a highly nervous condition. A frenzy of fear has seized her, and the officials at the jail fear that she will have to be carried to the scaffold.

Greason's counsel is still hopeful that the board of pardons will not take final action in his case tomorrow and that in the meantime Governor Pennypacker will withdraw the death warrants of both Greason and Mrs. Edwards.

Pardon Resolution Failed.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 14.—A resolution requesting Governor Pennypacker and the board of pardons to commute to life imprisonment the death sentence of Mrs. Kate Edwards, the Berks county murderess, and to pardon her alleged negro accomplice, Samuel Greason, was introduced in the house last night by Mr. Mohr of Berks county, but failed of adoption after considerable discussion.

Boston Manager Shot Waiter Dead.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Richard Howard, a waiter, was fatally shot at the corner of Washington and Compton streets last night by William H. Grimm, manager of a lunch room and lodging house connected with St. Stephen's mission. He died a few minutes after being removed to a drug store. After the shooting Grimm ran through Compton street, pursued by a crowd of men and boys, some of whom cried out, "Lynch him!" He took refuge in the basement of a store, where he was later arrested.

Wreck on Boston and Maine Road.

GILBERTVILLE, Mass., Feb. 14.—J. Dupre of Boston, a brakeman, was killed in a rear end collision of freight trains on the Central Massachusetts division of the Boston and Maine railroad here. Local freight No. 525, from Oakdale for Ware, was switching on the single track near the station when it was crashed into by through freight No. 1,069, from Oakdale for Northampton. Three cars of the switching train were telescoped, and Dupre, who was in the caboose, was instantly killed.

Would Reopen Chenango Canal.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—To "cheapen coal and other products by reopening and the improving of the abandoned Chenango canal" is the intent of a bill introduced in the assembly last night by Mr. Gates of Utica. The route of the proposed canal is from New York Mills, on the Erie canal, to Binghamton and by the Chenango canal extension to Pennsylvania. Eight million dollars is asked.

DIAMOND DUST.

Mr. Denman says that the Westfield Baseball Association expects to have the same line-up as last year from "Red" Waller down.

Manager McGraw, of the New York Nationals, has secured the signatures of fourteen men for his team this year. Nearly all of last year's men have returned.

There is considerable talk about placing a good ball team on the diamond at Scotch Plains this season, and it is possible that George Johnston will be the manager.

Virgil Garvin has signed to pitch for the Little Rock, Ark., team, and a part of his contract reads that as soon as he imbibes too freely he is to lose his salary and position.

George Wiltse, brother of Louis Wiltse, of this city, is getting into fine condition for the coming season, when he expects to make a great record with the New York Nationals.

"Happy Jack" Chesbro, of the New York Americans, says that this will be his last season as a twirler. He says that it requires too much effort and time to get and keep in condition.

Lines Greo, one of the managers of the Plainfield Baseball Association team, will move to North Plainfield Plainfield on March 1, where he will occupy J. A. Blats's house on Somerset street

The many friends of "Pete" Oregan will be glad to hear that he will probably wear a Plainfield uniform the coming season again. There was no more popular player in the city last season than he.

There is every indication that this year will be one of the best in baseball and the fact that the post-season series will be played between the New York National and American League team, will tend to increase the interest.

The Plainfield Baseball Association will schedule games for every Saturday and holidays on the home grounds, with the exception of the contests arranged with Westfield, and this will consist of not over five games between the two teams.

Beisel, who will probably pitch for the Plainfield team this season, visits the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium nearly every night. He says that he has never been in better condition and feels confident that he will be able to piton the game of his life this season.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers are schedued to roll a match with the Cranford team on the latter's alleys tonight.

SCHOLASTIC BASE BALL

Prospects Bright for Good Games Next Season.

STRONG SCHEDULES

City Championship Series and Contests With Prep. Schools Being Arranged.

All three of the local schools will be represented on the diamond this spring, the Plainfield and North Plainfield High schools, and Leal's School. A series will be played to determine the city scholastic baseball championship, which was last year won by the Plainfield High School. In addition each team will have a strong schedule of games with out of town teams.

The Plainfield High School and Leal's will use Crescent Oval for their games, while the N. P. H. S. will play most of their games out of town. From the present outlook, the P. H. S. team bids fair to again run off with the championship. Only three of last year's players have left school, and in their places are Charles Burt, a pitcher and James Conway, a good in field man. The other candidates include temporary Captain H. G. Thompson, Craig, Smith, Collier, Davis, Bogart, Gavett, Banks, Brakeley and Russell. The management of the P. H. S. team is particularly well placed in the person of Howard Lapsley. He has secured several good games so far, and will undoubtedly prepare the best schedule offered to the public for some time.

At Leal's School, the nine will be headed by Edwin Daniel, captain, and Percy Chapman, manager. The latter is a capable man for the management and a strong inter-academic schedule will be the result. Though the school is weakened by the loss of three of its best players, there are still possibilities for a good team, and new material may developed. Jewett, a former Worchester Academy man, will probably appear in the box, while he will be caught by Wills. Among the old stand-bys are Glenney, Wilcox, Daniels, Lyman and Howard, while of the new material, Reese, Dallas, Guteries and Manning are likely to be heard from.

At the borough High School, the baseball season promises to be the best in years. Not since the season of 1900 when Crite, the colored pitcher, was in the field, has the borough been well represented in scholastic baseball ranks. For 1905, a large number of candidate will put in an appearance, and there is good material in the bunch. Harry Woodland was recently elected temporary captain of the team, which has already begun practice in the cage. The manager of the team is Arthur VanArsdale, and he has already secured several games with out of town teams. Among the candidates are Mueck, Hand, VanArsdale, Ward, Kenney, Kipsey, Meller, Fisher, Webster, L. Hamilton, R. Hamilton, Peacock, Woodland, Matthews, Mundy, Dunning, Doeringer, Pond, Jackson.

MUNICIPAL LIGHTING LAW IS FAVORED HERE

COUNCILMANIC COMMITTEE LIKELY TO RECOMMEND CO-OPERATION.

The Public Affairs Committee from the Common Council to which was referred the communications from the Passaic Common Council asking for the co-operation of the local body in securing favorable legislation giving cities of this class the right to purchase electric light plants and compel corporations to place electric light wires underground, will meet this week to consider the proposition. A meeting was called for last Thursday night, but owing to the absence of a quorum nothing could be done.

In the opinion of the committee, nothing is to be lost by co-operating with Passaic. If such a measure becomes a law it will give Plainfield the right at any time to take advantage of it without additional expense and in view of the great interest now being manifested in municipal lighting plans Plainfield may sooner or later desire to operate such a system.

Aside from the discussion given the matter since the receipt of the communication from Passaic, some of the officials have given this question much thought. One prominent official remarked only recently that he thought it would be a wise thing if this city had its own plant, believing that it would mean a great saving and light could be sold at a far cheaper rate than that charged by the Public Service Corporation. He cited the fact that New York is about to establish its own lighting plant which, according to the estimates furnished, will save the city about one-half of the present cost.

TO DEFER ACTION ON TYLER ORDINANCE

SALOON DISTRICT MEASURE NOT TO COME UP AGAIN THIS MONTH.

It is not possible for Councilman Tyler's amendment to the ordinance to license inns and taverns, which provides for limiting the saloon district, to be called up at the special meeting of the Common Council on Thursday night for final adoption, because it has to be advertised for two weeks after its first and second adoptions. Many have thought that an effort would be made to bring it up at this special meeting, which is called particularly for the purpose of transferring A. B. Resell's license to Jerome Leary, who intends to conduct the hotel.

Mr. Tyler does not look upon the measure as one of emergency and the amendment may not be taken for final adoption before the regular meeting in March. According to the ordinances the amendment cannot be adopted on final reading at an adjourned session of the Common Council. There has to be a special meeting or a regular meeting for the purpose. The amendment to become effective must have the signature of the Mayor after final adoption, and if brought up at the March meeting this would not go into effect soon enough to become effective in considering the liquor applications now before the Common Council.

In view of the comment caused by the introduction of Mr. Tyler's ordinance, there may be no effort to push it at present. The six members who favor it may, however, take advantage of their voting power and refuse the new applications, those of John Goff and John Shea. This would be quite as effective as though the amendment was in force.

John McKlean, arrested last night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, had sentence suspended in the city court this morning. He was picked up on Front street last evening, by Patrolman Overbaugh.

SPRING ELECTIONS ARE ABOLISHED

Election Merger Bill Passes the Senate and It Has Governor's Signature.

EFFECTS THE BOROUGH

Mayor Smalley's Term Will be Extended Until January 1, 1906, by the New Law—Objections to It.

There will be no election in North Plainfield on March 14 and consequently Mayor Newton B. Smalley will continue in office until Jan. 1, 1906, the spring election being merged with the general election in the fall by a bill which has passed the Legislature and was signed by Governor E. C. Stokes this morning.

The measure provides for election of all town, township, borough and other municipal officers on the general election day in November and it went through the State Senate yesterday afternoon. Senator Horner was conspicuous in opposing the bill, stating that it was a departure from good principle, although it might be good party policy, and that good government could never be too expensive. Senator Ferrell said the bill was in line with a disposition to consolidate all elections and that the people in rural sections were against it.

Senator Cresse said the bill seemed to be an attempt on the part of the leaders to take away the last vestige of home rule. Senator Bradley said that he thought residents of rural sections had sufficient intelligence to discriminate between election issues on a common election day. Others in favor of the bill who made remarks were Senator Wakelee, who emphasized the advantages of the fall election day as a holiday, free from business obligations. Senator Batcheller, who said the bill was no attempt to smother independence, and Senator Lee, who said the change where thus far tried had aroused increased interest rather than otherwise. Senator Bradley said in reply to Senator Horner's citing of Philadelphia retaining of spring elections that Philadelphia's example was a thing to be avoided on general principles.

Bill passed—12-4, those in negative being Ferrell, Horner, Cresse and Strimple. Under suspension of rules, bill released from custody of the Senate.

Councilmen J. K. Arnold, Republican, and J. P. Humble, Citizens, under the new law will also hold over as members of the North Plainfield Council until January next, although under the present law their terms would expire in March.

A Monster Calf.

Farmers and dairymen are much interest in a calf which was born at the home of Den. Gavin in North Plainfield three weeks ago. At birth the calf weighed one hundred pounds and its present weight is 380 pounds. The report seemed almost incredibable and many farmers and others have visited the farm only to be convinced of the truth. The calf's mother was of Holstein stock and the sire a Durham. Both are registered stock. The calf is the object of much curiosity and hundred of visitors have been to the farm to see it.

TOLD OF EXPERIENCE WITH JAPANESE SOLDIERS

MRS. G. K. PEARSON, A RETURNED MISSIONARY, MAKES ADDRESS.

Mrs. George K. Pearson, a returned missionary from Japan, was the speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, of the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday afternoon, the subject of her address being the "Work Among the Japanese Soldiers." Though Mrs. Pearson has lectured on the subject of Japan before in this city, at various societies, she touched more upon the Russo-Japanese War yesterday afternoon than she has in other addresses.

After telling briefly of the characteristics of the race, which have so often been spoken of at similar meetings, Mrs. Pearson referred at greater length to her personal work among the Japanese soldiers. Not leaving Japan until the war was well under way, Mrs. Pearson was in a position to realize as few can the causes leading up to the struggle with Russia, and the effects which the Russian tyranny produced. As she has stated before, in the Japanese people there are the greatest possibilities, and they have in them the characteristics from which one of the strongest Christian races on the globe might be produced. In her work among the soldiers, she had opportunity to see the real life of the inhabitants of the "Island Empire," and she became aware of the truth of the much talked of humanity which the Japs display. In their treatment of prisoners, in their care for the Russian sick, and in many other respects, the Japs, Mrs. Pearson said, showed themselves at times more Christian-like than the citizens of more civilized countries.

P. A. C. SIGNS ITS PLAYERS

Greatest Aggregation Since the Days of the Old Crescents.

OPEN WITH ATHLETICS

Lindeman and Beisel Pitchers and Lamar Catcher—Records of the New Men—Partial Schedule.

Arrangements were practically completed yesterday for the baseball team that is to represent Plainfield on the diamond for the season of 1905 and there is every indication that the fans will see the best article of ball since the days of the old Crescents. Manager Woolston, with two exceptions, has secured his team and while it may be a little early to talk baseball, the cranks will be interested to know something about the lineup. As stated by the manager, "this lineup is bona-fide and barring accidents or other unavoidable reasons, the team will be this, with the exceptions noted:

Lindeman and Beisel, pitchers; Lamar, catcher; Driscoll, first base and captain; Lauder or Shortell, second base; Kiernan, short-stop; "Mike" Leonard, third base; "Pete" Oregan, left field; Fultz or Gray, center field; Harry McCormick, right field.

It will be noticed that nearly all of the players comprise the Hoboken team of last season, and those who have seen them on the diamond know of their ability to put up the right kind of a contest. With Lindeman and Beisel, the pitching staff should be the best. Both men are in first-class condition and able to deliver the goods. As for Lamar, the catcher, his fine work behind the rubber and at the bat is too well known for comment. Outside of the big leagues he probably has no superior as a catcher. The infield should be a veritable stone-wall. It is not positively settled whether "Billy" Lauder or Shortell will cover second. Lauder is under contract to coach the Columbia 'Varsity team until the first of June and if he cannot make arrangements to play here at the same time he will remain with Columbia until his contract expires. As for the other infielders their work has always been of the gilt-edged order, very fast in fielding and sure hitters.

The outfield is equally as fast as the infield. The fans know what Orgean can do, and whether Fultz or Gray covers center, it will be all right, and as for McCormick in right garden, there is nothing to fear. Fultz is now studying law in New York. His two-years' contract with the New York Americans has expired, but Clark Griffith would like to have him sign another two-year contract for less money, which he is not willing to do. It depends on the result of this whether he will play here or not. He and Lauder are both graduates of Brown University and are anxious to play together.

McCormick played with the Pittsburg Nationals last season, having gone there from the New York Nationals. He has secured a clerical position with the Pennsylvania Steel and Iron Company in the New York offices and has decided to give up professional baseball, preferring to play one or two games a week. He is a fine fielder and a heavy batter.

It has been decided to open the season here on Saturday, April 15, when the Philiadelphia Athletics will be the opposing team. This date was closed this week. This should give baseball an auspicious opening with weather conditions right. Then through the season will follow contests with Atlantic City, Camden, Wilmington, the Philadelphia Giants, the Cuban Giants and Harrisburg, champions of the Tri-State League. A series of possibly five games will be arranged with Westfield, two here and two away with the "rubber" on grounds to be decided. It is also likely that games will be arranged with Rahway and New Brunswick. The object will be to give Plainfield the best baseball possible and to bring teams here that have a reputation.

All of the players engaged to play here are much pleased with the prospects for the season and they promise to do their full share in sustaining their reputation of the past. All of the games, with the exception of those at Westfield, will be played on Crescent Oval, and as soon as the weather is right the work of improving the grounds and providing ample seating capacity will begin. Arrangements will be made with the Public Service Corporation to have the best trolley service when a game is on so that patrons can be carried to and from the oval quickly.

The Park Club bowlers were again defeated in the Central Journal Bowling League, two out of three games going to their opponents, the Cranford Casino five, last night. J. S. B. LONG DEAD.

Brother of Dr. Long Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

John S. B. Long, brother of Dr. Monroe B. Long, of this city, and for many years the occupant of the Long Homestead at Washington Valley, near Martinville, passed away at his home last night after a lingering illness. Mr. Long was sixty-two years of age. He was a farmer, and was well known in this city, where he had often been a visitor.

For the last three years, Mr. Long's health has declined, and after suffering from pneumonia and a complication of troubles, his death was caused last night by Bright's disease. The house in which John Long spent his life, and where Dr. M. B. Long lived when a boy has been occupied by the Long family for the last century.

John Long leaves a wife and three children, Firman Long, of New Brunswick, and Jacob and Mary Long, who lived with him at the Homestead. In addition to Dr. M. B. Long, two brothers survive him, Jacob Long, of this city, and William Long, of Somerville. Mrs. Steven Staats, of West Second street, is a sister.

The funeral will take place at his late residence on Friday, and the body will be brought to this city for burial.

Strawride to Westfield.

A straw ride party gotten up by Frank Knight, of Richmond street, and numbering twenty young people, enjoyed a pleasant trip to Westfield and back last night. On returning to Plainfield adjournment was made to the home of Miss Edith Vail on East Sixth street, where refreshments were served.

Mrs. Lucy Buried.

Mrs. Bridget Lucy, a former resident of this city, who died at her home in New York on Monday at an advanced age, was buried in St. Mary's cemetery, today, the body being brought here by A. M. Runyon & Son, funeral directors.

FIGHTING "BLUE LAWS"

Rev. Dr. Lewis' Appeal Before Penna. Legislature's Com.

ARGUMENT APPLAUDED

Speaks on Behalf of the Keystone Seventh-Day Baptists, Who Are Prohibited Working on Sunday.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, appeared before the Judiciary Committee of the Pennsylvania State Senate at Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday, and spoke at some length at the hearing regarding the Sunday law now in force in that State. He appeared on behalf of the Seventh-Day Baptists of that State, the present law in effect prohibiting the members of that denomination from doing any manual labor on Sunday or conducting any business. These hearings are held biennially and Dr. Lewis was one of the principal speakers two years ago.

While making his appeal for liberty, Dr. Lewis was interrupted by outbursts of applause of the members and his friends. He reviewed the history of the Seventh-Day Baptists in the State of Pennsylvania, stating that in 1794 when the "blue laws" were being enacted they appeared before the Legislature and petitioned for their rights. Showing how closely indentified they have been with State interests he said that the Seventh-Day Baptists opened their homes after the Battle of Brandywine in 1777 and cared for the sick and wounded to the number of five hundred.

Dr. Lewis declared that Samuel Ward, of Rhode Island, a Seventh-Day Baptist, and a member of the Continental Congress, was chairman of the committee of the whole that proposed the name of George Washington as commander-in-chief and reported to him his election. The Declaration of Independence was translated in fifteen foreign languages by Seventh-Day Baptists of Pennsylvania, and copies of it were printed on a press owned by the denomination. This same press is now in the State historical rooms in Philadelphia.

The argument presented by Dr. Lewis was that the law has no right to designate any one day to be observed as the Sabbath, and it is for the purpose of amending the present statute that the denomination is earnestly working. In 1846 eight men, prominent, respectable and law-abiding Seventh-Day Baptists were under indictment in Pennsylvania for performing manual labor on Sunday. The amendment now before the Legislature permits the selling of ice cream, candy, cigars, etc., which is now prohibited.

Opposing the Seventh-Day Baptists is a Scotch-Irish-Presbyterian element it is said, which seems to hold the key to the political situation, but Dr. Lewis says that he feels much encouraged with the prospects for a change in the law which will savor of greater freedom and justice.

TO BUILD NEW COURT HOUSE

Somerset County's Freeholders Unanimous in Their Decision.

PLANS READY SOON

Board Found Public Sentiment Favorable to Action—Thomas E. Gibson's Resolution.

The Board of Chosen Freeholders, at its monthly meeting held yesterday, took definite action relating to the building of a new court house for Somerset county. A resolution, introduced by Thomas E. Gibson, of Rocky Hill, was to the effect that, after making a thorough investigation of public sentiment by holding a public meeting to give the taxpayers a chance to object to a new structure, the Board had found the present Court house, jail, Surrogate's office and County Clerk's office to be inadequate, and that the Freeholders "proceed to take such steps as may seem necessary and proper for the erection of a Court House and buildings suitable for the use of the courts and county officers and to furnish same in readiness for occupancy."

This resolution was passed without a dissenting vote. It is probable that the Board will consider plans at the next meeting.

The estimated cost of the proposed court house and other necessary buildings is between $125,000 and $150,000.

Messrs. Gibson, Vreeland and Whitehack were appointed as a legislation committee on road laws. Their duties will be to examine all bills presented to the Legislature respecting roads and to favor such as is deemed favorable to Somerset county.

A VALENTINE PARTY.

Given Last Night in Honor of Miss Ella Lounsbury.

Hearts were trumps at the Valentine party given last night in honor of Miss Ella Lounsbury, of Plainfield avenue, to about twenty of her friends. The affair was appropriate in every detail, red cardboard hearts forming the decorative scheme, which was decidedly effective. The hearts were pinned to the wall and curtains, and festooned in all parts of the room.

On one side of the reception hall, the large parlor was cleared for dancing, while in the dining room, the tables were set for hearts. There were five tables, the prizes in the game being won by Miss Hattie Messersmith and Frank Haseltine. The consolation rewards were given to Miss Beatrice Miner and Louis V. Wilson. After the game, dancing formed a pleasant feature of the evening's enjoyment, and later refreshments were served. The Valentine scheme was carried out even in respect to the refreshments, the cakes being heart shaped.

Party for Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Chandler, of Johnston's Drive, gave a party yesterday afternoon for their daughter. A number of young friends of Miss Chandler were present and spent a pleasant time playing games, after which supper was served.

Mrs. Truitt's Luncheon.

Mrs. Joseph P. Truitt, of "Tunlaw," gave a luncheon at her home, yesterday, covers being laid for twelve. It was a Valentine luncheon and the decorations were appropriate to the occasion, heart-shaped cards being prominent everywhere, with a profusion of pink roses and pink satin ribbons. The favors were pink glass baskets. The guests were Mrs. William L. Saunders, Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. Abram G. Hooley, Mrs. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. A. F. H. Streuli, Mrs. Percy Stewart, Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson, Mrs. H. W. Beebe, Mrs. Eugene Moore, Miss Kittie Stewart and Mrs. J. H. Probasco.

Heart Party in Honor of Cousin.

Miss Estelle H. Brooks, of West Fifth street, gave a "Valentine" heart party at her home last night, in honor of her cousin, Miss Maud Fay, of San Diego, Cal., who is visiting her. The first women's prize, a chafing dish, was won by Miss Ada VanHorne, and the men's, a shot gun, by Edward Hardingham. The consolation prize was awarded Harry E. Bentley. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and refreshments were served at a late hour.

Lecture Tomorrow Night.

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell will speak of his work as a physician and preacher on the coast of Labrador, where he has been working for the past six years, in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Prof. Norman Duncan, author of "Dr. Luke of the Labrador," is enthusiastic concerning Dr. Grenfell and his labors among the people of that coast.

Whist Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Watchung Whist Club was held last night at the home of Walter Walker, of Jackson avenue. The prizes were won by Mrs. Horace Conover and Mr. Walker, the second prizes going to Mrs. Walter Apgar and William Angleman. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, of Richmond street.

LURALIGHTER WON.

Cold Weather and Heavy Track at New Orleans.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 15.—The prize fight scheduled for last night between Monte Attell of San Francisco and Jimmy Walsh of Boston before the Commercial Athletic club was declared off by Chief of Police Kiely after a conference with Prosecuting Attorney Dalton, who took the view that the system of selling a membership ticket to the club and then selling reserved seats to be used in connection with the membership ticket was against the law. Chief Kiely officially announced that the fight would not be permitted and instructed the police to see that his order was obeyed.

Racing at Crescent City Track.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—With the exception of a six furlong handicap the Crescent City Jockey club card was made up of selling races. The heavy track upset many calculations, and only three favorites, Pawtucket, Laura Hunter and Merry Acrobat, won. Caithness, favorite in the first, was so badly interfered with at the start that she was forced out of the race. On the way to the post for the third race Metallic jumped the outer fence and ran away three furlongs. Isabella D., favorite in the last race, was fractious at the post and was practically left.

Position, King Thorpe and Azelina.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 15.—Ladies' day and perfect weather brought out the largest crowd of the season. Azelina went six furlongs in 1:13, winning easily from Dod Anderson and Mocorito in the fifth race. The winning favorites were Position, King Thorpe and Azelina. Durbar was a second choice and won easily in the sixth race. Caseador took the steeplechase by a head from Jim Bozeman. Revel fell in the fifth race, breaking her leg.

AT LITTLE HUNGARY

President Roosevelt Visits East Side of New York.

LIGHTS BLAZED FORTH "DELIGHTED!"

Introduced by President Braun, Guest of Honor Spoke Briefly as to What Should Constitute American Citizenship.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—For the first time since the days when he was police commissioner of New York President Roosevelt last night revisited the heart of the east side, where as a guest of the Hungarian Republican club he dined and spoke at the restaurant Little Hungary. Guarded by mounted police and secret service men through streets cleared and cordoned by patrolmen, he drove from upper Fifth avenue into the crowded district which lies around Second avenue and East Houston street, a region of small shops and tenements and largely populated by foreign born citizens. From the moment his carriage entered the district he received an ovation. Never before has a president of the United States visited this little known part of New York and never before had a fraction of the thousands that cheered him seen a nation's ruler. Electric lights winked and blinked characteristic legends, gaudy bunting fluttered in the wintry wind, and the great east side showed its enthusiasm by every imaginable sign and sound. Across Second avenue at Sixth street a huge electric device blazed forth the single word "Delighted," a word frequently used in the decorations. Many small shopkeepers apparently had spent a week's profit in elaborate decorations, and it has been many years since the east side saw such a night.

The district through which the president drove and in which he dined is not the safest in the great city, and the police took no chances. So stringent were the precautions that not a flashlight photograph was allowed to be taken and uniformed police, plain clothes men and detectives fairly swarmed inside and out of Little Hungary. They were stationed on the roofs and fire escapes in the neighborhood, and for two blocks on either side of East Houston street a cordon of police cut off the crowds. The ordinary police cards permitting entry into fire lines and similar places were suspended by order of Police Commissioner McAdoo, and no one without an invitation to the dinner or a specially issued police card was permitted to pass the tautly drawn line of patrolmen.

The night was bitter cold, almost the coldest of the winter, but it did not depress the spirits of the crowd. Before dusk the east side streets began to pour forth their quota bound toward Little Hungary, and these were swelled by sightseers from all over the city, the latter perhaps more anxious to see the east side on a gala night than to catch a glimpse of the president. The snow of many storms, ice coated by alternate thaws and freezes, was breast high in the side streets, and over these heaps the crowds scrambled and slipped to secure a vantage point. They stood uncomplainingly on the icy crests in the bitter wind and lingered through the long hours of the banquet to again cheer the president on his departure.

When the president visited Little Hungary last night he fulfilled a promise made to the Hungarian Republican club several years ago that he would be their guest at a banquet if their prediction came true and he ever went to the White House as president.

This, the concluding function of the president's two day visit to New York, was the most picturesque that he has attended. In striking contrast to the wealth and fashion which surrounded him at the Lincoln dinner were the surroundings amid which the president spoke last night.

The president sat at the right of Mr. Braun, the president of the club, and the other guests at this table were General Francis V. Greene, William Barnes, Jr.; Rear Admiral Coghlan, General Frederick D. Grant, Nevada N. Stranahan, Secretary Loeb, W. Travers Jerome, Commissioner McAdoo, Robert B. Armstrong, James Sloane, Jr., and Frank H. Tyree, while near by were many other men prominent in various walks of life.

Among the telegrams read at the dinner was one from the Hungarian club of Kansas City to President Roosevelt, which said:

"Hungarian hearts they beat for you because they always find you true. We hope you find the tokay right, and good will bless your appetite."

Vice President Elect Fairbanks sent a letter expressing his regret that he could not be present.

Congressman William Sulzer, introduced by President Braun, said in part:

"This is the first time, I believe, a president of the United States has ever visited the people on the east side of New York, sat at their table and broke bread with them. It is an honor we all appreciate.

"It is a great pleasure, I assure you, for me to be here tonight—here among you, my friends and constituents, to testify by my presence and by my words my respect and admiration for Theodore Roosevelt. I know him well. He is a friend of the plain people, the same as I am, and he wants to give every man in all the land, from the richest to the poorest, from the highest to the lowest, an equal opportunity, a fair chance and a square deal. He is closer to the people today, in my opinion, and more in sympathy with their wishes and wants than any other man in our country. He is a remarkable man, a man of destiny. He combines the constructive genius of Jefferson, the courage, audacity and generalship of Jackson and the kindly sympathetic nature and intense Americanism of Abraham Lincoln. He is the man who does things. Knowing him as I do and believing in him as I do, I predict that he will go into American history as one of the greatest executives that has ever sat in the White House. He is not a partisan president. He is the president of all the people. He believes in the people, and the people believe in him, and they will stand by him in his efforts to correct government abuses and write upon the statute books laws in the interest of all instead of the few.

"Notwithstanding the fact that I am a Democrat, have always been a Democrat and always expect to be a Democrat, I say to you that ever since Theodore Roosevelt has been president I have supported him honestly and loyally in his efforts to secure certain reforms and rights for the people.

"I intend to stand by the president whenever I believe he is right in the future as in the past. I believe in Theodore Roosevelt's Americanism. He will live in history, and to paraphrase a stanza from Lowell's commemorative ode on Lincoln, I say—

His traducers and detractors will depart,
And, standing like a tower, our children's children
Will behold the glory of his fame;
This kindly, brave, farseeing man,
New birth of our new growth,
An intense American.

"Now a few words about the senate. The senate of the United States is today an aristocratic, autocratic and plutocratic body. It is the most un-Democratic, the most un-Republican, the most un-American institution in our political system. Some of the senators are all right, but most of them are generally wrong and try to stay wrong. Today forty-five United States senators, controlled by the trusts, controlled by the great corporations, controlled by plutocracy, have it in their power to prevent the repeal of a bad law, no matter how anxiously the American people may want it repealed, and have it in their power to prevent the enactment of a good law, no matter how determined 80,000,000 of people may be in favor of it. Just think of it, my friends, forty-five men in the United States senate practically control and run the government of the United States, spurn the executive, spit upon the house of representatives and bid defiance to the American people.

"We can never secure the reforms the American people want and demand, we can never change the plutocratic system now enthroned and in power throughout the country until we reform the senate of the United States."

Amid loud cries of "El Jen!" and the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" Mr. Braun proposed the president's health.

"I present," he said, "the man who gives everybody a square deal, no more, no less."

The applause was deafening as the president arose and faced the crowded room.

When silence was obtained he said:

"Mr. President and you, my fellow Americans, it is a peculiar pleasure for me to be with you this evening, and with greeting my hosts of the Hungarian Republican club I give utterance to the thought of my fellow guests, Congressman Sulzer and others, when I say that whatever our differences before our election, when once the election has taken place, all of us in public life or in private life—president, congressmen, judges, legislators alike—are American citizens and nothing else.

"It is nearly ten years ago that I first took dinner here in the immediate neighborhood of where I am dining now, and at that time I remember perfectly when I was first brought up here it was by Mr. Jacob Riis and Mr. Jim Reynolds, and I was told that I would get an awfully good dinner and hear some very good music, and both prophecies proved true.

"I say to you tonight that Americanism is not a matter of birthplace, of ancestry, of creed, of occupation. Americanism is a matter of the spirit that is within man's soul. From the time when we first became an independent nation to the present moment there has never been a generation in which some of the most distinguished and most useful men were not men who had been born on the other side of the Atlantic, and it is peculiarly appropriate and to me peculiarly pleasant that in addressing this club of the men upon whose efforts so much of the future welfare of this city, of this state, of this nation, depends I should be addressing men who show by their actions that they know no difference between Jew and gentile, Catholic and Protestant, native born and foreign born, provided only the man, whatever his creed, whatever his birthplace, strives to live so as to do his full duty by his neighbor and by the country as a whole."

HAS GIVEN UP HOPE

Mrs. Kate Edwards In State of Utter Collapse.

GREASON AGAIN PROTESTS INNOCENCE

Preparations For Execution Continue—Monster Petition Circulating to Make Sentence Life Imprisonment.

READING, Pa., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Kate Edwards, who, with Samuel Greason, the negro, is to be hanged here tomorrow for the murder of her husband, unless the board of pardons intervene, is in a state of collapse. The taking of her deposition or presentation to the board of pardons today was postponed owing to her condition. She was too weak to leave her cell and made no affidavit. Mrs. Edwards appears to have given up all hope. She eats nothing and spends her time moaning and sobbing, asking to be left to herself.

Greason's deposition was taken during the day. It reviews his case, protests his innocence and asks for a full pardon. The application is based on Mrs. Edwards' confession exonerating Greason from complicity in the murder. It will be presented by the negro's counsel today.

District Atorney Kutz has issued a statement announcing that he believes Greason innocent and will advocate his pardon.

When Rev. Stephen Schweitzer, Mrs. Edwards' spiritual adviser, called on the condemned woman, she confessed to him that she murdered her husband and that Greason was in no way implicated in the crime. She went over the entire story of the night of the murder in practically the same manner as it is told in her published confession. Rev. Mr. Schweitzer confirmed her and married her to John Edwards.

A monster petition urging the commutation of the woman's sentence to life imprisonment was presented to Governor Pennypacker at Harrisburg by F. L. Boalt, Miss Catherine Pantland, Mrs. Anna Finch and Mrs. Rudolph Keipfer of Cleveland. The petition contains the signatures of 275,000 men and women of Ohio. The governor promised to refer the petition to the board of pardons.

Sheriff Sassaman will begin the erection of the scaffold this evening if the board of pardons refuses to interfere. It will be located in the southern jail yard, and Mrs. Edwards and Greason, who are to be executed at the same time, will walk directly out of the prison door on to the scaffold.

PEACE TREATIES IN SENATE.

Senator Lodge Will Not Make Reply to Roosevelt's Letter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Senator Lodge presented to the senate in executive session a list of all the general and particular arbitration treaties or arbitration articles in treaties containing other provisions that have been submitted to the senate. The senator has compiled also a statement showing the constitutional methods of making and ratifying treaties in certain foreign countries. The statement was ordered printed as a public document.

The disposition of each arbitration treaty is given by the statement. It shows that forty-four were submitted, of which forty-three were ratified and one, the Olney-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain, was rejected. Of the treaties ratified thirty-seven were not and six were amended. Seven arbitration agreements have been entered into without being submitted to the senate. They all provided for the settlement of private claims and were with Brazil, Colombia, Spain, Mexico (Pius fund case), Santo Domingo and two with Haiti. The Dominican is the Santo Domingo Improvement company case inquired into by Senator Bacon's resolution.

The compilation of the laws covering ratification of arbitration agreements of all the countries with whom the United States has negotiated such treaties shows that in every instance the executive must secure the approval of at least one of the bodies, and in most instances both parliamentary bodies, except in the cases of Switzerland, where the parliamentary body is supreme in treaty making, the executive having none of the power, and of Great Britain, where the king must secure the approval of the ministry, virtually a committee of parliament and analogous with the foreign relations committee of the senate of the United States.

The announcement is made by Senator Lodge that he will not make any statement in answer to the letter of the president, which charged that the ratification of the arbitration treaties with the amendment adopted was a step backward and not a step forward. "So far as I know no one is going to make a statement on that subject," said the senator.

"A TYPICAL EXAMPLE."

"* * * a typical example of the enterprise that marks the conduct of this paper under the present management, and signalizes an epoch in the work of fast, up-to-date journalism among the small-city dailies which the Courier-News has set the pace for in New Jersey Newspaperdom"—Extract from Courier-News editorial:

(From The Daily Press Feb. 10.)

Following the adjournment of the Grand Jury on Wednesday, the members visited the new Court House at Elizabeth and thoroughly inspected the handsome structure which will be ready for occupancy in time for the holding of the May term of court. Being much impressed with the success of the work in erecting this building, which seems to be so well arranged for its special needs, James E. Martine, a member of the Grand Jury, presented this resolution, which was unanimously adopted and a copy was ordered sent to the Board of Freeholders.

"We congratulate the citizens of Union county upon the rapid completion of their new and handsome Court House. We deem its architecture stately, its arrangement complete, and its finish artistic and beautiful. We further congratulate the people upon the fact that this structure has been built practically within the sum originally allotted for construction, and that there has been no suspicion or taint of jobbery or wrong in its building, so common in public construction.

"It is a fit home for our courts, and a safe repository for the county's records and archives for many years to come. We feel that all may point with pride and satisfaction to this edifice as a monument to our county's progress and to the integrity of our officials."

And just another "typical example:"

(From The Daily Press Jan. 21.)

It is rumored here about the Court House that the Grand Jury concluded this week its consideration of the Harold M. Wilcox case and that after much discussion and a number of ballots a true bill was found for manslaughter. It is also rumored that several jurors were favorably impressed with certain evidence brought out tending to show that the shooting of the Darling boy on Hallowe'en night was accidental and were inclined not to bring in any indictment against Wilcox, while other jurors were strongly in favor of bringing in an indictment for murder. Still other jurors were in favor of a middle course, and these latter, according to rumor, were in the majority when the vote was taken.

If the rumor is correct the result will be as many lawyers anticipated when the shooting took place, as in their opinion the accounts of the shooting seemed to lack the elements of a criminal homicide.

The penalty for manslaughter is a fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment at hard labor not exceeding ten years or both. The criminal law also says that anyone who shall kill another by misadventure or in his own defense shall be guiltless and totally acquitted and discharged.

It is said that the lawyers for Wilcox, among whom is R. V. Lindabury, of Newark, will endeavor to show that the killing of the Darling boy was one of misadventure and that therefore under the statute, Wilcox should be held guiltless and totally acquitted and discharged.

FOR A LITTLE CHILD, BUT NOT FOR A KING

POOR LITTLE ONES KNOCKING AT THE DOOR FOR HELP.

Editor, The Daily Press:

"'If a Little Child Knocks.'

"Once upon a time, many centuries ago, there lived in France a bishop so loving and wise that when he made his visitations people of all classes, conditions and creeds flocked to seek his advice and ministrations. At last he broke down utterly under this strain and was persuaded to take one day's entire rest, with the strictest orders that he was to be disturbed for no one, 'not even for the King of France.' A sentinel was posted outside the house to keep off every intruder, but had scarcely begun his beat, when the white head of the bishop appeared at the window and a soft voice whispered: 'My friend, do not disturb me for the King of France, but if a little child knocks, call me at once.'"

This little child is knocking just now in Plainfield. The new building of the Children's Home will be ready for furnishing in March. The largest part of our furniture has been in use many years and is so out of repair that it will be a wise economy to get new in its place. Seventy-four shades are needed for our windows.

The new beds for our two dormitories similar to those in Muhlenberg Hospital, with good spring, mattress and pillow, and their outfit, a quilt, a pair of blankets, three sheets and a pair of pillow slips can be had for $20 each! Ten of these are already promised; we hope soon to have the other fifteen. Anyone giving a bed can name it for a friend. So far Dr. Jenkins' gift of one hundred dollars and the Oshkosh Glee Club's present of $250 are the only one to our furnishing fund. Gifts of any amount may be sent to Miss Ella Serrell, 122 Plainfield avenue, or Mrs. Horace Kimball, 326 Central avenue. This is specially a case where "He gives twice, who gives quickly." M. M. Kimball.

is a fairly large amount of money. How to get it is a question, and how to take care of it after you do get it is another. The way to get it is to save, and deposit a certain sum each month. By allowing the interest to compound semi-annually, the principle is surprisingly increased. We take care of the large and small deposits and pay 3½ per cent. interest.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At the recent meeting of the Dunellen Literary Circle, which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattis, what might be called a patriotic session, combining a celebration of Lincoln and Washington, took place. The rooms were attractively decorated for the occasion in pictures and colors, while the decorative scheme lent an air of St. Valentine's Day to the scene. The subject of the meeting was "The Self," and it was discussed from several points of view. At the conclusion of this part of the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed, which was made attractive by selections rendered by L. E. Gise. Refreshments were served during the evening.

The trolley cars are still a little off their schedule, especially from Bound Brook. The crews of cars from that place report the condition there to be very bad. The water yesterday was frozen in some places so solid that it was impossible for the cars to make their way through the usual tracks, and were obliged to go round about by other route. The track between Dunellen and Bound Brook is in comparatively good condition considering the ice bound streets in the city.

The C. E. Society, of New Market, will meet at the home of Miss Cora Dayton on Friday evening. The organization has not held a meeting for a long time, and this one will be in the nature of a revival. The usual business will be transacted and a social will be enjoyed.

The regular monthly meeting of the teachers and officers of the Methodist Sunday-school was held last night at the conclusion of the regular church prayer meeting. The usual business was transacted, most of which was of a routine nature.

The recent snow and ice has put a ban on the building boom which was on in the borough. Some who expected to occupy their new houses by the opening of spring may be disappointed.

Parker Morris and a pary of his friends enjoyed a pleasant straw ride to Plainfield last night. At the conclusion of the ride refreshments were served, and a social hour pleasantly spent.

James Touseaux was elected elder to succeed T. C. Bodine at the recent congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church. The other deacons and elders were re-elected.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of the Presbyterian church, is attending the wedding of his brother in Ohio. Rev. Mr. Casselberry will officiate at the ceremony.

Mrs. Foster Sofield and daughter, Miss Estelle Sofield, have returned after a brief visit with friends in Metuchen.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, who was for two weeks confined to his home by the grip, is now able to be out.

The bowling team held practice on the Taylor alleys last night, and some creditable scores were made.

Miss Iva Dayton, who has been confined to her home by an attack of the grip, is greatly recovered.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fanwood Council, R. A., held a well attended meeting last night. A delegation from the Grand Council was present and the members and guests enjoyed a Royal Arcanum night together. During the suspension of regular business cigars were enjoyed while the members of the Grand Council and others expelled the principles of the order and the grand work it is doing. Fanwood gives promise of enjoying a most successful year under Regent Samuel Hollingsworth.

Fire Chief Charles Myers has had the snow cleared away from the hydrants, some of them being buried under five feet of snow. Several of the hydrants were opened as it was thought they might possibly have frozen up during the weather of several weeks past.

Henry Guerrier, who has made an efficient special tax collector for several years past, has resigned. Harry Pangborn has been appointed to fill the vacancy and will soon begin to hustle the delinquent tax payers.

A break up in the weather at present would nearly flood the town, not a gutter in town has been cleaned out so as to carry off the water should a thaw set in.

A meeting of the Woman's League was held yesterday afternoon in Meyers' Hall. The work of the Industrial School was the business transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Robison, of New York, spent Sunday and Monday with Mr. Robison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Robison, of the borough.

Miss Nancy Wade, who has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, has returned to her home at Milburn.

The local bowling team go to Westfield tomorrow night to roll a return game with the Westfield team.

Edward Fancher, of Newark, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of the borough.

Rev. Warren P. Coons has returned from a visit with friends at Burlington, N. J.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The local Y. P. S. C. E. will give a valentine social in the lecture room of the church this evening. An entertainment will be provided.

H. J. Manning, who is a member of Co. K, took a load of young people from here to the Co. K fair in Plainfield, last night.

Local friends of Co. K presented the fair with a nice lot of fancy work at its opening, through H. J. Manning.

Mrs. M. W. Payne returned yesterday from a visit of a few days with friends out-of-town.

Miss Nellie Gage has been kept at home a few days on account of a cold.

John Linnabury is entertaining his cousin, Mr. Coster, of New York.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It is to be hoped that our Common Council will recognize the appeal from the city of Passaic, and co-operate with that city to secure legislation permitting the establishment and maintainance of a municipal lighting plant.

The experience of every city adopting the same has been increased efficiency, cheaper rates, and better pay for employes. It is with no spirit of antipathy that this is advocated, but that the burdens of the people may be lightened, and that the great utilities, gas, water, etc., should contribute more liberally to the public treasury. This move is in harmony with the spirit and progress of the time.

ELECTION MERGER, A STEP BACKWARD

HOME QUESTIONS WILL BE SWALLOWED UP BY NATIONAL ISSUES.

A North Plainfield voter sounds the following note of warning against the abolition of spring elections:

Editor, The Daily Press:

There is a bill now before the Governor to abolish spring elections. The object of these elections is to enable the voter to separate the interests of his town or city, which are so largely administerative, from the questions, principally political, which come up at State and National elections.

Is it worth the additional expense involved, to attain this object?

It is notoriously the fact, speaking generally, that American cities, especially the larger ones, are not well governed. Bad administration means public money wasted or worse; it also means a reflection upon each voter of that community. The money saved from waste or theft is a direct offset; the good name is worth both money and effort. So much for the question of expense.

Now the average voter is apt to vote a straight ticket. At the fall election, in the excitement of the struggle between the Republicans and the Democrats over State or National issues, he is apt to forget the smaller interest of his town and they go to the wall. It ought'n't to be so but it is.

So it seems to the writer that we should give more attention and not less to the city election, which means the spring elections. To abolish them would be a step backward.

A Voter.

RESERVISTS MUTINY

Many Bolozoya and Kiev Conscripts Killed by Guards.

KUROPATKIN PREPARING TO RETREAT

Vladivostok Blockade So Effective That No Steamers Have Arrived For Two Weeks—British Ship Eastry Released.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 15.—A dispatch from Bolozoya says that 4,000 Russian reservists have revolted. They have been surrounded in their camp, and an effort is being made to starve them into submission.

Serious disturbances occurred at Kiev on the arrival of 12,000 reservists. On leaving the trains they objected to being led off in batches by an escort sent to meet them. They mutinied, attacked the troops and killed several of them.

They occupied the railroad station and pillaged it. It was surrounded by a battalion of troops sent to the rescue.

The troops fired two volleys, killing fifty of the reservists. The mutineers eventually surrendered and were led off.

A Mukden report says that there is immense confusion in the city. The predominant feeling among the Russian civilians and military men is one of discouragement. Everybody spoke of an early Japanese occupation of the place as a foregone conclusion.

The discouragement of the military officers is intensified by the fact that General Kuropatkin has his headquarters train seemingly ready to retreat northward at any time. Moreover, extensive preparations are going on at Tieling to resist the enemy, implying a retirement from Mukden.

The Russians are treating and paying the residents of Mukden well. The latter are doing a roaring business. Train loads of supplies reach the Russians daily over the Chinese railway by way of Sinminting. One of the most serious consequences of a Russian defeat would be the cutting off of this source of supply.

The Japanese have released the British steamer Eastry, which was seized off Hokkaido, they having learned that she was bound on an innocent voyage from a Japanese port for Singapore.

The difficulties that are being experienced by vessels trying to reach Vladivostok indicate the practical effectiveness of the blockade of that port that has been established by the Japanese. No steamers have arrived there for two weeks. Two are long overdue. It is feared that they tried to pass through La Perouse strait and that they are icebound there or have been captured.

SULLIVAN'S EXPLANATION.

Relates Incident of Manslaughter Case to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The second chapter of the episode between Mr. Sullivan (Mass.) and Mr. Hearst (N. Y.) occurred in the house when Mr. Sullivan again took the floor on a question of privilege and related the circumstances leading up to the indictment and conviction of his father and himself for manslaughter. In decided contrast with their former speech, when the two men heaped upon each other epithets and charges of a serious nature, Mr. Sullivan's statement was devoid of any further attack on his colleague and was a straight recitation of the occurrence referred to by Mr. Hearst. Mr. Sullivan admitted the charge, but said that he himself had only been technically guilty and was permitted to leave the court a free man without serving a day's imprisonment or being subjected to a fine. His father had been imprisoned a year and a half, but on the introduction of new evidence, which presented a grave doubt of guilt, his father had been pardoned.

Mr. Sullivan's statement was listened to with marked attention and at its conclusion was warmly applauded, many members leaving their seats and shaking his hand. Mr. Hearst was not present during the time he spoke.

The balance of the day was devoted to consideration of the naval appropriation bill, Mr. Littlefield (Me.) speaking at length regarding the necessity for keeping appropriations within the limits of the revenues of the country.

Boy Found $13,000.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 15.—George Putnam, fifteen years of age, found a purse on Superior street here containing $13,000 in currency and drafts, together with a bank book showing deposits in the Guardian Trust company of this city. The lad returned the purse and contents to the latter institution and received a reward. The purse is said to belong to H. J. Bryer, an out of town customer of the trust company.

Senator Tillman In Hospital.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina is here for treatment at the Orthopaedic hospital. Dr. Wharton Sinkler, whose patient Senator Tillman is, said last night that Mr. Tillman is suffering from a nervous attack following grip. His condition is not serious.

Train Stalled In Snowdrift.

MONROE, Wis., Feb. 15.—An Illinois Central passenger train is stalled in a snowdrift three miles from here. A double header, sent from Freeport to assist in releasing the stalled train, also stuck in the snow. Later it was released, but has not yet been able to release the passenger train.

Head Consul Woodman Dead.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 15.—F. A. Falkenburg, head consul of the Woodmen of the World, is dead here after a long illness.

OWES FIFTY THOUSAND.

Owen Kelly Held by Los Angeles Police For Embezzlement.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 15.—Owen Kelly, a former wealthy grocer of Philadelphia, now wanted there for the alleged embezzlement of a sum said to exceed $50,000, is under arrest in this city. Kelly was arrested on one of the main streets by Chief of Police Hammil and Chief of Detectives Bradish, who recognized him from printed descriptions sent out at the time of his disappearance.

Kelly left Boston last October by steamer for Europe. His destination was unknown, but he was followed across the Atlantic, thence across Europe, where trace of him was lost. He finally returned to this country, landing at San Francisco. His presence in California became known through information from the east.

Kelly talked freely of his alleged defalcations and admitted that he owed probably $50,000 to Philadelphia relatives and friends, which sum, he said, he lost in speculation after having spent his own fortune in the same way. He said he would return to Philadelphia without a requisition. Kelly said that when he left Boston he had $1,000 in cash with him. When searched at the police station $500 was found in his pockets.

PAUL JONES' BODY.

Ambassador Porter Cables That Work of Search Has Commenced.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Ambassador Porter already has justified the faith he expressed to the state department in his ability to find some trace of the remains of John Paul Jones. He has cabled the state department from Paris as follows:

"Sunk shaft. Found rows of graves undisturbed at a depth of seventeen feet."

This refers to the preliminary examination which the ambassador has been making of the ground which once formed the site of the cemetery to which the remains of John Paul Jones were traced.

Mr. Porter, who was himself a civil engineer, has projected a plan for searching the cemetery site for the remains of John Paul Jones by means of a system of shafts and lateral drifts and tunnels whereby the inquiry can be prosecuted without involving the heavy expense of purchasing and demolishing the houses now on the site of the cemetery.

IN THE SENATE.

Agricultural Bill Passed—Swayne Impeachment Continues.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The senate passed the agricultural appropriation bill and began consideration of the bill making appropriations for the District of Columbia. The Hansbrough amendment to the agricultural bill relative to drawbacks on the duty on wheat was agreed to after an extended debate in which tariff questions figured to a considerable extent.

The usual three hours was given to the trial of the impeachment charges against Judge Charles Swayne. In connection with that case the senate decided to take no testimony on the point of inconvenience in the judge's residence outside of his district; also that Judge Swayne's statement to the house committee should not be used as evidence in the trial.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

INDOOR FASHIONS.

Effective Creations Evolved From Beautiful Fabrics.

Until the arrival of Lent the social whirl makes novel gowns and handsome wraps as necessary as bread and butter. Right in the heart of winter street gowns have less importance than something extra fine and dainty for indoor wear. Theaters, concerts and grand opera all demand fine dressing, and so we naturally yield. Yet it is a pity that some one has not invented a new fabric, for now we are limited to silk, satin, velvet, lace and chiffon for evening attire, with here and there a crepe de chine robe or one made of the elegant and rich light colored broadcloth. But no one seems to wish to purchase immortality by producing a new material. Some one might grasp a few moonbeams and hang them on a spider web and leave the fabric thus made out all night to catch the dewdrops and possibly fix the shadow of the flowering vines over all. Would not that be worth living for? It would seem that scarcely anything else is left us.

We have as the great standbys, for this season anyhow, silks and velvets, with chiffon as the dessert, for, no matter what the combination of a gown, it is not complete this year unless there is chiffon somewhere. It is seen in ruches, in shirrings and, in fact, in so many different fancies that I do not know the names of half of them. The result is that they lighten and ornament everything upon which they are placed. Skirts of dresses in the prettiest of the new house and reception gowns are divided, like the house we read of, against themselves by having thick rows of ruching of chiffon simulating double skirts and panels until one is in doubt as to the original plan.

For instance, one beautiful gown made on the general lines of a Watteau, though still having several points entirely different, had the gown proper made of a superb quality of pompadour silk in the delicate pink and blue of that old style, and the skirt was gathered very full over the hips and opened in front over a panel of cream colored taffeta. All along the edges of the pompadour portion there were ruches of chiffon also arranged to simulate two overskirts. The corsage to accompany this skirt should be snug to the figure and cut half low, with as much lace and chiffon as can possibly be made to hang on.

For many seasons it has been quite the proper style to have chiffon in quantities added to evening capes and other wraps. This has usually been applied in narrow ruffles superposed on the underside of the wrap, so that not until the corners are thrown open does all this elaborate trimming show, but the proud wearer takes great comfort in the knowledge that it is there.

For all ceremonious evening wear the long circular or the shorter military cape is preferred, and few new creations are offered with anything like sleeves. Some of the capes reach the hem of the dress, while others are but to the knees. Some are shirred to fit the shoulders and others are cut, as in the old days. The long cape in the illustration is of cream white broadcloth and is lined with pale blue chiffon over thin taffeta.

Short capes of all kinds of materials are shown and will soon take the place of the coats now worn. The capes are of all grades and materials, so that suits can be matched easily. Capes are very convenient and dressy, but they are not as warm as one might think.

Many ladies are at the present wearing their lives out picking over the new summer goods and wash stuffs that they may have them made up in Lent. These goods are rather held back by the dealers until the "regular customers" shall have made their choice, but one can say that among the patterns one sees exactly such designs as we find occasionally in some patchwork quilt made by our grandmothers. So it would appear that the dear old designs have been revived for us.

In wools for everyday wear the mohairs will easily take the precedence of everything. There is such a wide and long list of different designs, some striped, some with tiny woven figures, others in checks, that the number of designs seems limitless. They are produced in all colors and black, which, however, is the favorite. These have all been cravenetted, so they are waterproof. Eoliennes and many other transparent wools are offered and voiles of every description.

Notable Women

An Ideal Friendship Between Two Literary Ladies

Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, one of the most popular all round writers of her time, has not known a day's illness in a quarter of a century. She is fond of outdoor life, also of her own sex, who love her as she loves them. Mrs. Clark and the late Mrs. Margaret Welsh, widow of Philip Welsh, the humorist, were intimate friends for years. It was one of those occasional ideal friendships between women which make this a brighter, happier world. Both ladies had families to care for, both were busy writers, yet year after year after the day's work was done for each the two ladies trysted on a certain street and enjoyed a long, happy walk together "in the edge of the light," as Mrs. Clark says. When Margaret Welsh went out of this life Kate Upson Clark was disconsolate.

Mrs. Alec Tweedie.

This sprightly lady and gifted British author, who lately came to our country, is always welcome in the United States. Wherever she goes she is one of the livest and most interesting of women. She is an indefatigable traveler in out of the way spots of earth. Her first book was called "A Girl's Ride In Iceland!" Another is "A Winter Jaunt to Norway." Mrs. Tweedie at home is greatly interested in dairying and agriculture as vocations for her own sex. She has lately returned from a second trip to Mexico.

A Lady Baseball Scorer.

Something really new is the appointment of a woman as official scorer for a baseball team. The lady who occupies this unique post is Mrs. Jessie Reynolds of Columbia, S. C. The baseball team of which the manager, Mr. Earle, appointed her scorer is the pride of Columbia. Not the least pleasing feature of the matter is that a good salary attaches to the office. Mrs. Reynolds' husband is one of the leading players of the team. The Daily Columbia Record says of the lady, "Mrs. Reynolds knows the game from start to finish and can tell the difference between a long chance and a flagrant miss as well as the captain of the opposing team."

Pundita Ramabai.

That new woman of India, Pundita Ramabai, deplores the spread of the so called Hindoo philosophy among the women of America. She says if they really knew what it means they would spurn it as degrading and demoralizing. Ramabai certainly knows, for she studied it till she became a pundita. She next came to America and in Philadelphia acquired the learning freeborn American women are permitted to get. Then Miss Ramabai hastened back to her own land to help the hapless female sex there. To enable her better to do this she studied medicine in the United States. Her labors are especially among the despised, hopelessly outcast widows of India.

At Poona, India, the pundita maintains a school for girls, and in this school are 300 child widows. In India, the pundita tells us, there are about 70,000 child widows, some of them no more than four years old. A widow of any age in India is accursed, a social outcast so long as she lives. It is considered, indeed, that she has no business to be living still on earth when her husband may be needing her to cook for him and wait on him in heaven. The only decent, respectable thing for her to do under the circumstances is to die, so she can go and be the slave of her lord and master in heaven.

An Athletic Old Lady.

A notable woman is Mrs. Louise A. Wright of Indianapolis, eighty years old last birthday, though if she herself did not tell it nobody would know. She acts and looks like a very spry and healthy woman of sixty. She owes her health and high spirits largely to outdoor life and exercise. Last autumn she spent three months in Kankakee, the noted hunting and fishing region. Mrs. Wright was an indefatigable [illegible] the Kankakee river and [illegible] fish than anybody else who [illegible] stream.

MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"It begins in a piece of reckless folly. Shortly after I left Miss Brentwood's last Thursday evening I had a curious experience. The shortest way down-town is diagonally through the capitol grounds, but some undefinable impulse led me to go around on the Capitol avenue side. As I was passing the right wing of the building I saw lights in the governor's room, and in a sudden fit of desperation resolved to go up and have it out with Bucks. It was abnormally foolish, I'll confess. I had nothing definite to go on; but I—well, I was keyed up to just about the right pitch, and I thought I might bluff him."

"Mercy me! You do need a guardian angel worse than anybody I know!" Portia cut in. "Do go on."

Kent nodded.

"I had one that night; angel or demon, which ever you please. I was fairly dragged into doing what I did. When I reached the upper corridor the door of the public anteroom was ajar, and I heard voices. The outer room was not lighted, but the door between it and the governor's private office was open. I went in and stood in that open doorway for as much as five minutes, I think, and none of the four men sitting around the governor's writing-table saw me."

He had his small audience well in hand by this time, and Ormsby's question was almost mechanical.

"Who were the four?"

"After the newspaper rapid-fire of this morning you might guess them all. They were his excellency, Grafton Hendricks, Rumford, and Senator Duvall. They were in the act of closing the deal as I became an onlooker. Rumford had withdrawn his application for a charter, and another straw company had been formed with Duvall at its head. I saw at once what I fancy Duvall never suspected; that he was going to be made the scapegoat for the ring. They all promised to stand by him—and you see how that promise has been kept."

"Good heavens!" ejaculated Loring. "What a despicable lot of scoundrels! But the bribe: did you learn anything about that?"

"I saw it," said Kent, impassively. "It was a slip of paper passed across the table by Rumford to Bucks, face down. Bucks glanced at it before he thrust it into his pocket, and I had my glimpse, too. It was a draft on a Chicago bank, but I could not read the figures, and I doubt if either of the other conspirators knew the amount. Then the governor tossed a folded paper over to the oil man, saying, 'There is your deed to the choicest piece of property in all Gaston, and you've got it dirt cheap.' I came away at that."

Elinor's sigh was almost a sob; but Miss Van Brock's eyes were dancing.

"Go on, go on," she exclaimed. "That is only the beginning."

Kent's smile was of reminiscent weariness.

"I found it so, I assure you. So far as any usable evidence was concerned, I was no better off than before; it was merely my assertion against their denial—one man against four. But I have had a full week, and it has not been wasted. I needn't bore you with the mechanical details. One of my men followed Bucks' messenger to Chicago—he wouldn't trust the banks here or the mails—and we know now, know it in black on white, with the proper affidavits, that the draft was for $200,000, payable to the order of Jasper G. Bucks. The ostensible consideration was the transfer from Bucks to Rumford of a piece of property in the outskirts of Gaston. I had this piece of land appraised for me to-day by two disinterested citizens of Gaston, and they valued it at a possible, but highly improbable $3,000."

"Oh, how clumsy!" said Portia, in fine scorn. "Does his excellency imagine for a moment that any one would be deceived by such a primitive bit of dust-throwing?" and Ormsby also had something to say about the fatal mistakes of the shrewdest criminals.

"It was not so bad," said Kent. "If it should ever be charged that he took money from Rumford, here is a plain business transaction to account for it. The deed, as recorded, has nothing to say of the enormous price paid. The phrasing is the common form used when the parties to the transfer do not wish to make the price public: 'For $1 to me in hand paid, and other valuable considerations.' Luckily, we are able to establish conclusively what the 'other valuable considerations' were."

"It seems to me that these documents arm and equip you for anything you want to do," said Loring, polishing his eye-glasses after his ingrained habit.

Kent shook his head.

"No; thus far the evidence is all circumstantial, or rather inferential. But I picked up the final link in the chain—the human link—yesterday. One of the detectives had been dogging Duvall. Two days ago the senator disappeared, unaccountably. I put two and two together, and late last evening took the liberty of breaking into his house."

"Alone?" said Elinor, with the courage-worshiping light in the blue-gray eyes.

"Yes; it didn't seem worth while to double the risk. I did it rather clumsily, I suppose, and my greeting was a shot fired at random in the darkness—the senator mistaking me for a burglar, as he afterward explained. There was no harm done, and the pistol welcome effectually broke the ice in what might otherwise have been a rather difficult interview. We had it out in an upper room, with the gas turned low and the window curtains drawn. To cut a long story short, I finally succeeded in making him understand what he was in for; that his confederates had used him and thrown him aside. Then I went out and brought him some supper."

Ormsby smote softly upon the edge of the table with an extended forefinger.

"Will he testify?" he asked.

Kent's rejoinder was definite.

"He has put himself entirely in my hands. He is a ruined man, politically and socially, and he is desperate. While I couldn't make him give me any of the details in the Trans-Western affair, he made a clean breast of the oil field deal, and I have his statement locked up with the other papers in the Security vaults."

It was Penelope who gave David Kent his due meed of praise.

"I am neither a triumphant politician nor a successful detective, but I recognize both when they are pointed out to me," she said. "Mr. Kent, will you serve these gentlemen up hot for dinner, or cold for luncheon?"

"Yes," Portia chimed in. "You have outrun your pace-setters, and I'm proud of you. Tell us what you mean to do next."

Kent laughed.

"You want to make me say some melodramtic thing about having the shackles forged and snapping them upon the gubernatorial wrists, don't you? It will be prosaic enough from this on. I fancy we shall have no difficulty now in convincing his excellency of the justice of our proceedings to quash Judge MacFarlane and his receiver."

"But how will you go about it? Surely you cannot go personally and threaten the governor of the state!" this from Miss Brentwood.

"Can't I?" said Kent. "Having the score written out and safely committed to memory, that will be quite the easiest number on the programme, I assure you."

But Loring had something to say about the risk.

"Thus far you have not considered your personal safety—haven't had to, perhaps. But you are coming to that now. You are dealing with a desperate man, David; with a gang of them, in fact."

"That is so," said Ormsby. "And, as chairman of the executive committee, I shall have to take steps. We can't afford to bury you just yet, Kent."

"I think you needn't select the pall-bearers yet a while," laughed the undaunted one: and then Miss Van Brock gave the signal and the "executive committee" adjourned to the drawing-room. Here the talk, already so deeply channeled in the groove political, ran easily to forecastings and predictions for another electoral year; and when Penelope began to yawn behind her fan, Ormsby took pity on her and the party broke up.

It was at the moment of leave-taking that Elinor sought and found her chance to extract a promise from David Kent.

"I must have a word with you before you do what you say you are going to do," she whispered hurriedly. "Will you come to see me?"

"Certainly, if you wish it. But you mustn't let Loring's nervousness infect you. There is no danger."

"There is a danger," she insisted, "a much greater danger than the one Mr. Loring fears. Come as soon as you can, won't you?"

It was a new thing for her to plead with him, and he promised in an access of tumultuous hope reawakened by her changed attitude.

CHAPTER XIX.

DEEP-SEA SOUNDINGS.

"Oof! I feel as if I had been dipped in a warm bath of conspiracy and hung up to dry in the cold storage of nihilism! If you take me to any more meetings of your committee of safety, I shall be like the man without music in his soul—'fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils.'"

Thus Penelope, after the breaking up of the Van Brock dinner party. Elinor had elected to walk the few blocks intervening between Alameda square and Tejon avenue, and Ormsby had dismissed his chauffeur with the motor car.

They had reached the Tejon avenue apartment house, and to Elinor's "Won't you come in?" Ormsby said: "It's pretty late, but I'll smoke a cigar on the porch, if you'll let me."

Penelope took the hammock, but she kept it only during the first inch of Ormsby's cigar. After her sister had gone in, Elinor went back to the lapsed topic.

"I am rather concerned about Mr. Kent. You described him exactly; and—well, he is past the planning part and into the fighting part. Do you think he will take ordinary precautions?"

"I hope so, I'm sure," rejoined the amateur chairman. "As his business manager I am responsible for him, after a fashion. I was glad to see Loring to-night—glad he has come back. Kent defers to him more than he does to any one else; and Loring is a solid, sober-minded sort."

"Yes," she agreed; "I was glad, too."

After that the talk languished, and the silence was broken only by the distant droning of an electric car, the fizz and click of the arc light over the roadway, and the occasional dap of one of the great beetles darting hither and thither in the glare.

Ormsby was wondering if the time was come for the successful exploiting of an idea which had been growing on him steadily for weeks, not to say months.

It was becoming more and more evident to him that he was not advancing in the sentimental siege beyond the first parallel thrown up so skillfully on the last night of the westward journey. It was not that Elinor was lacking in loyalty or in acquiescence; she scrupulously gave him both as an accepted suitor. But though he could not put his finger upon the precise thing said or done which marked the loosening of his hold, he knew he was receding rather than advancing.

Now to a man of expedients the interposition of an obstacle suggests only ways and means for overcoming it. Ormsby had certain clear-cut convictions touching the subjugation of women, and as his stout heart gave him resolution he lived up to them. When he spoke again it was of the matter which concerned him most deeply; and his plea was a gentle repetition of many others in the same strain.

"Elinor, I have waited patiently for a long time, and I'll go on doing it, if that is what will come the nearest to pleasing you. But it would be a prodigious comfort if I might be counting the days or the weeks. Are you still finding it impossible to set the limit?"

She nodded slowly, and he took the next step like a man feeling his way in the dark.

"That is as large an answer as you have ever given me, I think. Is there any speakable reason?"

"You know the reason," she said, looking away from him.

THE HAGUE PEACE PALACE.

Plans for Andrew Carnegie's Magnificent Gift to the World Have Been Decided On.

The Hague.—Final decision has at last been reached concerning the Carnegie peace palace. The announcement was made the other day that the Dutch government had purchased a plot of ground situated at the eastern end of The Hague, behind the botanical gardens, to be given to the Carnegie committee, says a special from this place to the New York Tribune. Following that it was officially announced that the future palace of arbitration would be built on the plan of the Brussels palace of justice, of which it will be an exact copy on a smaller scale.

The estimated cost of the peace palace is $1,640,000, or about one-fifth the amount expended on the Brussels palace of justice. Mr. Carnegie's original offer, on April 22, 1903, was $1,500,000. Doubtless he will supply the rest. The general appearance of the palace now about to be erected will be that of a capitol. The style of the building will be classical, or Greco-Roman, as it is called here.

The edifice will consist of a main building, flanked at each end by a forepart, and with a spacious central portico as the principal entrance. A double row of columns will rise to the right and left of this portico, and behind them a large monumental staircase leading to the principal audience room, where the court of arbitration will hold its sittings. This audience chamber is to cover 12,000 square feet, being 270 feet long by 120 feet wide, with enormous pilasters of white marble. Beyond this main chamber will be the principal committee room, modeled after the court of assizes of the Brussels palace, with facings of varjegated marbles. At each end of this committee room will be subcommittee rooms.

Above, on the second floor, will be two spacious rooms, one reserved for the president and the other for the secretary of the permanent court of arbitration. The first of these rooms is to be ornamented with marbles of various colors; the second will have pillars of pink stucco, with pedestals of gilded bronze.

The dome which will surmount the palace, and will, it is expected, give a majestic aspect to the structure, will be supported by two superposed galleries, the lower being square shaped, the other round, flanked by enormous bronze statues of Clemency, Justice, Law and Strength.

It is generally agreed by architects and leading authorities on public art here that no more suitable building could have been chosen as a model for the arbitration palace than the Brussels palace of justice, noted for its harmonious proportions and beauty of lines. The palace of justice was designed by the Belgian architect, Joseph Poelaert. It took 17 years to build, and was formally opened in April, 1883.

Cleveland, Ohio.—A powerful lever to the encouragement of decorative forms in iron, bronze and brass has been the growth of wealth in the United States, since liberal expenditures of money for artistic treatment of metals for embellishing public and private buildings have made possible the accomplishment of some of the most artistic effects to be found in the world.

SHIP BELL OF THE CLEVELAND.
It Is a Good Example of Our New American Metal Work.

One of the striking examples of American skill in this respect is the ship bell presented by the citizens of Cleveland to the United States battleship bearing the name of that city. Upon the surface of the bell is depicted the surrender of Capt. Barclay to Capt. Perry in the battle of Lake Erie, and among the inscriptions is the famous dispatch which Perry wrote in pencil on the back of a letter to Gen. Harrison: "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

Chess in the Curriculum.

The Russian ministry has issued a circular that the study of chess should be added to the curriculum of the schools. Dr. Tarrasch, of Nuremberg, in one of the German papers declares that chess is of the greatest use in forming character, in inculcating prudence and judgment, in awakening thoughtfulness and the imagination and in adding clearness and consistency to thought. He urges teaching chess and giving prizes for proficiency in it.

FROM SLAVERY TO WEALTH

Life Story of Isaiah F. Montgomery Proves That Bright Negro Has a Chance in South.

Indianapolis (Ind.) Special.

One of the wealthiest men attending the National Negro Business league's convention is Isaiah F. Montgomery, of Mound Bayou, Miss.

Mr. Montgomery inherited some wealth from his father, and until 1883 owned the plantations formerly owned by Jefferson Davis and his brother.

He was one of the three largest cotton planters in the United States. Although at present a planter, he devotes much of his time to the real estate business.

The town of Mound Bayou, Miss., in the Yazoo valley, is composed of negroes entirely. Not a white person is in the town. The negroes own thousands of acres of land, and have manufacturing industries. In addition to being a planter and a real estate dealer, Mr. Montgomery deals in merchandise on a large scale. His fortune is estimated at about $200,000.

Although an old man, his mind is still active. He wears the large soft hat of a planter, and does not look the part of the man of wealth he is.

In speaking of his earlier experiences, Mr. Montgomery said:

"My father, mother, two brothers and two sisters were owned by Joseph E. Davis, brother of Jefferson Davis. There was a fear that the property might be confiscated, and it was turned over to us after Joseph Davis had gained possession of it. We were employed, together with 300 other slaves, but began to manage the estate ourselves.

"In 1887 I went to Mound Bayou, and for 15 years have been collecting negroes from all over the United States for settlement down there. Now there are 30,000 acres owned by colored people, with a frontage of five miles on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroad.

"I employ 150 men who raise cotton for me, receiving one-half the crop, and a number of others who rent the land. I have been land agent for the railroad, but the farms are all sold there now. In Mound Bayou the postmaster, banker, and all the officers and inhabitants are negroes."

NO HOPE FOR PORT ARTHUR

Authorities at St. Petersburg Expect to Receive News of Its Fall at Any Moment.

St. Petersburg Special.

After months of brave defense it has become clear to the Russian defenders of Port Arthur that the place cannot be held much longer by them. Fighting of incredible fierceness has been raging around the fortress and news of its capitulation is expected momentarily. Gen. Stoessel, the Russian commander, has done all that man could do to hold the stronghold, but he has not enough troops to withstand the Japanese attacks. Gen. Baron Nogi, who commands the investing forces, is an intrepid fighter and an able strategist. He is a Samurai, and won fame as a military leader in the Chinese war ten years ago. He was in command of one of the brigades that captured Port Arthur, his men storming the celebrated Itzeshan works. Baron Nogi has served as governor general of Formosa, and is noted as an organizer. He was detached from Oku's command after the battles of Kinchow and Nanshan Hill and dispatched south to reduce Port Arthur.

GEN. BARON NOGI.

Moist Vapor from the Sea.

Moist vapor is constantly arising from the sea, and in the course of a year this amounts to a layer of water 14 feet thick. This mass of moisture is borne to the clouds, and the winds drift a large part of it over the land, on which it descends in rain or snow.

DIAMOND DUST.

VanZandt, formerly of the Westfields, but late of Nassau, N. H., will play with the St. Louis Americans this season.

Ray Egnef, the star pitcher for the Trenton Y. M. C. A. team, will undoubtedly be with that team this season, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary. He prefers staying at home to traveling on the road.

O'Brien, the former twirler for the Manhattan College term, who pitched one game for the old Alls team, has signed with the Boston Americans, and will join that team when it starts on its spring training trip. Duff, the catcher, also of Manhattan, will be with the New York Americans.

Regarding the proposed Lackawanna League, it appears that Summit has no grounds and is out of it, and Chatham, desiring to move to Morristown, finds that $2,000, the first payment out of the treasurer's hands for enclosing grounds and erecting a grandstand, in addition to the $900 monthly maintenance, is too much of a good thing and will probably drop out.

BASKET BALL.

There is some possibility of a basketball game between the Plainfield High School and Newark High School second teams, the fives having formerly met with the result of victory for Newark. Manager Doane, of the P. H. S. scrub, is not certain when the game will be played, though it will take place in the local gymnasium, if satisfactorily arranged.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The bowling team of the Y. M. C. A. will roll a match with the five representing the Suburban Club of Fanwood tonight. The game will take place at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. The line-up of the Plainfield team will be Keons, Neal, M. Sutphen, French and Jeffries.

PASTOR'S RECEPTION.

Rev. Charles E. Herring Greeted by Congregation.

Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was tendered a reception by the congregation, last evening, an affair of this nature being an annual event. It was largely attended by the church members and their friends and proved fully as enjoyable as those of former years.

Assisting Mr. Herring to receive were Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Sandford, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Shotwell, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Cave, and Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Searing. The room at the rear of the main edifice presented an attractive appearance, being tastefully decorated with beautiful cut flowers. Bouquets of roses and carnations were set about the reception room, while red shaded lights lent a cosy effect to the parlors.

During the evening, an orchestra under the direction of Martin I. Korff rendered popular selections, while tea and chocolate were served by the refreshment committee. In charge of this feature of the reception were Mrs. D. K. Young, chairman; Mrs. John S. Johnston, Mrs. Freeman Shotwell, Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. A. E. Hoagland, Mrs. A. W. Anderson, Mrs. Hummer and Mrs. Clarence Bond. Mrs. A. W. Anderson poured tea, while Mrs. Clarence Bond presided over the chocolate. A feature of the evening was a recitation by Mrs. Frederick Kirberg, which was well applauded.

She was formely Miss Alice Holmes, of this city, and she has an exceptionally fine voice. The programme promises to be the best ever given. Admission to the musical will be by card.

AS A DETECTIVE.

Daily Press Want "Ad" Finds Man in Ohio.

Wishing to learn the whereabouts of a man named Weber who had placed some goods in his storage rooms on East Fourth street a year ago, Michael Quinn inserted a want ad. in The Daily Press a few days ago. He had had small hopes of ever gaining the desired information and this morning was greatly surprised to receive a letter from the Mr. Weber wanted. It was dated at Lancaster, O., and stated that the writer had noticed The Daily Press ad., and as he was the person wanted, had hastened to give the desired information. The reply came just six days after the ad. was inserted.

Mr. Quinn called at The Daily Press office today and after relating the above facts declared he is firmly convinced that a Daily Press want ad. is a little thing that brings big results.

SCHOOL ENVIRONMENT SHOULD BE IMPROVED

MR. BAXTER URGES THAT SCHOOL YARDS BE BEAUTIFIED.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles J. Baxter, formerly of North Plainfield, has just prepared a report for submission to the State Board of Education concerning the improvement of school yards. The preparation of the report marks the beginning of an effort to beautify all the public school yards of the State.

Mr. Baxter makes a strong plea for better school environment. He says in the report:

"Though we have school buildings to which an appropriate setting has been given, the hard trodden, barren, and unattractive school yard comes so near to being the rule, and is so familiar an association of school life that it does not occur to the majority of people that anything less unsightly and forbidding is either possible or desirable."

The superintedent asserts that a portion of every school yard should be reserved for ornamentation, at the expense of the district. It should be graded, fertilized and symetrically laid out, and then turned over to the school. The pupils should be made to understand that it is theirs. The ornamentation of the yard by the planting of seeds and ornamental shrubs, Mr. Baxter says, should be left to the pupils. This, he maintains, under proper direction, would be more a source of amusement than aimless play. This would relieve the teacher of much of the nervous stain of discipline.

It is pointed out that parents should interest themselves in the plan and vie with one another in seeing who could do most to help on the good work. Seeds, flowering plants and shrubs should be sent from the home, to be used in beautifying the yards.

MEETING WITH SUCCESS.

Shoe Firm of A. E. and A. L. Giddes Now Fully Established.

In a store entirely redecorated and renovated throughout and which was formerly John H. Doane's well known stand, the firm of A. E. & A. L. Giddes is now conducting one of the most up-to-date and complete shoe emporiums to be found in the city. Every department has been re-stocked with the latest styles of men's, women's and children's footwear and the firm will make it an all-the-year feature to handle nothing but the best goods and sell at an honest price. Situated at Front street and Madison avenue the store is easy of access and the Messrs. Giddes have been meeting with distinct success since their opening. The firm is the only one in the city to handle the far-famed Soreels shoe, considered the world over to be perfection in the manufacture of footwear.

C. L. Force Hurt.

While at work on a scaffold near the roof of a new house which is being built by James Manning on Martine avenue, Charles L. Force fell a distance of over twenty-five feet today forenoon and sustained serious injuries. The scaffold, which was insecurely fastenged, ave way, causing Mr. Force to fall. He struck on his back and shoulder. Workmen on the building hastened to where Mr. Force lay in an unconscious condition and Dr. Hedges was summoned and the injured man removed in the ambulance to his home in Somerset place. Dr. Albert Pittis and Dr. Bushmore were called and they fear that there may be some internal injuries.

Miss Tygard's Funeral.

The funeral services of Miss Lillian Tygard were held from the late home in South avenue, yesterday, and were largely attended by many parishioners from St. Stephen's church, of which Miss Tygard was a member. Rev. Arthur S. Peck, rector, officiated. There were many floral tributes. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Chief Woolston May Retire.

It is stated that Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield Fire Department, will not accept a re-appointment at the expiration of his present term. Herman Klineman, a prominent member of the former West End Company, is mentioned as a likely candidate.

Vanness to the complainant's father, was made before Vice Chancellor Emery in the Court of Chancery at Newark, yesterday. Counsellor W. S. Angleman appeared for Vanness and former Judge P. H. Gilbooly for Marsh. The argument was a review of the case, the trial of which was ended on January 21.

The mortgage involved is for $3,000 and is on lands on East Front street owned by Vanness. It was given by him on April 24, 1891, to the late John R. Marsh, of Scotch Plains. BOROUGH TO REGULATE SALOONS

Under Provisions of Hutchinson Bill, North Plainfield May Enforce Early Closing.

IMPORTANT MEASURES

Duffield Bill Will Give Scotch Plains Power to Grant Liquor Licenses—Features of Proposed Laws.

When Senator Barton B. Hutchinson's bill to regulate the sale of liquor in boroughs becomes a law, North Plainfield's Council will be able to control the saloons in that borough without asking the leave of Judge Schenck or the politicians of Somerset County. The bill, which will bring about this change, was introduced in the State Senate at Trenton yesterday and it is announced that it will be put through the Legislature as speedily as possible. Another similar measure introduced in the House by Assembly Duffield will give Scotch Plains and other villages complete control over liquor licenses matters and is far more reaching in effect than the Hutchinson bill.

Under the provisions of the Senate bill, borough Councils are given the right to pass ordinances for the regulation of places licensed to sell liquor and punish the violators of such regulations. It has no reference to the granting of licenses. The power to grant licenses is reserved to the court which at present controls the traffic. This is particularly important to North Plainfield for after repeated request to the Somerset County court, Judge Schenck has failed to grant the petitions of North Plainfield's Council and its citizens for permission to close the saloons at 11 p. m., the hour of closing in this city.

Senator Hutchinson's measure was largely introduced for the benefit of Princeton, where the college officials and townsfolk want the saloons closed at 11 o'clock at night.

The other proposed law gives the governing body of a village the right to grant liquor licenses for all inns, taverns and saloons, as well as wholesale places, and to fix the fees and to have general control for their regulation. This act will not become operative in any village unless the governing body pass a resolution for the people to decide at an election whether they wish to take advantage of its provisions. Arrangements are made in the proposed act for the manner in which this election is to be held, and when the act shall become operative.

PUTS COST OF SPECIAL ELECTIONS ON STATE

BILL PROVIDE FOR THIS ONLY TO FILL VACANCIES IN LEGISLATURE.

Mr. Fordyce, of Middlesex county, introduced in the State Assembly Tuesday a bill which is intended to have the expenses of special elections for members of the Legislature paid out of the State funds and not by the counties

This is intended to meet such situations as arose in Union County, where it cost at least $7,00 to elect a successor to the late Assemblyman Embree and to Sussex, which considered itself too poor to bear the expenses of the special election to fill the vacancy in the Legislature caused by the death of the late Jackson R. Decker.

The bill provides:

"That when any vacancy or vacancies shall occur, or shall have occurred, in either House of the Legislature occasioned by the death or resignation of any member thereof, or for other cause, and it thereby becomes necessary that a writ or writs of election should issue for supplying such vacancy or vacancies, then all the legal costs and expenditures incurred by the county or counties wherein such vacancy or vacancies have existed and such election or elections have been held, shall be payable out of the State treasury on the warrant of the comptroller; the County Board of Elections of such county or counties where said election or elections have been held shall certify the total legal expense thereof to the said comptroller, and the State treasurer shall make his payment to the county collector of each and every such county, for the said sum of money so certified as aforesaid, to be distributed by each and every such county collector to such county or municipal authorities within any such county as have or may have the duty to actually pay out the said expenditures for holding such election or elections as aforesaid."

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT PASSES AWAY IN THIS CITY

PUBLISHER OF BROOKLYN TIMES A VICTIM OF APOPLEXY.

William Cullen Bryant, the publisher of the Brooklyn Times, died yesterday at Cooley's sanitarium here. He had suffered a stroke of apoplexy but a short time before.

Mr. Bryant was secretary of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. He was born in New York in 1849. He was married twice. His second wife died last September. During her illness Mr. Bryant began to show signs of breaking down, and after her death he became worse. In January he gave up his work, and went South, coming to Plainfield a few days ago. He suffered greatly from nervous prostration, which induced a paralysis of the left side.

Mr. Bryant's eldest son, William B. Bryant, was with his father at the time of his death.

SELTZER WATERS SCORES HIT AT THE CASINO

ENTERTAINS MEN'S CLUB OF GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

Members of Grace church Men's Club turned out in large numbers last night at the Casino, where an entertaining programme well repaid them for their attendance. It was a success socially as well as from the entertainment standpoint. All who have had the pleasure of hearing W. S. Waters, familiarly known as "Seltzer Waters," in his humorous selections and songs, will realize what was in store for the Men's Club last night.

Mr. Waters was at his best and kept his audience in roars of laughter from the beginning to the end. His jokes, many new and some old favorites, were well received and delivered in a manner which never failed to bring down the house.

John Manley, of Park avenue, formed a pleasing addition to the humorous programme. He told several interesting stories, and proved an able entertainer. At the conclusion of the programme, refreshments were served and a social hour which follows the men's club meeting wound up a most successful evening. The committee in charge was composed of the following: Hugh V. Fox, chairman, J. Gilmore, Howard Fleming, Arthur Murphy and Theodore R. Reese. The next meeting of the club will be held on March 14, at which time a representative of the Prison Reform Association will be secured to deliver a lecture.

CONTRACTORS' QUARREL SETTLED IN COURT

CAULFIELD GETS VERDICT IN CASE AGAINST BROKAW.

Deliberating for five minutes, the jury brought in a verdict for $100 and costs in favor of the plaintiff in the contract case of Cormick Caulfield against William H. Brokaw, which was tried at Justice Huff's court yesterday afternoon. The case was a complicated one, concerning two receipts for $100 each, held by Mr. Brokaw.

The contract for building a house for La Grande Fulton on Grant avenue, was given to William H. Brokaw, who sub-contracted with Cormick Caulfield for the mason work. When the first payment was made $150 cash was to be given to Caulfield, according to agreement, but only $50 was received. The mason instructed Mr. Brokaw to pay the other $100 to Rajotti, a brickman, to whom that sum was owed. After considerable time the money was paid, Caulfield giving Brokaw a receipt for the $100 owed to him, and Brokaw receiving a receipt for the $100 paid to Rajotti.

Instead of turning over the latter's receipt to Caulfield, Brokaw kept it, and recently presented both receipts, claiming that one was for the debt to the mason and the other for money loaned to the brickman. Rajotti testified that the money was not given to him as a loan, and that he had no occasion to borrow. Mr. Caulfield was represented by H. C. Runyon in the trial yesterday, while his opponent was V. W. Nash, Jr. Mr. Runyon's handling of the case was admirable, so that it took the jury but a brief space of time to bring in a verdict in favor of his client.

These were the jurors: Robert Cook, Allan Laing, Thomas Carty, John Morton, Frank Dunham, Edward Willis, Dr. Pocock, Jonathan Smith, A. E. Jenkins, John McKeon, Cornelius VanHerwerden and Harold C. Durar.

Death of John B. Cahill.

Cahill, who will be remembered by many Plainfielders as the leader of the orchestra which furnished music for scores of dances in this city a decade or so ago, died at his home in Elizabeth, this morning. He was in his fifty-fifth year and leaves a widow and five children. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance in Plainfield and Mrs. Cahill is related to Thomas Hughes and Mrs. John J. Kenney.

ANENT THEATRE TALK

Interested Persons Suggest a Desirable Site.

ON EAST SECOND ST.

Has Many Advantages, and It Is Believed Play House Would Be a Financial Success.

Several persons who would like to see a theatre in this city, have discovered what would appear to be in every way a most desirable site for an amusement house. The property is on East Second street and extends from the stables of the Plainfield Cab Company to the William Hand & Sons' property. The frontage as well as the depth is ample and it would allow for a modern building of good proportions. The only obstruction now in the way is the dwelling house located on the property and occupied by William Townley. It is argued that the main entrance to the theatre could be located on North avenue, adjoining the office of the Plainfield Cab Company and another entrance to the galleries could be established on Second street, at which point a convenient place for taking scenery in and out could be arranged. This property is now of no great use, except to afford a rear entrance to some of the stores fronting on North avenue, and it is believed that it could be purchased for a reasonable sum. If some public spirited citizens could be induced to lend their efforts towards the building of an up-to-date theatre it is generally believed that it would pay. It is now about five years since Music Hall was closed and according to the opinion of several prominent citizens the town is growing theatre-hungry. With the vast territory now reached in this part of the State by the trolleys, there would be no trouble about securing patronage. At present there is no first-class theatre between Elizabeth and Trenton and Plainfield is considered an excellent place to locate one. If first-class plays are given there seems to be no doubt but that the proper support will be given. Other points in favor of the East Second street property are that the Plainfield Trust Company, as well as C. W. McCutchen propose to erect handsome structures on Park avenue, and other buildings in that section are in prospect, and within a few years J. A. Staats will occupy his recently-purchased property, the Hotel Rosell, which will be greatly improved. Other improvements are also being made in Watchung avenue property, all tending to increase property values. For these reasons it is believed that the vacant property on Second street would be an ideal one for a theatre.

Leaders Meeting.

The leaders corps of the Y. M. C. A. met last night, and though it was expected that the date for the Y. M. C. A. costume exhibition was to be decided upon, no business of any importance was transacted and it was agreed to hold a meeting on Wednesday evening of next week. At this occasion the matters pertaining to the circus will be discussed, and more definite plans concerning the event will be made known.

Will Present "Irish Justice."

The laughable farce "Irish Justice" will be given by the members of Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., in its rooms tomorrow night. A large stage has been built especially for the purpose and it promises to be a worthy production. The lodge will opened after the regular business session and friends and members are invited.

CENTRAL'S LANDINGS AT 23RD AND 42ND STS.

RAILROAD'S SCHEMES FOR HANDLING ITS TRAFFIC.

The New Jersey Central has in contemplation some dock changes in New York which will probably be made during the coming year which give the company better facilities for handling its summer traffic. The company now has a freight pier at the foot of West Forty-second street, New York and it is proposed also to provide accommodations there for the landing of the Sandy Hook boats, which will connect with the Albany Day Line boats, the latter line proposing to have a pier at the same place. This arrangement will undoubtedly mean a large increase in traffic from the Adirondack regions and other cities along the Hudson for places on the Jersey coast.

If this arrangement is made the company will abandon Pier 8, North River, which has been the landing for the Sandy Hook boats, and which for a number of reasons has been unsuited for this purpose. It is believed that the boats will make a stop at Pier 10, near Liberty street, for the downtown patronage.

The company will also have a landing at Twenty-third street, near to that of the Pennsylvania, for the convenience of Jersey City passengers wishing to use this route, instead of the Liberty street ferry. The uptown service will bring passengers in the heart of the shopping and within easy access to the theatres.

FELL FORTY-FIVE FEET INTO A SNOW BANK

LINEMAN HAS A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Alfred Peterson, of Brooklyn, employed as a lineman for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, fell from the top of a pole near Metuchen on Tuesday, and sustained a fracture of the collar-bone, general contusions and possible internal injuries. He fell a distance of forty-five feet into a snow drift. The man was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital, where the broken bone was set.

The physicians have been unable as yet to decide as to the internal injuries, but the patient is apparently doing well with excellent chances for recovery. Peterson is twenty-three years old and unmarried.

Mr. and Mrs. Newhall are at the present time enjoying a wedding trip.

The groom has always been a resident of Plainfield and is widely known in local circles. He is an electrical engineer with offices in New York city.

STATE PYTHIANS IN SESSION AT TRENTON

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF NEW JERSEY GRAND LODGE WELL ATTENDED.

The Grand Lodge of New Jersey, Knights of Pythias, convened at Trenton yesterday, in the Masonic Temple, and Plainfield's two lodges, Perseverance, No. 74, and Unity, No. 102, were represented. Delegates were present from every section of this State and nearly every lodge was represented.

It is the usual custom of the order to advance each officer one position, unless he proves to be incapable of filling the minor positions. This makes an annual fight between a number of candidates for the lowest office—that of grand outer guard. This year there are four candidates striving for the honor. In electing its officers, the grand lodge operates under a different system from most of the grand bodies of secret orders in this State. Early in the fall of each year, every lodge is asked to make nominations for the following grand lodge year. The nominees are then listed and copies sent to every lodge for its inspection. At the first meeting in December following the nominations the candidates are voted for. The voting takes place in the lodges, but only past chancellors are permitted to vote. The votes are then sent to the grand keeper of records and seal and kept by him until the grand lodge meets, when the results are canvassed by a committee and made known. It is the general rule that after a man has been elected grand outer guard he is the only nominee for the higher offices.

The plan provides that in case no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast by the past chancellors then the contest is settled by the ballots of the representatives at the grand lodge meeting. For the last few years this has been necessary, and at times a candidate who had almost enough votes to elect him has been defeated on the grand lodge floor. This has given rise to a desire on the part of many to see the laws amended so that the candidate who receives the most votes cast by the past chancellors shall be elected, even though such number is not a majority of all polled for the office. Such an amendment will be argued at the present session.

Reports of officers were received yesterday and were continued during the session last night. This morning the lodge resumed its deliberations and will adjourn, it is expected, about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

STATE FIRE CHIEFS FORM AN ASSOCIATION

HEAD OF THE LOCAL DEPARTMENT IS MADE PERMANENT TREASURER.

Fire chiefs from every part of the State gathered at Elizabeth yesterday, for the purpose of forming a permanent organization. The convention was called to order by Chief John Stagg, of Paterson, and Chief D. J. O'Neil, of Ridgewood, was elected temporary president, and Chief George Arnett, of Lambertville, secretary. A committee of five was appointed to draft by-laws for the new organization and these were accepted following a recess and dinner, the latter being served by Chief Gerstung and former Chief Astfalk, of Elizabeth.

An election of permanent officers resulted as follows: President, John Stagg, of Paterson; vice president, D. J. O'Neill, Ridgewood; secretary, C. S. Mount, Red Bank; treasurer, T. O. Doane, Plainfield. It was decided to hold the regular meetings in September, the night before the annual convention of the State Exempt Firemen's Association, as all fire chiefs are supposed to attend the latter.

The association was formed for the purpose of bringing the chiefs in closer touch with each other for mutual advantage and also for sociability at stated times.

The A. Berrys Hold a Stag.

The A. Berry Association held its first stag and smoker in its new rooms Tuesday night, with twenty members and friends in attendance. The programme comprised selections by the Black Diamond Quartette and a bean eating contest, the latter being won by George Meyer with John Bebout a close second. Following a repast, A. Berry Marsh, the founder of the organization, was presented with a gold ring.

COUNCIL'S WORK TONIGHT

Session for Purpose of Transferring a Liquor License.

DEFER OTHER MATTERS

Garbage Collection Legislation Awaits Legislature's Action—Saloon District Bill's Status.

Chiefly for the purpose of transferring A. B. Rosell's liquor license to Jerome Leary, the Common Council will hold a special meeting tonight. There is no indication that there will be any hitch in the matter. It will be necessary for the Common Council to meet again this month to take up the applications for licenses and an adjourned session will be held on Monday night, February 27, for that purpose.

The Tyler amendment cannot be called up at the adjourned session, but there is a feeling that Mr. Tyler and the other supporters of the measure will force it to a final vote at the regular March meeting, if a special session is not called for the purpose. This would hardly give enough time to make the amendment operative this year. In fact there are some members who believe that it should not be, as those who desire licenses made application under the ordinance now governing the matter, and it is considered unfair to make a change on such short notice.

However, Mr. Tyler has not disclosed his plans as to when he will move for final adoption of his amendment, but this is likely to be done at the March meeting, according to general opinion.

There will be no report on the question of municipal collection and disposal of garbage until some disposition of the proposed bill now in the Legislature is made. This measure, if it becomes a law, will give the city the power to raise by taxation money for the operation of the garbage plant.

The Public Affairs Committee will likely report at the March meeting on the matter of co-operating with Passaic and other cities of the same class for the purpose of securing municipal lighting plants and compelling such corporations to place its wires underground.

DATES ARRANGED FOR BAND CONCERT AFFAIRS

FAIR DURING WEEK OF APRIL 24, AND VAUDEVILLE SHOW MAY 4.

Leader Ben LaVere, who has been making arrangements for a vaudeville show and fair for the benefit of summer band concerts, received word from "Billy" Redmond yesterday, that he had completed all plans for the former. He asked that May 4 be set as the date and the performance will be given in Saengerbund Hall, all the artists from New York to be brought out by Mr. Redmond. The fair will also be given in Saengerbund Hall during Easter week, beginning April 24. Mayor N. B. Smalley has personally interested himself and is doing all possible to secure the necessary funds. Mrs. Smalley has consented to have charge of the young women who will preside over the different attractions.

Mr. LaVere has not yet fully decided upon a location for the giving of the concerts but when he does it is his intention to erect a substantial bandstand, fitted with a circular roof. This will permit the music to be given with much better effect.

Thrown From Sleigh.

While D. L. S. Maclaren, of 1001 Central avenue, and his coachman were driving home from the North Avenue Station the runners of the sleigh about 5:30 o'clock, last night, became fastened in the trolley car tracks at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, upsetting the vehicle and throwing the occupants in the street. The horse became frightened and ran through Park avenue for some distance before he was caught. Neither Mr. Maclaren nor his coachman were injured. The damage to the rig was slight.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The coal sold by V. W. Nash, of Park avenue, always gives satisfaction. Better try some and be convinced of its superior quality.

Dr. E. B. Stowe, of the Babcock building, has had great success in the treatment of corns, bunions and ingrowing toenails and if you are troubled try this treatment.

Allen B. Laing is one of the city's best known contracting electricians and in the past few years he has satisfactorily completed hundreds of contracts. Ask him for estimates.

Your milk will be delivered fresh to your home at any time during the day, which may suit your convenience, and it will be the purest and best if you get it from Marchant Brothers.

The appointments at E. B. Maynard's barber shop on North avenue are perfect, and the patrons of this shop are always pleased with the work of Mr. Maynard and his assistants.

Scores of brands of cigars have risen in the past few years only to sink again into obscurity. The Nickle Yara made and sold by M. C. Dobbins is still the favorite with Plainfield smokers.

The Hotel Waldorf on East Front street has accommodations for either transient or permanent guests that are not surpassed by any hostelry in the State. Rates quoted by Proprietor Windham.

Cleaning, dying, pressing and all kinds of laundry work, are a few of the features which go to make the establishment of Brown & Brown, on West Second stree, one of the best in the city. It is the most sanitary.

A call over the 'phone will bring Hoagland to your assistance, with one of the most complete express and trucking services, of which the State can boast. Hoagland is capable of handling all varieties of business.

Peck's name stands for perfection in all kinds of dry goods. His business has long been highly considered by Plainfield's best buyers, because of the excellence of the goods in stock. Peck's aim is to satisfy, and he has never been known to fail in this respect.

If you have more money than you know what to do with, put the surplus funds in the Plainfield Trust Company. If you have a little money, and want more, the Plainfield Trust Company is your place. For a safe investment, with a good interest, there's none like the Trust Company.

It is almost absolutely necessary that a man should have a watch about his person and also that it should give the correct time. There are many watches that run irregularly because they have never been properly adjusted. L. Moralier & Son, the Park avenue jewellers, make a specialty of this kind of work.

The financial question at the present day is one that demands the undivided attention of men of brains, not only in this country but all over the world. It requires finance to carry on a government or any large concern and the best way to keep happiness in a home is by maintaining a bank account. The City National Bank affords unequalled opportunities and advantages for starting one.

A Pocket Library.

To the man who cannot accumulate a library of data that will bear upon his business pursuits the 1905 World Almanac is indispensable. The man who lives in the small suburban town or village will find in the Standard American Annual items of everyday reference. Although he may be considerably removed from the great commercial centres, it will put him so closely in touch with their daily happiness—in fact, with the progress of the world—that he will virtually move in a metropolitan atmosphere. The World Almanac helps a man to keep pace with the age in which he lives; it is an educator. Price, 25 cents; 35 cents by mail.

Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is an old friend in a new form. It is prepared for the particular benefit of sufferers from nasal catarrh who are used to an atomizer in spraying the diseased membranes. AMUSEMENTS.

The success of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" at the Madison Square Theatre is the most pronounced that has come to any play this season. The cosy little theatre, which under the able management of W. N. Lawrence has regained in a single week all of its old time popularity, is crowded to the doors at every performance, and the merry farce with which the house was re-opened will undoubtedly run for many months to come. Seats are now selling four weeks in advance.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of "Humpty Dumpty" will begin the last fortnight of its run at the New Amsterdam Theatre Monday evening. The last performance in New York will occur Saturday evening, March 4, and it will never been seen in that city again. On the following Monday evening a two weeks' engagement in Philadelphia will be begun, to be followed by a long run in Boston. Seats are now on sale for all remaining performances at the New Amsterdam.

The attraction at the New York Theatre next Monday evening will be Wright Lorimer in his magnificent production of "The Shepherd King," playing under the direction of William A. Brady. This piece was originally presented at the Knickerbocker Theatre last spring, where the prices charged ranged from 50 cents to $2. In this instance Klaw & Erlanger will continue their policy of big things at popular prices at the New York, and will present Mr. Lorimer and his company at a scale ranging from 25 cents to $1 for the best seat in the theatre.

FIGHTING TRUSTS.

Congress Resolves to Investigate Standard Oil Company.

KANSAS WANTS CHEAPER PETROLEUM

Inquiry Will Be Made as to Unusually Large Margins Between Crude and Refined Oil In Kansas Fields.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The house has adopted a resolution to investigate the Standard Oil company. The action is taken as a radical step in the fight of the western states, notably Kansas, to secure cheaper oil. Representative Campbell (Kan.) introduced the resolution. It reads:

"Resolved, That the secretary of commerce and labor be and he is hereby requested to investigate the cause or causes of the low prices of crude oil or petroleum in the United States, especially in the Kansas fields, and the unusually large margin between the price of crude oil or petroleum and the selling price of refined oil and its by-products and whether the said conditions have resulted in whole or in part from any contract, combination in the form of a trust or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states and territories or with foreign countries.

"Also to see whether the said prices have been controlled, in whole or in part, by any corporation, joint stock company or corporate combination engaged in commerce among the several states and territories or with foreign nations; also whether such corporation, joint stock company or corporate combination in purchasing crude oil or petroleum by any order or practice of discrimination, boycotts, blacklists or in any manner discriminates against any particular oil field; also to investigate the organization, profits, conduct and management of the business of such corporation or corporations, company or companies and corporate combination, if any, and to make early report of its findings, according to law, to the end that such information may be used by congress as a basis for legislation or by the department of justice as a basis for legal proceedings."

WILL NOT HANG TODAY.

Mrs. Edwards and Greason Respited by Governor Pennypacker.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 16.—On recommendation of the board of pardons Governor Pennypacker withdrew the death warrants in the case of Mrs. Kate Edwards, the white woman, and Samuel Greason, the negro, who were under sentence to hang together in the Berks county jail at Reading this morning for the murder of Mrs. Edwards' husband in 1901.

The case of Greason will now be again taken to the Pennsylvania supreme court, and if that tribunal refuses to reopen the case the attorneys for Mrs. Edwards and Greason will have to appear before the board of pardons next month.

Greason's case has been before the state supreme court six times and once before the pardon board. Mrs. Edwards' case has been twice before the board of pardons.

The members of the board are Lieutenant Governor William M. Brown, Secretary of the Commonwealth Frank M. Fuller, Attorney General Hampton L. Carson and Secretary of Internal Affairs Isaac B. Brown.

They constitute the board by virtue of their positions as officers of the commonwealth. There was an unusually large attendance at the session of the board, attracted there by the Edwards-Greason case. In the crowd was a large number of the members of the legislature.

Elwood H. Dreysher, of counsel for Mrs. Edwards, made a motion that the case of Mrs. Edwards be continued. He made this motion, he said, because Mrs. Edwards had confessed that she had committed the crime and that Greason had no hand in it and because counsel for Greason wanted to take depositions and also examine Mrs. Edwards with regard to the authenticity of the confession. Counsel for Greason, he said, would not be able to do this if the case of Mrs. Edwards were not continued, because they were both under sentence to hang this morning.

John H. Rothermel and William H. Sadler, attorneys for Greason, supported Mr. Dreysher and also pleaded for a rehearing in the case of their client.

Her Sight Suddenly Returned.

APPLETON, Wis., Feb. 16.—The case of Miss Sadie Clark of Neenah, Wis., a high school student, who has recovered her eyesight as suddenly as she lost it about a week ago, is attracting much attention here. Miss Clark had never had any eye trouble until she woke on the morning of Feb. 6 to find herself stone blind. While on a train going to Milwaukee to undergo an operation her sight suddenly returned, unimpaired by the mysterious period of blindness.

Gray, a former clerk in the Binghamton postoffice, to serve eight months in the Broome county jail. Gray pleaded guilty of having abstracted and opened letters received in the postoffice.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Russians have made an extensive cavalry movement against Field Marshal Oyama's extreme left, where they were attempting to cross the Hun river west of Liaoyang with 9,000 horsemen. The operation began west of Chitaitzu. One force of cavalry stole into Laohunshi, and simultaneously another cavalry force approached Tacha, which is situated thirteen miles southwest of Chitaitzu and twenty-seven miles west of Liaoyang.

Nine thousand cavalry, with artillery, approached the river a mile below Tacha and attempted to cross at 6 o'clock in the evening, advancing on Heikoutai (Pekowtai). The shelling of Oyama's center continues.

The British steamers Apollo and Scotsman, bound for Vladivostok, were captured off Hokkaido, the northernmost island of Japan. The Apollo was from Cardiff with coal, and the Scotsman had a cargo of provisions on board, which, according to her papers, was consigned to Yokosuka, fifteen miles from Yokohama.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the Russian third Pacific squadron has sailed from Libau.

French special correspondents sent to meet the steamship Australien, having on board General Stoessel and others of the survivors of Port Arthur, have forwarded detailed accounts of discord among the Russian officers. The army officers are particularly hostile to the fleet, habitually calling it the "frightened fleet."

Wounded Japanese soldiers, including a surgeon with a Red Cross band on his arm, were thrown into the flames of a burning house by Russian cavalrymen, according to a report from Yokohama. The alleged atrocity occurred during the recent raid on Yinkow and the Japanese communications south of Liaoyang. A Japanese infantry company under Captain Yasuhara was surrounded by about 3,000 Cossacks at a commissary depot. The Japanese were greatly outnumbered, but they kept the enemy at bay for over seven hours. The building in which they were making a stand caught fire. Captain Yasuhara, who was wounded, ordered as many men as were able to retreat. He and several others then committed harikari and threw themselves into the flames. A surgeon named Nambim was wounded. In spite of the fact that a Red Cross band was attached to his arm the Russians arrested the surgeon and threw him into the flames of the burning house. Several other wounded Japanese suffered a similar fate. A lieutenant, a sublieutenant and a few men succeeded in making their escape.

Japanese warships guarding the straits leading to Vladivostok have captured thirty-seven vessels carrying contraband of war.

The conscription laws have been revised in Japan, enabling the country to place a million troops in the field.

SANTO DOMINGO PROTOCOL.

President's Message Read In the Senate at Executive Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The president's message transmitting to the senate the new Santo Domingan protocol was read at an executive session following the passage of a mass of unobjected pension bills. Not more than six or seven senators were present.

The leading feature of the message was that in order to maintain the Monroe doctrine it was necessary for the United States to see that just claims, contracted by south and central American republics and those of the West Indies, should be paid and that therefore it was in the interest of peace for this government to take over the control of the revenues in Santo Domingo. This subject of the Monroe doctrine is discussed at some length, especially as regards the relations of the United States to the republics of the south.

In protecting these republics and guaranteeing their territorial integrity it is said in the message to be necessary to see that just debts and obligations contracted by these republics are paid, so that foreign intervention in the affairs of such republics may be avoided.

The protocol was not read at the executive session, but was at once referred to the committee on foreign relations.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 16.—Jack Phillips won the second special at the Crescent City Jockey club's track with his filly Bertha E. The race was at four furlongs and was worth $1,000 to the winner. Veribest was a decided favorite in the betting, with Bertha E., backed from fours to 14 to 5, a strong second choice. Cut off by interference at the start, Bertha E. showed the greatest speed, making the running all the way, and won eased up. Rankin was the only winning favorite. Summary:

Second Race.—Bannock Belle, first; Simplicity, second; Clique, third.

Third Race.—Rankin, first; Barkelmore, second; Lady Free Knight, third.

Fourth Race.—Bertha E., first; Inspector Girl, second; Anodyne, third.

Ananias Fade a Record.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16.—In the handicap at Oakland Ananias cut a second from the track's record for a mile and a hundred yards, placing the record at 1:44¾. The $1,000 handicap was looked upon by race goers to be a gift to the Ryan stable. Honiton, shouldering 122 pounds, and San Nicholas, her stable companion, were pronounced favorites. The others receded in consequence of the strong play on the Ryan entry, Schoors' crack, Ananias, being second choice. Maid of Fermoy took the opening race from Ruby.

Four Remain In Racket Finals.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Only four men remain in the contest for the amateur national racket championship, which is being decided this week at the New York Racket and Tennis club. Honors are equally divided between New York and Boston, Hugh Scott and Quincy A. Shaw, jr., of Boston and L. C. Waterbury and C. Clarke, jr., of this city being the survivors. In the semi-finals Clarke will meet Shaw and Waterbury will tackle Scott.

Toscan at Oaklawn Track.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 16.—Toscan, the only winning favorite at Oaklawn track, took the feature event, the Oaklawn handicap. It was a good race all the way, Bill Curtis finishing second and Gus Heidorn, the second choice, taking third money. Some money was carried by Black Art, second choice, in the second race, but, on the whole, the day added materially to the size of the bookmakers' bank rolls.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 16.—The state board of regents has voted to censure Dr. Melvil Dewey, state librarian, for the publication by the Lake Placid club, of which he is the president, of a circular stating in effect that Jews should be excluded from its membership. The officers of the board were directed to communicate to Dr. Dewey a "formal and severe public rebuke," and it was declared to be the opinion of the board that the further control by Dr. Dewey "of a private business which continues to be conducted on such lines is incompatible with the legitimate requirements of his position in the state service."

A Military Wedding at Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 16.—Historic St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church was last evening the scene of one of the prettiest weddings that has ever taken place in that ancient edifice, when Miss Anne, daughter of General and Mrs. Fitz-Hugh Lee, and Lieutenant Lewis Browne of the Seventh cavalry, U. S. A., at present stationed at Fort Oglethorp, Ga., were married. The wedding was a military ceremony, the color of that branch of the service to which the groom is attached—yellow—being especially prominent. Among the wedding gifts was a box of flowers sent by President Roosevelt.

LEW WALLACE DEAD

Author of "Ben-Hur" Passed Away Last Night.

LAWYER, SOLDIER AND DIPLOMAT.

Country Mourns For Him Who Has Given It "A Tale of the Christ." Born In 1827—A Veteran of the Civil War.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 16.—General Lew Wallace died here last night at 9:10 o'clock after a lingering illness.

General Lew Wallace, widely known as the author of "Ben-Hur, a Tale of the Christ," in turn lawyer, soldier, diplomat and author, was born at Brookville, Franklin county, Ind., on April 10, 1827. He served in the Mexican and civil war, in the latter being appointed adjutant general of Indiana. In 1863 he saved the city of Cincinnati from capture by General Kirby Smith of the Confederate army.

In command of the Eighth army corps General Wallace intercepted the march of General Jubal A. Early on Washington, fought the battle of Monocacy and, it is said, thus saved the capital from capture by the Confederates. From 1878 to 1881 he was governor of New Mexico and from 1881 to 1885 minister to the porte.

General Lew Wallace wrote after "Ben-Hur" the "Life of General Harrison," "The Fair God," "Boyhood of Christ" and "The Prince of India."

MAY ALL RESIGN.

Equitable Life Officers Say Hyde Must Go.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Unless James H. Hyde, vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, consents to relinquish the controlling influence therein, thirty-four heads of the various departments, including the president, James W. Alexander, and all the vice presidents with the exception of Mr. Hyde and the fourth vice president, W. H. McIntyre, may withdraw from the company, leaving the vast and intricate workings of its business to subordinates.

Many of the men who threaten to leave were appointed by Henry B. Hyde when he founded the society in 1859 and have been with it ever since. Now they have served notice on the son of their old leader that he must relinquish all active participation in the organization or face the loss of all the men of influence in it.

When it is remembered that the Equitable holds assets of $478,000,000, with half a million policy holders, the magnitude of the war which threatens to disrupt its working force is seen. The men who are fighting the Hyde influence say that the acts of the young man himself have been prejudicial to the welfare of the company and have tended to cause disquiet.

One of the things brought up against Mr. Hyde is his recent fancy dress ball, which was alleged by the newspapers to have cost $100,000.

"Justifiable Homicide," Says Jury.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 16.—Owen Laodholtz was ordered released from jail by the coroner who conducted an inquest over the body of Miss May Brown. The young woman was killed and her mother seriously and probably fatally wounded by Laodholtz in a shooting affray in a justice court Monday. Laodholtz had been brought into court upon criminal charges by Miss Brown. She was accompanied by her mother, and when the court announced a postponement of the case mother and daughter began firing on Laodholtz. He returned the fire, killing the young woman and wounding her mother. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

The Naval Policy In the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The question of what the policy of the government should be with respect to the upbuilding of the navy was again threshed out in the house during the consideration of the naval appropriation bill, the debate developing much opposition to the proposed addition of two battleships to the naval establishment. The defense of the Philippines played an important part in the discussion, while the events of the war in the far east from a naval point of view were given prominence by the advocates of an increased navy. The entire time was consumed with the naval bill.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 16.—Four persons were found dead from suffocation at 502½ Central avenue, this city. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. George Nolan and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Heller. Coroner Seiglestein last night officially announced that the deaths were caused by inhaling natural gas which was allowed to escape through a defective flue.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 16, 1905.

Lost to newspaper publicity for one week, Thomas W. Lawson. When last heard from was still throwing stones from his glass house. Reward and no questions asked if returned in a crippled condition. Frenzied Finance. New York and the rest of the earth.

Untold injury is being done to the Equitable Life Assurance Society by the manner in which the officers are trying to force the vice president of the company from the unusual power he enjoys. The alleged expose is being made by the authorities of the concern itself. Had the newspapers started the agitation, what a cry would have gone up from the officials!

North Plainfielders who have the best interests of their borough at heart will welcome the news that Senator Hutchinson has introduced a bill in the Legislature, which, when passed, will give them the right to regulate the sale of liquor in that community. The idea of the bill is to strip the county court of its power to say when the saloons in a borough shall open and when they shall close as well as the manner in which they shall be conducted. Nowhere in New Jersey is there more apparent need for just such a law than in North Plainfield, where the persistent requests of the Council and people to have the Somerset county court bring about needed relief have not been granted. Even the suggestion of the Grand Jury has been unheeded by the court. Senator Hutchinson's bill should become a law by all means.

The bill abolishing spring elections in towns, townships and boroughs which was signed by the Governor yesterday, as exclusively told in The Daily Press, does not effect school trustees. It applies solely to municipal officers, which will be chosen hereafter at the regular general election in the fall. Whether the action taken by the Legislature in merging elections is a step forward depends entirely upon the voters. One of the principal objects in bringing about the change is to save expense, the present spring elections being often unimportant but of very great cost. An argument advanced against the enactment of the law was that it was a blow at home rule, inasmuch as at a general election a voter is apt to lose sight of local issues and cast his ballot according to his belief in National politics. If the new law does have the effect of deciding all elections along party lines, municipalities are bound to suffer and the statute will work great harm, but the people are growing more independent every day and recent performances in this section show that they know how to and do cut their tickets when occasion demands.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION.

The Commuter's Lot.

The woes of commuters have been discussed with great relish and at great length by New York newspapers as a result of the recent blizzard. The metropolitan press may sympathize with the commuter as much as it pleases, but it cannot produce in evidence the man who has once tried commuting and has voluntarily abandoned it in order to live in the city.—Long Branch Record.

Abolish All Spring Elections.

Voting is a business as well as anything else, at least it should be made so, and once a year is enough for a man to break in upon his daily routine to cast a ballot. Then, too, if voting comes but once a year a man thinks more of enjoying the privilege. Election day always disturbs a community, it is an off day and affairs are very apt to be allowed to run themselves for the time. To do this twice a year, when it has been clearly demonstrated that once is enough, is burdening the people and the quicker those of the country districts are given the same advantage as their city brothers, the better it will be for them.—Perth Amboy News.

THE FORUM.

Saloon District Agitation.

Editor, The Daily Press:

With considerable interest I have read the article in your issue of Feb. 14 inst., signed "Citizen," and in which he styles himself, "An Outsider," so that we naturally conclude that the author of the article is a citizen of Plainfield who resides outside the proposed "Saloon District," this conclusion however, is emphasized by the tone of the article, that is, it is difficult to believe any one residing within the proposed "Saloon District," to be the author. "Citizen," suggests that it is just as legal to establish a "Saloon District" as a "Fire District;" this may be true but the legality of such ordinances must be settled by the courts; the justice, by the people. Fire limits are established in the densely settled portion of the city, where buildings are compact, and are required to be built of brick or stone, as a protection to life and property against fire, and rightly so, but what would "Citizen" say should the Common Council compel all dwellings in the thinly settled sections of the city, to be the same; then too, in the solidly built up section of our city, fires are more probable and more disastrous, will the saloons lessen or increase the risk. "Citizen" intimates that fourteen saloons (the present number) will be sufficient to supply all legitimate demands for many years to come; why my dear sir, I think it safe to say that two saloons supply all legitimate demands within the proposed saloon district, and that the remainder subsist on the patronage of citizens residing outside of said district. Is it right, just or fair that this proposed district, the shopping district, should be made the rendezvous for all outside patrons of the saloon?

"Citizen," intimates that the dangers to women in the shopping district will not be greatly increased; is there any good reason why it should continue, and not be decreased?

He further says, "at any rate the wives and daughters of most of our citizens can, no doubt, be relied upon to endure the "test." Let me enquire in the name of reason, and decency, what right have we, or our City Fathers, to test their powers of endurance in this manner.

"Fair Play."

February 16, 1905.

LITERARY.

Sir Gilbert Parker, long conspicuous as a native American member of the British Parliament, must now share this distinction with the member newly returned from the Isle of Thanet, H. H. Marks, an American born, and formerly a resident of New York city. Mr. Marks carried his election by a majority which might be characterized as "safe" rather than as "comfortable," and not without overcoming at strenuous opposition on all sides.—From "The World at Large" in The Metropolitan Magazine for March.

Collier's for February 11 calls attention to the fact: The Bayonet's Importance is recognised all over the world today, and this again is a lesson from the Japanese. The Boer War was supposed to be the final one of many demonstrations that this distinguished weapon had become obsolete. Now, however, we read that the issuance to the army of the new model Springfield rifle has been stopped because it is equipped with a proper bayonet. It had a rod bayonet, which is merely a projecting ramrod. Now it will be provided with a good old fighting piece of steel, ready for some bloody arbitrament as it has been used for in Manchuria. Experts are interesting citizens, but the disappearance of the bayonet is one of their bad guesses.

The Smart Set has fairly outdone itself in the March number, which marks the beginning of the sixth year of its existence. The complete novel is "The Princess Elopes," by Harold MacGrath, an author whose immense popularity is due to the fact that he is a born story-teller. Mr. MacGrath is at his very best in this charming tale of a European princess and a young American medical student. It is a delightful blending of romance and delicate humor, touched everywhere with the deft hand of an author who has mastered his craft. Nothing better of its kind has appeared in a magazine in many a month. Among the dozen short stories in this number about half are by authors who have been either entirely unknown hitherto to magazine readers or are just coming into prominence.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The bowling team will roll a match game with the Triangles, of Fanwood, on the latter's alleys some date in the near future. The Fanwood team is getting games with many of the teams in the vicinity, and a sort of inter-county league will soon be the result. Such a measure has for some time been considered, and it is possible that the recently organized Triangle Club, which is composed of picked members of several bowling clubs, may be the cause of the formation of this bowling league. The only league in which any Plainfield team is represented is the Central Journal League. To form a league between Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville, Fanwood Suburban, Plainfield Y. M. C. A., and other Plainfield teams, would be a source of much pleasure for the members, and would determine the championship of the two counties. Manager Neal, of the Triangles, has received communications from several teams in which such an organization has been suggested, and it meets with the approval of the local bowling enthusiasts.

The sidewalk problem is equally as troublesome here as in Plainfield. There the chief of police has issued orders demanding sand or ashes to be placed on all icy pavements, while in the borough the constables have been kept busy notifying property owners to clean the walks or provide against the danger of falling. The danger is readily realized, when it is noted that in Plainfield one young woman is thought to be disabled for life by spinal trouble as the result of a recent fall on the ice.

Under the directon of the heirs of the late John Smith, the property formerly occupied by him was sold at public sale last week, bringing the amount of $1,025. The purchaser was Stanley Day. He has not announced his intentions with regard to his new property though it is generally supposed that he will improve it. The sale Saturday afternoon was conducted by George Day.

The long looked-for date of the chicken supper to be given by the women of the Methodist church has arrived, and the parlors of the church have been prepared for the event, which is to take place tonight. The affair will be the most elaborate which the Methodists have conducted for some time, and a large crowd is expected to attend.

The G. E Society, of New Market, will be entertained tomorrow night at the home of Miss Cora Dayton. This meeting will be the first which the club has held for a long time, and will combine the transaction of the usual routine business and a social.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the Presbyterian church, has returned from Ohio, where he officiated at the wedding of his brother.

Mrs. Newton Apgar, who has been confined to her home by illness, is much improved.

William Neebe, who has been on the sick list for several days, is now recovering.

Mrs. Charles Day is again confined to her home by the grip.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

In reporting the High School Library sale, held Monday afternoon in the Library rooms, the name of Miss Louise Nicholl was inadvertently omitted. Miss Nicholl's work as a member of the committee arranging the sale as well as her sales at the fancy goods table did much to make the sale the success it was.

The sidewalks in town in many places are covered with ice, and a number of falls have occurred since the storm, but as yet no one has been seriously injured. A little ashes or sawdust strewn over the dangerous places would make walking much safer.

The work of tearing out the old stone bins and crusher at Hetfield & Weldon's crusher has been started. A new crusher is to be installed as well as a number of other improvements made.

The work of filling the large ice house at the "Back Pond" is finished, the crop being one of the best both in quality and thickness that has ever been harvested here.

The Brookside Gun Club is arranging to hold a grand holiday shoot on the afternoon of Washington's Birthday. Several interesting events are being arranged.

The Junior League held its weekly meeting yesterday afternoon in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Charles Elliott has returned to his studies at Rutgers' College, after a visit of several days with his parents.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., holds its weekly meeting tonight in the library rooms.

The 'Plains bowlers go to Westfield tonight to roll a return game with the Westfield team.

Miss Marion Goodwin has been entertaining out-of-town friends.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Assemblyman Fordyce, the Middlesex county representative, has introduced a bill in the Legislature, prohibiting the carrying of any excursionists or passengers from New Jersey docks or wharves, excepting on steamboats that are practically fireproof. It is thought that the bill will be defeated, meaning that human lives are not worth considering as against dollars and cents.

The lecture room of the Baptist church last night was adorned with valentine decorations such as hearts, for the sociable which was conducted by the social committee of the C. E. Society, with various kinds of entertainment. Prizes in the form of hearts were given to successful contestants in games.

The snow obstructed roads hindered the rural mail carriers in their trips a few days recently, but the roads are now all clear again throughout the township.

Harvey Clawson and Miss Gussie Clawson attended a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harris, of West Seventh street, last night.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Roberts, of Chatham, announce the engagement of their daughter, Arline Douglass, to Rhey Thompson Snodgrass, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Newark. Mr. Snodgrass is the son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Snodgrass, of Central avenue.

NEW MEXICO'S LOST RIVER

Stream Three Hundred Miles in Length Swallowed Up in the Earth—One in Idaho.

That must be a strange freak of nature in New Mexico—the river which is not a river, suggests the New York Press. Its bed, which lies in the valley between the Rio Grande and the Pecos, is well defined and travelers have followed its windings to learn, if possible, what becomes of the great volume of water which should be there. It is simply lost. Numerous big tributaries flow into it from the neighboring mountains, but the instant they reach the bed of this main stream they disappear from view. Thus a river which should be some 300 miles in length has no existence which could be proved. Commodore Thomas W. Lee, of the Lackawanna fleet and general passenger agent of that system of railways known as the "road of anthracite," tells of a wonderful river in Idaho which disappears in the ground and is not seen again for a distance of 25 or 30 miles. There is also a lost creek in northern Idaho, on the Snake river, about half way between Salt Lake City and Butte, where he grows everything except a few tropical fruits. Here he rusticates for two months in the year in what he declares to be the finest climate on this beautiful earth. A man can breathe twice as much air in Idaho as he can in New York, and when his lungs are fully inflated he can almost float in the ether.

HUNGARIANS TURN BADGERS

Thousands from European Country Migrate to the State of Wisconsin.

A work on "Migration from Hungary" in the Abrege du Bulletin de la Societe Hongroise de Geographie shows that, while the history of Hungarian emigration reaches back into the fifteenth century it has never attained such dimensions as in the last few decades. In the two decades from 1881 to 1900 the migration from Hungary has amounted to 380,000 souls, or 2.3 per cent. of the total population. In 1857 there were only 53,000 Hungarians dwelling in Austria, whereas in the year 1900 there were more than 270,000, 100,000 of them in Vienna alone. The emigration to America has set in only since the eighteenth century, and in 1841 the Hungarians founded in the state of Wisconsin the colony of Harasztyfalu, which now as Sauk City has long lost all trace of Magyar character. Not till 1877 did the emigration assume large proportions. It was directed especially to Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, and that in consequence of strikes among American workers. The volume of emigration attained its first maximum from 1886 to 1892, and its second in the years subsequent to 1899.

FACULTY LASTS 15 MINUTES

Ability of Clubwoman to Entertain Fades If Used More Than a Quarter-Hour.

"I can shine and entertain for just 15 minutes, but not one second loger," was the naive admission of a well-known club woman to a Chicago Tribune reporter the other day. The statement came as a surprise, for her vivacity and ready wit have long been the envy of her friends. But that she was wise in her knowledge of her limitations and the strain her reputation for brilliancy placed upon her is shown by the fact that she has reduced the matter to a system. "I apply a time limit to my social calls as well as my club addresses," she says, "and I should hesitate for my reputation if I trusted myself for longer than 15 minutes.

"No matter how much I may feel like talking, no matter how hard I am persuaded by my hostess, I always leave a house at the expiration of 15 minutes, and then proceed to the next place with a new stock of entertainment ready for the next set of victims. To following this method alone I attribute the reputation for vivacity which has been accorded me.'

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 19.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Glorifying God in our home.—Eph. vi, 1-9.

Our duty to God embraces every form of life. It consists not only in the personal duties which we owe to Him nor in those owed to His church, but includes the duties to the state, to society and to the home. Nor are the least important duties of religion those concerned with the home. Indeed, the very opposite is true. The home life is perhaps the most influential and important of all forms of associated life. More time is spent in the home. The relations sustained are the most intimate. The results produced are the most lasting. To glorify God in the home is therefore a most important Christian duty.

The Bible places strong emphasis upon the religious duties of the home. In the Old Testament the duties of parents to children are enforced, and the duty of children to parents is set forth in one of the commandments of the Decalogue. In the New Testament Paul lays emphasis upon the same duties, especially in his letter to the Ephesians. And in this emphasis he includes all embraced in the home life in their various relations, husbands and wives (chapter v, 22-29), children and parents, servants and masters. The duties in the home are reciprocal. To each are owed obligations, and upon each important duties devolve. The remembrance of these facts should encourage all to the performance of their various duties. Before we can claim the rights belonging to us we should strive to perform the duties that devolve upon us. Indeed, if all would faithfully perform their duties the rights belonging to each one in the home would accompany such performance, and this can best be done by making our home life a religious life. Paul sets forth this religious phase. Obedience to parents is to be "in the Lord." Children are not only not to be provoked to wrath, but brought up "in the fear and admonition of the Lord." Servants are to serve "as unto Christ" and masters to deal justly with their servants, knowing that they have a Master in heaven with whom there is no respect of persons. Home duties are thus all made to center around Christ, and in doing service unto Him we glorify and honor God.

God instituted the home. It is a symbol of heaven, the eternal abode of God's people. The dearest ties on earth are the home ties; the fondest names and titles are the ones used there—father, mother, husband, son, daughter. Let us, therefore, more and more consecrate the home life to God in Jesus Christ. Let us make each home a "bethel" where God delights to dwell. The family altar should be erected. All duties should be performed and rights granted as unto the Lord. God will thus be glorified, and our own lives and the lives of those nearest and dearest to us will be made increasingly better and happier.

Finland's President.

Some of our readers know Dr. Clark's amazement at his discovery on his first visit to Finland that the Christian Endeavor society had gone ahead of him and that where he expected to be obliged to do pioneer work there were already several societies, and there was a splendid prospect for the growth of the movement. Finnish Endeavorers keep the English words "Christian Endeavor," with no attempt at translation. "A week ago," Mr. Saxback wrote us not long since, "we had our first real union meeting in Ekenas. Thirteen societies, with an aggregate of a little more than 400 members, were reported, all in connection with the Free Church of Finland. We hope that the movement will soon reach the state church and all the other denominations of Christians." At this meeting Mr. Saxback was elected president of the Finland Christian Endeavor union.—Amos R. Wells in Christian Endeavor World.

Increase Campaign Notes.

Here are some of the latest figures of growth in the Christian Endeavor movement:

Twenty-five states have gained 10 per cent.

Seven states have gained 20 per cent.

Missouri has gained 30 per cent.

Indian Territory, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico have gained 40 per cent.

The Hawaiian Islands have gained 116 per cent.

Eight states have gained 100 new societies.

Pennsylvania has gained 200 new societies, and New York has gained 300 new societies. Ohio's gain is 586 new societies, leading all other states of the Union.

The total increase of new societies during the campaign thus far is 4,659. The campaign began in November, 1902.

In 1906.

The international Christian Endeavor convention of 1906 is to be held in Calcutta, India, the first week of November, 1906.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 19: "Glorifying God In Our Home"—Eph. vi, 1-9.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

How much we hear in these days about home life, the training of children and the vexing servant question! We seem to take it for granted that these matters all are new and never were thought of in the days of long ago. Yet here is a man writing less than 2,000 years since, and doing it in such an eminently common sense way that no one since has been able to improve on his counsel. To be sure, he never had any children of his own to bring up, and we have come to think that no one is really competent to give advice in the management of the young unless they have had the experience of fathering or mothering some of their own.

But if you will hear what he has to say and compare it with what fathers and mothers the world over have said and done you will be convinced that he knows what he is talking about, and also knows how to talk about it unusually well. He has seen considerable family life, and has detected its seamy side. He understands folks and their needs. He does not use many words, but have you ever found any one who has said more on this subject in the same number of words?

We have mothers' clubs and mothers' meetings and conferences and conventions without number, and doubtless they all accomplish some good in some sort of way, yet a person does sometimes think that if all the mothers and fathers and children and servants would read over these few lines written by Paul at least every Sunday, and then try to put them in practice between Sundays, there would be more apparent improvement in the condition of family life than seems to be secured in the way we are now going on.

Some years past it was quite the proper thing to have a lot of Scripture mottoes and texts framed and hung on the walls of the various rooms of the house. That was good as far as it went. It would be an excellent device for every child in every home to have this command printed and hung in the sleeping room where the eyes will rest on it the first thing when they open in the morning: "Children, obey your parents in the Lord." "Honor thy father and mother."

If this cannot be had in shape to hang up for the eyes to read, it should at least be taught so thoroughly that it will be the first thought in the morning and the last one at night that opens and closes the doors of the mind to the things of the world and life. "Obey" and "Honor." That takes it all in. All the essentials of childhood morality and religion are compressed into those two words. The child that does that "in the Lord" is in the kingdom. And the strongest probability is that child will abide in the house of the Lord forever.

Here is the prolific source of much of the evil of the times. Our young people do not learn obedience, or, at least, do not learn it as soon as they should and where they should. It should be learned in the home. The first lesson should begin with life or possibly some time before. There should never be a time when disobedience can occur in the home without stopping the whole machinery of the household until it is corrected.

"In the Lord." That is the key to the whole of the lesson. The child must obey because of the relation in which every member of the family stands to God. This is God's family, and His laws are to govern it. Each is related to every other member in just the way he is because God has so ordered it in His providence. Father is to do the fathering and mother the mothering, and no one can fill these places but they. The children have the right to parental care and guidance and affection. But to do their part rightly parents must have reverence and obedience from the children. If this is withheld, all is wrecked.

In like manner the duty of parents and servants is clearly set forth.

If fathers and mothers, servants and employers would carefully study this advice and follow it strictly, there would soon be a great change apparent in family life for the better. Try it yourself.

Making Us Like Himself.

I called to see a lady both of whose arms were broken in an accident. "Every day the doctor comes and works my fingers and hands and arms to make them limber, and, oh, how it hurts!" said the lady. And then pretty soon she said, "There is no doctor like him, so gentle and skillful." You see she knew the pain he gave her was for her own good. So it is that we, God's children, look to Him and love Him because He is developing us and making us like Himself.—Floyd W. Tomkins, D. D.

Come and Go.

There is a mighty go in the gospel as well as come. It is come, go. Go preach and heal, go home to thy friends, go into the highways, go into all the world. Many Christians do not obey; many churches have no blessing because they do not go.—B. F. Jacobs.

Three Words of Strength.

There are three lessons I would write,
Three words, as with a burning pen,
In tracings of eternal light,
Upon the hearts of men.

Have Hope. Though clouds environ round
And gladness hides her face in scorn,
Put off the shadow from thy brow;
No night but hath its morn.

Have Faith. Where'er thy bark is driven—
The calm's disport, the tempest's mirth—
Know this: God rules the hosts of heaven,
The inhabitants of the earth.

Have love, love not alone for one,
But man, as man, thy brother call,
And scatter, like a circling sun,
Thy charities on all.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

New Organdies—A Smart Corset Cover—A Spring Golf Suit.

Lovely organdies are to be seen in the shops. Some of the patterns are exquisitely rose strewn with prim little buds and great nodding heads vying in beauty with each other.

Corset covers made entirely of rows of insertion alternating with bands of swiss embroidery are very new in the lingerie world. The covers are gathered into a beading of lace at the waist, through which wash ribbon is run and tied up on the shoulders with three inch wide ribbon bows.

A new golf suit for the spring is in tweed of a green and white mixture. The skirt is ankle length, made in a graceful circular cut. The jaunty short jacket is of plain green cloth, banded and blousing slightly over the waist in front. The revers of the coat are faced with the checked material of which the skirt is made. A white flannel shirt waist, turnover linen collar and silk tie complete the costume.

FANCY BALL COSTUME.

The picture shows a fancy ball dress representing a clover. The pointed bodice and skirt are composed of dull greenish white silk. The skirt has a ruche of silk at the bottom, and above it are applied cut out designs in silk of four leaf clovers. The chemisette is of white chiffon, the pointed Louis bodice being strapped with green ribbon and finished at the top with a clover design on one side and a cocarde of ribbon on the other. Panniers of figured green and white silk are fitted about the waist.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DAINTY LINGERIE.

Cashmere and Henrietta For Dancing School Frocks.

The present lingerie craze is for garments made of the softest, sheerest batiste, linen, French lawn and cambric. Beautiful hand stitchery is the chief trimming, though occasionally an entre deux of very fine lace is used.

Wash petticoats are very elaborate affairs just now and are serious rivals of the dainty silk skirts. There is a fancy for very fine white cambric skirts trimmed with endless frills of valenciennes lace. Buttonhole stitched ruffles ornamented further up the flounce with sprays of hand wrought dots and flowers are exquisitely dainty as a skirt trimming.

Corset covers made entirely of broderie anglaise are very new and pretty. These covers have a ruffle of some fine lace about the neck and armholes.

SURAH SILK GOWN.

Many of the silk petticoats have deep yokes of stockinet. Skirts of this kind are particularly to be recommended to women with large hips.

Cashmeres and henriettas are materials being revived for young girls' dresses, especially in red and white.

The dresses are entirely sun ray plaited, waist, skirt and sleeves. There is no other trimming except a yoke of Irish crochet lace and a dainty silk sash.

Attractive little princess frocks for dancing school are made of soft silk shirred on cords about a yoke of lace and again shirred into a deep girdle at the waist.

The new bodice illustrated is of almond green surah silk. It is made in the modish shirred-across-the-figure fashion and fastens with old silver buttons. A shawl collar of silk is edged with lace. The puffed sleeves have a fall of lace under turned back cuffs. The chemisette is of lace inserted mull

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"I am not sure that I do. Is it because the money-gods have been unpropitious—because these robber barons have looted your railroad?"

"No; that is only part of it—the smallest part."

"I hoped so; if you have too little, I have a good bit too much. But that corners it in a way to make me sorry. I am not keeping my promise to win what you weren't able to give me at first."

"Please don't put it that way. If there be any fault, it is mine. You have left nothing undone."

The man of expedients ran over his cards reflectively and decided that the moment for playing his long suit was full come.

"Your goodness of heart excuses me where I am to blame," he qualified. "I am coming to believe that I have defeated my own cause."

"By being too good to me?" she suggested.

"No; by running where I should have been content to walk; by shackling

"I SUPPOSE YOU HAVE EARNED THE RIGHT TO SAY WHAT YOU PLEASE," WAS THE IMPASSIVE REPLY.

you with a promise, and so in a certain sense becoming your jailer. That is putting it rather clumsily, but isn't it true?"

"I had never thought of it in that light," she said, unresponsively.

"You wouldn't, naturally. But the fact remains. It has wrenched your point of view hopelessly aside, don't you think? I have seen it and felt it all along, but I haven't had the courage of my convictions."

"In what way?" she asked.

"In the only way the thing can be stood squarely upon its feet. It's hard—desperately hard; and hardest of all for a man of my peculiar build. I am no longer what you would call a young man, Elinor, and I have never learned to turn back and begin all over again with any show of heartiness. They used to say of me in the Yacht club that if I gained a half-length in a race, I'd hold it if it took the sticks out of my boat."

"I know," she assented, absently.

"Well, it's the same way now. But for your sake—or rather for the sake of my love—I am going to turn back for once. You are free again, Elinor. All I ask is that you will let me begin where I left off somewhere on the road between here and Boston last fall."

She sat with clasped hands looking steadily at the darkened windows of the opposite house, and he let her take her own time. When she spoke there was a thrill in her voice that he had never heard before.

"I don't deserve it—so much consideration, I mean," she said; and he made haste to spare her.

"Yes, you do; you deserve anything the best man in the world could do for you, and I'm a good bit short of that."

"But if I don't want you to go back?"

He had gained something—much more than he knew; and for a tremulous instant he was near to losing it again by a passionate retraction of all he had been saying. But the cool purpose came to his rescue in time.

"I should still insist on doing it. You gave me what you could, but I want more, and I am willing to do what is necessary to win it."

Again she said: "You are too good to me," and again he contradicted her.

"No; it is hardly a question of goodness; indeed, I am not sure that it escapes being selfish. But I am very much in earnest, and I am going to prove it. Three years ago you met a man whom you thought you could love—don't interrupt me, please. He was like some other man we know; he didn't have the courage of his convictions, lacking the few dollars which might have made things more nearly equal. May I go on?"

"I suppose you have earned the right to say what you please," was the impassive reply.

It was the old struggle in which they were so evenly matched—of the woman to preserve her poise; of the man to break it down. Another lover might have given up in despair, but Ormsby's strength lay in holding on in the face of all discouragements.

"I believe, as much as I believe anything in this world, that you were mistaken in regard to your feeling for the other man," he went on, calmly. "But I want you to be sure of that for yourself, and you can't be sure unless you are free to choose between us."

"Oh, don't!—you shouldn't say such things to me," she broke out; and then he knew he was gaining ground.

"Yes, I must. We have been stumbling around in the dark all these months, and I mean to be the lantern-bearer for once in a way. You know, and I know, and Kent is coming to know. That man is going to be a success, Elinor; he has it in him, and he sha'n't lack the money-backing he may need. When he arrives—"

She turned on him quickly, and the blue-gray eyes were suspiciously bright.

"Please don't bury me alive," she begged.

He saw what he had done; that the nicely calculated purpose had carried straight and true to its mark; and for a moment the mixed motives, which are at the bottom of most human sayings and doings, surged in him like the sea at the vexed tide-line of an iron-bound coast. But it was the better Brookes Ormsby that struggled up out of the elemental conflict.

"Don't mistake me," he said. "I am neither better nor worse than other men, I fancy. My motives, such as they are, would probably turn out to be purely selfish in the last analysis. I am proceeding on the theory that constraint breeds the desire for the thing it forbids; therefore I remove it. Also, it is a part of that theory that the successful David Kent will not appeal to you as the unspoiled country lawyer did. No, I'm not going to spoil him; if I were, I shouldn't be telling you about it. But—may I be brutally frank?—the David Kent who will come successfully out of this political prize-fight will not be the man you have idealized."

There was a muttering of thunder in the air, and the cool precursory breeze of a shower was sweeping through the tree-tops.

"Shall we go into the house?" she asked; and he took it as his dismissal.

CHAPTER XX.

THE WINNING LOSER.

Editor Hildreth's prophecy concerning the probable attitude of the administration newspapers in the discussion of the oil field affair waited but a day for its fulfillment. On the Friday morning there appeared in the Capital Tribune, the Midland City Chronicle, the Range County Maverick and the Agriculta Ruralist able editorials exonerating the Bucks party, its policy and the executive, and heaping mountains of obloquy on the name of Duvall. These editorials were so similar in tone, tenor and texture, as pointedly to suggest a common model—a coincidence which was not allowed to pass unremarked by Hildreth and other molders of public opinion on the opposite side of the political fence. But Hildreth did not pause at generalities. Two days after the Universal's triumph in the Belmount field, the Argus began to "hit it up" boldly toward the capitol, and two things came of it. The first was an attempt by some party or parties unknown to buy up a controlling interest in the Argus. The second was the waylaying of David Kent in the lobby of the Clarendon hotel by no less a personage than the Hon. Melton Meigs, attorney general of the state.

Kent had seen little of Meigs since the latter had turned him down in the quo warranto matter; and his guard went up quickly when the attorney general accosted him in the lobby of the hotel and asked for a private interview.

"I am very much occupied just now, Mr. Meigs," he demurred; "but if it is a matter of importance—"

"It is; a matter of the greatest importance," was the smooth-toned reply. "I am sure you will not regret it if you will give me a few moments, Mr. Kent."

Kent decided quickly. Being forewarned, there was nothing to fear.

"We will go up to my rooms, if you please," he said, leading the way to the elevator; and no other word was spoken until they were behind closed doors on the fourth floor.

"A prefatory remark may make my business with you seem a little less singular, Mr. Kent," Meigs began, when Kent had passed his cigar-case and the attorney general had apologized for a weak digestive tract. "On wholly divergent lines and from wholly different motives we are both working toward the same end, I believe, and it has occurred to me that we might be of some assistance to each other."

Kent's rejoinder was a mute signal to the effect that he was attending.

"Some little time ago you came to me as the legal representative of the stockholders of the Trans-Western Railway company, and I did not find it possible at that time to meet your wishes in the matter of a quo warranto information questioning Judge MacFarlane's action and status. You will admit, I presume, that your demand was a little peremptory?"

"I admit nothing," said Kent, curtly. "But for the sake of expediting present matters—"

"Precisely," was the smiling rejoinder. "You will note that I said 'at that time.' Later developments—more especially this charge made openly by the public press of juggling with foreign corporations—have led me to believe that as the public prosecutor I may have duties which transcend all other considerations—of loyalty to a party standard—of—"

Kent took his turn at interrupting.

"Mr. Meigs, there is nothing to be gained by indirection. May I ask you to come to the point?"

"Briefly, then: the course pursued by Senator Duvall in the Belmount affair leaves an unproved charge against others; a charge which I am determined to sift to the bottom—you see, I am speaking quite frankly. That charge involves the reputation of men high in authority; but I shall be strong to do my sworn duty, Mr. Kent; I ask you to believe that."

Kent nodded and waved him on.

"You will readily understand the delicacy of the task, and how, in the nature of things, I am handicapped and hedged up on every side. Evidence—of a kind to enable me to assail a popular idol—is exceedingly difficult to procure."

"It is," said Kent, grimly.

"Exactly. But in revolving the matter in my own mind, I thought of you. You are known at the capitol, Mr. Kent, and I may say throughout the state, as the uncompromising antagonist of the state administration. I have asked myself this: Is it possible that a cool-headed, resolute attorney like Mr. David Kent would move so far and so determinedly in this matter of antagonism without substantially paving the ground under his feet with evidence as he went along?"

Kent admitted that it was possible, but highly improbable.

"So I decided," was the smile-tempered rejoinder. "In that case it only remains for me to remind you of your public duty, Mr. Kent; to ask you in the name of justice and of the people of the state, to place your information in the hands of the public prosecutor."

Kent's face betrayed nothing more than his appreciation of the confidence reposed in him by the man whose high sense of official honor was making him turn traitor to the party leader who had dragged him through a successful election.

"I have what evidence I need, Mr. Meigs," he declared. "But if I make no secret of this, neither do I conceal the fact that the motive pro bono publico has had little to do with its accumulating. I want justice first for what might be called a purely private end, and I mean to have it."

"Pre-cisely," smiled the attorney general. "And now we are beginning to see our way a little clearer. It is not too late for us to move in the quo warranto proceedings. If you will call at my office I shall be glad to reopen the matter with you."

"And the price?" said Kent, shortly.

"Oh, my dear sir! must we put it upon the ground of a quid pro quo? Rather let us say that we shall help each other. You are in a position to assist me very materially; I may be in a position to serve your turn. Come to my office to-morrow morning prepared to do your duty as an honest, loyal citizen, and you will find me quite willing to meet you half-way."

Kent rose and opened his watch.

SAXONY'S QUEEN IN TROUBLE.

Nurse Accused of Attempt to Carry Off Princess Anna Monica Pia.

FLORENCE, Feb. 16.—The affairs of the Countess Montignoso, former wife of King Frederick Augustus of Saxony, have taken a dramatic turn here. For some time the countess has suspected that her German nurse, Mahote, was planning to abduct the little Princess Anna Monica Pia and place her in the care of her father, the king. Under the pretext that the German consul was waiting to see the nurse at the gate of the villa where the countess is residing the latter led Mahote to the gate, then, quickly pushing the nurse outside and closing and locking the gate, the countess cried, "Go to your master, spy." Entering the house, the countess ordered all of Mahote's belongings thrown out of the window to the street. The nurse protested against her ejectment, but unavailingly, and later applied to a locksmith to aid her in reentering the villa, saying she had lost her key. The locksmith declined.

Failing to enlist the locksmith's assistance, Mahote went to Dr. Koerner, the Dresden lawyer, who came here recently to demand that the Countess Montignoso relinquish the custody of the Princess Anna to King Frederick Augustus, and he, in company with the German consul, returned with her to the villa, where they found all the doors bolted and even the bell wires cut. Dr. Koerner appealed to the police, but was told that they could not enter a private house without the orders of a court.

The people in the vicinity of the villa have been intensely interested in the royal domestic drama, and many of them declare they will personally oppose any attempt at violence against the former crown princess of Saxony.

THE DOMESTIC PROBLEM.

Senator Grady Balked at Features of Saxe Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 16.—The domestic servant question was taken up in the senate here when Senator Saxe moved for the advancement of his bill designed to prevent the bribery of agents, employees and servants.

Senator Grady started the discussion by declaring that the measure was too farreaching. "I am in sympathy with the bill," he said, "until you get down to the domestic servants, and there I balk. By this bill the man who wants to get out of paying his servants can declare she got a box of candy or an orange from the grocer."

Senator Brackett said he was "in favor of the cook and the girl upstairs every time."

Action on the bill was postponed.

ZABOR IN BALANCE

Emperor Nicholas Carefully Weighing Arguments.

STATEMENT BY CZAR'S MINISTER

Strong Pressure on Russia's Ruler by Advocates of Continued Rule of Autocracy—He Cannot Decide While War Lasts.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 16.—In spite of Emperor Nicholas' personal inclination in favor of the zemsky zabor (or land parliament), as intimated to Count Leo Deonovitch Tolstoi, the imperial decision to summon this parliament has not yet been taken. The emperor is carefully weighing arguments for and against the plan before committing himself to this course. This statement is made upon the authority of perhaps the most liberal of the emperor's ministers, who last night stated that the question remains under consideration at Tsarskoe-Selo.

"I myself have frankly urged upon his majesty," the minister said, "the view that the time has come when the people should no longer be denied a voice in the government, and the same counsel has been given by many others who, like me, believe that the Moderate Liberal element, which has been drifting away, can thus be rallied to the support of the government. His majesty received our views sympathetically and, I believe, is personally inclined to adopt the course we suggest. He now is carefully deliberating upon the subject. It is no secret, however, that powerful influences about his majesty are pressing the contrary view and advancing strong arguments which cannot lightly be thrust aside even if the decision is finally favorable. Precipitation is impossible, although the people, who are laboring under the stress of excitement, seem to forget that for such a sweeping innovation time is necessary to formulate and elaborate the scheme for the electorate, composition and functions of the body.

"Reasons of state also exist which might make it inadvisable to summon such a body during the continuation of the war since the government is unitedly of the opinion that peace is impossible now. But if the zemsky zabor is to be convened at the conclusion of the war a proclamation should be issued now. Yet, no matter what the emperor's decision may be, the manifesto on reforms on which the committee of ministers is working will be productive of great good. The misfortune is that all the discontented classes are for the moment skeptical. They are using every weapon to embarrass the government while it is engrossed with the war. The situation is deplorable, but not critical. There may be trouble and disorders even on a comparatively large scale, though there will be no crisis unless the discontent extends to the rural districts. In my opinion that is possible only in the event of some great catastrophe, such as a general failure of the crops or an epidemic of cholera. Then, with famine to frighten the country, coupled with political agitation in the cities, no one can predict what may happen."

Another Mrs. Hoch Dead.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Henry Schwanzala has identified "Bluebeard" Hoch as a man who under the name of "John Schulz" married Mrs. Marie Becker in St. Louis in 1903. Mrs. Becker was the mother-in-law of Schwanzala. Not long after the marriage, the witness stated, his mother-in-law was taken ill and died. "When I went to St. Louis to attend the funeral," said Schwanzala, "Charles Reinhardt, a brother-in-law, told me that the doctor who attended my mother-in-law said that her death looked suspicious and that, in his opinion, she died of arsenic poisoning. My brother-in-law and myself believed that Hoch was a decent man and had no idea that our mother-in-law had been poisoned."

General McArthur En Route to War.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16.—The Pacific mail steamship Korea sailed for the orient, via Honolulu, with a cargo of 11,000 tons of merchandise, which includes a large amount of war material for the Japanese government, comprising rifles, cartridges, machinery, nitrate, cotton, leather and quicksilver. Among the Korea's passengers are Major General McArthur and wife and his aid-de-camp, Colonel Parker West. They are going to Japan, whence General McArthur will proceed to Manchuria to observe the war as the representative of the United States army.

Three Hundred Girls In Panic.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Three hundred girls employed in the manufacturing department of the Chicago Mercantile company here became panic stricken when a fire was discovered in the roof of the building. There was a dash for stairways and elevators. One of the girls had her arm broken, and many others became hysterical and fainted. The excitement was finally quieted by James Halliday, the manager.

BASKET BALL.

The Whittier School basketball team has recently had a photograph of the team taken.

The game between the P. H. S. team and the alumni of the school, has been cancelled.

The Business Men's team, of the Y. M. C. A., will play a game with the Rahway team at the local gymnasium on Monday. On Saturday evening the Y. M. C. A. first team will go to Orange, where they will contend with the Y. M. C. A. team from that city. The two teams have not met before this season, and the game will undoubtedly be an interesting one.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Triangle Bowling Club will roll a match with the Saengerbund team on the Fanwood alleys, Friday night. On next Wednesday, the manager is considering a game with the Bound Brook team at the latter's alleys, and on Friday, February 24, it is probable that the Knights of Columbus will meet the local team at Fanwood.

Though the bowling on both sides was decidedly poor, the game between the Y. M. C. A. and Suburban bowling teams on the association alleys last night was good practice for both aggregations. It resulted in a victory for the Fanwoodites in three straight games, though little credit belongs to either side. The teams were not used to the alleys and Wiltse, who a few days ago bowled in the 200 class, fell to a 94 last night. Koons and Sutphen were below their usual average, while Roy Phillips was the only one who knocked down the pins in any style whatever. His score was tied with Scheelen for the high mark, 172. Scheelen also made a 160, which gave him the highest average. The scores of the three games were: Suburban, 663, 664, 662; Y. M. C. A., 607, 650, 659. The line up was as follows: Y. M. C. A.—Phillips, Egan, Sutphen Wiltse, Koons and Jeffries; Suburban—Stewart, Gallagher, Day, Scheelen and Alberts. Both the above teams have hard games scheduled for the latter part of the week, and the practice last night was beneficial in spite of the low results.

Fire in Scotch Plains.

A new range in the John Cook house on Mountain avenue, and occupied by Mrs. Mann, was completely demolished this morning by the explosion of the water back. Mrs. Mann's cook was standing near it at the time and narrowly escaped being struck by flying pieces of iron. The fire was scattered about the floor but was quickly extinguished by the escaping water.

BOOK NEWS.

State Librarian Henry C. Buchanan's annual report shows that the total number of volumes in the library is 67,640. The accessions during the year were 2,856. The report states that of the $3,500 appropriated for the "repair, preservation and purchase of useful books," $438 68 was spent for binding and repairs and the remainder for new books. During the year many more valuable pamphlets relating to New Jersey were bound in board covers.

A considerable portion of the report is devoted to a review of the improvements made in the library last summer. This part shows that 23 large oak book cases were replaced by 48 cases of rolled steel. Of these, 28 were installed in the law library and 16 in the reference department. This change, it is stated, has given a little more than double the former shelf room, and will be sufficient to meet all requirements for several years to come, at the present rate of growth. By the discarding of the old revoving cases scattered sets of books have been brought together and made much more accessible for use. The new steel newspaper cases and the repainting and decorating are also outlined.

In order to permit the changes to be made it was necessary to remove over 50,000 books and pamphlets from the old shelves and pile them away. The work was so far completed during the vacation of the court as to permit of the re-opening of the library, with all the books in place, on the opening day of the November term of the Supreme Court.

The document states that the improvements yet to be made, which will be completed before the report is printed, include the finishing of a room in the attic over the librarian's office; the placing of shelving therein; replacing with steel the wooden shelving in the work room; the opening of a door way from the upper hall into the same room in order to prevent unnecessary traveling through the library. All these improvements will be completed within the appropriation made for the purpose.

Wood Ashes Make Trouble.

A telephone alarm at 10:30 this morning called Chief Doane and the local fire department to the home of A. W. Duxbury on Franklin place, which had mysteriously become filled with smoke from top to bottom. The Chief and his men searched about the finally located the trouble in the cellar where someone had placed a pan of wood ashes. They had remained smoldering and the smoke had made its way upward through the partments.

BOROUGHITES' VIEWS OF ELECTION MERGER

OPINIONS EXPRESSED BY OPPOSING LEADERS.

MAYOR N. B. SMALLEY—There was no question at any time but that Governor Stokes would do the proper thing at the right time. So far as effecting the situation in North Plainfield is concerned, I can't see any reason for alarm. The regular Republican ticket would have triumphed at a spring election just as surely as it will at the general fall election and the Citizen' Union Party, born on false issues one year ago, should consult the coroner.

A. V. D. HONEYMAN—I am not aware that the abolition of spring elections will affect the Citizen's party movement in any way. I can't tell what's going to happen by next fall. Some people seem to think the new law is a good one and we will certainly have to try it. It saves much expense to the borough and to the candidates. Personally I think there are arguments to be made both ways.

STATE TAX BOARD AT GARWOOD.

Organ Company Protests Against Taxes Being Doubled.

Judge Thompson and Charles C. Black, of the State Board of Taxation, visited Garwood yesterday and made an inspection of the property affected by the increased assessment as levied by the assessor of that borough. There are three contestants, including the Aeolian Organ Works, which claim that the valuations placed on their property is too high. S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Coddington & Swackhamer, who is counsel for the borough, was also present.

The property in question is assessed at $330,000, which is about double of that of last year, which is attributed to the fact that the assessment this year was made according to the law, that is by block and lot and not by the acre as last year. The sole question is that of the intrinsic value of the property, and it is quite likely that there will be a reduction in the assessment. A small park assessed to the contesting parties, it was determined belongs to the borough, and this was conceded by the officials. E. M. Wood, of Elizabeth, represents the contestants.

The State Board of Taxation will now take the matter up for consideration and a decision is expected within a few days. The contesting parties are among the largest taxpayers in the borough and the residents do not want to do anything that will cause them to move, yet it is the desire that a fair and equitable assessment be made.

Golf in Lakewood.

Drag hunting or following the hounds in a cross-country chase has long been popular at Lakewood. All hunts are in charge of experienced authorities who use every precaution against accident. The hunt coming across a field with a pack of hounds in full cry affords one of the most picturesque spectacles known to sport. Lakewood, indeed, is an idyllic spot in which to pass a fall of winter vacation or even a sojourn of a few days. The golf club offers exceptional facilities, and the links are among the finest in the country. Competent green-keepers are always at hand to instruct those unfamiliar with the game and keep in repair the implements of the sport. The Country Club is another organization with a large membership. Pony polo has added much to the fame of Lakewood. Probably the most perfect polo course in the country is that at Georgian Court, the estate of George Jay Gould. During tournaments the privileges of the grounds are thrown open to the public. Facilities for every kind of sport are found and the roads in and around the town are kept in perfect condition for riding, driving and cycling. The nature of the sand and gravel underlying the soil affords the best possible drainage so that there is never any standing surface water and dampness does not have to be guarded against. A booklet full of information of interest concerning Lakewood, including accommodations and rates at the numerous hotels and boarding houses, may be had free on application to C. M. Burt, G. P. A., New Jersey Central R. R., 143 Liberty street, New York city.

HORSE'S WILD RUN.

Dr. Knott's Animal Escapes Rigs, But is Knocked Down in Collision With Store.

Unwittingly driving into a high bank of snow on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon, Dr. M. O'M. Knott was suddenly dumped from his cutter and left in the road while his horse ran away at break-neck speed. It turned into East Front street and continued down that thoroughfare, just escaping a dozen rigs, until Somerset street was reached. In trying to turn there it ran against Tony Lusardi's store and was thrown down, Patrolman Overbaugh catching it while it was still struggling.

The animal and what remained of the cutter was taken to Cole's livery and was claimed later by one of Dr. Knott's men. The doctor escaped all injury beyond a few bruises.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Samuel Huntington, of Franklin place, will give a tea at her home tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the furnishing fund of Muhlenberg Hospital.

—So much ice and hard snow had formed on the Somerset street trolley tracks during the past few days that cars had difficulty in getting along this morning. The officials were notified by the crews and a gang of thirty Italians were placed at work to clear away the obstruction.

Elizabeth Girl Elopes With Negro.

The local police received a telephone message from the Elizabeth police last night, asking them to be on the look-out for Bessie Beach, a fifteen-years-old girl who had eloped with her mother's negro cook. They were supposed to have started for this city. Chief Kiely stationed men at the trolley terminus and the North Avenue station but thought a strict watch was maintained no one answering the girl's description was seen.

Within an hour and a half after the license of the Hotel Rosell had been transferred last night, from A. B. Rosell to Jerome W. Leary, Sheriff B. Frank Coriell executed an attachment against the place in behalf of Mefford R. Giles, the butcher, who alleges that Rosell is indebted to him in the sum of $875 on a book account, an unpaid note and a check. The new proprietor and his counsel, William A. Coddington, were made defendants though both say that a bill of sale had been signed before his arrival. The attachment was made to stand against the hotel bar and its furnishings and moneys and Messrs. Coddington and Leary were made garnishees.

The attachment was secured yesterday by Giles' counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and has an unusual feature from the fact that it was issued while the real defendant, A. B. Rosell, is still a resident of the State. According to Giles, Rosell announced that he intended leaving the State. The order for it was signed by Justice Heisley, Judge of Union County Circuit Court.

The Common Council granted the liquor license transfer last night and according to Leary, the sale was effected a few minutes later. Later Sheriff Coriell, accompanied by T. M. Muir as legal witness, executed the attachment. Leary is not restrained from doing business.

The sale price between Rosell and Leary is said to have been $9,000, which includes a $5,100 mortgage held by the Darby Brewing Co., of Reading, Pa., and since then Giles has made formal demand for his claim deducting the amount disputed but this has been refused.

SENTENCE OF NEGROES IS AGAIN DEFERRED

COURT RESERVES DECISION IN ARGUMENT FOR NEW TRIAL.

Judge Schenck, of the Somerset County Court, today again deferred sentence in the case of the four Plainfield negroes convicted on three charges of assault on borough police, Christmas eve. The defendants' lawyers, W. S. Angleman, William G. De Mesa and S. S. Swacknamer, argued for a new trial on various grounds. When they concluded the court reserved decision.

They declared that no part of the evidence had shown that the men had intended killing the policemen as the indictments charged. The juries, they said, had formed opinions from the evidence submitted at the first trial, which was for simple assault and that the minds of the members were made up before the witnesses were heard.

OPPOSE EXCISE BOARD

Poll of Common Council Regarding Bill in Legislature.

TO ASK A HEARING

Features of Assemblyman Dalrymple's Measure Which Applies to Plainfield.

Plainfield's Common Council places itself on record as opposed to the enactment of the bill now in the Legislature for the appointment of three commissioners, in all second class cities, to serve as an excise board. This measure, which is fathered by Assemblyman Dalrymple, of Passaic county, vests the mayor with power to name the members of the board, and fixes their pay. It takes from the Common Council, representatives of the voters, the right to deal directly with the granting and regulating of licenses.

These expressions of opinion were made to a reporter for The Daily Press by members of the local Common Council last night:

President Leslie M. Daniel—"I think it would be a good thing for we would have a rum town," he ironically said.

Ralph I. Tolles—"I do not favor an excise commission, and I do not think it would be a good thing for Plainfield."

Frank DeW. Randolph—"If care is exercised in the selection of excise commissioners, being sure to choose men who are impartial and fair, I believe such a board would be a good thing for the city."

William L. Gleak—"I think the Council should decide such matters. The Councilmen represent the people."

Charles C. Randolph—"It would be a bad thing to change the present method."

J. Stephen Higham—"We don's want it. The present way of dealing with the liquor question is all right."

W. S. Tyler—"I think the bill is one which calls for careful consideration. To much haste should not be excised in such a matter. While I do not think that our Mayor would act unwisely under the provisions of this bill, there are such officials who would and it is a question whether a measure of this kind would be of as much benefit to Plainfield as the present system.

Theodore Wilson—"I don't know as I care to express an opinion. You better see Mr. Tolles or ask Mr. Daniels about it.

Clarence L. Murphy—"I do not think that the measure in its present form is a wise one for Plainfield. It should require the concurrence of the Common Council with the Mayor's action in the appointment of an excise commission"

Following the several committee meetings at the Common Council rooms, last night, the members held a caucus on this subject. There were nine members present, Councilmen Danile, Tolles, Bullock, Gleak, Wilson, Murphy, C. C. Randolph, Higham and Tyler. Councilmen Hibbard and Frank DeW. Randolph were absent.

It was the unanimous opinion that the measure as now drafted would not be a wise one and all thought that the city should be represented at a hearing to be given at Trenton for the purpose of suggesting some changes. It is generally believed that the bill was introduced chiefly for the benefit of Elizabeth. At present they have a Democratic excise commission and having a Republican Mayor the members of that party want to make a change and secure a Republican commission. The Plainfield members of the Common Council will undoubtedly oppose the adoption of the bill unless certain desired changes are made in it.

FLAYS LONELY MR. SIDES

Angry Wife Tells Why He Advertised for Fair Friend.

CALLS HIM A "BRUTE"

Says That He Has Been Married Three Times and Warns Girls to Have Nothing to Do with Him.

A few weeks ago there appeared in The Daily Press "want" advertisements the following, sent to the office by letter:

"Gentleman, 39 years of age, tall and of dark complexion, wishes to correspond with tall attractive looking woman not over 30; blonde preferred. Address W. H. Sides, 56 East Main street, Somerville, N. J."

The necessary expense for insertion was enclosed and the advertisement appeared to be bona fide in every way but to learn if possible why the lonely Mr. Sides should be seeking the acquaintance of Plainfield women, blond preferred, a representative of the paper was sent to Somerville to interview him. He was unable to locate Mr. Sides but found 56 East Main street in the form of a vacant lot. The matter remained somewhat of a mystery until today when the morning mail brought the following letter, dated at Reading, Pa.:

"To the Editor:

"In reference to the Sides' advertisement printed in your columns recently I wish you would be kind enough to print the following in your paper:

"When a man advertises the fact that he wishes to correspond with a lady, it is time to warn the girls of Plainfield and the surrounding towns of the character of such a man. It seems to be a secret why he prefers blondes, and why he cannot find one of this type in Somerville. Not that blondes in Somerville are not be found, but because the lone Somervillian knows that both blondes and brunettes of his town know that his blonde wife left him, or rather left the brute a few weeks prior to this 'ad.' He has changed his name slightly from Seiders to Sides, not mentioning that matrimony is his object, and seems to be in deadly earnest according to the 'ad.' But before the blondes who have answered his 'ad' go any further or trifle any more with the gentleman, it will be well to warn them that he has had three wives from this town and I, his third wife, am still in existence.

"The gentleman also makes himself younger, changes his street address as well as his name, thinking that if he changes all this that his wife in Pennsylvania will never suspect that he is looking for another wife while she is still living.

"I think that as your paper has printed his 'ad.' and also notice that you have another piece in your paper in reference to it, that the girls of your town should be warned, and if any respectable girl has written to him that she should know that he is a married man, and that his home is here in Reading and that up to Nov. 19, 1904, we lived in Somerville and on that date I left him on account of ill treatment.

"Respectfully,
"Mrs. W. H. Seiders,
"231 Spruce street, Reading, Pa."

Y. M. C. A. CONCERT.

Seventeenth Orchestral Entertainment Will be Given on Feb. 27.

The seventeenth concert by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will be given at the association hall on Monday, February 27, a new programe of popular selections having been arranged for the occasion. As formerly the orchestra will be under the direction of Martin I. Korff, the trainer and conductor.

Roland B. Randolph, a baritone, will be the soloist for the concert. Mr. Randolph is an accomplished singer, and is well known in this city as well as Westfield and Bound Brook. He has appeared in concerts here at various times.

Hit at Democratic Sheriff.

The State Senate has passed Mr. Leibach's bill placing the sheriffs in first-class counties on a salary of $10,000 a year. The bill is now in the hands of the Governor, and as he is known to favor the placing of public officials on salary, it is thought he will sign the measure. This act only affects Essex and Hudson counties. As both of these counties now have Democratic Sheriffs it does seem the measure is partisan on its face. The Sheriff of Essex county, Wm. C. Nichol, is the man who defeated Major Carl Lentz' the Republican boss of Essex, in the fall of 1903.

ANOTHER BASEBALL TEAM

St. Mary's Association to Be Represented by Strong Nine.

M'LAUGHLIN TO PITCH

To Expend $500 in Making Improvements to Grounds—Wieronga the Promoter.

Following closely the announcement of the Plainfield Baseball Association of its lineup and plans for the coming baseball season, comes the news that the St. Mary Baseball Association will place a team on the local diamond and plans are now underway to secure suitable grounds and complete the details for the season. It is yet undecided whether to lease the Orange Field Club field or engage a diamond on East Second street along the trolley. It is proposed to expend about $500 in making improvements to either grounds, including the erection of grandstands.

According to the present plans it is proposed to have "Warry" McLaughlin for pitcher, with either Armbruster or Allen at the receiving end. The infield is made up with Poole at first, Flynn on second, Supple at third and Zimmerman, formerly of Manhattan College, at short. The outfield is to be covered by Tayler in centre, "Red" Alberts in right field and O'Brien in left field.

Poole, Flynn, Supple and Alberts are from last year's Aeolian team and Taylor is from this city. Zimmerman played for the Elizabeth Stars on Sundays last year. Armbruster is the New London catcher, who played several games with the old Alls team, while McLaughlin is from the same team. He has not decided to return to New London this season.

It is proposed to open the season the last of May in this city with the High Bridge team and other aggregations of equal strength will be secured. If arrangements can be made there will be a series of contests with the Plainfield Baseball Association team.

Henry Wieronga is taking the lead in the organization of the team, and he is supported by many of those formerly identified with the association two seasons ago.

HONEYMAN REMAINS ON HEALTH BOARD

AND SUBMITS STATEMENT REQUESTED BY BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Complying with a demand made upon it at the last Councilmanic meeting, the Borough Board of Health, at a meeting Wednesday night, took steps to furnish the former body with a complete statement relative to its financial condition. It was prepared by Rev. W. E. Honeyman and will be submitted to the Council at the regular session to be held next Friday night. The action of the Council was taken because of Collector George F. Brown's declaration that Mr. Honeyman had informed him he could not tell what funds the Board possessed.

As Mr. Honeyman was not reappointed a member of the Board, the meeting Wednesday night should have been the occasion for his resigning as secretary but this he did not do. Under the circumstances his membership will be ignored by friends of the administration, it is said, at the annual meeting on March 6, when officers will be elected. Dr. A. H. Dunden, who was appointed by Mayor Smalley in his stead, and who was present Wednesday, is slated for the secretaryship and in the event of any of the members recognizing Mr. Honeyman's claims to membership and voting for him, a deadlock may result.

Rev. Mr. Honeyman's friends contend that his term has not expired.

Dry Argument on Fire Water.

A citizen of Plainfield combats the theory that it would be illegal to establish a saloon district there, for he calls attention to the fact that such a limitation is similar to the rule relating to the establishing of fire limits. If the latter is legal, the Common Council certainly has the power to fix the "firewater" limits. The argument is a sound one, though it is a rather "dry" reading for the advocates of the unrestricted sale of liquor.

CHAMBERMAID SUES MR. CRUIKSHANK, $10,000

DEMANDS DAMAGES FOR ALLEGED DEFAMATION OF CHARACTER.

Miss Jennie Crotty, of this city, has started suit for $10,000 damages against Simeon A. Cruikshank, of Belvdere avenue, for alleged defamation of character. The action is brought in the Supreme Court and will be tried at the May term.

On December 15 the plaintiff was engaged by Mrs. Cruikshank as chambermaid and seamstress. After working for one month, Miss Crotty notified Mrs. Cruikshank that she was going to leave. She was asked to remain until another girl arrived, but she would only stay until the next morning. After packing her trunk, and when about to have it taken from the house, it is alleged, Mr. Cruikshank would not allow the trunk to be taken from the place until it had been searched. Accordingly he summoned Patrolman Overbaugh, who said he had no right to search the trunk. Chief Kiely also assured Mr. Cruikshank that he had no right to make a search without a warrant.

Miss Crotty brought suit in Justice Mosher's court for the unlawful detention of her property but later it was returned. Subsequently Miss Crotty instituted suit for $10,000 for defamation, and for damages in failure to secure a position owing to the defendant's action in detaining her. She is represented by William Newcorn.

DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS' GOODS ARE TO BE SOLD

COLLECTOR LEE PREPARING TO ENFORCE PAYMENT OF TAXES.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee is now preparing a list of persons who have failed to pay their personal, poll and dog tax and upon the completion of the list, notices will be sent to all delinquents. The new tax law does not give the collector any choice, but he is compelled to levy upon the goods and chattels of any delinquent and sell them for the amount of the tax due, and in case there is not sufficient goods to satisfy the claim, he shall take the body of the delinquent, and unless the tax is not paid at once, with costs, deliver the person to the Sheriff or jailer of the county, to be kept in custody until payment is made.

In the case of a poll tax of $1, the interest for two months would amount to two cents, but if the collector or his deputy enforces the law, the costs and penalties alone will amount to $3.38, making the total amount which the delinquent would have to pay $4 30.

The new law resulted in a more prompt payment of taxes as the total collections of 1904 taxes are in excess of $125,000.

The committee of the Republican County Committee which is arranging for the trip to Washington on inauguration day has ordered an immense silk banner, to be made especially for that occasion. It will be fifty-two by seventy-two feet in size. On it there will be appropriation inscriptions.

From present indications not less than 200 will go along in the Union county delegation, and preparations are bein made for the accommodation of that many. Hamilton F. Kean will act as marshal.

Applications for tickets may be made to the local members of the Union County Republican Committee. They are Mayor J. F. Buckie, D. C. Smalley, W. N. Runyon, Evarts Tracy, J. W. Murray, Jr., J. S. Higham, William Newcorn, Andrew McCardell and F. H. Smith.

CITY FATHERS IN SESSION

Transfer Liquor License and Hold Committee Meetings.

BOOKS ARE AUDITED

Finance Committee Discusses Expert Accountant's Report—Street Committee's First Session.

The transferrence of the liquor license held by A. B. Rosell to Jerome Leary, a new applicant, was the only business transacted at the special meeting of the Common Council, last night. The fee, $25, was paid and W. L. Gleak moved that the transfer be made. The papers were prepared by W. A. Codington, of the firm of Reed & Codington, representing Mr. Leary and there was no unnecessary delay in making the change.

Mr. Wilson wanted to know whether it was customary to call a special meeting to transfer a liquor license and permit of no other business. President Daniel admitted that it was rather unusual. There was a feeling that it was a waste of time to call together a number of busy men to simply take up one matter requiring but a few minutes time.

The members took advantage of being together and decided to hold committee meetings. The finance committee, not having had time previously to consider the report of Expert Accountant Collins, who recently completed an exhaustive examination of the city's books, took up this report and examined it in detail. The committee also had a preliminary discussion regarding the annual budge to be fixed next month. The other committees were asked to make up the several amounts thought to be necessary for the coming year.

The Street Committee also held a meeting to take up certain matters needing attention at this time, although little can be done until spring arrives, when the regular work on the streets will be started.

The Public Affairs Committee decided not to do anything this week regarding the petition received from the Passaic Common Council, asking for co-operation in the matter of securing legislation favorable to the establishment of municipal lighting plants in cities of Plainfield's class. The committee will probably meet a little later in the month and take some action.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

If you are looking for an engagement or wedding ring there is no better place to go than J. Hervey Doane's jewelry store in Park avenue.

Trees and shrubbery add greatly to the appearance of residential grounds. The Belleview Nursery is closing out its entire stock of both; why not get some?

In making plans for the new house, don't forget to pay special attention to the stairways. John Herrmann, of Somerse street, makes a specialty of this kind of work.

When you get ready to have any painting or papering done, it is to your advantage to give the contract to a reliable firm—Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place.

Alexander Lusardi, for many years one of Plainfield's foremost fruit dealers, has the agency for the best Florida oranges, grape fruit, bananas, choice figs, dates and grapes.

Dudley Miller, the Park avenue druggist, has a superior line of hot water bags of the best manufacture and at rock-bottom prices. An inspection of the stock is equivalent to a purchase.

J. U. Hansen does the fine decorating which you have perhaps noticed in the interior of some of Plainfield's handsomest homes. His men are all experienced, and are capable painters and paper hangers.

Kirch's cigar specials are the talk of the town and the delight of the smokers. All the best brands are sold at prices unheard of before as are all cigars and tobaccos at this popular North avenue store. Drop in at any time and look over the stock.

Since its bow to the Plainfield public, the grocery firm of Mack, Scudder & Co., has gained a large patronage, mainly because of the superiority of its goods and the attractiveness of low prices. James Daly is the manager and he is pleased to greet old and new friends at any time.

The entire stock of goods at the H. E. Gayle Hardware Company store, from a stove to a ten penny nail, is guaranteed to be the best in the market and at prices that will please. This is a perfectly reliable house and when you need anything in the hardware line give the firm a share of your patronage.

Why pay fancy prices for meats, poultry and fish when at Roth & Co.'s market on East Front street, you can get the best at low prices. This firm never sacrifices quality for the price and therefore you are always sure to get the best in the market. The firm has so many stores and is such a large buyer of meats, poultry and seafood that its customers always get the benefit of the low prices. Prompt deliveries are made to all parts of the city and borough.

There is no argument to the question that M. Weinberger, of West Front street, sells the best clothing. His stock comprises every size and the suits are of the best quality, well made and are sold at very low prices. The days for paying fancy prices for clothing have passed and Mr. Weinberger has been instrumental in clothing hundreds of patrons at moderate prices. Every customer is a satisfied one. A full line of men's furnishings will always be found in stock.

A NAVAL DISASTER

British Submarine's Crew Is Blown From Vessel.

GASOLINE TANKS EXPLODED TWICE

Rescue Party Received Force of Second Explosion—Many of the Injured Sailors Badly Mutilated—Commander Killed.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 17.—An explosion of gasoline occurred on board the British submarine torpedo boat A5 here, by which the crew of eleven men was blown into the water.

The torpedo boat Hazard sent a rescuing party, and while it was at work a second explosion occurred.

Sublieutenant Skinner, the commander of the A5, and two men were killed, and fifteen men were injured.

The crew of the submarine consisted of Sublieutenant Skinner and eleven men. They were engaged in filling the gasoline tanks of the vessel, which was lying on the surface at moorings, when the fluid became ignited. An explosion occurred so violent that it was heard for miles.

Captain Hall, commander of the Hazard, sent a rescuing party to the submarine. They had hardly more than reached her when there was a second explosion.

Not one of the men in the Hazard's rescuing party escaped injury, some of them being terribly mutilated.

Two dead bodies were found aboard the submarine. Nine of the injured men were taken to the Haulbowline hospital. Lieutenant Skinner died there.

Sixty army officers were present to witness the diving experiment which led to such a tragic result. The crew were entirely volunteers. The explosion, which was of the violence of a big gun and was heard ten miles away, shook the submarine's convoy, the Hazard, from stem to stern. Dense volumes of smoke were seen immediately pouring from the only outlet of the hapless submarine. The rescuers report that it was only by superhuman efforts that they were able to force their way through the stifling fumes. They were repeatedly driven back, and when finally they reached the lower part of the boat they encountered a terrible spectacle. Of the wounded and dying crew only one was able to speak coherently, and he was begging to be saved. The rescuers were forcing up the second manhole forward when the second explosion occurred, blowing one of them twenty feet upward. He fell in the water and was rescued. Others were slightly wounded. The Hazard sent a fresh party to the rescue, and one by one the dead and injured were brought up, the rescuers in each case returning prostrated and faint with the fumes of gasoline. Lieutenant Skinner was delirious and tried to tear himself away from his rescuers.

As the submarine was on fire she was towed to the dockyard basin, where bluejackets made gallant efforts to get the only body remaining below, that of an engineer. They were almost asphyxiated before they succeeded. Afterward the fire was extinguished.

The cause of the explosion is unknown.

The A5 had been towed to Queenstown, and Captain Hall of the Hazard intended to deliver a lecture to naval officers during the evening on "The Usefulness of the Type." In illustration of the lecture the A5 was to have been maneuvered.

King Edward has sent a message expressing regret and heartfelt sympathy with the relatives of the victims.

PRESIDENT ORDERS INQUIRY.

Garfield Appointed to Make Search of Standard Oil Methods.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Roosevelt has begun a finish fight against the Standard Oil company. The action of congress in calling for an investigation of the trust's boycott methods in Kansas was ordered by him and serves as the issue of the movement for turning the government batteries full on the giant monopoly.

The president has instructed Corporations Commissioner Garfield to make a sweeping search of Standard Oil affairs, and an army of inspectors and clerks and others are ready to start out on the hunt for evidence.

This will begin simultaneously in several states, with Kansas the active ground. Facts gathered by an inspector sent to the distributing centers of the Standard Oil company when President Roosevelt began a preliminary inquiry will be used as a basis for work.

Kansas in conducting its independent fight against Standard Oil will be a valuable aid to Mr. Roosevelt.

The campaign that is being bitterly waged in that state and the rapid progress made against the monopoly is told in a lucid and comprehensive statement by Senator F. Dumont Smith, who is leading the fight. He says:

"The fight of Kansas against the Standard Oil company has made rapid progress in the last week. Both houses have passed the refinery bill, which appropriates $410,000 for a refinery capable of handling 2,000 barrels of crude oil a day, to be located at Peru, in the heart of the oil region. Both houses have passed the maximum rate bill, providing low maximum rates for the transportation of crude oil."

LAWYER DEAD, WOMEN HELD.

Harrison F. Johnson Said to Have Been Poisoned With Tablets.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Harrison F. Johnson, New York counsel for a life insurance company of Hartford, Conn., is dead here at the New York hospital from morphine poisoning.

He was removed from a hotel in Sixth avenue to the hospital in a comatose condition and died without regaining consciousness.

The police are holding Mrs. Dottie Everhard, whom, they allege, gave morphine to Johnson, and her companion, Lottie Reynolds. The Everhard woman, the police claim, says she took a morphine tablet, and Johnson asked for one. She gave him a packet containing several, the authorities say, but it is not known how many he swallowed. The district attorney's office is making an investigation.

VICTORY FOR HYDE

Equitable Society Directors Support Founder's Son.

FORCES OF ALEXANDER MET DEFEAT

Vice President Stated After Contest That "All Would Now Pull Together; We Are In Complete Accord." Depew a Peacemaker.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—James W. Alexander and James H. Hyde were re-elected president and first vice president respectively of the Equitable Life Assurance society at the adjourned meeting of the directors. All the other officers who terms had expired were re-elected.

The outcome is regarded as a complete victory for James H. Hyde, for whose head the forces of President James W. Alexander have been clamoring for some time.

A resolution was adopted recommending that policy holders be given the right to vote for directors, and a committee, which includes President Alexander and Vice President Hyde, was appointed to carry out this step, which is practically the policy of mutualization advocated by President Alexander.

The results outlined were reached after a protracted session which was marked at times by considerable feeling. Friends of Vice President Hyde were disposed to view the outcome as a victory for their side, but in other quarters the result was regarded as a general compromise in which the contending factions met halfway.

That Mr. Hyde had a majority of the directors with him, however, was never in doubt. His election to the chairmanship of the executive and finance committees was regarded as significant in this connection.

"We have settled all differences and healed all wounds," said Mr. Hyde after the meeting. "Every one of us, from my superior, Mr. Alexander, down to the humblest subordinate, is now pulling together. We are in complete accord."

The solution of the society's troubles was largely due, it is understood, to the conciliatory methods employed by Senator Depew and Jacob H. Schiff. Contrary to report, Mr. Schiff had not arrayed himself on either side and was among those who favored mutualization.

Officials refused to confirm the report that a petition circulated a few days ago by general officers of the society suggesting the retirement of Vice President Hyde had been withdrawn at the opening of yesterday's meeting.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 17, 1905.

Hearst is doing his best to make the air in the House as blue as possible. In adorning his papers, however, he prefers yellow.

We congratulate the taxpayers and property-owners of North Plainfield that the term of Mayor Newton B. Smalley is extended until Jan. 1 next.

Let it be placed on record that the chairman called a meeting of the street committee of the Common Council last night. As Dr. Munyon says: "There is hope!"

Exchange declares that the United States Constitution is concerned in a New Jersey tax case. Haven't heard much from that since one Parker went the way of defeat, but understand that it is still in a healthy condition notwithstanding that T. Roosevelt is in the White House.

The city authorities have notified the property owners that unless they sprinkle ashes, sand or saw dust on the icy sidewalks as the ordinance provides they will be compelled to pay a fine. Now wouldn't it be a good idea for the city itself to do the same thing with the cross walks?

Plainfield's Common Council will make a protest to the Legislature against the passage of the Dalrymple excise bill. On the face of it, the proposed statute is nothing less than an attempt at political jobbery and will be the means of opening the door to all sorts of corruption in municipal affairs. We do not mean to say that Plainfield is going to be greatly damaged if the bill becomes a law but we do say that at some future time there is a strong possibility that the present excellent saloon regulation in this city will be destroyed. The proposed law takes away from the chosen representatives of the people the right to handle the saloon question directly and places that important function in the hands of three men to be appointed by the mayor. One can readily see how interested the State liquor dealers' gang would be in any mayoralty election. Under its workings there would be every opportunity for graft and corruption. Newark, Elizabeth and other cities have received unenviable advertisement through excise boards and Plainfield doesn't need any of that sort of publicity. The Common Council of a city is the proper body to deal with such matters, so vitally important to good government, and we hope that Assemblyman Dalrymple's obnoxious bill will be turned down by the Legislature.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Whitney Frasee attended a concert given in New York last night by the Symphony Orchestra.

—Even your regular customers will assume that if you do not advertise an article you do not have it.

—George Voehl's horse, attached to the bakery sleigh, ran away yesterday, colliding with a box sleigh, upsetting it and throwing the driver on and later upsetting the sleigh.

—The report in circulation that W. R. Codington, of the law firm of Codington & Swackhamer, had purchased the Martin and Kurshals buildings adjoining his own on West Second street, is denied by Mr. Codington.

—A first-class, refined and up to-date musical farce comedy, entitled "My Friend Hogan," will be presented at the Casino tomorrow afternoon and evening. It is said to be very funny, abounding in new songs, dances and specialties, with an unexcelled cast of professional people. Women and children will be well repaid for their attendance at the matinee. See advertisement about popular prices, etc.

BASKET BALL OUTLOOK NOT VERY PROMISING

COMING TEAMS AT THE LEAL'S, P. H. AND N. P. H. SCHOOLS.

Having concluded their basketball schedules for this season, the local schools naturally turn toward the prospects for next year, with a view to determining the possible make up and strength of the respective aggregations. From the present outlook, the interest in basketball in 1905 and 1896 will be considerably at an ebb compared with this year. In addition, the teams will be below the standard set by this year's scholastic aggregations.

Leal's School will probably have the best team, though much of its material will be new. The private school is not as badly off as the P. H. S., however, as the latter institution loses Captain Thompson, Gavett, Stutesman, Bentley, Collier and Doane. This leaves Freeman the only remaining member of this season's team, and opens up an opportunity for several second team aspirants. Among the latter, there is good material in Howard Freeman, William Lambert, Bert Leggett, Mackay, Walter Caldwell and Clyde Doane. In addition to this bunch of candidates, the P. H. S. will have the entire Whittier School five, the Juvenile champions, to choose from, and in this team, there is also good material.

At Leal's Manning, Underhill, Lyman, Glenney, Rowland, Howard, Endicott, Lawrence and a number of other candidates remain. The captains have not yet been selected. As for North Plainfield High School, the probabilities are that there will be no team. Nearly all the players on the first team graduate in June, leaving the material for next year's team entirely in the dark, if any where at all. Whether or not the two leagues will be conducted again this year, is unknown at present. The Y. M. C. A. will be the center of the contention, if the schools decide to continue the rivalry, which has existed this season.

PERSONAL.

The mother of Mrs. W. S. Decker, who has been quite ill at the home of the latter, is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rankin, of West Fifth street, have returned from a week's visit with friends in Brooklyn.

There will be special music at the service at Faith chapel Sunday night, including cornet solos by Whitney Frasee.

Russel Johnson and family, of Newark, who has been visiting Mr. Johnson's parents in the borough, have returned home.

Miss Bessie Wilson, of West Sixth street, a pupil nurse at Muhlenberg Hospital, who was recently operated upon for appendicitis, is convalescing.

The new law abolishing spring elections seems to meet with the approval of the majority here As the law becomes effective at once no election will be held next month. Those whose terms were to expire will hold over until the November election. The only objection locally to the law is a man's enthusiasm for the State or National ticket may possibly make him vote the straight party ticket, when in the past he has only had local issues to consider and party lines have been dropped some and votes cast for what the voters considered the best man, irrespective of party.

PROVISIONS OF BOROUGH SALOON CONTROL LAWS

BILL NOW IN LEGISLATURE FAVORED IN NORTH PLAINFIELD.

Favorable expressions were heard on all sides in North Plainfield today over the home rule saloon control bill in the Legislature.

The bill provides that it shall be lawful for the council of each and every borough in this State to pass, alter or repeal ordinances to regulate, within the borough limits, all inns, taverns, saloons and other places where spirituous, malt and other intoxicating liquors are sold, and to enforce such ordinance by fixing therein the maximum penalty that shall be incurred for violation thereof, which maximum penalty may be either a fine, not exceeding $100, or imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding three months.

It provides further that the Mayor or other judicial officer is authorized to try persons charged with the violation of ordinances of the borough, and shall have discretionary power to determine, within the maximum limits so fixed, the exact amount of fine or the exact term of imprisonment that shall be imposed in each case of violation of any ordinance passed under the authority of this section.

The second section makes the same regulation with reference to ordinances to prohibit the sale of liquors.

The judicial procedure in all such is to be the same as that prescribed for alleged violations of ordinances in the general act relating to boroughs, approved April 24, 1897.

PERSONAL.

William D. Thickstun, of Central avenue, has recovered from a recent illness.

Mrs. G. Emerson Mowen, of Mariners place, is detained at home by illness.

Charles Warnock, of East Fourth street, who was recently discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, has again been taken to the institution to be treated for pneumonia.

No New District Court ?

Despite the urgent need for its early passage the bill Senator Kean introduced and passed in the U. S. Senate providing for an additional judge for the United States district court is likely to slumber in the house committee on judiciary for another year at least. Judge Jenkins, the chairman of that committee, said yesterday afternoon: "The committee is disinclined to do anything this year with this and similar bills."

PRESIDENT'S POLICY

Dominican Message to Senate Outlines General Idea.

APPLICATION OF MONROE DOCTRINE

"Any Attempt of Outside Governments to Oppose Destiny of Little Republic We Would Regard as an Unfriendly Act."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Roosevelt's message transmitting to the senate the new Dominican protocol of an agreement providing for the collection and disbursement by the United States of the customs revenues of Santo Domingo for the adjustment of all the obligations of that government has been made public by order of the senate in executive session. The document includes the new agreement as well as the original protocol and award of the commission of arbitration for the settlement of the claims of the Santo Domingo Improvement company, under which agents of the United States are already collecting the revenues at certain of the ports of the Dominican government.

Few documents that have gone to the senate in relation to any of the south or central American or West India republics have attracted so much attention. Because of the controversy that has arisen as to the right of the executive to enter into treaty arrangements with any foreign government without the advice and consent of the senate extraordinary interest has been aroused. The message of the president outlined the policy of the administration in relation to the Monroe doctrine, holding that it demanded that this government take charge of the customs of American states when it is manifest that they are unable to maintain their own integrity.

In addition to the president's discussion of the Monroe doctrine in the case of Santo Domingo, the protocol itself makes a specific declaration of its application and in that respect is unusual in treaty making. The declaration occurs in the second paragraph, which recites that the government of the United States views "any attempt on the part of governments outside of this hemisphere to oppress the destiny of the Dominican republic as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States." The message in part says:

"The conditions in the republic of Santo Domingo have been growing steadily worse for years. There have been many disturbances and revolutions, and debts have been contracted beyond the power of the republic to pay. Some of these debts were properly contracted and are held by those who have a legitimate right to their money. Others are without question improper or exorbitant, constituting claims which should be paid in full and perhaps only to the extent of a very small portion of their nominal value.

"It has for some time been obvious that those who profit by the Monroe doctrine must accept certain responsibilities along with the rights which it confers and that the same statement applies to those who uphold the doctrine. It cannot be too often and too emphatically asserted that the United States has not the slightest desire for territorial aggrandizement at the expense of any of its southern neighbors and will not treat the Monroe doctrine as an excuse for such aggrandizement on its part.

"The Dominican debt owed to European creditors is about $22,000,000, and of this sum over $18,000,000 is more or less formally recognized. The representatives of European governments have several times approached the secretary of state setting forth the wrongs and intolerable delays to which they have been subjected at the hands of the successive governments of Santo Domingo in the collection of their just claims and intimating that unless the Dominican government should receive assistance from the United States in the way of regulating its finances the creditor governments in Europe would be forced to resort to more effective measures of compulsion to secure the satisfaction of their claims.

"If the United States government declines to take action and other foreign governments resort to action to secure payment of their claims the latter would be entitled, according to the decision of The Hague tribunal in the Venezuelan cases, to the preferential payment of their claims, and this would absorb all the Dominican revenues and would be a virtual sacrifice of American claims and interests in the island.

"Under the accepted law of nations foreign governments are within their right, if they choose to exercise it, when they actively intervene in support of the contractual claims of their subjects. They sometimes exercise this power, and on account of commercial rivalries there is a growing tendency on the part of other governments more and more to aid diplomatically in the enforcement of the claims of their subjects. In view of the dilemma in which the government of the United States is thus placed, it must either adhere to its usual attitude of nonintervention in such cases—an attitude proper under normal conditions, but one which in this particular kind of case results to the disadvantage of its citizens in comparison with those of other states—or else it must, in order to be consistent with its policy, actively intervene to protect the contracts and concessions of its citizens engaged in agriculture, commerce and transportation in competition with the subjects and citizens of other states.

"We can point with just pride to what we have done in Cuba as a guarantee of our good faith. We stayed in Cuba only so long as to start her aright on the road to self government, which she has since trod with such marked and distinguished success, and upon leaving the island we exacted no conditions save such as would prevent her from ever becoming the prey of the stranger. Our purpose in Santo Domingo is as beneficent. The good that this country got from its action in Cuba was indirect rather than direct. So it is as regards Santo Domingo. The chief material advantage that will come from the action proposed to be taken will be to Santo Domingo itself and to Santo Domingo's creditors. The advantage that will come to the United States will be indirect, but nevertheless great, for it is supremely to our interest that all the communities immediately south of us should be or become prosperous and stable and therefore not merely in name but in fact independent and self governing.

"I call attention to the urgent need of prompt action on this matter. We now have a great opportunity to secure peace and stability in the island without friction or bloodshed by acting in accordance with the cordial invitation of the governmental authorities themselves. It will be unfortunate from every standpoint if we fail to grasp this opportunity, for such failure will probably mean increasing revolutionary violence in Santo Domingo and very possibly embarrassing foreign complications in addition. This protocol affords a practical test of the efficiency of the United States government in maintaining the Monroe doctrine."

CZAR IN COUNCIL.

Gorky and Annensky Charged With Promoting Revolution.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 17.—Emperor Nicholas presided over a council in the Imperial palace at Tsarsko-Selo. All the ministers, including M. Witte, had been summoned for the purpose of discussing the advisability of transforming the present unofficial council of ministers, which is called at irregular intervals by the emperor, into a cohesive cabinet, meeting regularly, as an advisory and responsible body under the presidency of the emperor or the minister-president.

Membership in a secret organization formed in 1903 to incite strikes and promote revolution is one of the charges brought against M. Annensky, editor of Russian Wealth, and also probably involving Maxim Gorky and the other members of the delegation who were arrested with Gorky and Annensky.

M. Annensky, whose five terms in the fortress under arrest have made the interior of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul thoroughly familiar to him, said yesterday that he had also been required to plead to the charge of formulating antigovernmental proclamations, the penalty for which offense is banishment for life to Siberia, but that no proof was offered of either charge. M. Annensky said the prosecutor showed him the draft of an address to the people alleged to be in the handwriting of Maxim Gorky and alterations in another hand alleged to be Annensky's. Annensky declared that he could not identify the document or the handwriting.

Only four of the original delegation remain in custody. One of these is the workman Kuzin, who for a long time escaped arrest because his identity could not be ascertained by the police, but the authorities continue to make occasional arrests of others in connection with this matter. Those who have been released are still under charges.

Oscilla House Up In Smoke.

CRYSTAL, Fla., Feb. 17.—The old Oscilla house at Homosassa went up in smoke. It has been run by Major Meeker for several years and was full of tourists when the fire occurred. All the male guests were away at the time, fishing and hunting, and consequently lost their trunks and other belongings. One guest lost about $900. Major Meeker lost all of his furniture and household effects.

Farmer Charged With Double Murder

SHINER, Tex., Feb. 17. — Joseph Stefka, a young farmer, has been arrested here charged with the murder of his wife and child. Stefka himself brought to town the news of the tragedy, saying that on returning home from work he found the bodies of the woman and child, both badly mutilated. He was closely questioned and was taken into custody charged with the murders.

Asquith's Amendment Defeated.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The majority of sixty-three by which Mr. Asquith's amendment to the reply to the speech from the throne was rejected by the house of commons is regarded as giving the government the first move in the political game and as finally disposing of any present prospect of dissolution of parliament.

Fireman Killed In Train Wreck.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 17.—Fireman Rollins was killed and three other persons were injured in the overturning of three cars of a Missouri Pacific passenger train near Avoca. Engineer Dean of Auburn, Neb., was seriously hurt. The wreck was caused by a broken rail.

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FASHION HINTS.

Shirt Waist Material—Handsome Lace Collars—Moire Poplin.

The new madras shirt waist material is as handsome as satin and looks like an exquisitely fine piece of table linen. Stripes will take the place of the dotted designs of last year in linens.

A handsome deep lace collar is an indispensable possession for the girl with a limited wardrobe. An attractive collar is made of lace beading between which white chiffon is shirred in puffings. Over the shoulders the collar runs into a point to give a becoming width to the shoulders. Two tab fronts are made by lace motifs, and the whole collar is outlined with a deep chiffon ruffle with a ruched edge. A high collar may be added if desired, but the collar described is finished at the neck by a velvet ribbon tied in bowknots every few inches. Two of these knots down the front serve as fastenings.

OUTING HAT.

Moire poplin comes in thin spring weight and makes most charming afternoon costumes. The new voiles are softer and more silky than the manufacturers have ever produced.

Jaunty little short coats made with slightly full short basques promise a successful vogue.

The smart outing hat illustrated is one of the season's advanced models. It comes in all the modish colors and is simply trimmed with a band of velvet and a chou of the same material.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

ATTRACTIVE TRIFLES.

Cloth Embroidery Is the Vogue. Flower Motif Trimmings.

Cloth embroidery will be used next spring, and, as usual, the checked frock will put in its annual appearance.

White homespun trimmed with black makes a stunning costume for a luncheon party. The skirt, of course, will clear the ground, be cut fairly plain and have a slight fullness at the waist. From the knees are three flat tucks braided with thick cream braid with a suggestion of black in it. The coat, with its small sleeve and pelerine shaped collar, has a thickly braided vest and deep cuffs of black and white braid. A well cut pointed band of white kid finishes the coat at the waist, from which comes a tiny fluted basque cut away in front. A lingerie shirt waist is worn with the gown. Surmounting the whole is a three cornered black straw hat trimmed with cockades of black and white braid.

BRODERIE ANGLAISE DRESS.

Motifs of flowers are a very pretty gown trimming. A pansy or violet motif is a lovely scheme for a flower adornment on a waist. Purple velvet is cut in the shape of the blossom selected. The leaves toning on the same color are applied to the flowers. In the middle of each pansy or violet is sewed a bead to look like a jewel. The petals are worked with long silk stitches.

Broderie anglaise makes the charming evening frock illustrated. Three flounces of this handsome embroidery form the lower part of the skirt, the upper portion being made of the all over lace. The bodice is simply designed. A fall of the broderie anglaise over a chiffon ruffle softens the decollete neck. The sleeves are short puffs.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"Mr. Meigs, I have given you your opportunity, and you have seemed to give me mine," he said, coolly. "Will you pardon me if I say that I can paddle my own canoe—if I ask you to assure his Excellency that one more device of his to escape punishment has been tried and found wanting?"

For a fitting moment the cast-iron smile faded from the impassive face of the attorney general and an unrelenting devil came to peer out of the colorless eyes. Then Meigs rose catlike and laid his hand on the doorknob.

"Do I understand that you refuse to move in a matter which should be the first duty of a good citizen, Mr. Kent?" he asked, purringly.

"I certainly do refuse to fall into any such clumsy trap as you have been trying to bait for me, Mr. Meigs," said David Kent, dropping back into his former curtness.

The door opened slowly under the impulse of the slender womanish hand.

"You have a task of some magnitude before you, Mr. Kent. You can scarcely hope to accomplish it alone."

The door closed softly behind the retreating figure of the attorney general, and Kent released the spring of the night-latch. Then he went to the dropped portiere at the farther end of the room, drew it aside and looked in on a man who was writing at a table pushed out between the windows.

"You heard him, Loring?" he asked.

The ex-manager nodded.

"They are hard pressed," he said. Then, looking up quickly: "You could name your price if you wanted to close out the stock of goods in hand, David."

It was in the afternoon of the same day that Kent found a note in his key-box at the Clardendon asking him to call up 124 Tejon avenue by telephone. He did it at once, and Penelope answered. The key-box note had been placed at Elinor's request, and she, Miss Penelope, could not say what was wanted; neither could she say definitely when her sister would be in. Elinor had gone out an hour earlier with Mr. Ormsby and Miss Van Brock in Mr. Ormsby's motor-car. When was he, Daivd Kent, coming up? Did he know they were talking of spending the remainder of the summer at Breezeland inn? And where was Mr. Loring all this time?

Kent made fitting answers to all these queries, hung up the ear-piece and went away moodily reflective. He was due at a meeting of the executive committee of the Civic league, but he let the public business wait while he speculated upon the probable object of Elinor's telephoning him.

Now there is no field in which the inconsistency of human nature is so persistent as in that which is bounded by the sentimentally narrowed horizon of a man in love. With Ormsby at the nodus of his point of view, David Kent made no secret of his open rivalry of the millionaire, declaring his intention boldly and taking no shame therefor. But when he faced about toward Elinor he found himself growing hotly jealous for her good faith; careful and fearful lest she should say or do something not strictly in accordance with the letter and spirit of her obligations as Ormsby's fiancee.

For this cause he had been postponing the promised visit, and thereby postponing the taking of the final step in the campaign of intimidation. The unexplained telephone call decided him, however. He would go and see Elinor and have the ordeal over with.

But as a preliminary he dined that evening with Ormsby at the Camelot club, and over the coffee had it out with him.

"I am going out to see Miss Brentwood to-night," he announced abruptly. "Have you any objection?"

The millionaire gave him the shrewdest of overlooks, ending with a deep-rumbling laugh.

"Kent, you are the queerest lot I have ever discovered, and that is saying a good bit. Why, in the name of all the properties, should I object?"

"Your right is unchallenged," Kent admitted.

"Is it? Better ask Miss Brentwood about that. She might say it isn't."

"I don't understand," said Kent, dry-tongued.

"Don't you? Perhaps I'd better explain: she might find it a little difficult. You have been laboring under the impression that we are engaged, haven't you?"

"Laboring under the—why, good heavens, man! it's in everybody's mouth!"

"Curious, isn't it, how such things get about," commented the player of long suits. "How do you suppose they get started?"

"I don't suppose anything about it, so far as we two are concerned; I have your own word for it. You said you were the man in possession."

Ormsby laughed again.

"You are something of a bluffer yourself, David. Did you let my little stagger scare you out?"

David Kent pushed his chair back from the table and nailed Ormsby with a look that would have made a younger man betray himself.

"Do you mean to tell me that there is no engagement between you and Miss Brentwood?"

"Just that." Ormsby put all the nonchalance he could muster into the laconic reply, but he was anticipating the sequent demand which came like a shot out of a gun.

"And there never has been?"

Ormsby grinned.

"When you are digging a well and have found your stream of water, it's folly to go deeper, David. Can't you let 'good enough' alone?"

Kent turned it over in his mind, frowning thoughtfully into his coffee-cup. When he spoke it was out of the mid-heart of manliness.

"I wish you would tell me one thing, Ormsby. Am I responsible for—for the present state of affairs?"

Ormsby stretched the truth a little; partly for Elinor's sake; more, perhaps, for Kent's.

"You have done nothing that an honorable rival—and incidentally a good friend of mine—might not do. Therefore you are not responsible."

"That is putting it very diplomatically," Kent mused. "I am afraid it does not exonerate me wholly."

"Yes, it does. But it doesn't put me out of the running, you understand. I'm 'forninst' you yet; rather more stubbornly than before, I fancy."

Kent nodded.

"That, of course; I should think less of you if you were not. And you shall have as fair a show as you are giving me—which is saying a lot. Shall we go and smoke?"

CHAPTER XXI.

A BORRQWED CONSCIENCE.

The conversation on the Brentwood porch was chiefly of Breezeland inn as a health and pleasure resort, until an outbound electric car stopped at the corner below and Loring came up to make a quartet of the trio behind the vine-covered trellis.

Later, the ex-manager confessed to a desire for music—Penelope's music—and the twain went into the sitting-room and the piano, leaving Elinor and Kent to make the best of each other as the spirit moved them.

It was Elinor's chance for free speech with Kent—the opportunity she had craved. But now it was come, the simplicity of the thing to be said had departed and an embarrassing complexity had taken its place.

"What is the matter with us this evening?" he queried. "We have been sitting here talking the vaguest trivialities ever since Penelope and Loring side-tracked us. I haven't been doing anything I am ashamed of; have you?"

"Yes," she confessed, looking away from him.

"What is it?"

"I asked a certain good friend of mine to come to see me when there is good reason to believe he didn't want to come."

"What makes you think he didn't want to come?"

"Why—I don't know; did he?" She had turned upon him swiftly with an outflash of the playful daring which had been one of his major fetterings in time past—the ecstatic charm that goes with quick repartee and instant and sympathetic apprehension.

"You have never yet asked anything of him that he wasn't glad enough to give," he rejoined, keeping up the third person figurative.

"Is that saying very much—or very little?"

"Very little, indeed. But it is only your askings that have been lacking—not his good will."

"That was said like the David Kent I used to know. Are you really quite the same?"

"I hope not," he protested gravely. "People used to say that I matured late, and year by year as I look back I can see that it was a true saying. I have done some desperately boyish things since I was a man grown; things that make me tingle when I recall them."

"Like wasting a whole summer exploring Mount Croydon with a—a somebody who did not mature late?"

"No; I wasn't counting that among my lapses. An older man than I ever hope to be might find excuses for the Croydon summer. I meant in other ways. For one thing I have craved success as I think few men have ever craved it; and yet my plowings in that field have been ill-timed and boyish to a degree."

She shook her head.

"I don't know how you measure success; it is a word of so many, many meanings. But I think you are your own severest critic."

"That may be; but the fact remains. It is only within the past few months that I have begun to get a true inkling of things; to know, for example, that opportunities are to be compelled—not waited for."

She was looking away from him again.

"I am not sure that I like you better for your having discovered yourself. I liked the other David Kent."

Section 1. That said ordinance be amended by adding thereto a new section as follows, to wit:

Section 27. That in order to enable the Common Council more effectively to regulate the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors within said city as they deem most conducive to the public good, the place in which any applicant for license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, or for license to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors, under any of the preceding sections of this ordinance proposes to carry on his business under such license, is hereby required to be accurately set forth in the application for such license, and to be within the territory comprised within the following boundary lines, to wit:

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Woolston has decided to engage Merity as umpire for the coming season. His work last year was entirely satisfactory.

Somerville fans are beginning to talk baseball. No doubt the team will have a team to represent the town, and if it comes to Plainfield doing the season, Manager Woolston will be perpared to do the killing.

Captain Driscoll, of the new Plainfield team, says that if the aggregation does not clean up Westfield he will feel like retiring from the game. He thinks that this series will be just like eating pie for Plainfield.

Charlie Denman is foxy. He must have had a dream regarding Plainfield's lineup, for he recently affirmed his declaration not to manage the Westfield team this season, but added that he would be president of the association. If Westfield loses to Plainfield he can say: "While I was manager our team always won."

BASKET BALL.

Just at present the only basketball team which appears to be in any degree active is the Y. M. C. A. Business Men. The scholastic teams have suspended operations, and the Y. M. C. A. have not had a home game recently. They expect to play at Orange on Saturday, while on Monday night, the Business Men and the Rahway teams will have the floor to themselves. Between preparations on the part of the Y. M. C. A. first team for the costume entertainment, and exertions on the part of the intermediates for the coming inter-scholastic athletic meet, basketball has taken a back seat of late. It will be resumed however, when these other attractions have taken place, and there will probably be several more games with representatives from other associations. At least six more games await the Business Men.

AMUSEMENTS.

Majestic Theatre. Says The Sun: "No doubt the snow will outlast the present season." The Press: "'Buster Brown' is just the sort of entertainment in which Young America revels, and his elders delight." The World: "'Tige,' the dog, is a prize winner; no ordinary mongrel 'purp' is 'Buster Brown's' at the Majestic." The Times: "It is an entertainment that is certain to appeal to the children and 'Tige' is warranted to cure a chronic case of blues." The Herald: "'Buster' and 'Tige' are stage winners. Cartoon comedy founded on the Herald's comic creation, scores a hit. Audience greatly amused by pranks of boy and his canine friend at the Majestic—Good dog to the fore."

The Hudson Theatre. The Herald describes "Strongheart" is "a good and strong American play," and Mr. Edeson's portrayal as "a remarkable bit of acting." "'Strongheart' a popular success," says The Times, and the Morning Telegram waxes enthusiastic in the following terms: "Mr. Edeson's Indian is a masterpiece—'Strongheart' a triumph for actor, playwright and producer—a mid-winter success to talk of and gloat over—American to the core—William C. DeMille and Robert Edeson are to be congratulated—they are responsible for something new under the theatrical sun." The Press is equally laudatory and refers to "Strongheart" as "altogether the most interesting play this season has disclosed—Edeson as an Indian plays the part to the life." The Evening World concludes its warm commendation with the lines "just the thing to make you feel life is worth living."

Commissioners of Deeds.

The following Commissioners of Deeds have been appointed for Somerset county: Bernards, Peter Layton; Bound Brook, David Hastings; Bridgewater, Charles Kissonak, Frank Schell, Matthew P. Lane, Wm. H. Taylor; Franklin, Peter Koehler; Montgomery, Abraham S. Hageman; North Plainfield, Harvey R. Linbarger, G. J. L. McNabb; Rocky Hill, Benj. F. Teeple, John V. Z. Griggs, John C. Casper.

—Neuman Brothers have a nice lot of fancy Indian River and Tangierine oranges just in. The prices are surprisingly low.

LINCOLN RESIDENT KILLED BY EXPRESS

JAMES C. SEBRING MEETS DEATH ON NEW JERSEY CENTRAL TRACKS.

While picking coal on the New Jersey Central tracks just west of Dunellen early last evening, James C. Sebring, who resided at Lincoln, was struck by a train and instantly killed. He stepped directly in front of an eastbound express and his body was hurled fifty fees away. The Dunellen authorities were notified by the train crew and the remains were taken to Runyon's undertaking establishment.

Sebring was in his forty-ninth year and had always resided in Dunellen and the vicinity but was well known in this city. Of late he had made his home with Charles Vail, of Lincoln. He was unmarried but leaves several relatives.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION.

Election a Farce.

The Republicans of Union County went through the farce of having a special election, at great cost to the county, last week. The Democrats made no nomination. Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, received 1250 votes—about 7 per cent. of the vote cast last fall. In Plainfield only 176 persons took the trouble to vote. The expense to the taxpayers will probably reach $10,000, or an average of about $7 per vote.—Somerset Messenger.

Not a Joke.

There are some people who show their ignorance by thinking it is a huge joke to give a newspaper reporter a false account of some affair, "just to have some fun." Perhaps these alleged "jokers" are not aware that the giving of false reports to newspapers is punishable by law and unless the practice here is stopped at once, the "joke" will not be so funny. A newspaper, no matter whether published in the smallest villages or in the great cities, is published to give the news. This is a serious matter and is not to be treated lightly. A reporter cannot be everywhere at once and must in many instances depend upon the statements of other people. If a person does not want to make a statement he can say so in the same courteous way in which the request is made and the reporter will seek elsewhere but to deliberately fix up some "fake" story which is not only mortifying to the newspaper which publishes it, but extremely annoying to those it involves and tell it to a reporter in all seriousness is a low piece of business and the person guilty of such a trick should be punished to the full extent of the law.—Perth Amboy News.

POLITICAL CHAT.

Preparations are being made by the Democratic members of the Legislature for a concentration of their side of the equal taxation fight. No tax bills were introduced by the minority this week because of the desire to get the battle line laid in a manner to insure the best results.

Governor Stokes has selected the staff which will attend him at the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt at Washington on March 4. The staff includes Lieutenant Colonel Lewis T. Bryant, Lieutenant Colonel Charles H. Parker, Major D. Stewart Craven, Lieutenant Everitt Colby and Lieutenant Walter K. Edge. Colonel Frelinghuysen, the Governor's aide-de-camp, will also accompany the executive. Headquarters for Governor Stokes and his staff have been secured at the Hotel Arlington. A suite of rooms has been obtained upon the second floor of the hotel, and any Jerseyman who may be in Washington during the inaugural ceremonies may call upon and be received by the Governor. On Friday, March 3, the Governor's party will leave Trenton. Battery B, of Camden, will participate in the inaugural parade with the other troops of this State.

Golden Wedding Guests.

Among the guests at the golden wedding anniversary of Gen. and Mrs. O. O. Howard, held Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Hotel Buckingham, New York, were Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Howard, of this place. Mr. Howard is a nephew of the General.

MRS. CAMPBELL SOUGHT YOUNG HERO'S GRAVE

ASKED WAR DEPT'S AID IN LOCATING BURIAL PLACE.

A dispatch from Camden states that Mrs. Lillian C. Campbell, of 63 Grove street, has made application to the Camden Board of Health to remove the body of her father, Lieut. W. G. Bernard, so the story says, who was killed at the battle of Williamsburg, when nineteen years of age.

Mrs. Campbell said today that the person spoken of as her parent was a distant cousin, whose grave she merely desired to locate and she recently wrote to the War Department for the information.

The remains rest in Evergreen cemetery, Camden. When the body was brought from Williamsburg it was given a public funeral in the court house, Lieut. Bernard being the first Camdenite killed in the war.

CHRISTIANS IN SOCIETY.

Bishop Vincent Tells Methodists That They Shouldn't Dine by Themselves.

"Let Christians go into society and become its leaders," was the suggestion made by Bishop John H. Vincent, of the Methodist Episcopal church, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, of this city, who is conducing a "Seven Days Study of Church Life," in Baltimore.

"We can't afford to look ourselves up and dine continually with the saints," said he in his lecture yesterday.

R. M. SHEPARD TO WED.

Society Man's Engagement is Announced Today.

Mr. and Mrs. James Murray Kay, of Brookline, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Winifred Prentiss Kay, to Rutherford Mead Shepard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood. Mr. Shepard is a nephew of the late Elliott F. Shepard and is a prominent member of the New York and Philadelphia society.

He is a member of the Plainfield Country Club and is connected with the Philadelphia offices of the American Bank Note Company.

Military Euchre Enjoyable.

There were 200 guests at the military euchre given at the Park Club, last night. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Miller won the greatest number of flags, fourteen. Other prize-winners were Charles Lyman, Charles Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Gaston, Mr. Underhill and Miss Voorhees. After the play refreshments were served, during which time the orchestr discoursed lively airs.

Beef Companies Restore Deliveries.

The local beef companies, which about a year ago abolished their delivery rigs and had purchasers remove supplies from the houses by John E. Keely, have returned to the old method. Hereafter the concerns will deliver meat with their own wagons, this method having been found more satisfactory.

Card Party Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff, of Westervelt avenue, entertained the Thursday Night Whist Club on Wednesday night, this week, owing to the inability of some of the members to attend on the regular night. After the play refreshments were served.

Walter Corteil Dead.

Walter Corteil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Corteil, of Manning avenue, died in Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday. He was 33 years old and was a painter. A widow and five children survive him.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. Mary M. Morse, of Jackson avenue, announces the engagement of her youngest daughter, Agnes P. Morse, to Edward Mosher, of Middletown, N. Y., formerly of Plainfield.

Mrs. Catherine Howard, of Central avenue, entertained the Mizpah Sewing Circle, last night. Phonograph selections were rendered by Mrs. Carrie Clark and refreshments were served.

The Young People's Association will hold its regular meeting at the First Baptist church tonight.

PLAINFIELDERS TAKING PART IN SESSIONS AT TRENTON.

Among well known Plainfielders who are to take part at the fourth annual meeting of the New Jersey State Conference of Charities, which opened last night at Trenton, was Hugh F. Fox, the president of the State Board of Children's Guardians, who made the response to Mayor Katzenbach's address of welcome, will also take part in the discussion on care and protection of children and on dependents; Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, who has a paper on "Summer Charities for Children;" Dr. Grossmann, of the Grossmann School, for atypical and nervous children, will discuss the "Care of Defectives."

APPOINTEE OFFICERS HOLD OVER

Terms of All of North Plainfield's Officials Are Extended Nine Months.

MANY ARE AFFECTED

Collector, Assessor, Freeholder, Chief Marshal, Clerk, Fire Chief and Others Share With Mayor and Councilmen Longer Terms.

In an interview with a Daily Press representative today, Mayor Newton B. Smalley declared that the abolition of the spring election means the continuance of all borough officials in their respective places for another nine months after their original terms expire. This, he said, includes appointive as well as elective officers and there will be no changes unless the incumbents themselves decline to serve. The borough freeholder, collector and assessor will have nine months added to their terms.

The offices of borough physician, recorder, clerk, chief of the fire department and chief marshal are all appointive and these are to go over until January. It is possible that Chief Woolston, of the fire department, will formally present his resignation at the next Council meeting, as he had previously stated that he would not accept re-appointment in the event of the anti-spring election bill not passing. He had been pressed to remain at the head of the department but remained firm and now his only alternative is to resign. It is said that two other appointive officers are desirous of retiring but as yet they have made no open declaration.

Recorder Thomas Doud, Borough Clerk Frank Rowley, Chief Marshal George Weiss and Chief of the Fire Department Howard Woolston are the principal appointee officers whose terms are extended until January next, and Collector George Brown, Assessor J. H. Cooley and Freeholder John Emmons are the chief elective officers whose terms are extended nine months. All three were elected last spring for three year terms.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL WORK

Exhibition of Pupils' Accomplishments Attracts Many.

EXERCISES ARE HELD

Teachers Explain the Work to Parents and Friends—Miss Hartridge Makes An Address.

The Hartridge School gave an exhibition of the work of the children in the elementary department yesterday afternoon at the elementary building, 303 East Seventh street. The attendance was unusually large. At 3 o'clock Miss Hartridge welcomed the guests with a short address. The children then showed some of the work they had done in calisthenics by short drills under the direction of Miss Jessie Mygatt, physical instructor. They also sang. The children in the first and second grades sang two short song and those of the other grades also sang and did some excellent sight reading. Mrs. Lillian Andrews, the singing teacher, had this music in charge.

The guests were then invited to go to the various different class rooms and inspect the written work the children had done throughout the year. The work of the kindergarten was under the direction of Miss Burt and Miss Crampton; that of the first grade under Miss Tompkins, teacher, and that of the second grade under the direction of Miss Tennant. Miss Brower's third grade exhibited some excellent work. The clay modelling in this class was particularly interesting.

I will be on deck on March 4 to start south on the spring training trip, and I hope to be able to make even a better showing this season than I have any time since I have been with the New Yorks. I have spent an enjoyable winter and am in the best of health. My spirits are even better, as I feel proud of being one of the members of the champion Giants, and will do my share to again land the pennant." Mathewson's signed contract has not been received, but his acceptance of the club's terms means that "Matty" will sign soon.

Averts Impending Calamity.

The people of North Plainfield must be exceedingly grateful for the passage of the anti-spring election bill. It will extend the term of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, and will prevent the calamity that has impended ever since he announced his determination not to run for office again. Perhaps by next fall he can be persuaded to change his mind.—Newark News.

REV. DR. LEWIS' LECTURE

Delivers Instructive Address on World's Great Religions.

EXHAUSTIVE REVIEW

Story of the History of Worship Told at Seventh-Day Baptist Church—Of Absorbing Interest.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, delivered an instructive address on "The Great Religions of the World" at the Seventh-Day Baptist church last night. He said in part:

"Religion is an universal fact in human experience. It appears in the earliest stages of barbarism, and continues in some form with increasing prominence through each stage of development. The facts which underlie it are as real, and far more forceful than any facts connected with the material universe.

"There are three representative forms of religion. First, that of a tribe or family. This sometimes continues for a long time, where the development toward higher civilization is slow. Ethnic religions come next, that is, a given nation will develop a given type of religion. It is supposed to belong to the members of that nation alone. The greater number of the religions of the world are of this character. For example, the religion of the Hindoos is Brahmanism. That of the Persians is Zoroastvianism. The Egyptians have a complex national religion. The Hellenic tribes, or Grecians, developed a distinct type; the Latin races another type, the original form of which appears in Roman Paganism. The great Teutonic group had a distinct type which appears in all northern Europe, while the Celtic group developed the religion of Druidism. The three Catholic, that is, universal religions, that is neither ethic nor trival, are Judaism, Mohammedism and Christianity.

"The lowest form of religion is called Animism. It is founded upon a belief in spiritual existences, outside of material things. Usually, these spiritual beings are malevolent. The second great type of religion is Polytheism, that is, a belief in many gods. This comes largely through the deifying of natural forces, natural phenomena, etc. Next in order is Pantheism. This identifies the universe and the Creator by saying that all things constitute God and that God constitutes all things. Highest in the list stands Monotheism, the belief in one God, the Supreme and only Creator, Who is above all and in all and through all.

"What is morally right, that is, the ethical question, does not appear in the lower forms of religion to any great extent. It is, however, a prominent feature of Monotheism. Nevertheless, the idea of right and wrong inheres in all forms of religion, but with great indistinctness in the lower forms.

"Certain great truths appear in all forms of religion. These are the belief in God, in the future life, in rewards and punishments, due to obedience or disobedience of God's requirements. Under Monotheism, we have added the duties which men owe to each other, growing out of their relations as children of a common Father.

"Judaism with its sacred book, the Old Testament, represents the highest development of Monotheistic thought in ancient time. It also embodies the highest ethical conceptions, and sets the highest standards of action, in all things pertinent to right and wrong. Christianity, centering in the person of Christ, is the highest expression of Judaism freed from its local and national characteristics. It rests on the ethical and moral basis of Judaism. While certain forms of civilization reached a higher stage under the ancient national religions, Christianity has been peculiarly the religion of the highest civilization. This is due to its ethical teachings, as embodied in the Ten Commandments, and in their interpretation by Christ.

"Christianity is represented by three great divisions, the Roman Catholic, the Greek Catholic and the Protestant. Roman Catholicism and Protestantism represent the more active form of missionary work in the history of religions. On the better side the missionary spirit in these religions springs from the teachings of Christ, which set forth that Christianity is the religion for all men, and that it must be taught to all nations. Probably the strongest element in the mission of the Roman Catholic church comes from the old Roman idea of world empire. The genius of Rome sought to control the world. That

REJECTED DEED OF SALE, NOW FACE DAMAGE SUIT

J. W. BENNER BRINGS SUIT AGAINST MESSRS. STEIRER AND DIMOND.

Suing for the sum of the penalty fixed as liquidated damages, John W. Benner, of this city, has instituted proceedings against Tube Dimond, of Perth Amboy, and Joseph Steirer, of this city, the case to be tried at the next term of the Supreme Court. The sum of the penalty fixed in case of default in carrying out the terms of the contract, is $250, which was agreed upon when the terms of the purchase of the plaintiff's property on South avenue, were made.

The defendants made a contract for purchase, and the title was to be passed immediately after a search of the property. Though several appointments were made, the defendants failed to appear, and when the parties finally met at Attorney VonMinden's office, the defendants refused to accept the deed tendered by Mr. Benner.

Shortly after, Mr. Benner secured William Newcorn as his counsel, and instituted the suit for $500. The case will be tried at the May term of the court.

PERSEVERANCE MEMBERS PRESENT "IRISH JUSTICE"

LARGE GATHERING OF PYTHIANS AND FRIENDS ENJOY THE PRODUCTION.

The laughable farce comedy sketch, "Irish Justice," which is frequently seen on the professional stage, was ably presented by members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., before a large gathering of Pythians and their friends last night. The parts were all well taken and because of the many funny situations following a make-shift judge presiding over a police court, the laughter was continuous from beginning to end.

The differens characters were as follows: "Judge," William N. Runyon; "prosecutor," Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.; "Lawyer Bum," V. W. Nash, Jr.; "court officer," William Soberb; "prisoners," William Baker, Elmer D. Cutting, William Soberb, Jr., Harry Keen, T. Muir and Bertram C. Firstbrook. Various specialities were introduced as the farce progressed and at its close piano and vocal selections were given by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., William N. Runyon, Thomas M. Muir and Bertram Firstbrook. A smoker was enjoyed during the rendition.

The committee which had the affair in charge consisted of William Soberb, David Bowden, Philip Jahn and Elmer D. Cutting.

NO TRIP FOR COMPANY K

Refused Permission to Attend the Inauguration.

ALL PLANS WERE MADE

Soldier Boys Much Disappointed—Had Intended to Pay Their Own Expenses.

Officially notified by Major-General Wanser that under the circumstances they would not be permitted to attend the presidential inauguration at Washington next month, as a military organization, the members of Company K are today at a loss to understand the action of the State military board. They had planned to make the trip at their own expense and were not prepared for the refusal as it has never been done before. The notice, which came to Captain Martin last night, practically sets aside all their arrangements though they may go anyway as civilians. Five other companies in differens parts of the State have been similarly affected and it is understood they have abandoned their plans.

Permission to leave the State under arms has always been granted the militia companies by the Governor and Company K applied regularly to Governor Stokes after his inauguration, for the privilege of going to Washington. Captain Martin also wrote to the Capitol City and secured quarters for his men and a place in line in the inaugural parade. The application was referred by the Governor to the military board, which emphatically refused to grant the request on the ground that it did not want any of the New Jersey militia in Washington any longer than just to parade. If the companies were allowed to go, the board said, it would mean that they would want to remain a day or two at least.

The ruling was a great disappointment to the local company as the boys had been working unusually hard to secure the needed money and had been looking forward with great expectancy to the trip. The only New Jersey organization to be in the parade will be the First Regiment, of Newark, the State having appropriated $18,000 to bear the expense. The men will leave Newark Friday night, parade Saturday and start back home as soon as they have had supper.

It is said the board would permit them to go on condition that they would be attached to a Newark regiment and would be under military discipline all the time they are at Washington.

CONFESSES TO ROBBING THE MAIL

Letter Carrier Frank Clarkson Under Arrest Admits Rifling Letters.

NOT FIRST OFFENSE

Signature for Receipt of Registered Letter Declared a Forgery—To be Taken Before U. S. Commissioner.

Formally accused by Dr. George W. Endicott and Miss Margaret Cramer, Frank Clarkson, a letter carrier attached to the local postoffice, was arrested by Chief Kiely yesterday afternoon on a charge of abstracting money from letters entrusted to him. He had previously acknowledged his guilt to Postmaster Bird and when placed in a cell at police headquarters admitted that his pilfering had not been confined to the particular instance that led to his being taken in custody. The federal authorities were notified and today Inspector Robert Cortelyou spent several hours going over Clarkson's route in order to learn the aggregate amount stolen. The prisoner has made a partial statement and said that he would make another more complete later, throwing himself on the mercy of the government. He will be taken to Jersey City this afternoon and appear before Commissioner Rowe.

The specific amount of which Clarkson is accused of taking is $15. It was placed in a registered letter by Miss Susan Rafferty, of Willow avenue, and sent to Dr. Endicott's office, which is on Clarkson's route. The letter was never delivered and when Dr. Endicott complained to Postmaster Bird, Clarkson's registry book was examined. It showed that Miss Margaret Cramer, who is a trained nurse attached to Dr. Endicott's office, has signed for the letter. She was shown the signature and at once declared it to be a forgery.

Clarkson was brought before his accusers yesterday morning and without any hesitancy admitted that it was he who had signed Miss Cramer's name and kept the letter. The formal charge was then preferred and after removing his uniform he was placed in a cell. It was said today that on two previous occasions Clarkson was suspected of robbing the mails but had cleared himself.

The accused man is thirty years old and has been a carrier for there years. He resides on East Seventh street, is married and has one child. Plainfield has always been his home and he has a wide circle of friends, all of whom are at a loss to understands why he should have taken the money. His habits have been exemplary and though he belonged to one or two social organizations, he was not given much to going about.

The local postoffice had a similar case last summer when a special delivery messenger boy was detected after he had removed registered letters from the sorting tables and appropriated the contents.

FAVOR DUFFIELD BILL

'Plains People See Chance for Better Liquor Regulation.

EVIL CONDITION NOW

Home Power to Grant License is Given Township Committee As Bill Provides.

Assemblyman Duffield's bill proposing that the governing body of a village be given the right to grant all liquor licenses, has the hearty commendation of Scotch Plains residents because it will place the power with the Township Committee, where it was years ago. At the present time the licenses are granted by the Union County courts and the wishes of the majority of the village people have been frequently ignored when applications were being considered.

They believe that the committee can better treat with local conditions and also regulate the hours of closing as well as compelling the dealers to observe Sunday as it is done in Plainfield.

At the present time, Scotch Plains township has seventeen retail liquor places and a total of one to every 248 of its population, which includes women and children. During the recent crusade made by the Law and Order League, Rev. G. M. Shott showed by statistics that this proposition is greater than that of some of the most thickly settled portions on New York's East Side.

Every Sunday there are scores of visitors at Scotch Plains, most of them from Plainfield, and the anti-saloon element argues that once Assemblyman Duffield's bill becomes a law the influx will drop off and there will be less disorder in the village streets.

CODINGTON WINS POINT.

Bigamy Indictment Nolle Prossed. But Divorce Legality Still Pending.

The demurrer filed in behalf of James E. Codington, formerly of this city, in an action brought by Mrs. Emma F. Codington to test the validity of Codington's Nebraska divorce, has been sustained by the Chancery Court at Trenton.

The indictment found against Codington in the Somerset County Criminal Court some months ago for bigamy has been nolle prossed, and no further criminal action will be taken against him if the Chancery Court decides his Nebraska divorce is legal.

FUNERAL OF JOHN LONG.

Many Attend Ceremony Over Body of Dr. Long's Brother.

The Long homestead in Washington Valley was filled yesterday afternoon, when relatives and friends gathered while funeral services were held over the body of John B. Long. The officiating clergyman was Rev. H. D. Updyke, a retired minister, who was assisted by Rev. Mr. Walton, of the Methodist church at Mt. Horeb. Both spoke of the character of John Long, and of the many friends whom he has made during his life at Washington Valley.

The pall bearers were John Roberts, Jaremiah Codington, William Henry, Robert Thompson, George VanNest and Henry Wahl, all neighbors of Mr. Long. The body was brought to this city and placed in a vault at Hillside prior to interment in that cemetery.

Somerville Consents!

The bill introduced in the Legislature giving boroughs power to regulate the licensed places within their borders to suit themselves ought to solve the difficulties in North Plainfield. The borough Council, under such a law, could pass an ordinance compelling the saloons to close as early as they see fit and place such other restrictions about the business as they desire. The licensing power would still be vested in the county court. We believe that this would be a proper power for all boroughs and towns to have and think it should be extended to all the smaller municipalities as it is in the line of home rule. —Somerville Unionist Gazette.

F. H. Hadley to Speak.

The service will be especially interesting, a musical programme having been arranged particularly for the occasion. Miss Mildred Till, of the Rock Concert Company, will be the soloist, and the Sagamore Musical Club, whose popularity has won for them an excellent reputation, will furnish instrumental music.

Before presenting the insignia to the members of the athletic association, who have won it in football and basketball, Principal I. W. Travell, of the Plainfield High School, addressed the pupils on the subject "The Good and Bad Side of Athletics," yesterday morning. These pupils were awarded the privilege of wearing the P. H. S. insignia: Chester Briggs, Theodore Gavett, Malcolm Davis, Emil Jahn, Sydney Rockwell, Stuart Freeman, George Bentley and Martin Stutsman.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

J. J. Leahy, the Richmond street plumber, is ready at all times to do the best work at the lowest prices.

O. M. Dunham, of Park avenue conducts a first-class men's furnishing store and the quality of the goods is of the best. The prices will please you.

W. H. Kirch, the well known contracting carpenter, cheerfully furnishes estimates for any class of structure. Drop him a postal and he will call.

Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, are showing an attractive line of spring goods of exclusive design. An early inspection is desirable.

Mehrten's candy is fresh, well made, and delicious. A one, three or five pound box of Mehrten's candy makes an exceptable present. Always enjoyed, because always good.

Timbo, of North avenue, has the reputation of serving first-class meals or lunch at all hours of the day or night, and once you patronize this popular place you will become a steady customer.

If you want a carriage for any purpose at any time of the day or night, it can be procured at J. D. Frazer's Somerset livery by simply calling him on the 'phone. Careful drivers furnished also.

What is bought at Callahan & Son's is always first class in quality. Only such stock is handled at the Richmond street grocer's. All varieties of provisions and meats may be obtained from Callahan & Son.

After an illness with the grip there is nothing better than the celebrated Peruvian tonic sold by L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist. It will build up the system and give needed strength.

B. J. Schreiner, whose drug store is at Park avenue and Second street, is a graduate pharmacist and as such exercises personal supervision over his prescription department. Keep this constantly in mind.

No better attention can be given to your teeth than the services of Dr. D. G. Atwood, whose dental parlors are located on West Front street. He will give you the benefit of a free examination, and will treat your teeth according to the most approved and modern methods.

The special sales of the Boston Cloak and Fur Company still continue for the benefit of those who want a superior grade of clothes at a greatly reduced price. The best suitings, cloaks, and finest furs are all selling at remarkably low prices at the Boston store.

Why not have Powlison & Jones estimate on furnishing your home before incurring additional expense with a New York firm? They carry every line of furniture, and the Metropolitan dealers themselves admit that the quality of the goods is equal to any larger concern.

The market today is fairly flooded with brands of canned goods but the greater part of them are hardly worth purchasing. The fruits and vegetables are gathered without any attempt at selection and the packing is accomplished with quantity and not quality. The White Label brand of canned goods has been in the market for years because they have the superior qualities that recommend themselves to the people. Neuman Brothers are the sole agents and they place their own guarantee back of every can sold.

MRS. CHADWICK IN COURT.

Appeared In Court Cool and In Good Health—Repudiated Many Claims.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 18.—When the Chadwick bankruptcy hearing was called before Referee Remington, J. P. Dawley, counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, asked that the appointment of a trustee be postponed for one week. He said that at that time Mrs. Chadwick would be prepared to file a list of all her creditors, together with the amount of their claims. Mr. Dawley declared that without the co-operation of Mrs. Chadwick her creditors would receive little or nothing.

When the hearing was subsequently resumed Mrs. Chadwick was in attendance. She was attired in the same handsome brown costume that she wore when she appeared in the United States district court on the day of her arrival from New York to plead to the charges against her. Apparently she was enjoying excellent health. She walked briskly into the courtroom and displayed none of the nervousness that marked her bearing when last seen in public. On the contrary, she was perfectly calm and collected and frequently smiled when conversing with her attorneys. She examined each of the claims against her in a critical manner and rejected a number of them wholly or in part. Among those repudiated by Mrs. Chadwick was the claim of Freda Swanstorm, her maid, who presented a sworn statement showing that her employer owed her for seven months' service at $45 per month. Mrs. Chadwick declared that she did not owe Freda so much. When a small bill for a manicuring set was passed to Mrs. Chadwick for examination she disdainfully tossed it back to the attorneys, saying: "Why, this is absurd. I never owned such a thing in my life."

The claims taken up at the session of the court were generally of minor importance, none of the big accounts being passed upon.

ACCIDENTS AT NEW ORLEANS.

Horse Dick Bernhard Killed and Jockey Baird Hurt.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—Serious accidents marred the pleasure of the racegoers at the Crescent City Jockey club's track here. As the horses in the third race neared the half mile Pawtucket, running second, stepped into a hole and, going down, threw Jockey Baird over his head. Sanction, following close behind, kicked the prostrate boy in the back, injuring him so severely that it was necessary to remove him to a hospital for treatment. Sanction fell over Pawtucket, and the ensuing mixup enabled The Eye to open up a gap which the others could never close. Little Rose, Astarita and Joe Lesser were the winning favorites.

Dick Bernhard, one of the most valuable horses at the track, with Jockey J. Hennesy up, was killed during a preliminary gallop. The jockey was unhurt.

M. L. Hayman owned the horse, which was worth between $8,000 and $10,000. Summaries:

First Race.—Tom Mankins, first; Felix Mozzes, second; Baggerly, third.

Second Race.—Little Rose, first; Wagstaff, second; Inspector Girl, third.

Third Race.—The Eye, first; Decoration, second; Sarah Maxim, third.

Fourth Race.—Astarita, first; Careless, second; Laura Hunter, third.

Fifth Race.—Inquisitive Girl, first; Over Again, second; W. L. George, third.

Sixth Race.—Joe Lesser, first; Lady Fonse, second; Lady Free Knight, third.

HITS AT STANDARD

Governor Hoch's Antitrust Message to Kansas House.

"TO MAKE MONOPOLY BE DECENT."

Bills Passed For Erection of State Oil Refinery and Making Pipe Lines Common Carriers In Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 18.—Governor Hoch has signed the bill passed by the house appropriating $200,000 for the erection and maintenance of a state oil refinery with a capacity of 2,000 barrels a day. The signing of this measure will make it possible for Kansas to begin in earnest the fight started in this state recently against the Standard Oil company.

In signing the bill Governor Hoch sent a long message to the legislature reviewing the fight which has ended in the present legislation and giving his reasons for signing the refinery bill.

"No greater question," said the governor, "confronts the American people than the control of great aggregations of capital. We are all groping in the dark, but we will get out into the light after awhile. This Kansas contribution to the solving of this great problem may or may not be a wise one, but it is at least an honest and courageous one."

Governor Hoch said that the present legislation was not an attempt to drive the Standard Oil company from the state nor to deprive it of its rights. "It is not an attempt to establish a monopoly, but an attempt to compel a monopoly already existing to be decent." He said that when normal conditions were again restored the state would be glad to withdraw from the business of refining oil and leave it in the hands of private competitors, "where it legitimately belongs."

"It is due to this state to say," says Governor Hoch, "that this movement has not been conceived, as many suppose and some charge, in the spirit of Socialism."

Further legislation directed against the Standard has come up in the house. A bill making oil pipe lines common carriers was reported by Chairman Beekman of the house oil and gas committee and was made a special order for the afternoon session. This is one of the two oil bills undisposed of. The other one is the antidiscrimination bill, designed to prevent the Standard Oil company from underselling the state. This bill has been made a special order for next Monday.

The house without a dissenting vote has passed the bill making oil pipe lines common carriers. This is the second of the series of bills directed against the Standard Oil company. It has already passed the senate and will, it is said, be signed by the governor. Without this bill the refinery plan could not have been carried out successfully owing to the lack of pipe lines owned by the state. Now, however, the state oil can be piped through the Standard Oil company's lines.

State Refinery For Colorado.

DENVER, Feb. 18.—A bill for the establishment of a state oil refinery has been introduced in the Colorado legislature. The bill provides for an appropriation of $125,000 for the erection and operation of a refinery. The price of crude oil in this state has recently been reduced from $1 to 80 cents a barrel.

STRIKE MAY FOLLOW.

New Haven Firemen's Demands Rejected by the Railway Directors.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 18.—The answer of the directors' committee of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to the demands of the firemen sustains the position of President Mellen, who rejected the demands.

The answer of the directors to the firemen's committee was given to Timothy Shea, second vice grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen, shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. A few minutes later he issued the following statement:

"The decision from the board of directors has been received, and they have sustained the president. I have no statement to give out at the present time."

Mr. Shea was in his room at a local hotel in conference with Mr. Kelly, head of the local organization, when the decision was brought in by a messenger. He declined to say whether the rejection of the demand would probably be followed by a strike.

Major Bromley, advertising agent of the company, has issued a statement reviewing the history of the difficulty and declaring that the company would have the support of the locomotive engineers. The company, Major Bromley said, was not looking for a strike, but had made preparations for one. It was said here last night that the company had 1,500 men ready to replace the firemen in case of a strike.

Pardoned For Exemplary Behavior.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 18.—James Shea of Newport, committed in 1897 to serve eighteen years for manslaughter in killing his wife in Newport in 1895, has been pardoned by Governor Utter, with the advice and consent of the state senate. Exemplary behavior was the chief reason of the pardon.

Bank Cashier Arrested.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 18. — Robert Dow, cashier of the Stoughton State bank, was arrested yesterday on charges preferred by Bank Examiner M. C. Bergh. Perjury, falsification of reports and making false exhibits are the charges. The bank is not insolvent. Dow was released on bail.

Governor General Instantly Killed by a Bomb.

CZAR MARKED DOWN AS VICTIM

Russian Noble, Uncle of Emperor Nicholas, Was Assassinated by Revolutionists Dressed as Workmen. Bomb Thrown by One of Them Destroyed the Duke, His Coachman and His Carriage—Murderers Were Captured.

MOSCOW, Feb. 18.—Within the walls of the far famed kremlin palace and almost underneath the historical tower from which Ivan the Terrible watched the heads of his enemies falling beneath the ax on the famous Red square, and within a stone's throw of the great bell of Moscow, Grand Duke Sergius, uncle and brother-in-law of Emperor Nicholas and the chief of the reactionaries, has met a terrible death.

While the grand duke was driving from the Nicholas palace through the senate quarter his carriage was followed by two cabs. At the law courts a sleigh in which were two men, one of whom was dressed as a workman, went quickly ahead of the grand duke's carriage.

The sleigh then slowed up to allow his carriage to pass, and at that moment a bomb was thrown beneath the carriage. The force of the explosion broke all the windows of the law courts, and the report was heard outside the city. The carriage was blown to pieces, nothing but the four wheels remaining.

The grand duke was instantly killed. His head was blown to pieces, it actually being separated from his body, which was frightfully mangled. The coachman was also killed. He was so fearfully burned by the explosive with which the bomb was charged that he died while being taken to a hospital.

The horses attached to the duke's carriage were unhurt and bolted.

On the arrest of the murderers, neither of whom was known to the police, one of them coolly said:

"I don't care. I have done my job."

An immense crowd gathered at the spot and made a demonstration against a number of students who commenced scattering revolutionary proclamations.

Within a few minutes after the explosion people might have been seen gathering up pieces of wood and clothing as mementoes of the crime.

One of the assassins arrested by a policeman carried a revolver, but made no attempt to use it. He expressed gratification that the Grand Duchess Elizabeth was not accompanying her husband, Grand Duke Sergius, when the latter was killed. The assassin refused to reveal his identity, but admitted that he was a member of the Socialistic revolutionary party.

A mass of the grand duke's brains was found near the scene by a woman, who handed it to a police commissioner. The grand duke's pocketbook was found. It contained letters and money.

At the moment of the explosion the Grand Duchess Elizabeth was at the kremlin, superintending work for the wounded at the front, and was about to proceed to the residence of the governor general, expecting to meet her husband there. Her carriage was waiting outside the kremlin.

When the Grand Duchess Elizabeth was informed of the occurrence she immediately went to the scene of the assassination without waiting to put on a hat or cloak.

The gates of the kremlin were closed as soon as the news of the assassination was conveyed to the authorities, and the remains of the grand duke were taken to the Nicholas palace.

Prayers for the murdered grand duke were held later in the evening, the Grand Duchess Elizabeth, civil and military officials being present.

The body of Grand Duke Sergius will be interred in the cathedral of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul.

The newspapers' extras last night announce the death of Grand Duke Sergius by the explosion of a bomb, but give no details.

It is said that the terrorists had marked four persons for execution, the czar, Grand Duke Sergius, Governor General Trepoff of St. Petersburg and Minister of the Interior Bouligan.

The news of the assassination of the Grand Duke Sergius reached Tsarskoe-Selo palace, near St. Petersburg, while the imperial family was entertaining Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, who is on his way to join the Russian army in the far east as an observer representing Emperor William, creating the greatest consternation.

The emperor is reported to have been completely prostrated. All festivities in honor of the Prussian guest were at once abandoned.

Grand Duke Sergius, who was a brother-in-law as well as uncle of the emperor and who had exercised immense influence at court, was regarded as the most reactionary of the grand dukes. As governor general of Moscow he was intensely unpopular.

His advent as governor general was followed by expulsion of the Jews from the central provinces, and throughout his administration his rigorous and harsh measures aroused the greatest hostility, especially among the students.

The news of the tragedy at the kremlin was really no great surprise, as it was known that the terrorists had already condemned the grand duke to death, and ever since the affair of Jan 22 the inauguration of a bomb throwing campaign had been anticipated.

Two years ago after the student riots in which many were killed or wounded, several hundred expulsions to Siberia followed under the orders of Grand Duke Sergius and General Trepoff, now governor general of St. Petersburg, but who was then chief of police of Moscow. As there were many threats made against his life, the grand duke was obliged to flee to his summer residence, twenty miles from the city. During the recent strike disturbances the grand duke left the Diskoutchny palace, on the outskirts of the city, where he had been living, and took refuge inside the ramparts of the kremlin, where he had since lived in what is known as the little palace.

The assassination of Grand Duke Sergius undoubtedly was the work of the fighting organization of the Socialistic revolutionary party, which condemned and executed Count Bobrikoff, governor general of Finland, and MM. Sipiaguine and Von Plehve, ministers of the interior. It is regarded as a direct challenge from the terrorists to the autocracy and a revival of the famous duel between the nihilists and the government twenty-five years ago.

The murder of Grand Duke Sergius just at the time when the forces of liberalism were again in the supremacy and when the summoning of the zemsky sobor was actually assured meets with universal reprobation even by extreme Social Democrats, who denounce the crime as strongly as do the Liberals and Conservatives.

PETITION FOR PEACE.

Empress of Russia Appealed to by Women of Her Country.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 18.—The empress of Russia has received from the women of Moscow an address piteously appealing to her majesty as a woman and a mother to use her influence with the emperor to secure peace. "Oh, sovereign," the petition says, "we believe your mother's heart feels all the horrors of war as we do! Peace is violated not only beyond the frontiers, but even in the heart of the fatherland. We see in recent troubles the beginning of calamities that may crush all Russia if the emperor does not seek to avert them. All the bases of life are shaken, and all the moral foundations are trembling. Mothers who have to bring up the young generation are saddened by seeing that it is impossible to train up children on the basis of truth, love and duty when the social life of the country does not rest thereon. Our best forces are perishing. Mothers whose hearts are breaking cannot remain silent. More lives will be sacrificed because what is happening is not spasmodic, but the result of earlier calamities. The emperor can still save Russia by his puissant will. Be our pleader. Pray the emperor to listen to the voice of the country. If the emperor leads the country in paths of greatness its women will help in the work of organization by guiding their brothers and children into the new way and a life of light."

The strike here is extending. About 2,400 employees of the Nevsky Thread works have joined in the movement. The strikers now total about 30,000. The temper of the men is more threatening, and Cossacks and other troops have again been drafted into the city. The police are arresting the ringleaders. The employers regard the situation as critical.

The news of the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius created a deep impression here. The air is filled with disturbing rumors. It is reported that the locked out men will on Monday call out the workers in the smaller factories.

Students Voted to Leave College.

AMHERST, Mass., Feb. 18.—As the result of recent trouble at the Massachusetts Agricultural college the senior class voted to withdraw from the college. A short time ago the thirty members of the class were declared guilty of ungentlemanly conduct in the classroom. They were given an opportunity to make amends and promises of future good behavior, but failed to satisfy the faculty in this respect. The committee voted to require from the class a public apology to the college.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Weather Continues Still to Dominate the Business Situation.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Weather conditions still dominate the trade situation. Low temperature and deep snow have interfered with traffic and checked the revival of business that was well under way in most sections of the country. Retail distribution is not maintained, and the deleterious effects are visible in all outdoor work, while the interruption to movement of freight has affected manufacturing to some extent.

Prices of staple commodities at the exchanges are advanced by the restricted receipts at primary markets. There is a partial offset in the largely increased demand for heavyweight wearing apparel and other winter goods, which promises to reduce supplies in all positions at the end of the season. Meanwhile there is evidence that confidence in the future remains unshaken, preparations for spring and summer trade continuing unabated except where fuel or other supplies are temporarily blockaded in transit.

Railway earnings thus far reported for February were 1.9 per cent smaller than a year ago, probably another result of bad weather. Foreign commerce at this port for the last week made a remarkable record for imports, exceeding in value those of the corresponding week last year by $4,376,517. Exports decreased $1,804,888. Securities have continued active and generally strong, while money remains easy at unchanged rates. Bank exchanges at New York were 50.3 per cent larger than in the same week last year, and at other leading cities the gain was 9.4 per cent.

Commercial failures for the week in the United States were 258 against 256 last week, 259 the preceding week and 287 the corresponding week last year.

A NEGRO ROBBER.

Mrs. Birkett Tied to Sofa While Her House Was Pillaged.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—Mrs. Frank Birkett was attacked in her home here by an unknown negro, who made his escape after tying his victim to a sofa and robbing the house. A posse of Burlington citizens, led by Anderson Shinn, a county detective, are scouring the woods, and the police authorities of Trenton, Camden and Philadelphia have been requested to watch the railroad stations and ferry houses.

Mrs. Birkett was alone in her dwelling, near the state Masonic home, when the negro entered the house. She attempted to defend herself with a "blackjack," but he wrested it from her and struck her over the head with it. Dragging her to a sofa, he tied the woman down and pinioned her arms. He then ransacked the house, but secured only $5 in money. Mrs. Birkett became unconscious, and her condition is said to be critical.

UNIVERSAL PEACE

Philadelphia Society Would Stop War In Far East.

SECRETARY HAY IS IN ACCORD.

"Government Does Not Relax Its Watchfulness Nor Abate Its Desire to See Peace Prevail, but at Present Cannot Act."

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—Alfred H. Love, president of the Universal Peace union, which has its headquarters in this city, has received a letter from Secretary of State Hay in response to Mr. Love's suggestion that the government should make an effort to bring about a cessation of hostilities in the far east on or before the coming anniversary of Washington's birthday. Mr. Hay's letter is as follows:

"I have had the pleasure to receive your letter of the 9th inst., in which, expressing the appreciation felt by the Universal Peace union for the interest this department has shown in the cause of peace in the far east, you ask renewal of efforts in that direction at this time, which you think is opportune.

"This government has naturally watched with keen solicitation the course of the struggle in Manchuria and within all proper limits has successfully endeavored to cause the neutrality of the neighboring territories to be respected.

"The president has been officially solicitous to see the war closed by an honorable peace, and if an opening for his friendly offices to that end should appear he would gladly act in whatever sense might be practicable. So far no indication of any disposition by the belligerents to invite or accept the friendly offices of any power has been apparent. On the contrary, each has made it known that suggestions to that end from without would be regarded as inadmissable. This government, however, does not relax its watchfulness nor abate its desire to see peace prevail and to do toward that end whatever humane duty may counsel or opportunity permit."

IN THE SENATE.

Statue of Miss Frances E. Willard Accepted From Illinois.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The senate passed the bill appropriating $9,940,000 for the District of Columbia and the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, carrying $2,156,000. The District bill had been before the senate for several days and had been much debated. The diplomatic bill received the attention of the senate for only twelve minutes and was passed without discussion.

A special feature of the day was the acceptance of the statue of Frances E. Willard, the distinguished temperance advocate, which has been placed in Statuary hall in the national capitol by the state of Illinois. Notwithstanding there are about forty pedestals in the hall the statue of Miss Willard is the first of a woman to find a place there, and the members of her sex showed their appreciation of the compliment by turning out in large numbers to listen to the eulogistic addresses made in connection with the ceremony.

One witness was heard during the day in the Swayne impeachment trial, and an hour was spent in secret session in an ineffectual effort to determine the admissibility as evidence of Judge Swayne's statement before a committee of the house.

The senate terminated its controversy with the house over the amendment construing the provision of the Dingley law relative to the drawback on imported wheat by receding from the amendment inserted in the agricultural appropriation bill as it passed the senate.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 18, 1905.

Considering that the Czar's uncle was assassinated, we expected to find this morning's New York Herald in deep mourning.

P. S. C. trolley conductor claims to speak seven or eight languages. No doubt he is frequently exasperated enough to talk half a dozen ways.

An exchange declares that the average Congressman will go home from Washington with nothing to show for the months he has spent there except his board bill. It is presumed that he will burn up all other bills before his wife can go through his pockets.

Somebody must have hurled a brick at the editor of the New Brunswick Times, or he has grown blue over the size of the delinquent subscribers' list for this is what he says about the place in which he earns his living: "What this town wants is a red hot rain followed by a red hot sun"

Rev. Adolph Roeder, the president of the New Jersey State Civic Association, in a communication to a Newark paper, makes a strong argument against the act abolishing spring elections, which was rushed through the Legislature and quickly signed by the Governor. In taking ground against the merging of local and general elections, he recites in full the letter addressed to the Legislature by the Arlington Good Government club and Governor some three years ago when an attempt was first made to bring about this change. After destroying the argument advanced that voters neglected the spring election and seemed to require the stimulus of a general election to take any interest, this letter states: "Another reason given for abolishing spring elections was to save their cost. There is no economy in any system the operation of which tends to install ignorant or corrupt men in public office. Bad government is sure to be expensive, and no safeguard against it should be sacrificed." J. Albert Stowe, in a communication to the Civic Federation, says: "I look upon this measure as vicious. It was pushed after the city elections had been transferred to November. Three years ago it got so far as to be favorably reported in the House, with every indication that it would pass. Just then we laid a copy of the above letter on every desk in the Legislature, mailing it to each member. Soon after the bill was killed and the papers said the Good Government Club was the cause. Clubbing all elections together is a politician's trick to prevent independent personal action in municipal elections. Independent action is the very reserve force of the army of progress. Had we not been free to use it in our town we would have been far worse off. This is an attempt to bind the voters to the party, to make municipal elections only a side show to those in which party is stronger than in local matters. It is a long step backward. In New York the constitution carefully keeps State and city elections a year apart. That is wise. The bill making city elections a part of the fall elections was engineered by two prominent party managers, who scarcely disguised their purpose to smother independence. I am amazed that the intelligent people of this State remained dumb while this bill was tobogganed through the Legislature."

PERSONAL.

William Fitzsky, of Somerville, was the guest yesterday of J. B. Higgins, of West Front street.

Miss Matilda Alexander, formerly of this city, now of Philadelphia, has returned to her home after a visit with friends in Plainfield.

—F. W. Stener, of this city, has been granted a patent for a hypodermic syringe.

—England makes knights of her merchants nowadays; and she does well. For modern business requires nerve, audacity. For example, to advertise more than your business competitor, even though he could "buy you out" with his surplus capital, requires courage.

idea is embodied in the heart of Roman Catholicism. For the last fifteen hundred years the Roman Catholic church has pushed mission work under the conviction that it represents all that is essential in Christianity, and that it ought to and must rule the world. Devotion and heroism have marked every stage of Roman Catholic missions. Nothing else in the history of religion surpasses it in these directions, and very few religions have equalled it.

"The Greek Catholic form of Christianity has been less aggressive in mission work, although it has held, and now represents, a large portion of the Christianity of the Old World. It is so identified with Russia and the Slavic race that we speak of it as the Russian church.

"The aggresive mission work carried on by Protestant denominations is among the later developments, and with that we are most familiar. In the mission work of Protestants the desire to carry the Gospel to those who know it not, is the ruling motive. Whatever weakness has come because of the divisions among Protestants, compensating strength and attainments have come from the zeal of various denominations to carry specific truths of the Gospel into the world, and to strengthen their own type of Christian faith.

"A general survey of the world from the standpoint of religion indicates, not only certain common features, like faith in God, the future life, rewards and punishments, etc., but it embodies also the larger truth that God reveals himself to all men, in proportion as they are able or willing to accept such revelation. This fact instead of lessening the demand for missionary work on the part of Christianity, increses the demand and gives solid foundation for the hope of success. In the hearts of all men something is found which responds to the message of the Gospel. All foreign missionaries find their greatest success in utilizing whatever conceptions may exist concerning God and righteousness, in the minds of those whom they seek to teach. These, however, must be purified and uplifted, according to the Christian standard, if permanent good is attained.

"Christian missions divide naturally into three periods. The first, or primitive period covered about two centuries. During that period, Christianity reached Asia Minor, Greece, Italy, Southern Gaul and Northern Africa. It was not a period of missionary organizaitons, but of personal effort backed by an individual church or by groups of churches.

"The second, or Medieval period may be roughly measured from the fifth to the seventeenth centuries. This was the period of Roman Catholicism in the West, and Greek Catholicism in the East. The early Scotch and Irish were among the first to send missionaries back to the continent of Europe. The Scandinavian churches began missionary work as early as the ninth century. The fifteenth and sixteenth centuries were marked by great activity, under the lead of the Jesuits

"Third, the modern period. Protestants, at first, were not enthusiastic in mission work. The first foreign missionary society was organized in England in 1701. In 1800 there were only seven missionary societies among the English speaking Protestants, and only three of these were engaged in foreign work. From 1800 forward there was a large increase of missionary organizations among all Protestants. By 1860 the number was increased to seventy or more, about twenty five of which were in the United States. The first societies in the United States were comparatively local for the purpose of Christianizing the Indians. Since that time, missionary activity among Protestants has increased steadily, throughout the world."

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Had the bill abolishing spring elections not been passed the terms of three members of the Board of Education would have expired next month: William Hamilton, Theodore W. Day, Albert R. Apgar and Isaac Stites. The election will not be held, however, and the above will hold their offices until the first of next January. The Board of Education has decided to ask for a special appropriation for the proposed fire escape on the Lincoln school building, so that if this safeguard and improvement is to be put up, it will be through the direct appropriation of the borough citizens.

The funeral of David K. Osbourne, who died on Thursday, was held from his late home at 1:30 o'clock yesterday and was private. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Mr. Green, of Westfield. Mr. Osbourne was only a resident of the borough for a few weeks, having recently come here with his family. He was buried at Westfield, his former place of residence.

Among recent arrivals in the borough are Samuel Hoohkiss, formerly of Wilmington, Del., who will fill a position in the employ of Levering & Garrigues, and William Beland, of Erie, N. Y., who will make his home with his brother.

The regular meeting of the Married Couples' Card Club will be held at the home of Frank Wynkoop on Tuesday of next week. The usual games will be played and a social hour will be a feature.

Edward Leimpeter, who has for a long time been confined by illness in the Elizabeth Hospital, has finally been released, and has returned to his home.

There will probably be a special meeting of the Council on Tuesday evening to receive the reports of the treasurer and collector.

Eugene Runyon has purchased the house formerly owned by Antony Marienschenck, on North avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Apgar are rejoicing over the arrival of a son, born Tuesday.

Albert N. Randolph recently injured his arm severely with a pitchfork.

Last summer an appropriation of $1,100 was made for ice breakers, but they were not put up. Last winter the ice destroyed a span of the bridge, and this winter also similar damage has been done. NATIONAL MATCH.

Government Will Appropriate $4,000 for Big Shoot at Sea Girt.

When the federal army appropriation bill comes up for consideration it will carry an item of $4,000, to provide for the expenses incident to the National match. As soon as the bill becomes a law the orders will be issued designating Sea Girt as the place for the holding of the National match.

The splendid facilities, both for camping and shooting, at Sea Girt had much to do with the selection of that place for the holding of the match there. Then the exceptionally courteous treatment the War Department and army officers have received from the hands of the Jerseymen, from the Governor and inspector-general of rifle practice down to some of the subordinate officers in the National Guard was also a factor in the choice of Sea Girt. The New York National Guard officials had to admit that at the present time Creedmoor range was not in condition to handle the big crowd that is expected will be in attendance at the match. However, Creedmoor will do a lot of work in two years, and will be in the field for the match at that time. It was expected that as the match was shot at Fort Riley, Kan., last year, it will go to some western rifle range a year from the approaching season.

UNION OF TELEGRAPHERS.

Although a Comparatively Young Organization It Already Has Membership of 5,000.

Chicago Special.

The Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, which has removed its headquarters to Chicago during the past month, was organized at Washington, D. C., in March, 1903. It was formed through an amalgamation of the International Union of Commercial Telegraphers and the Order of Commercial Telegraphers, two rival bodies, which had been in the field for about six months before the consolidation took place.

The International union was formed in Chicago, in June, 1902, and was the first organization of commercial telegraphers in the field. It made good progress for a short time, and then there arose internal dissension, which resulted in the organization of the other order in Pittsburg, in December, 1902.

S. J. SMALL.
(President Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America.)

Both unions claimed to be the regular organization, but the latter was recognized by the American Federation of Labor and granted a charter. The A. F. of L. recommended, however, that both bodies should unite, and a conference was held between the officers of each at Washington, and the present organization was formed, with about 5,000 members. It at once secured a charter from the A. F. of L. under the new name, and a campaign of organization was started. At the present time there are 91 local unions in as many cities affiliated, and the membership is close to 10,000. S. J. Small is president of the union, and was formerly an Associated Press operator at Seattle, Wash. Wesley Russell is secretary-treasurer, and is a Chicagoan. He was formerly employed by the Western Union Telegraph company.

VERMONT'S NEW GOVERNOR

He Was Born and Reared on a Farm and Is Still Engaged in Rural Pursuits.

Walden (Vt.) Special.

Charles J. Bell, who was elected governor of Vermont recently, is a typical American. He was born on a farm, was raised on the farm and will continue to devote much time to his farming, though chosen to the highest position in the gift of the people of his home state.

Mr. Bell's farm is located just out of Walden. It was there he was born, in 1845, and it is there he still lives. His early education was that of the usual farm boy, but it was interrupted by the breaking out of the civil war, in which he enlisted, serving both in the infantry and cavalry. After his return to the farm he began a system of self education, and interested himself very much in the success of the fellow-farmers of his state. This led him into politics, and he was elected to the legislature of his state in 1882, and in 1894 to the state senate.

CHARLES J. BELL.
(The New Farmer Governor of the State of Vermont.)

He was one of the railroad commissioners of his state in 1895 and 1896, and a member of the state board of agriculture from 1897 up to the present time, and for a number of years was secretary of the board. At the organization of the state grange in 1872 he was elected treasurer, which position he held for 23 years, until he was elected master, which office he has held for ten years, during which time, mainly through his personal efforts, the order has twice doubled.

Mr. Bell's farm is on the hills of Caledonia county, and its products are maple sugar, potatoes and hay, as well as dairying and sheep husbandry.

Remarkable Lake in Lapland.

A lake has been discovered on Kildin island, Lapland, which contains fresh water on the top and salt water on the bottom. The lake rises and falls with the tide and is evidently connected with the sea by an underground channel.

OATH OF ANCIENT DOCTORS

Queer Ritual Prescribed by Hippocrates for Prospective Physicians —Swears by All Gods.

Hippocrates, the father of medicine, 2,000 years ago imposed upon all his students a remarkable oath. It runs as follows:

I swear by Apollo, the physician, by Aesculapius and by Hygeia, by Panacea and by all the gods and goddesses, that I will fulfill religiously according to the best of my ability, power and judgment, the solemn vow I now make; I will honor as my father the master who taught me the art of medicine; his children I will consider as my brothers and teach them my profession without fee or reward. I will admit to my lectures and discourses my own sons, my master's sons and those pupils who have taken the medical oath, but no one else. I will prescribe such medicines as may be best suited to the cases of my patients, according to the best of my judgment, and no temptation shall ever induce me to administer poison. I will religiously maintain the purity of my character and the honor of my art. I will not perform the operation of lithotomy, but leave it to those to whose calling it belongs. Into whatever house I enter I will enter it with the sole view of relieving the sick and conduct myself with propriety toward women of the family. If during my attendance I hear anything that should not be revealed I will keep it a profound secret. If I observe this oath may I have success in this life and may I obtain esteem after it; if I break it may the contrary be my lot.

LIVED IN MIRROR PALACE.

Prodigal Russian Who Squandered a Vast Fortune Is Sent to Insane Asylum.

From Tomsk comes a curious history of a modern Narcisus. His name is Vladimir Yevdokimoff, the son of one of the richest merchants in Russia. After spending millions of rubles in all sorts of foolish ways he retired to Tomsk with a considerable fortune in his hands. He bought a wooded hill in the neighborhood and on the summit of it built a glass palace. One of the largest of the rooms is a mirror hall, in which walls, roof and floor are formed only of mirrors. In the middle of this hall Yevdokimoff had a throne, erected which revolved on a pivot like a piano stool. Here he would sit for hours, turning backward and forward and admiring himself in the mirrors. Gorgeous robes were in a neighboring room, and in the course of the day he would change his garments a score of times. His admiration of himself in the mirrors was sometimes varied by elabroate banquets, to which only women were invited, and which are said to have resembled the Thracian mysteries. They were attired as Bacchantes and he presided, crowned with roses. In five years he squandered 7,000,000 rubles and is now in an asylum for the insane.

EXPECTS STRANGE VISION.

Distinguished War Artist Has Queer Dream and Constantly Expects Its Fulfillment.

Friends of a distinguished war artist now in Manchuria are said to be taking an almost uncanny interest in his return from the scene of war. It rises out of a strange story told by the artist himself. Years before the artist began his long record of campaigns he was out walking along a quiet square in his native city when, looking down, he suddenly saw a pool of blood on the pavement. Instantly, the story goes, from the shock of the sight, he went off into a sort of trance. He was on a bleak plain, running for his life from three pursuing horsemen. He saw their faces, knew that his efforts to escape were hopeless and then a swift blade descended and cut off his head. After that he came to himself and resumed his walk, but he had always a conviction that this vision foreboded the manner of his death. Once during a campaign in the Soudan, when the British square was broken, he was pursued. It was with relief that he recognized that the mounted pursuers were not his men, the men of the vision. He wonders still when he will meet them.

TENANT BESTS LANDLORD.

Objects to Children So Renter Makes Out Lease in Name of Child, Reversing Conditions.

Landlords in Paris are becoming day by day more absurd in the restrictions they put on their tenants. Some will not allow a dog to be kept; others will not permit any pet whatever, and some even will not allow children to be in the house. A clever individual has just managed, however, to overcome this last objection. He had seen an apartment he liked and well knowing that the landlord objected to children, he said nothing of the existence of his only child, a boy of two years of age, but simply had the lease made out in the infant's name. When he came with his family to take possession the proprietor flew into a passion and objected most strongly to the baby.

"Pardon me," replied the astute diplomatist, "but it is my child and not myself who has hired the apartment. You have made no objection to his asking his parents to stay with him. So here we are!"

Made a Quiet Exit.

An Italian from Europe arrived in Jackson, a mining town of Amador county, California, the other day. He proceeded to try to make anarchists of some of the miners. A quiet meeting was held and a committee of citizens waited upon the newcomer and invited him to take a trip to San Francisco. He concluded to do so.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FRILLS AND FANCIES.

Petticoat Effects the Vogue For Summer Gowns.

The Louis petticoat effect gains in favor not only on evening frocks, but for street gowns.

Skirts are to be plainer. Indeed, some of the smartest models are entirely without decoration. Even the filmy summer dress skirts will be simpler in their outline, but the sheer materials, unless made with very full skirts, require all sorts of frills and flounces. Ribbon is to be used on these gowns lavishly, and little roses made of ribbon are a dainty trimming fashion is smiling upon for the summer gown.

The cotton goods are more mercerized than ever, and many of them are difficult to distinguish from silk.

There are cotton etamines that look exactly like wool, and in small checks

a dress of this woolen material is most attractive.

Tartan plaids in cotton weaves have the silky finish and are particularly pretty for children's dresses. There are cottons difficult to distinguish from grenadine, with a dainty flowered design over their surface.

The swathed silk waist pictured is one of the latest Parisian models. The shawl collar is daintily trimmed with a fall of lace. The chemisette is of finely tucked mull embroidered down the front in a charming little design of flowers. The waist fastens at one side with handsome enameled buttons and smart little straps of the material. The elbow sleeves have a high cuff and a frill of lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT WILL BE WORN.

Advance Millinery Notions—Timely Suggestions For Spring.

Braid will play a conspicuous part on the tailor made gowns of the early spring. The most popular braids will be the flat silk ones with a gold or silver thread running through them. A braid of the same color as the dress material is the smartest kind to use.

Very stunning are the plain black cloth skirts worn with taffeta or corded silk cutaway Louis XVI. coats. They often show a pretty brocade or light colored waistcoat softened with a lace cravat. Worn with a directoire or turban hat a costume of this kind is quite effective.

As usual at this time of the year, the toque made of violets, roses or orchids is in evidence, and a dainty little demi-season headgear it is too.

Some of the advanced straw models are made of a fabric called tagel. This is mixed with peau de soie and taffeta, forming a sort of plait.

There is a rumor in the millinery world that a good many flowers will be mixed with feathers. This combination sounds rather fussy, but when seen the mingling is quite chic.

There is still in the new millinery an inclination for the very high bandeau, tilting the hat well over the face or very much to one side.

Original and attractive is the bodice seen in the illustration. It is developed in a lovely shade of orchid messaline silk. The fullness comes from a group of plaits on each side of the fronts, and a similar arrangement is at the waist line. Fitted pieces of cloth a tone darker than the silk is disposed about the yoke of crochet lace. The strap ends of the cloth trimming are overlaid with braid, fastened with amethyst buttons. The sleeves are strapped and button trimmed. JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE GRAFTERS

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"Somebody has said that for every new point of view gained we have to sacrifice all the treasures of the old. I am sorry if I am disappointing you."

"I don't know that you are. And yet, when you were sitting at Miss Van Brock's table the other evening telling us about our experience with the politicians, I kept saying to myself that I didn't know you—that I had never known you."

"WHY HAVE YOU DONE THIS, ELINOR?"

"I wish I knew just how to take that," he said dubiously.

"I wish I knew how to make you understand," she returned; and then: "I could have made the other David Kent understand."

"You are in duty bound to try to make this one understand, don't you think? You spoke of a danger which was not the violent kind, such as Loring fears. What is it?"

"You have had two whole days," she rejoined. "Haven't you discovered it?"

"I haven't found anything to fear but failure," was his reply.

"That is it; you have given it a name—its only true name—failure."

"But I am not going to fail."

"You mean you are going to take our railroad away from these men who have stolen it?"

"That is what I mean."

"And you will do it by threatening to expose them?"

"I shall tell Governor Bucks what I know about the oil field deal, assuring him that I shall publish the facts if he doesn't let the law take its course in ousting Judge MacFarlane and the receiver."

She rose and stood before him, leaning against one of the vine-clad porch pillars with her hands behind her.

"David Kent, are there any circumstances in which you would accept a bribe?"

He answered her in all seriousness.

"They say every man has his price: mine is higher than any bid they have yet made—or can make, I hope."

"Why don't you let them bribe you?" she asked coolly. "Is it because it is inexpedient—because there is more 'success' the other way?"

He tried to emulate her coolness and made a failure of it.

"Have I ever done anything to make you think I had thrown common honesty and self-respect overboard?" he demanded.

Her answer was another question, sharp-edged and well thrust home.

"Is it any worse to take a bribe than it is to give one? You have just admitted that you are going to buy the governor's neutrality, you know."

"I don't see it in that light at all."

"The other David Kent would have seen it. He would have said: These men are public criminals. If I can not bring them to justice, I can at least expose them to the scorn of all good men. Therefore I have no right to bargain with them."

Kent was silent for a long time. When he spoke it was to say:

"Why have you done this, Elinor?"

"Because I had to, David. Could I do less?"

"I suppose not. It's in the blood—in your blood and mine. Other folk call it the Puritan virus of over-righteousness, and scoff at it. I don't know: sometimes I think they have the best of the argument."

"I can't believe you are quite sincere when you say that," she asserted.

"Yes, I am. One cannot compromise with conscience; that says itself. But I have come to believe latterly that one's conscience may be morbidly acute, or even diseased. I'll admit I've been taking treatment."

"That sounds very dreadful," she rejoined.

"It does, doesn't it? Yet it had to be done. As I intimated a few minutes ago, my life has hitherto been a sort of unostentatious failure. I used to think it was because I was outclassed. I know now it has been because I wouldn't do as other men do. It has been a rather heart-breaking process—to sort out the scruples, admitting the just and overriding the others—but I have been given to see that it is the price of success."

"I want you to succeed," she said.

"Pardon me; I don't think you do. You have reopened the door to doubt, and if I admit the doubt I shall fail."

The sonata Penelope was playing was approaching its finale, and Elinor was suddenly shaken with a trembling fit of fear—the fear of consequences which might involve this man's entire future. She knew Kent was leaning on her, and she saw herself as one who had ruthlessly thrust an iron bar among the wheels of a delicate mechanism. Who was she to be his conscience-keeper—to stand in the way and bid him go back? Were her own motives always so exalted? Had she not once deliberately debated this same question of expediency, to the utter abasement of her own ideals?

Penelope had left the piano, and Loring was looking at his watch. Kent saw them through the open window and got upon his feet.

"Grantham is saying he had no idea it was so late,' he hazarded. "If I thank you for what you have said I am afraid it must be as the patient thanks the surgeon for the knife-stroke which leaves him a cripple for life."

It was the one word needed to break her resolution.

"Oh, forget it; please forget it!" she said. "I had no right * * You are doing a man's work in the world, and it must be done in a man's way. If I cannot help, you must not let me hinder. If you let anything I have said discourage you, I shall never cease regretting it."

His smile was a mere indrawing of the lips.

"Having opened the door, you would try to shut it again, would you? How like a woman! But I am afraid it can't be done. I had been trying to keep away from that point of view. * * There is much to be said on both sides. There was a time when I wouldn't have gone into such a thing as this fight with the junto; but being in I should have seen it through regardless of the public welfare—ignoring that side of it. I can't do it now; you have shown me that I can't."

"But I don't want to be a stumbling-block," she insisted. "Won't you believe that I wanted to help?"

"I believe that your motive was all it should be; yes. But the result is the same."

Loring and Penelope were coming out, and the end of their privacy was at hand.

"What will you do?" she asked.

"I don't know: nothing that I had meant to do. It was a false start and I am back under the wire again."

"But you must not turn back unless you are fully convinced of the wrong of going on," she protested.

"Didn't you mean to convince me?"

"No—yes—I don't know. I—it seems very clear to me; but I want it to seem clear to you. Doesn't your conscience tell you that you ought to turn back?"

"No," he said shortly; but he immediately qualified the denial. "You may be right: I am afraid you are right. But I shall have to fight it out for myself. There are many things to consider. If I hold my hand, these buccaneers will triumph over the stockholders, and a host of innocent people will suffer loss." Then, seeing the quick-springing tears in her eyes: "But you mustn't be sorry for having done what you had to do; you have nothing to reproach yourself for."

"Oh, but I have!" she said; and so they parted.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE INSURRECTIONARIES.

When the Receiver Guilfords, great and small, set their official guillotines at work lopping off department heads, they commonly ignore a consequence overlooked by many; namely, the possible effect of such wholesale changes in leadership upon the rank and file.

The American railroad in its unconsolidated stage is a modern feudalism. Its suzerains are the president and board of directors; its clan chiefs are the men who have built it and fought for its footing in the sharply-contested field of competition. To these leaders the rank and file is loyal, as loyalty is accorded to the men who build and do, rather than to their successors who inherit and tear down. Add to this the supplanting of competent executive officers by a staff of political trenchermen, ignorant alike of the science of railroading, and the equally important sub-science of industrial man-handling, and you have the kindling for the fire of insurrection which had been slowly smoldering in the Trans-Western service since the day when Maj. Guilford had issued his general order No. 1.

At first the fire had burned fitfully, eating its way into the small economies; as when the section hands pelt stray dogs with new spikes from the stock keg, and careless freight crews seed down the right-of-way with cast-off links and pins; when engineers pour oil where it should be dropped, and firemen feed the stack instead of the steam-dome.

But later, when the incompetence of the new officials became the mocking gibe of the service, and the cut-rate avalanche of traffic had doubled all men's tasks, the flames rose higher and out of the smoke of them loomed the shape of the dread demon of demoralization.

First it was Hank Brodrick, who misread his orders and piled two freights in a mountain of wreckage in the deep cut between Long Pine and Argenta. Next it was an overworked night man who lost his head and cranked a switch over in front of the westbound Flyer, laying the 1,020 on her side in the ditch, with the postal and the baggage car neatly telescoped on top to hold her down.

Two days later it was Patsy Callahan; and though he escaped with his life and his job, it was a close call. He was chasing a time freight with the fast mail, and the freight was taking the siding at Delhi to let him pass. One of the red tail-lights of the freight had gone out and Callahan mistook the other for the target lamp of the second switch. He had time to yell at his fireman, to fling himself upon the throttle-bar and to set the air-brake before he began to turn Irish handsprings down the embankment; but the wrecking crew camped two whole days at Delhi gathering up the debris.

Is it Right?

Is it right that a property owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes 50 cents more on fourteen gallons of ready-for-use paint, at $1.50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. Paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which makes fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1.20 per gallon; the property owner loses just $4.20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M. and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

RIVALS PETER THE GREAT.

Prince Khilkoff Goes to England to Learn, But Winds Up as Engineer in United States.

Prince Khilkoff, whom the czar has made one of the secretaries of state, is the head of an ancient house and in youth was regarded by his family as a crank and a dangerous one to boot. He had to undertake the management of the family estates at about the time that the serfs were being emancipated and his magnanimity toward his underlings did not please the rest of his family, so young Khilkoff went on a pilgrimage. He thought it would be good to follow the example of Peter the Great and go to England to learn. He went to Birkenhead and worked there as an ordinary artisan. News of great railway developments in America called him here and he came to the United States and worked right through the fitting and engine-building shops and learned to drive an engine. He returned home to perform a similar office at the time that the railways of Russia were beginning to boom. Employed first as an engineer, he was promoted to the control of locomotive works, was made head of a line and, pushing his way step by step, proved himself the ideal man for the post of minister of ways of communication.

NORWAY HOT AS CHICAGO.

Man in Open Car Tells Real Facts About Coolness of Northern Country.

"It's funny how people talk without knowing what they are talking about," said the man on the end seat of a Chicago open car. "Half an hour ago I heard a man saying he'd like to be in Norway just now to get cool."

"Well, isn't it cool there?" was asked.

"I was there just a year ago this time and in one day there were 16 cases of sunstroke in the town where I was stopping and that same night three prisoners in the lockup were bitten to death by mosquitoes. Ice was 20 cents a pound, with little to be had, and I walked two miles to buy a glassful of lemonade and then found it scalding hot. "No, sir-e-e. Don't you do any longing for Norway. You just eat a hearty boiled dinner, take two glasses of hot scotch and then get an end seat on a car and let her go Gallagher and keep your palm fan a-waving. This hotness is all imagination. You won't make more than one round trip before you'll want to get home and tumble into a feather bed and draw a pair of woolen blankets up to your ears."

AZTECS AS MEDICAL MEN.

Ancient Mexican Race Believed to Have Been Far Advanced in Healing Art.

The ancient Aztec race of Mexico was far advanced in the practice of medicine. The native Mexicans practiced massage, splints were used in the dressing of fractured bones, inflamed gums were lanced with obsidian knives, aching teeth were extracted, salt was used as an antiseptic, and ground obsidian as a dusting powder. Stiffness of the muscles and joints was treated by the sweat bath, wounds were sutured with human hair, the actual cautery was applied to the edges of wounds, and venom was drawn out of poisoned wounds by sucking, while bleeding was practiced in obstinate headaches. The hygiene of the teeth was well looked after, very hot food being avoided, as was the use of cold water after eating hot food. Wooden toothpicks, clean water, and powdered charcoal served for dentrifice. In short, the practice of medicine among these early Mexicans compares very favorably with that in vogue at the time of the landing of the pilgrim fathers.

BOOK SALESMAN FLOORED.

Massachusetts Woman Pronounces Crowninshield as Guinsel and Man Nearly Faints.

"I have always rather prided myself on the accuracy of my pronunciation," said a salesman in a Chicago book store to an Inter Ocean reporter, "but a woman from Massachusetts who came in yesterday floored me flat. She said she wanted a book the name of which she had forgotten, but it was about an American who visited some people at a French chateau. This didn't give me any definite idea of what book she wanted.

"'You must have it,' she said. 'It's by a very prominent Washington woman. Her husband is in the navy. Her name is Grunsel, Mrs. Grunsel.'

"I could not for the life of me recall any Washington lady named Grunsel, so I asked the lady to write the name down and give me time to look it up. What on earth do you think she wrote? Why, Crowninshield. She told me, too, that it's an old Marblehead name, and that nobody up there ever calls Crowninshield anything but Grunsel."

Raises Farming to Science.

At Faringdon, Berkshire, England, farming has been raised to a science. Mr. George Adams, of the royal prize farm, Wadley house, farms some 4,000 acres, of which about half is arable and half pasture. He employes from 200 to 250 laborers, milks 500 cows daily, keeps about 40 Shire brood mares, a score of breeding sows, and from 3,000 to 4,000 laying hens, grows about 1,000 acres of grain, besides attending to other multifarious items in the ordinary course of farm practice. About 1,000 acres of meadow hay are harvested annually. All the work, cutting, carrying and ricking, is done by piecework.

MAN PASSED AS A WOMAN

For Twenty Years Christian Becker Wore Female Garb and Was Employed as Domestic.

Mount Vernon (N. Y.) Special.

For 20 years Christian Becker, said to be known to President Roosevelt and other noted people in the United States as Emma Becker, a cook, masqueraded as a woman. He was employed as a female cook in many of New York's rich families, and although he came in contact with corps of female servants, his disguise was never detected. Had it not been that Becker was taken ill in a New Rochelle restaurant and the police were called in to assist him to the hospital, he probably would have gone through life undetected. As it is, he will spend the next four months in the Kings county penitentiary for masquerading.

Sergt. Kelly was alone in the New Rochelle police station at midnight when a telephone message came in from a Main street restaurant stating that a woman had been taken ill and was dying. Kelly sent in a call for the ambulance, and then hurried down to the restaurant. When he arrived Becker, in an unconscious state, was at a table, resting his head on his hands. Kelly removed the supposed woman's veil and hat, and in doing so he also took off a wig. With the veil and wig off, the sergeant detected that the masqueraded woman had a strong beard.

"Come with me," said Sergt. Kelly, who escorted the female impersonator to the station house.

When arraigned before Judge Van Auken, in the court of special sessions, Becker said that he lived in East Fiftieth street, New York. Upon being asked what he had to say for himself, he made the following explanation:

"When I was a young man I had a tenor voice, and used to sing in the choir. The boys used to poke fun at me on account of my voice, and made life almost unbearable. Wherever I went the boys used to call me girls' names. I couldn't stand it any longer, so I decided to dress as a woman, and pass as such. That was 20 years ago. Since then I have been known as Emma Becker. Eighteen years ago I worked for President Roosevelt's family. I was employed as a female cook, and worked for them for a year without being detected."

Becker said that he worked for a number of prominent New York families, and always successfully passed himself off as a woman. He pleaded with Judge Van Auken for permission to return to New York.

When arrested Becker wore a black cloth skirt and waist, a black straw hat fastened down with a black veil, and black gloves. He also had on a pair of women's shoes. According to the prisoner's story, he always wore the same garb.

BEAUTIFUL COAT-OF-ARMS.

Judge Parker's Emblem of Heraldry Is Very Pretty, But He Makes No Use of It.

Esopus (N. Y.) Special.

Three stags and a chevron, charged with a trefoil slipped, forms the coat-of-arms of the house of Parker, of which the democratic candidate for the presidency is a direct descendant. For many generations the Parkers have been residents of Massachusetts. The judge makes no use of the beautiful coat-of-arms. It is not to be found upon his carriage, saddle or stationery. The fact that he possessed one was brought out by Miss Gertrude Parker, of Brooklyn, who wrote a letter to the judge, hoping to trace a connection between her family and that of the nominee. She described her family coat-of-arms, and the description, Judge Parker replied, tallied with his emblem of heraldry. Thus the young woman established a family relationship.

HIGHER SALARIES FOR THE STATE JUDICIARY

DUFFIELD'S BILL PROVIDES INCREASE FOR CHANCELLOR AND S.C. JUSTICES.

Assembly bill No. 158, introduced in the House by Mr. Duffield, the Republican leader, providing for an increase in the pay of the chancellor and justices of the Supreme Court, will, it is claimed, if enacted into law, add at least $25,000 a year to the cost of the State courts.

The bill provides that the chancellor and the justices of the Supreme Court shall receive the same per diem allowance while sitting in the Court of Errors and Appeals as is now paid to the lay judges. Last year the lay judges succeeded in putting through the Legislature a bill increasing their per diem allowance. They now receive $20 a day for every day they sit in the court and for every day they are engaged in writing opinions, as well as for every day they sit with the court of pardons. Formerly they received $10 a day for this service, and it is but a few years since they were allowed any compensation for the time spent in the preparation of opinions.

At the present time the chief justice and chancellor each receives $10,000 a year, while the associate justices each receive $9,000 a year. They are among the highest paid judiciary in the country.

The State reports show that the lay judges, under the legislation secured, received last year from $1,200 to $2,800 each extra from the State.

This shows that if the bill becomes a law the chancellor and justices would receive about $2,500 each, in addition to their present salaries, for their services in the court of errors and appeals.

The Duffield bill is said to have been framed by a committee of judges and it is expected that the lawyers in the Legislature will all support it. Last year the lay judges looked after the legislation personally.

DR. GRENFELL TELLS OF HIS GREAT WORK

ADDRESS ON LIFE AMONG DEEP SEA FISHERMEN.

Labrador, its climatic conditions, and the habits and characteristics of its people, were vividly portrayed by Dr. Winfred T. Grenfell, of the National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, in his lecture at the Crescent Avenue chapel, Thursday night.

Dr. Grenfell began by telling of his relationship with the work among the fishermen and how it commenced. It was through a casual talk with Moody, the great evangelist, that Dr. Grenfell first conceived the idea and the ambition to enter into some active service. Since that time, he has been connected with the work for over twelve years, and most of his career as a physician and as a worker has been spent in the land of snow and ice.

The good which Dr. Grenfell has accomplished in this practically unknown field can only be realized when one has heard his description of the conditions which exist in Labrador and Newfoundland. Though oftentimes greatly in need of a physician, the Eskimos and their neighbors are almost entirely without medical aid save from Dr. Grenfell. In his hospital ships, cruising over the ice clod rivers during the summer, when the ice is breaking, and behind his dog teams in the winter, when navigation is impossible, he covers his field of practice every year, traversing over two thousand miles to bring comfort, prolong life, heal the lame and cure the blind. On the rugby and most storm bound cliffs in Newfoundland, Dr. Grenfell's hopitals are situated where together with healing the body, the soul is cleansed.

Taking for his motto Christ's words, "Fellow men, and I will make you fishers of men," Dr. Grenfell has cruised in the vicinity of every coast in the world inhabited by English speaking fishermen, and has for the greatest part of his life worked among these people, and amid the greatest perils.

DEACON CONWAY HAS HIS GOOD NAME SMIRCHED

MAKES IMPASSIONED PLEA WHEN ASPERSIONS ARE CAST UPON IT.

What started out to be a hearing in the city court this morning in a charge of disorderly conduct brought by Mrs. George Mitchell, colored, against her husband, ended in a family mix-up and a hysterical demand from Deacon Spencer Conway to have his good name cleared from aspersions cast upon it by the defendant.

Mitchell declared the trouble between he and his wife to be due to relatives and also that the deacon had gotten into it somehow when he had no right to. The well known religious worker was only a spectator in court but he begged Judge Runyon for the opportunity to go on the stand and when it was granted all previous orators were outdone. He swayed all over the court room, one moment appealing to the judge to uphold his stainless character and the next warning the shrinking Mitchell what he would do to him if it wasn't for the law. Backed up by George H. Jones, who seized an opportunity to talk because his name was mentioned the deacon told all he knew of Mitchell and Mitchell and his father told all they knew of the deacon. Two or three aunts and cousins of Mrs. Mitchell added some facts about colored West End society and things were getting warm all around when order was restored.

The impassioned deacon was led away, George Jones was asked to sit down and the complaint against Mitchell was dismissed with a warning not to return on a similar charge.

ROMANCE OF SUMATRA LEAF

Many Little Episodes Are Attached to This Unique Tobacco Plant.

The story of Sumatra leaf tobacco, as grown under cheese-cloth in Connecticut, is one of the romantic episodes of agriculture, says a writer in Country Life in America. A Florida fruit grower had some tobacco plants that got into his pineapple shed by accident, and he noticed that they were taller and of finer texture, under the lath shade. The bureau of soils, while surveying the Connecticut valley, found a soil that was practically the same as that of Sumatra, on which the famous tobacco is grown. (The bureau has samples of soil from almost every important agricultural region of the world.) The government got an expert to start an industry, and the first two years some of the growers made over 100 per cent. profit. The industry, as a whole, is successful. A large company with plenty of capital is necessary, for it costs $650 to cover and grow an acre of this tobacco. The growers receive from $1.20 to $2.50 per pound for the product. The imported article brings $2.50 to $3, and we have been importing about $6,000,000 worth a year.

Costlier Than Champagne.

Although champagne is called the "wealthy water," there are few hotels in the country where one can pay more than four dollars a quart for it, while, on the other hand, there are hundreds of places where Burgundy is sold as high as $35 a quart. At one hotel the menu advertises a special brand of this fine wine for $25 a bottle. There are any number of Rhine wines which cost above eight dollars, and there is a big demand for them. Champagne does not improve with age as the other wines do, and this probably accounts for the difference.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

In three straight games the Triangle Bowling Club, composed of picked members of local teams, defeated the Saengerbund pin hitters on the Suburban Club alleys, at Fanwood, last night. Eight men were tried on the Triangle team and each appeared equal to the occasion, and defeated the Saengerbunds man for man. The highest score for the evening was made by Sheelen, of the Triangles, 195 being the mark. Sutphen, of the same team, was second with 177.

For the Saengerbunds, Ackor's scores were good, while Wirth also rolled a steady game. The others were far from steady, however, and it was this feature that lost them the game. The Triangles are a strong combination, and though the victors last night, they were rather below their usual standard. The club is composed of the best bowlers from local teams, and scores near the 200 mark are not infrequent. For Egan and Phillips it was an off night, while Koons and Sutphen were none too strong. This was the card of the contest:

VARIOUS SPORTS.

For the purpose of organizing a cheering society, and of discussing plans for baseball and track athletics, a meeting of the North Plainfield High School Athletic Association, was held Thursday. Otto Mueck was appointed leader of the cheering cohort, which is known as the Rooters Club. He will be assisted by George Cubberley. Among other important items of business, the school monogram was officially awarded to the following pupils who have played on the football and basketball teams: Nischwitz, Webster, Steiner, Mundy, Hand, Mueck, Fisher, Amerman, Kipsey, VanArsdale, Hamilton, Peacock and Woodland. Harry Woodland is temporary captain of the baseball team, and he spoke at the meeting yesterday, upon the prospects for next year. The school has accepted the offer to compete in the interscholastic athletic meet at the Y. M. C. A. on March 11, and among the material which will compose the track team are Steiner, Hand, Mundy, Mueck, Webster, Mathews, Ward and Hamilton. Steiner is captain of the track team.

DIAMOND DUST.

Little early to crow, perhaps, but the fans seem to feel entirely satisfied with the new lineup. April 15 with nice warm weather cannot come too soon for them.

Tuesday night the baseball managers in this vicinity will meet at the Hotel Kensington to talk about forming a county league. The prospects for such action are slight, as the managers do not think that such a scheme would pay.

With such teams as Wilmington, Harrisburg, Atlantic City, Camden, the Philadelphia Giants, and the Cuban Giants, the cranks will see games on Crescent Oval equal to contests in the minor league, and possibly some in the big league.

The young men of the First Baptist church, some of whom belong to the recently-organized Men's Club, are talking about forming a baseball team. With such material as Fred Armstrong, Albert Utzinger, Harry Joseph and a number of others, it should be easy to get a good team together. A meeting will be held soon to formulate plans.

BASKET BALL.

The Business Men's team, of the Y. M. C. A., will play a game with the Rahway Y. M. C. A. team on Monday evening at the association gymnasium. The probable lineup of the local team will be as follows: Spicer and Hetcher, forwards; Browning, center; Letson and Clark, guards.

AN EXHIBITION DRILL.

Added Attraction to be Given at Company K's Fair Monday Night.

The attendances which have been at Company K's fair in the armory all this week, have been record breakers in many respects. The militia boys have hosts of friends who are anxious to aid them and the differens attractions have been liberally patronized.

For Monday night a special attraction has been arranged for in the form of an exhibition drill by the company. It will be in charge of Captain Martin and many visiting officers will be present. Chaplain Glasebrook will be present Thursday night. The fair is to continue all next week and for the remaining nights there will be plenty to engage the attention of visitors.

PLANS FOR ROCKVIEW HEIGHTS

Handsome Boulavard 100 Feet Wide and Beautiful Lake 1,500 Feet Long.

A NEW BRIDGE

Dwellings Similar to Those in Washington Park Are to be Erected—Property to be Restricted.

Preparations for starting the improvements in the West End of the borough and city are being made by H. C. VanKimburgh, civil engineer. During the past few days his men have been engaged in surveying West End avenue in the borough and city for the proposed boulevard to be laid out through the extensive property purchased by Charles W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield and Mayor N. B. Smalley, and as soon as the weather is favorable the actual work will commence. It is first proposed to lay out the boulevard from the bridge over Green brook to Stine's bridge, above W. J. Buttfield's residence. This boulevard will be opened and graded to a width of about one hundred feet, which will include sidewalks, ten feet wide on either side.

In the centre of the avenue there will be space left for trees and a grass plot and the whole distance will be lighted at night by incandescent lamps. There will be a roadway on each side.

The meadowland, formerly owned by the Cadmus estate, is also being surveyed for the lake to be established there. This will be about 1,500 feet long and 300 feet wide. In making this improvement it is proposed to straighten the course of the brook.

A matter of interest just now is whether Plainfield will extend this boulevard from the brook to Front street, thereby making it uniform the entire distance. The opinion seems to be that it will be, but in order to carry out the improvement it will be necessary to make changes in the property between those points if the full one hundred feet is followed. One thing is certain and that is there will be a new bridge over Green brook and it is quite likely that the small stream nearby, formerly a mill race, will be filled up as it is practically of no use.

Following the work of opening up the boulevard the large strip of land on either side will be put in shape for building operations, it being planned to erect a number of handsome dwellings which will form a settlement similar to that in Washington Park. The new site will be known as Rockview Heights, and owing to its proximity to the Grant Avenue station of the New Jersey Central it will be a desirable location for those seeking a quiet place to live. The property will be restricted to houses of a certain cost, and it is quite likely that the new owners of this property will also build several costly dwellings.

HUGH C. PIERCE TO WED MISS JESSIE PERKINS

CEREMONY WILL TAKE PLACE IN BROOKLYN WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The wedding of Hugh Clay Pierce, of this city, son of Dr. B. V. Miss Perkins will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Frank R. Wyckoff, as matron of honor, and by Miss Sarah Frances Jones, of Manhattan; Miss Fannie Votey, of Summit, and Miss Marie Kampman, of this city, where Miss Perkins has lived for the last three years. The best man will be Henry B. Moore, of Manhattan, and James Roche, of Bridgeport; Charles Hamilton, John Denholm, of Worchester, and Ralph Waldo Pierce will be the ushers.

There will also be two flower girls, Miss Mildred Wycoff and Miss Frances Williams, and two pages, Master Frederick Lyle, Jr., and Master Edward Perkins. The wedding will be followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. Wyckoff, No. 25 Clifton place, Brooklyn.

MISS JESSIE MILLWARD TO APPEAR AT CASINO

WILL GIVE HER DELIGHTFUL PLAYLET, "THE QUEEN'S MESSENGER."

Through the efforts of Manager Mase Edwards, of the Casino, Plainfield amusement seekers will soon have the opportunity of seeing Miss Jesse Millward, one of the foremost dramatic stars of the day, on a local stage. An engagement has been effected with her manager, Robert Grau, of New York, whereby she will appear at the Casino on Saturday afternoon and evening, February 25, in her beautiful playlet, "The Queen's Messenger," which has been delighting metropolitan theatre-goers for the past year. She will be supported by an admirable company and the production will be complete in every way. Miss Millward is an English actress and was formerly with Sir Henry Irving and also with Charles Frohman's Empire Theatre Company.

Manager Edwards means to bring a series of high class productions to the Casino this season, the enlarged stage and new fire-proof scenery making it possible. The Millward production will also be assisted by a big vaudeville bill of well known artists. The seat sale will open at Armstrong's pharmacy tomorrow morning.

TWO STILL ALARMS.

North Ave Fire Had Been Smoldering Several Hours.

The presence of smoke in the hallway of the Buckle building all Saturday night led to Chief Jennings and Captain Townley, of the fire department, being called to investigate at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. They traced it to a mat at the foot of the stairway, the underside of which had been smoldering for several hours. It was evidently caused by someone throwing a match on the floor and might have resulted in a serious blaze but for its discovery.

Headquarters was notified at 9 o'clock last night that the burner on a gas jet in the Grand Union Company's store on West Front street, had fallen off and that a sheet of flame was reaching up toward the ceiling. Assistant Chief Jennings went to the place but found that a citizen had gotten into the place and shut off the gas from the cellar.

Mr. Randolph's Gift.

At the session of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon, Charles W. McCutchen referred to the gift to the Sunday-school library by former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph of five large volumes of sacred poems. The author is William Cleaver Wilkinson, professor at Rochester University, who was a member of the First Baptist church when a boy and a personal friend of Mr. Randolph.

DECIDE ON SCHOOL SIGNAL

System Arranged to Notify Pupils on Stormy Days.

IN EFFECT NEXT MONTH

Commissioner Bullock Consents to Plans Submitted by Superintendent Maxson and Chief Doane.

Superintendent of Schools Maxson, Commissioner Bullock and Chief Doane, at a recent conference, decided upon the details of the school alarm to be used on stormy days when the regular school sessions will not be held. The "school signal," as it will be termed, will consist of five long blows of the fire alarm whistle, five seconds intervening between blows. As the elapsed time between blows when any regular alarm is sounded over the fire telegraph system is about one and one-half seconds, and as all present alarms, both regular and special, are "repeated" alarms, there is no probability that any citizen will mistake the school signal for a fire call. To still further obviate probability in this direction, the school signal will be given only at stated hours, and, as will be readily understood, but one signal will be necessary on any one day.

The "no school" signal will be given at 7:30 a. m., in order to be of benefit both to high school and grammar grades. The pupils of the former come from all sections of the city, and should have early notice whenever it is deemed unwise to hold a school session.

Of course, this 7:30 signal will mean no school anywhere in the city. Should Superintendent Maxson decide that the storm was not severe enough to keep the older pupils at home, but was rather too much for the little tots in the primary grades, he will ask that a signal be given at 8:15 a. m. A school alarm rung in at 1 p. m. will signify no afternoon session for the pupils who regularly return to their classes at 1:30 p. m. This last signal will be of benefit in case of a severe spring or summer shower, which often comes up with remarkable rapidity.

The several signals mentioned above will go into effect prior to the middle of March, and will be used only on quite stormy days. The establishment of such signals in other cities throughout the country has proved of great convenience and benefit to the entire school population, and Plainfield will no doubt benefit in like manner.

Traffic Blocked by Wreck.

All four tracks on the New Jersey Central between Netherwood and Fanwood, were blocked for a little while Saturday night by a rear-end collision between two coal trains. Four coal cars of the large type, were wrecked, the coal and debris being scattered over the tracks. The wrecker from Elizabethport was summoned to the scene and in a short time traffic was resumed. The damage was slight.

Hurt by a Fall.

Harry Yawger, a clerk in the employ of J. A. Smith & Brother, grocers, fell off the rear porch at the home of George D. Halleck in North Plainfield, this morning and sustained a severe injury to his right knee. He was assisted to his home in West Fifth street, and Dr. Currie was summoned. He will be detained at home for a week.

JUDGESHIP FOR REED?

Friends of Former Senator Want Him Named in Place of Mr. Schenck.

TO ASK GOVERNOR

Declare His Appointment Will Put An End to Factional Warfare in Somerset County.

Friends of former State Senator Charles Arthur Reed, of North Plainfield, have launched a boom for him for Somerset county's judgeship, the term of the present incumbent, Lewis H. Schenck, of Neshanic, expiring in April. It is said that the appointment of Mr. Reed will solve the political tangle in the Republican party of the county and that the Smalley-Thompson factional warfare will be at an end. The power of appointing Judge Schenck's successor is vested in Governor Stokes, who is a warm personal friend of the former president of the State Senate.

Senator Reed is in the South for his health and in his absence his law partner, former Judge William A. Coddington, was seen. "I don't believe Senator Reed knows anything about this boom and I don't think he would accept the office if it were tendered him," was the reply of the genial lawyer in reply to a query regarding his partner's probable attitude on the subject. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Senator Reed's close political and personal friend, said: "The Senator would make a first rate judge. He is learned in the law and would administer justice impartially. He's the best lawyer in the county and should make the best judge." Others, including Democrats and Republicans, when seen by a representative of The Daily Press spoke in favor of the boom for the North Plainfielder.

Plans had been made by friends of the Senator in North Plainfield, Somerville and other parts of the county to personally present Senator Reed's name to Governor Stokes on Saturday, but the delegation decided to postpone the visit. It is said that they are waiting for their candidate's consent. The Daily Press wired the Senator for his views but at the time of going to press his answer had not been received.

The judgeship of Somerset county is worth but $1,800 and this fact may influence the North Plainfielder against allowing his name to be considered.

It is reported that Col. Joseph T. Frelinghuysen, chairman of the Somerset County Republican Committee, favors the appointment of Senator Reed.

WILSON MEMORIAL CHAPEL ANNIVESARY

REV. DR. CHAMBLISS AND E. L. BONNY TAKE PROMINENT PART.

The Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel at Watchung, was filled with its members and many friends yesterday afternoon, when a service marking the fifteenth anniversary of its dedication was held. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. J. H. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, this city, who spoke from the text, "The Woman at the Well."

A brief history of the chapel was read by E. L. Bonny, who told how the congregation outgrew the old schoolhouse and how the members were devoting all their energies to raising money for a new building when Colonel John F. Wilson, of the borough, donated the funds. The edifice was named in memory of Colonel Wilson's wife.

Much of the chapel's success is accredited by the members to Miss Nettie Beeching, who has had charge of the primary department for a number of years, and Miss Jennie Coddington, who has taught different classes of girls in the Sunday-school since its inception.

Other numbers on the programme were violin solos by George Spier and solos and duetts by Miss Etta Raybert and Mrs. S. H. Tugwell, of the First Presbyterian church choir.

Rascres Club Session.

The Rascres Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. J. W. Yates, of East Seventh street.

CLARKSON CAN'T GET BAIL

Accused Letter-Carrier Admits Rifling Five Letters.

POKER AND RUM

Causes of Young Man's Downfall—Inspectors Investigating—Held in Jersey City.

Unable to furnish bail to the amount of $2,000, fixed by Commissioner Rowe, Frank Clarkson, the mail carrier who admitted rifling letters, is being held at Jersey City pending a hearing this week. Government inspectors are still in the city going over his route in order to learn just how far his pilfering has extended.

In his statement to Inspector Cortelyou and Chief Kiely, Saturday, Clarkson said that he had opened altogether five letters and the most he had gotten out of anyone was $40. To whom this belonged or whether it was going or coming out of the city the authorities would not say.

The inspectors have also been enquiring into Clarkson's conduct and they find that he has lost heavily at poker and also that of late he had been drinking heavily, although it was always while off duty and his superiors knew nothing of it.

IN HIS 100TH YEAR DANIEL M'CARTHY DIES

HAD NEVER BEEN ILL A DAY IN HIS LIFE.

He had never been ill a day in his life.

Mr. McCarthy was born in Ballymore, County Cork, Ireland, and he came to this country with his family fifty-three years ago and settled in this city, where he continued to live until his death. He has lived in retirement for thirty-five years.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Annie O'Keefe, with whom he lived; three grandsons, Edward McCarthy, James and John O'Keefe, and four granddaughters, Mrs. Daniel Courain, of Jersey City; the Misses Elizabeth and Helen O'Keefe and Mamie McCarthy, of this city.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 from the late home in West Sixth street, and at 10 o'clock from St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass will be said. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Comedy at Casino.

"My Friend Hogan," presented at the Casino Saturday night, proved to be an amusing farce comedy and was enjoyed afternoon and evening by small audiences. The play abounds in comical situations and the music is a feature. Miss Taylor, commonly known as "Baby Taylor," and a one time resident of this city, was the main attraction. The girl is only ten years of age, and considering that fact is remarkable. She was enthusiastically applauded in her three songs. "Every country loves its flag," "Coax me" and "He was a sailor."

LIQUOR CAUSED THREE CRIMES

Rev. Dr. Schenck Says Drink Incited Two Recent Murders and One Assault.

LOCAL SITUATION

Tells Voters That Mayor's Commendation Does Not Give Character to Saloon—Protest Against Excise Commission.

In Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, the pastor, preached on the text "So Mightily Grew the Word of God and Prevailed," Acts 19-20, and referred at length to the liquor question. After speaking of the method of growth he alluded to the force against which it prevailed. In the opposition of the craftsmen of Ephesus whose ubsiness was in danger by the success of the Gospel he found a type of a present day obstacle to the growth of the Gospel in the liquor traffic. He then referred in no unkind but still in no uncertain language to some recent happenings in the community.

He said that the saloon was known by its fruits and it required more than the indiscreet commendation of the Mayor of a city to give it character.

Rev. Dr. Schenck drew attention to the fact that if the Dairymple bill becomes a law, Mayor Buckle will have power to name three excise commissioners who will have sole jurisdiction in liquor license matters. We all know what kind of a man he is on this subject, said he, from what he said on the floor of the Common Council. It was pointed out by the minister that Mr. Buckle could appoint whom he choosed and that there would likely be as many saloons in the city as there were requests for them.

"The saloon is a menace to the highest welfare of a town and a moral and social plague. It is the prolific sower of poverty, suffering, disorder and crime," said he.

Dr. Schenck called particular attention to the relation of the saloon to the two murders and the murderous assaults in this vicinity. "Several negroes maliciously and feloniously attacked the borough marshals," he remarked. "They were drunk—made drunk or still more drunk by the saloons of this city and borough. Next Friday these men who have been adjudged guilty will come up for sentence before the very court by whom, practically, an all-night license was granted to sell and that for a most insignificant fee.

"The Common Council of North Plainfield and the Grand Jury of Somerset County, the latter composed of men of most unexceptionable character, have presented the exact state of affairs to the court and no relief has been yet granted. Cramer, who was made a brute by the rum he drank, was murdered by his brother-in-law, who now awaits trial on the charge of murder. The latter will be tried by the same court which granted the licenses to the saloons and hotels whose rum dehumanized Cramer.

"A pistol shot rings out over the peaceful valley of Washingtonville," said he, "and a soul is ushered into the presence of God without the privilege of a final prayer, and a young wife is plunged into widowhood to fight life's hard battle alone. The Prosecutor of Pleas, the press and the public are said to be at their wits end to discover a motive for so heinous a crime. I ask may there not possibly be a closer connection between that drink of whiskey which Wood took in the saloon in the notch and the murder of Williams than we have been disposed to grant? If drunk, Wood is not guiltless, because the law holds that drunkenness is no excuse for crime. The legal responsibility of the murderer must be determined by the courts. But, my friends, does no moral responsibility attach to the dealer who sells the wretched stuff and to the community who permits him to sell that which is such a prolific source of crime?"

Dr. Schenck also referred to the excise bill now before the Legislature which transfers the power of granting licenses in cities of our class from the Common Council to a commission of three to be appointed by the Mayor. He condemned the measure as being in the interest of the liquor traffic, and because it committed an unwarranted power to three men who are not directly amenable to the voters. He advised all men of the congregation to write to their representatives in the Assembly and Senate and protest against its passage.

TRIP THROUGH SWEDEN DESCRIBED BY A NATIVE

CHARLES HAGER GIVES INTERESTING LECTURE ON "PENINSULA COUNTRY."

Under the auspices of the Swedish Lutheran church, an interesting lecture was given Saturday night in the lodge rooms at the Coward building by Charles Hager, a native of Sweden, on the subject, "A Trip Through Sweden." The hall was well filled and the address delighted those who are interested in the "Peninsula Country."

Mr. Hager dwelt briefly upon the history of Sweden, referring to the fact that it is not as well known as many countries. He told something of the nature of the land, with its chain of mountains running through the middle, dividing it from Norway, and a series of stereopticon views, some of which he had secured with his own camera, was shown.

A portion of his lecture was taken up by a brief outline of the characteristics of the natives, and their habits and costumes. To most of the audience, this part of the lecture was familiar as many of Mr. Hager's countrymen were present.

WORKMAN RUN DOWN BY TRAVELING CRANE

BADLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT AT THE POND TOOL WORKS FOUNDRY.

Marte Bonne, an Italian living at 1084 West Third street, and employed as a laborer in the foundry at the Pond Machine Tool Works, had a narrow escape from being killed late Saturday afternoon. He was busy closing the windows in the top on the foundry, when the operator of the large electric crane started to run it back to its regular position for the night. It was not known that anyone was in the upper part of the building, until the shrieks and cries of the man were heard. The crane was stopped at once, but not quick enough to save Bonne.

The Italian was caught between the crane and the side of the building, resulting in a fracture of the left leg and the right ankle. He was caught in such a manner that it required several minutes to extricate him and it was necessary to take him through a window and lower him on the outside of the building, where the ambulance, which had been summoned, waited to take him to the hospital. While the Italian's condition is serious it is believed he will recover. Bonne is unmarried and has been employed at Pond's for a long time.

LITERARY.

Everybody's Magazine for March comes out with a blow at the Beef Trust—timed to a nicety with the recent decision of the Supreme Court. Charles Edward Russell, one of the best known and most forceful of our writers, shows, in his second instalment of "The Greatest Trust in the World," the source of the Trust in the refrigerator-car: "The Bandit of Commerce," as he calls it. He exposes in logical, virile style the system of mileage and icing charges by which the Beef Trust has driven every competitor from the commercial field. Mr. Russell's story is clear as crystal. The reader sees as through plate glass the marvelous workings of the greedy monopoly.

Aside from its usual assortment of bright short stories, the March number of Pearson's Magazine includes eight special articles, four of which are particularly timely. The most important of these is "The Poisons We Eat in Foods," by Dr. H. W. Wiley, Chief of the Department of Chemistry, U. S. Bureau of Agriculture. In this article Dr. Wiley tells the results of the experiments carried on up to date with his famous volunteer "poison squad," the Government employes who are submitting to a diet of adulterated foods to enable science to determine the deleterious effects on the human system. "Galveston, the City Reclaimed," tells of the wonderful engineering feat which in four brief years has enabled the flood-ridden city to rise from wreck and ruin to a model town of beauty and municipal reform. "McClusky, New York's ex-Chief of Detectives," tells of the stirring incidents in the career of George McClusky, the pupil and successor of the famous Inspector Byrnes. "How Root Won the Six-Day Bicycle Race" is the inside story of how the recent endurance race in Madison Square Garden was won by a ruse.

NEW HAVEN SITUATION.

Railway Firemen Give Committee Power to Declare a Strike.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 20.—No strike of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad will be declared except as the weapon of last resort to secure recognition by the company as a body of those members of the order who are engineers. This in effect was the announcement made by Second Vice Grand Master Timothy Shea last night, at the close of what was practically an all day session of the adjustment committee of the brotherhood called to discuss the situation and to count the ballots recently cast on the question of giving the committee full power to act in event of failure of negotiations between the grievance committee and the officers of the road.

According to Mr. Shea, the ballot was the largest ever cast on any question by the brotherhood of this system, and it is overwhelmingly in favor of giving the committee full authority to act as it sees fit. The figures are not given out. Mr. Shea says they are something to which the public is not entitled and to parade them out now would mean to lessen the effectiveness of the demand of the firemen. He said that the percentage was so large in the affirmative as to surprise the members of the committee.

Mr. Shea in an interview said that the committee pins its faith in the suggestion of arbitration made to it by a "great financial power close to the management of the road" and that as the officers of the company in an informal way had signified their willingness to give full consideration of the proposed plan it was a determined fact that there could be no strike this week.

Mr. Shea and a subcommittee have left for New York to resume discussion of the plan of arbitration now proposed, and before they return the plan will be arranged in all its details, it is expected, and formally laid before the officers of the railroad company. So sanguine is Mr. Shea that the new plan will prove a solution of the problem that he thinks the acute stage will have been passed by midweek and the firemen will be satisfied with what has been agreed upon.

WORK OF BANDITS.

Railway Blown Up In Attempt to Cut Russian Lines.

HARBIN, Feb. 20.—A party of Japanese and Chinese bandits destroyed the abutment of the railway near Yaomyn, 100 miles distant from here, early yesterday morning, but the damage was all repaired in a few hours. Frontier guards heard an explosion at 3:40 o'clock and found that a charge of gun cotton had been exploded against the abutment. Two telegraph poles were also destroyed. An unexploded charge of gun cotton was found 400 feet from the place where the explosion occurred. Traffic on the railway has been resumed.

These attempts on the railway are believed to have been made to cover movements of large bodies of Chinese bandits across Mongolia.

A service was held in the cathedral here yesterday in memory of Grand Duke Sergius. Military, civil and railroad officials were present.

Field Marshal Oyama reports that the Russians are continuing their defensive work in all directions. They continued to shell portions of the Japanese line on Friday. On the same day they essayed a small infantry attack, but were repulsed.

President's Trip to the West.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—President Roosevelt is in daily receipt of urgent requests from prominent men in various towns of the west who wish to entertain him on his trip to Texas and Colorado. The president expects to confine his sojourn in Colorado to recreation and hunting. Just how long the president will remain in Colorado has not been definitely settled, but if the public business does not prevent he will be in the mountains five or six weeks. The camp will be located in one of the most inaccessible regions in the southwestern part of the state.

Revolt In Guatemala Expected Soon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—It is reported that a revolution in Guatemala is likely in the near future. At Tapachula, Mexico, close to the Guatemalan border, part of the revolutionary army is said to be awaiting developments. On a big coffee plantation at Tapachula there are 2,000 men, ostensibly laborers, but in reality soldiers, well armed and drilled, and ready at a moment's notice to march into Guatemala and take the field against Cabrera.

Aged Lutheran Pastor Dead.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 20.—The Rev. Christian Lepley, aged ninety-three years, one of the oldest Lutheran ministers in the country, died at the home of his daughter in this city last night. He was a graduate of one of the first classes of the Gettysburg Theological seminary and preached for many years at Lewiston, Pa., Cumberland, Md., and Williamsburg, Md.

Hailstorm at Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 20.—A cold rain is falling here, freezing on the wires and trees as it falls and threatening a repetition of the disastrous sleet storms of the past two weeks. Unless conditions change communication with the outside world may be interfered with again.

Chief Got a Diamond Badge.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 20.—At the Broezel House, Buffalo, last night, the special police force of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company presented their chief, William A. Humphreys, with a gold police badge set with diamonds, valued at about $1,000.

ROMANOFFS HIDING.

Assassination of Sergius May Stop War In Far East.

KAISER SENDS REQUEST TO CZAR

Increasing Difficulties at Home Will Lead Russian Government to Call a Halt in Manchuria—Roosevelt Sends Condolence.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 20.—A Berlin dispatch says that in a letter from Emperor William which Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia presented to the czar on his arrival here the wish was expressed that peace soon be concluded between Russia and Japan.

Strong influences for a speedy peace are headed by M. Witte, president of the committee of ministers, who has been working quietly in this direction. General Gripenberg's revelations, followed by the murder of the Grand Duke Sergius, in the opinion of some of the ablest diplomats here are not unlikely to lead the emperor definitely to seek for peace.

In diplomatic circles it is said that Emperor William has undertaken peace negotiations in some form, although the few persons in a position to know naturally decline to furnish any information on the subject.

The opinion is quite generally expressed that the late horrible tragedy may be followed by a decision of the Russian government to conclude peace.

For some time, despite the official attitude maintained by the government, there has been a growing appreciation of the difficulties of prosecuting the war in the midst of increasing complications at home, and the matter has been the subject of formal consideration by the emperor and his ministers at a cabinet meeting.

Emperor Nicholas has received through Ambassador McCormick a message of condolence from President Roosevelt, which contains a strong expression of the abhorrence with which both the American government and people view the crime perpetrated at Moscow.

It has been decided that the remains of Grand Duke Sergius will not be brought to St. Petersburg for the present, but instead will be placed on Thursday next in a temperary receiving vault of the cloister of the Chaudoff monastery at Moscow.

Governor General Trepoff has recognized the fact that no precautions can furnish an absolute guarantee of immunity against an act of terrorism, and at a great state funeral, where ancient custom requires that the emperor and all of the Romanoff family assemble and follow the coffin on foot, a single bomb might wipe out the dynasty. Regard for the personal safety of the sovereign also has led to the decision that the emperor shall not go to Moscow to attend the funeral of his uncle. It is possible that no members of the imperial family will be present on that occasion except those who are now within the walls of the kremlin. Grand Dukes Constantine and Paul probably will represent the emperor at the service.

So grave is the danger of a repetition of the Moscow tragedy that several of the grand dukes have not stirred out of their palaces since the murder, and instead of going to Tsarskoe-Selo to attend the requiem there they have participated in special services held in the chapels of their own palaces. This was the case as regards the Grand Dukes Vladimir and Alexis. A special requiem also was held in the Winter palace for Governor General Trepoff, who is known to be under sentence by the fighting organization of the Social Revolutionists and who, so far as can be ascertained, has not left his quarters in the palace since the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius.

The strike situation has again grown menacing, especially in the matter of the railroads, three of which entering Moscow are almost completely tied up. In St. Petersburg the strike has assumed the form of a lockout, the Putiloff Iron works, the Franco-Russian works, the Russian-American Rubber works and a few smaller concerns having discharged all their employees, with the notice that the works will be shut down indefinitely.

The assassin of Sergius remains persistently silent. His identity has not yet been established, and, although the police have been investigating diligently, they have been unable to gather up the threads of the plot or find any clews to possible accomplices. The assassin's papers and clothes offer no means of identification, and his pass evidently was forged and appears never to have been vised.

Revolutionary literature is being distributed broadcast throughout the capital and is to be picked up in offices and factories, where it can be scattered unobserved. These pamphlets assert that dissatisfaction is fast spreading in the army.

A telegram from Svehun reports a serious riot, workmen wrecking the house of a suspected political informer. In the fight between the rioters and the police one of the former was killed, and several, including a policeman, were wounded.

Pittsfield Block Destroyed.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 20.—Fire here has destroyed the Whittlesey-Sabin block, a three story brick structure, occupied by manufacturers, on Cottage row, causing a loss of $30,000. Half of the loss falls upon the Pittsfield Spark Coil company.

SOUTHBRIDGE Mass., Feb. 20.—Herman Stanley Cheney, a capitalist of this town, has lost by theft or otherwise papers having a face value of $285,000.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Harry Silberberg, an International Crook, Captured.

POSED AS J. COLEMAN DRAYTON.

Played Confidence Game In Pennsylvania, Mexico, Germany, Russia, China and Korea—Married Under False Name.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Harry Silberberg, who has a score of aliases, a swindler who has found his prey in three continents and whose greatest exploit was his impersonation at different times of J. Coleman Drayton, a lawyer of this city and son-in-law of Mrs. William Astor, is held here on the orders of Acting Inspector O'Brien of the detective bureau. The arrest has some connection with a swindling game of large proportions even for Silverberg and that was to reach its climax today, when the prisoner was to receive $50,000 from one of his latest dupes.

Silberberg at one time hired a private car and, with several accomplices, went to Lancaster, Pa., and other Pennsylvania towns ostensibly as a promoter for the "Arizona Consolidated Mining company," which was later found to have existed only in the literature which the supposed "J. Coleman Drayton" issued about it. He gained the confidence of many wealthy Pennsylvanians, including J. F. Pardee and H. C. Frick. He addressed the prospective investors in "Arizona Consolidated" at a meeting in Lancaster, at which great enthusiasm was raised for a while in the supposed mine. Unfortunately for the expected coup knowledge of the airy character of the property began to leak out, and Silverberg disappeared.

He was heard of next in Germany, where he became acquainted with members of the nobility, and when they feted him handsomely he returned their hospitality by swindling them right and left. He was in jail in Munich for awhile, but through some influence he was pardoned.

He appeared next in Mexico, and after repeating his tactics of getting acquainted with well to do people and then swindling them he was put in jail there too.

He then went to St. Petersburg, where he married a Russian countess, and, according to his confession, he stole her money and jewels and deserted her.

China was his next hunting ground, and, after finding good pickings there, he moved on to Korea, where he was received with open arms by the emperor. For awhile he talked of establishing a railroad company in Korea, and he represented himself there as a nephew of J. Coleman Drayton. His wonderful projects for the extension and improvement of the possessions of his friend the emperor fell flat, however, when he decamped with as much of the emperor's funds as he had been able to get.

Silberberg, under the alias of J. J. Carlisle, last year at Minneapolis, Minn., married Miss Bonnie Hinkle, stepdaughter of a millionaire lumberman of Minneapolis, and was arrested in Washington while on his wedding tour charged with swindling a Minneapolis stenographer out of several hundred dollars. He was in jail there for several months, and then, on the plea that he was dying of consumption, secured his release on $1,000 bail, which he forfeited. The case against him there is said to have been compromised.

Miss Hinkle secured a divorce and restoration of her maiden name. Silberberg's mother is said to be wealthy.

Gaynor-Greene Case to Be Reopened.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The department of justice has received a copy of the decision of the judicial committee of the English privy council in the Gaynor-Greene case. The decision was favorable to the United States government and will result in a reopening of the extradition proceedings in the Canadian courts against Messrs. Gaynor and Greene, who are technically charged with obtaining government money under false pretenses.

Symnes Block at Denver Burned.

DENVER, Feb. 20. — The Symnes block, a three story structure occupied by stores and offices, has been destroyed by fire here, entailing a loss estimated at $300,000. The heaviest losers are the Great Leader Department store, $125,000, and Symnes estate, owning the building, $100,000.

Sigsbee Says All Quiet at Domingo.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Rear Admiral Sigsbee, commanding the Caribbean squadron, with headquarters at Monte Cristi, reports that everything is quiet in Santo Domingo. Affairs there, he adds, are progressing in a satisfactory manner.

Virginia Colonel Dead.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 20.—Colonel C. A. Nash is dead of heart failure at Pinehurst, N. C. He was the head of one of the largest building supply houses in the south and was formerly colonel of the old Fourth Virginia infantry.

New Orleans Offices Burned.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 20.—The top floors of the Nacheca office building here has been gutted by fire. The fire started near the elevator shaft among some waste, and many offices were swept. The loss was $150,000.

Detroit Steel Plant Burned.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 20.—Fire here has almost entirely destroyed the plant of the Detroit Steel Casting company, causing a loss of between $80,000 and $100,000. Two hundred and twenty-five men are thrown out of work.

IN UNCLE SAM'S ARMY

Son of British Peer Enlisted Man at Fort Slocum.

WOULD SEE SERVICE IN PHILIPPINES

Late Officer In English Fusileer Regiment, In Search of Employment, Dons the Blue Uniform In New York and Will Stay.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Now enlisted as a private in the American army at Fort Slocum, near here, is the Hon. Arthur Reginald French, eldest son of the Baron de Freyne of County Sligo, Ireland, for whom the British consulate, the city detective force and a private detective bureau of New York have been searching for three days.

Lieutenant French, who was on his departure from England an officer in the reserves, arrived at New York Jan. 16, registered at the Hotel St. Denis and three days later disappeared. Last Thursday Mr. Clive-Bayley, the English consul, received a letter of inquiry from Captain William French of New Mexico, an uncle of the missing man, and on Friday the police were asked to send out a general alarm. It did not require much investigation to learn that the British officer had enlisted as a private in the United States army and was stationed at Fort Slocum, on David's island.

"I enlisted because I had a pretty strong notion of doing so when I left home," said Private French when interviewed in his barracks. "I had an idea of going up to Canada and joining the mounted police up there in the northwest, but the more I heard and thought about that country and its 40 degrees below zero the less I liked it. So I enlisted in the American army, and here I am. What's more, I like it.

"I came out here nominally with the idea of going on my uncle's ranch in New Mexico—Captain French, I mean. You see, I have to do something. My private income won't answer to live on. I've got to do something, and soldiering is the only thing I know how to do.

"I wish I might see some service too. That is why I liked the American army. I am hoping our regiment may be sent out to the Philippines. I'd like to go there.

"I didn't make any particular mystery about my enlistment. I had a few acquaintances in New York, men I had met on the steamer coming over. I went around to see them and told them I was going to enlist. So one day I went to a recruiting office in New York and enlisted, and that is all there is to it.

"As to leaving the service, I want to say that I like the service and have not the remotest intention of leaving it. This is a fine place up here. I like it very much. The men are good fellows, and the officers know their business. I have seen enough of soldiering to know that."

Private French is now twenty-six years old. His father, Lord de Freyne, late colonel of the Connaught rangers, is a peer of the United Kingdom and the fourth of the line. His seat is Frenchpark, Roscommon, and his estate covers 39,000 acres.

By Ice Cream Freezer Method.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 20.—Godofredo del Rio, a Spanish jeweler of this city, has confessed that he is the person who attempted to defraud the revenue department by smuggling jewels and valuable gold watches in an ice cream freezer which was delivered at Vera Cruz on his arriving from Europe. He says the plot was hatched between himself and a jeweler in Paris, who advised him to play the trick on the Mexican customs officials. Twenty thousand dollars' worth of goods were found in the bottom of the freezer. These were confiscated.

Senator Tillman's Condition.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 20.—Senator Tillman has reached his home at Trenton after a brief stay in Philadelphia under treatment of specialists. The Philadelphia physicians confirmed the diagnoses of his personal physician, Dr. J. W. Babcock, that Senator Tillman is suffering from grip poisoning affecting one of his nerves. The throat trouble from which the senator suffered has been entirely relieved, and the specialists agree that the senator's general condition is excellent.

Congress Honored Quay's Memory.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Sitting in special session the house of representatives yesterday conducted memorial services in tribute to the memory of the late Senator Matthew Stanley Quay of Pennsylvania. Mr. Dalzell presided. Seven members eulogized Mr. Quay's life and character. The remarks were particularly expressive of the esteem in which he was held and extolled him as a man, as a useful public servant and an organizer of wonderful ability.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 20, 1905.

Report that Senator Childs' dinner in honor of the Governor and Senate of New Jersey will be held in one of his own restaurants is untrue. The Hotel Astor is good enough for him.

Knowledge of the law, strict business methods and impartial action are three essential requirements in filling the judgeship of Somerset county. Judge Lewis H. Schenck's term expires in April and we know of no one better qualified to succeed him than Charles A. Reed, whose friends have already launched a boom for him.

Ever since Music Hall was closed we have been hearing how much a theatre is really needed here. It is claimed that such an undertaking would prove a paying venture and that all that Plainfield people want is a suitable opera house and good shows. Now an opportunity is given to really see what demand there is here for high class performances. The Casino stage was enlarged a short time ago and it is now as big as that of the Princess Theatre. The accommodations of the house are ample and it is a cosy place. So much for that. On Saturday afternoon Miss Jessie Millward is billed to appear there, supported by a strong company. She is too well known to theatre-goers to need any introduction, having been with Sir Henry Irving and with Charles Frohman's companies. Since then she has appeared as a star with much success. When we see the size of the audience at her performances we will be able to judge just how much there is in all this theatre talk.

THE FORUM.

Saloon Agitation.

Editor, The Daily Press:

What an honor to the Mayor of the City of Plainfield, to wish to place fire-water so conveniently near to the poor man's dwelling place, that he shall be tempted to spend his wages for drink, and oblige the city to support of his family; while he, the Mayor, goes to those places to give them an example to follow by drinking with them.

From a lady who would wish all men, rich and poor, to be kept from the habit that leads to dishonor and ruin. Mrs. Alma C. Randolph.

Editor, The Daily Press:

At various times we see and hear of the advantage one has in being a resident of Plainfield and of the advantages one enjoys in being under a city government which tries to make the taxpayer, from the lowest to the highest, feel that something is always being done for his welfare and benefit. Never before has this come home more forcibly than lately. My business very often takes me over to New Brunswick and since the heavy snow of January, the snow in the main streets has simply been pushed toward the gutters by the trolley company and back by ones cleaning the sidewalks, and today it lays in two long piles three to four feet deep on each side of the street just out of line of cars. For wagons or sleighs to go over them is impossible and thus the only way is to go on car tracks and if a stop is necessary the street is blocked until the driver sees fit to move. Such a condition of things would not be tolerated for a moment in our town and once more I must sound the note of pleasure and gain in being allowed the privilege of a residence here. May the good work keep up and citizens realize to note our privileges and benefits and join us.

FORMER DRUNKARD TELLS OF CONVERSION

S. H. HADLEY, OF JERRY M'AULEY MISSION, SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

S. H. Hadley, superintendent of the Old Jerry McAuley Mission in Water street, New York, was the speaker at the meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Hall yesterday afternoon, and related to a large audience the experience of his conversion from a drunkard to a mission worker.

Mr. Hadley gave an accurate account of his conversion, and also told of the work accomplished by him since then in the mission in New York. It was through the Jerry McAuley Mission that Mr. Hadley first became converted, and it is there that he has since worked and aided in turning thousands of souls from darkness and drunkenness into salvation.

Features of the meeting were solos by Miss Mildred Till, of the Rook Concert Company, and instrumental selections by the Sagamore Musical Club.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The "sale" gotten up by the High School class of the Scotch Plains public school under the leadership of Miss Louise T. Nichell, for the benefit of the Scotch Plains Public Library, was held in the Library rooms on Monday, February 13, kept as Lincoln's Birthday. Although the weather was far from propitious, the children and their friends rallied in force, and the modest little enterprise proved to be a success. The Library rooms were tastefully draped with the Stars and Stripes, hiding the bookcases and the tables with their bright colored contents were very attractive. The "sale" netted the sum of $78.60, for which amount a check has been sent to the treasurer of the Library to be disposed of as may be determined by the association.

The concert of the Plainfield Symphony Orchestra at the Baptist church tonight promises to be a rare musical treat and will no doubt be well attended by the lovers of music in town and the borough. At the close of the musical programme a social hour will be enjoyed in the church parlors.

Washington's Birthday will be fittingly observed tomorrow afternoon at the public school at 1 o'clock. A pleasing programme appropriate to the day has been prepared and will be enjoyed by the scholars and a number of the friends of the school.

The roadbed and sidewalks through town are at an even level, caused by the gutters being packed with ice and snow. The residents are dreading a too sudden a breaking up of winter as it means flooded cellars and other damage.

ELECTRIC ENGINE ABLAZE.

Sparks From Burning Locomotive Destroyed Five Barns.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 20.—The big electrical locomotive built for the New York Central terminal service was nearly totally destroyed by a fire at the substation at Hoffman's Ferry, four miles west of this city, last night.

The fire started from an overheated stove in an adjoining shed, and the flames spread rapidly, destroying everything inflammable in the locomotive, and the high wind which prevailed carried sparks to the farm buildings owned by James Wyatt, a quarter of a mile away, destroying five barns in which fifteen cows were burned to death.

The locomotive is the only one of the kind in existence, and, although motors, armatures and wires were melted, the big machine will be overhauled and put in running shape at once.

The accident to the locomotive will delay the final tests which were to have been held this week.

MIDSHIPMAN DROPPED DEAD.

Son of Naval Surgeon Battle Died of Heart Disease.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 20.—Midshipman Samuel Westray Battle of the second class at the Naval academy and a son of Surgeon Samuel W. Battle, U. S. N., of Asheville, N. C., dropped dead as the brigade of midshipmen were called to dinner formation shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday. Young Battle had just taken his place as third petty officer of the Second battalion's ninth company, when he was stricken with heart failure. He fell before any one reached him and was dead when picked up by his mates.

Midshipman Battle entered the academy in August, 1902, from Asheville and was twenty-one years old. He was an oarsman and pulled stroke in last year's varsity eight at the academy, but did not become a candidate for the crew this season.

WILL NOT VISIT FRANCE.

Report Regarding Crown Prince and His Fiancee Discredited.

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—A story published in the United States to the effect that it was reported here that in consequence of differences between Crown Prince Frederick William and his fiancee, the Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, their engagement would be broken off is discredited here in usually well informed circles.

The crown prince and the duchess have been visiting Florence recently, but Saturday the duchess went to Cannes on account of the illness of her mother, Archduchess Anastasia. Frederick William did not accompany her on the journey because he thought it would be injudicious for him to visit France.

The crown prince and his suite arrived here last night.

Detroit and Philadelphia seem to be the only cities outside of Milwaukee mentioned for the next congress.

Following are the scores of the five leading teams: Schindlers, Chicago, 2,707; Edelweiss, Chicago, 2,640; Stars, Peoria, 2,638; Schreiners, Dubuque, 2,632; Ames, Ames, Ia., 2,620.

ENGINEER MURDERED.

Mysterious Crime on Sound Steamer Larchmont.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 20.—John A. Hart, an engineer employed last summer on H. H. Rogers' power boat, the Vixen, was murdered on the Joy line steamer Larchmont while a passenger from New York to this city on Saturday nigh..

The murder was not discovered until yesterday afternoon, when, after all the other passengers had left the steamer, the stewards in making their rounds found Hart's stateroom still occupied and the door locked.

The door was forced, and the body was found in the upper berth with a bullet wound in the neck under the left cheek bone. A blanket had been thrown over the head. The body was clothed in undergarments, but the outside clothing of the man was missing from the room. No weapon was found in the stateroom, while a watch and chain, a ring and a considerable sum of money which the dead man was known to have possessed had been taken.

The matter was reported to the police here, and Medical Examiner Jay Perkins later held an autopsy, finding that the man was murdered and the motive probably robbery. He said the wound could not have been self inflicted. He believed death had been instantaneous.

The police believe that the murderer escaped immediately upon the landing of the boat here at noon and had a good start before the body was discovered. They are trying to locate a man who is said to have acted strangely on the boat and to have attracted the attention of several of the crew by his nervous behavior and his repeated inquiries as to whether the boat would reach this city in time for him to catch the 12:07 train for Boston.

Hart was twenty-five years of age and the son of Lorin P. Hart of this city and was on his way to visit his father. He was a native of this state and had worked in various places in this city. Since last November he had been employed as a fireman on the Pratt Astral Oil company's tug No. 7. He communicated with his father here regularly and made frequent trips to this city. So far as known he was not acquainted with any of his fellow passengers. No disturbance was heard on board the boat during the night, and nothing out of the ordinary attracted the attention of the crew.

CALL STOESSEL COWARD.

Russian Officer at Victoria Scores Their Late Commander.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 20.—Aboard the steamer Tartar, which has arrived here, were Lieutenants Below and Bondy, officers of the Russian battleship Sevastopol, captured at the fall of Port Arthur. They were released by the Japanese after giving their parole. The captain of the Sevastopol and a number of other prisoners recently released are expected to reach San Francisco shortly.

Lieutenant Below characterizes General Stoessel as a coward. "The world will know Stoessel as he is," said Below. "He is a coward. Stoessel was burrowed a great deal of the time in a cave. The real heroine was Mme. Zouhoneli, who, when her husband was killed, took command of a battery of three eleven-inch guns at a point commanding the water supply and held them until she was also killed.

"The garrison was deceived by false reports of the approach of Kuropatkin's army and the Baltic fleet."

Other Russian officers had no criticism of General Stoessel or the conduct of the defense of Port Arthur beyond the fact that the Russian fleet was undermanned and had not a sufficient supply of ammunition when the war began. Port Arthur, they said, would have fallen the latter part of August had it not been for the strengthening of the land forces with guns and men from the fleet.

"General Stoessel," said Captain von Essen, "is a brave soldier, a great general and a true patriot. He held out to the last minute. He had plenty of ammunition certainly, but I never heard of an army which could live on ammunition. Lack of food was the main reason for the surrender. There were not more than 10,000 ablebodied soldiers in the garrison when it was surrendered."

Scranton Coal Man Dead.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 20. — J. L. Crawford, president of the People's Coal company, is dead at his winter home in Indian River, Fla. He was one of the best known men in the anthracite trade and won no little distinction among the operators during the last strike by keeping the company's colliery, the Oxford, working practically full handed during the whole duration of the strike.

Congregational Church Burned.

OXFORD, Mass., Feb. 20.—Fire that started from the furnace was discovered in the Congregational church during the forenoon service yesterday. The congregation got out without disturbance and then moved as much of the furniture out as possible. The church was damaged about $8,000.

Newport Still Icebound.

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 20.—The ice conditions in the inner harbor show no improvement, many craft being still imprisoned in the ice, while the gunboat launches have been replaced by the gunboat Hist on the trips between the torpedo station and Long wharf.

Major Hiram Smith Dead.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 20. — Major Hiram Smith, member of the assembly in 1859 and 1860, Democratic candidate for congress in the Thirty-fourth New York district in 1884 and 1890, is dead here at the age of eighty-six years.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

Spring Hats This Year Are More Attractive Than Ever.

The new spring hats are the prettiest seen for many a long day. Quaint picture affairs and poke bonnets of ye olden times are to be worn. There is one model christened the "Mistress Kitty Bellairs," an exact reproduction of the fascinating hat trimmed with nodding feathers worn by that bewitching little flirt in the play which bears her name.

A dainty poke is made of leghorn faced with a soft pink fluff of chiffon and trimmed with pink roses and long pink streamers that tie in a coquettish fashion at the left of the chin.

Lace hats of Irish crochet dyed to match the costume are to be popular. The trimming blends perfectly with the body color of the hat. The trimming is often a mass of blossoms, shading from lightest to the darkest tones in the hat.

A lovely opera bag is made with a quarter of a yard of moire silk cut into two square or oblong pieces. One piece is embroidered in a graceful design of flowers, or the monogram is worked in silk surrounded with an empire wreath. The wreath is very attractive embroidered in gold or silver bullion or in tiny beads of many colors.

A very useful and at the same time elegant opera bag is made of cloth of gold, with a monogram done in heavy gold bullion. The bag is lined with old gold satin and mounted in a metal frame of yellow gold.

The demiseason hat in the cut is of black malines draped in soft folds about the sharply upturned brim. Small white ostrich feathers surround the crown.

TOILET ACCESSORIES.

Ribbon Is a Prominent Dress Trimming—New Collar and Cuffs.

A new and dainty neck trimming is made of val lace. An inch wide piece of the lace is gathered on one edge of a half inch band of swiss. On the other edge of the band is a ruffle of half inch lace. Overlaying the swiss band is a beading through which is run black velvet ribbon.

Quite the latest cult in collar and cuff sets are those of lace embroidered in pompadour roses of ribbon. The collar is rather deep and develops into a tablike piece in front. The cuffs are built on the same lines.

Ribbon is playing a conspicuous part in the present modes. A suede belt, for instance, is made exceedingly swagger by forming the buckle of ribbon roses.

Some rather eccentric veils are shown edged with fur. Unless the fur is of the same shade as the "beautifier" itself the effect is not becoming.

A quantity of hand stitchery is employed on the newest frocks. So exquisitely combined is this work with lace and chiffon that it is hard to believe any but fairy fingers could produce it.

The spring gown seen in the cut is of mode voile. This material lends itself in the most graceful fashion to the gathered skirts and full bodices now worn. The skirt is gathered about a rounded yoke piped at the joining edge with brown velvet. At the knee are a bouillonne and ruffle of voile. The bodice hangs full from an indented yoke which opens in front surplice fashion. A fold of velvet brings out the exquisite little vest and collar of linen embroidery. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Among the Women

Female Extremists—The Shade Shows the Character—The Art of Contrast

Why does lovely woman rush to extremes? If she goes in for society, she has no time for anything else. If she loves animals, behold, she provides herself with a menagerie. If she goes in for woman's rights, she is more mannish than the men themselves. If she sighs for a career, people have to hear about nothing except that career morning, noon and night.

The other evening at a dinner a very charming woman came in wearing a black gown covered with what appeared to be royal decorations. Closer observation showed that they were whist trophies. There were ten of them, testifying to the lady's ability as a player and her devotion to the game.

"Yes, indeed," she gurgled on being questioned. "I play it in the morning before breakfast, all the forenoon before lunch and most of the afternoon till it's time to dress for dinner, and then I try to find congenial people for a nice evening game. I have a little arrangement of silk in which I keep my cards, and on the train there are sure to be enough people who play, so that I can make up a set. I recently had a most delightful journey and made several new friends in this manner, for we played nearly all the way from New York to Chicago." This indefatigable whist lover, by the way, is sixty-five years old!

A maiden lady from out of town who sat opposite felt somewhat left out of the conversation, and so she started out to tell what a fiend she was at fox hunting. "When you speak of playing all day, my dear," she remarked, with a little air of superiority, "I can't help remembering how we used to get up at 3 in the morning to go hunting and keep it up until long after dark. We would never think of going visiting without taking along, each of us, a pair of horses and a pair of dogs. In fact, we lived in our riding habits."

Colors and Character.

Have you ever noticed that the colors a woman wears are a pretty fair index to her disposition?

The lady of a colorless temperament delights in grays, dull blues and muddy shades of tan—in a word, those tones guaranteed to "go with everything" like the wearer. The imperious woman of warm imagination and vivid impulses dotes on crimson and reddish tones of every sort. The subtle woman mixes two or three odd shades in her costume in a way that you find bewitching. The very religiously inclined woman wears black and wears it soulfully.

Innocence has come to be associated with white and pale blue, and worldliness with pink and yellow, therefore the feminine actress who wishes to create either the one or the other impression robes herself accordingly.

There's more than dye that comes out of the dye pot!

Effective Feminine Diplomacy.

Nature often places a lovely flower in ugly surroundings in order to set off its beauty, and woman has learned her little lesson from nature. Observe the beauty making friend of the ugliest girl she knows and the clever woman accentuating intellect by comparison with her stupid sisters.

Here's a case in point. In a prominent woman's club recently the secretary, a very brilliant woman, was forced to resign on account of outside duties that could not be neglected. She was asked by the president to name some one who would be an able successor to her. Without a moment's hesitation she spoke warmly in favor of one of the least capable members of the club, a woman unable to write a single clever or even suitable line.

Why did she do it?

Watch the result. Every day she hears how her brilliancy is missed and that the club management will go to pieces if she does not return.

MAUD ROBINSON.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

It was well on in the summer, when the two divisions, east and west, were strewn with wreckage and the pit tracks in the shops and shop yard were filled to overflowing with crippled engines, that the insurrectionaries began to gather in their respective labor groups to discuss the growing hazards of railroading on the Trans-Western.

The outcome was a protest from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, addressed to the receiver in the name of the organization, setting forth in plain terms the grievance of the members, and charging it bluntly to bad management. This was followed immediately by similar complaints from the trainmen, the telegraphers and the firemen; all praying for relief from the incubus of incompetent leadership. Not to be behind these, came the Amalgamated Machinists, demanding an increase of pay for night work and overtime; and last, but not least, an intimation went forth from the Federative council of all these labor unions hinting at possible political consequences and the alienation of the labor vote if the abuses were not corrected.

"What d'ye calc'late the major will do about it?" said Brodrick, in the roundhouse conclave held daily by the trainmen who were hung up or off duty. "Will he listen to reason and give us a sure-enough railroad man or two at the top?"

"Not in ein 'tousand year," quoth "Dutch" Tischer, Callahan's alternate on the fast mail. "Haf you not de Arkoos been reading? It is bolotics from der beginning to der ent; mit der governor vorwarts."

"Then I am tellin' you-all right now there's goin' to be a heap o' trouble," drawled "Pike County" Griggs, the oldest engineer on the line. "The shopmen are b'ilin'; and if the major puts on that blanket cut in wages he's talkin' about—"

"'If,'" broke in Callahan, with fine scorn. "'Tis slaping on yer injuries ye are, Misther Griggs. The notice is out; 'twas posted in the shops this day."

"Then that settles it," said Griggs, gloomily. "When does it take hold?"

"The first day av the month to come. An' they're telling me it catches everybody, down to the missinger b'ys in the of'ces."

Griggs got upon his feet, yawning and stretching before he dropped back into his corner of the wooden settle.

"You lissen at me; if that's the fact, I'm telling you-all that every wheel on this blame', hoodooed railroad is goin' to stop turnin' at 12 o'clock on the night before that notice takes hold."

"Is Durgan with us?" asked Brodrick.

"He's wit himself, as a master mechanic shu'd be," said Callahan. So's M'Tosh. But nayther wan n'r t'other av thim'll take a thrain out whin the strike's on. They're both Loring min."

At the mention of Loring's name Griggs looked up from the stick he was whittling.

"No propects o' the Boston folks getting the road back again, I reckon," he remarked tentatively.

"You should read dose Arkoos newsbapers; den you should know sometings alretty, ain'd it?" said Tischer.

Brodrick laughed.

"If you see it in the papers, it's so," he quoted. "What the Argus doesn't say would make a 'nough sight bigger book than what it does. But I've been kind o' watchin' that man Kent. He's been hot after the major, right from the jump. You rec'lect what he said in them Civic league talks o' his; said these politicians had stole the road, hide, hair an' horns."

"I'm onto him," said Callahan. "'Tis a bird he is. Oleson was telling me. The Scandehoovian was thrying to get him down to Gaston the day they ray-ceivered us. Jarl says he wint a mile a minut', an' the little man never turned a hair."

"Is he here yet, or did he go back to God's country?" asked Engineer Scott, leaning from the cab window of the 1,031.

"He's here and so is Mr. Loring. They're stopping at the Clarendon," said Brodrick.

"Then they haven't quit," drawled Griggs, adding: "I wonder if they have a ghost of a show against the politicals?"

"Has anybody been to see 'em?" asked Callahan.

"There's a notion for you, Scott," said Brodrick. Scott was the presiding officer in the B. of L. E. local. "Get up a committee from the Federative to go and ask Mr. Loring if there's any use in our tryin' to hold on."

Now it fell out that these things happened on a day when the tide of retrieval was at its lowest ebb; the day, namely, in which Kent had told Loring that he was undecided as to his moral right to use the evidence against Bucks as a lever to pry the Trans-Western out of the grip of the junto. It befell, also, that it was the day chosen by two other men, not members of the labor unions, in which to call upon the ex-manager; and Loring found M'Tosh, the trainmaster, and Durgan, the master mechanic, waiting for him in the hotel corridor when he came in from a late luncheon at the Camelot club.

"Can you give us a few minutes, Mr. Loring?" asked M'Tosh, when Loring had shaken hands with them, not as subordinates.

"Surely. My time is not very valuable, just at present. Come in, and I'll see if Mr. Kent has left me any cigars."

"Humph!" said Durgan, when the ex-manager had gone into Kent's room to rummage for the smoke offering. "And they give us the major in the place of such a man as that!" with a jerk of his thumb toward the door of the bedroom.

"Come off!" warned M'Tosh; "he'll hear you." And when Loring came back with the cigars there was dry humor in his eye.

"You mustn't let your loyalty to the old guard get you into trouble with the receiver," he cautioned; and they both smiled.

"The trouble hasn't waited for our bringing," said M'Tosh. "That is why we are here. Durgan has soured on his job, and I'm more than sick of mine. It's hell, Mr. Loring. I have been at it 20 years, and I never saw such crazy railroading in any one of them."

"Bad management, you mean?"

"Bad management at the top, and rotten demoralization at the bottom as a natural consequence. We can't be sure of getting a train out of the yards without accident. Dixon is as careful a man as ever stepped on an engine, and he smashed a farmer's wagon and killed the farmer this morning within two train-lengths of the shop junction."

"I DON'T SAY WE WOULD SCRUPLE TO USE FORCE IF THERE WERE ANY WAY TO APPLY IT."

"Drunk?" inquired the ex-manager.

"Never a drop; Dixon's a prohibitionist, dyed in the wool. But just before he took his train, Halkett had him in the sweat-box, jacking him up for not making his time. He came out red in the face, jumped on his engine and yanked the Flyer down the yards 40 miles an hour."

"And what is your trouble, Durgan?" asked Loring.

"Another side of the same thing. I wrote Maj. Guilford yesterday, telling him that six pit gangs, all the roundhouse 'emergencies' and two outdoor repair squads couldn't begin to keep the cripples moving; and within a week every one of the labor unions has kicked through its grievance committee. His reply is an order announcing a blanket cut in wages, to go into effect the first of the month. That means a strike and a general tie-up."

Loring shook his head regretfully.

"It hurts me," he admitted. "We had the best-handled piece of railroad in the west, and I give the credit to the men that did the handling. And to have it wrecked by a gang of incompetent salary-grabbers—"

The two left-overs nodded.

"That's just it, Mr. Loring," said M'Tosh. "And we're here to ask you if it's worth while for us to stick to the wreck any longer. Are you folks doing anything?"

"We have been trying all legal means to break the grip of the combination—yes."

"And what are the prospects?" It was the master mechanic who wanted to know.

"They are not very bright at present, I must confess. We have the entire political ring to fight, and the odds are overwhelming."

"You say you've been trying 'legal means'," M'Tosh put in. "Can't we down them some other way? I believe you could safely count on the help of every man in the service, barring the politicals."

Loring smiled.

"I don't say we should scruple to use force if there were any way to apply it. But the way doesn't offer."

"I didn't know," said the trainmaster, rising to close the interview. "But if the time ever comes, all you or Mr. Kent will have to do will be to pass the word. Maybe you can think of some way to use the strike. It hasn't been declared yet, but you can bet on it to a dead moral certainty."

WOES OF MAGAZINE ARTIST

Stories Must Be Illustrated Truthfully and Therein Lies Distress of Illustrator.

Now a thousand blessings on the head of the good story-reading public that likes to have its stories illustrated! But that the stories are illustrated is not enough—they must be illustrated truthfully—and thereby hangs the tale of an artist's woe, declares a writer in Pearson's. If this tale that I am now to unfold should meet the eye of any of the story writers concerned, I beg them to remember that there is a button as big as a palette at the end of my foil—and so no harm is intended.

I remember with amusement an author who used to be very indignant with me for never making pictures of ships, when ships figured so largely in his stories. "I don't believe you can draw a ship," he wrote me one day—and, to tell the honest truth, he hit the right nail on the head. I cannot draw a ship to save my life! The fact is, that an artist can make more mistakes in drawing a ship than in drawing almost anything else—and, of course, if one is ignorant, it does not do to display that ignorance before a critical public. And this accounts for the reason why you will hardly ever find more than the merest indication of a ship in any sketch of mine!

INDIAN HEN'S EGG FOR $100

Output of Famous Game Chicken Brings Big Sum When Taken to England.

Not often does the price of a single egg climb to $100, but this is what was offered for each of the eggs of a certain Indian game hen, which was taken to England some time ago. For centuries the Indian game, or Azeel fowls, have been the very apex of the game breed, for the purposes of blood and pedigree have been most carefully preserved for so long that the date of the origin of the race has been lost in the past. It is almost impossible to procure specimens of the purest blood, for they are treasured by the Indian sportsmen at the highest value, and the best fowls are not allowed to go out of their native country. As game fowl they are great fighters. Those who have seen them in India—for the finest birds never reach colder climates—tell of their prowess and ungovernable tenacity in battle. With them it is always victory or death. In America, however, the game fowls are seldom raised for fighting purposes, but for show, and as pets and hobbies of poultry fanciers.

CHILD LABOR INCREASING.

Recently Published Census Statistics Show That One in Five Is a Breadwinner.

Census statistics just published show that despite the opposition from various sources child labor in the United States is increasing. According to these figures every fifth child in the country between the ages of ten and 15 years is a breadwinner. Of these juvenile wage earners every third child is a girl. There are 1,750,178 children regularly employed. This is an increase of 33 1-3 per cent. in ten years. Alabama has the highest percentage of child labor, finding work for 27.2 per cent. of her children, while Massachusetts has the lowest, having only five per cent. of her juvenile population at work. Of all the children empolyed 26.1 per cent. are boys and 10.2 per cent. are girls. In all of the southern states the percentage of children employed is high. It is also high in the western states and remarkably low in the east. The number of children employed in 1880 was 1,118,356, or 16.8 per cent. of the entire child population, but in 1900 the percentage was 18.2.

POPULATION OF THE EARTH

At Beginning of Present Century It Was 1,503,300,000 Souls—Europe Has the Greatest Density.

The population of the earth at the beginning of the present century amounted to 1,503,300,000 souls, distributed over an area of 55,636,491 square miles, or about 26 persons to the square mile. The divergencies are, however, very wide in this respect, varying from 104 to the square mile in Europe to two persons to the same amount of territory in Australia and Polynesia. As the totals of the populations, Asia, the home of the yellow races, is far in the lead with 819,556,000. Europe is next with 392,264,000. Even Africa is ahead of North America, the dark continent being accredited with 140,709,000, while North America is given 105,714,000. South America has 38,482,000; Australia and Polynesia 6,483,000 and the polar lands 91,000. As to the density, after Europe, as shown above with its 104 persons to the square mile, comes Asia with 46.6, North America with 13, Africa 13, South America 5 and Polynesia 2.

Pay for Transport Positions.

It has been found by the officers of the army transport service that the practice of making men pay for positions on the transports has been in vogue at San Francisco for a long time. An investigation is being made and the shipping commissioners will prosecute the guilty parties. Some men have paid as high as $100 for a place.

Not Appreciated.

The Olympic games at the world's fair did not draw much more than the average attendance. Had the attraction been a boxing match between two of the top-notchers in the pugilistic world the capacity of the grounds would have been taxed to the limit.

MILLIONS ARE UNCLAIMED.

Great Fund Lies Dormant in England Awaiting Missing Owners—Negligence the Cause.

The funds in official custody in England awaiting claimants amount to an enormous sum. During the recent parliamentary session questions were asked as to these unclaimed deposits, and several returns on the subject have been made. The total balances in the hands of the paymaster general were $273,612,305 on February 28, 1903. In the chancery division a large portion of this great fund is dormant, but as a fund is not considered as unclaimed until it has not been adjudicated by the court for 15 years, the proportion due to missing owners cannot be estimated, but is an enormous amount. Many persons are negligent in collecting government securities and dividends, or have died without leaving heirs who have demanded the funds. The balance of government stock and dividends unclaimed for ten years in the hands of the national debt commissioners on March 31, 1904, was $13,912,005. The government has taken over $5,000,000 of this fund for current expenses. Similar appropriations of these unclaimed funds were made by the government in 1791 and 1808, and in 1863 Gladstone canceled not less than $15,000,000 of the unclaimed stock. A large estate, $720,000, that of Mrs. Helen Blake, reverted to the crown in 1883 in default of claimants who were able to prove their right to the estate.

SOLDIER A BAD HUSBAND.

More Military Men Than Those of Any Other Class Are Divorced.

Divorces in the United States are on the increase, according to figures published by the census bureau. The latest show that five out of every 1,000 men married are living in a state of divorce. The census returns disprove the theory that early marriage leads oftenest to divorce. A note of warning is also sounded to women who persist in marrying men of the roving class, who enter on matrimony late in life, and for the guidance of those who ought to know it is figured out in cold and passionless statistics of just what classes of employment men are most frequently seen in the divorce courts. Census figures on divorce reveal the relative fickleness of men according to their following in life. This table, based on the number of those divorced out of every 1,000 married, showed some interesting comparisons.

Soldiers, marines and sailors, 4; hostlers, 18; actors, 17; agricultural laborers, 15; bartenders, 15; servants and waiters, 13; woodchoppers, 12; musicians and teachers of music, 12; stock raisers, herders and drovers, 10; photographers, 10; paper-hangers, 10; barbers and hairdressers, 9; lumbermen and raftmen, 9; clock and watch makers and repairers, 9; painters, glaziers and varnishers, 9.

DESIRE GROWS FLOWERS.

One Can Have Them Everywhere the Year Through by Using Determination.

From Ottawa to Tampa, on precipice or plain, you can succeed with flowers in clay or sand, in parching soil or swamp or pond, declares Country Life. All you need is desire, determination and discrimination. Before the leaves appear you can have flowers—golden-bells, spice-bush, shadbush and many other shrubs; snowdrops, crocuses, hyacinths, tulips planted the previous autumn; anemone, bloodroot, hellebore, and other hardy perennials. All through the summer you can have flowers anywhere, everywhere—herb, shrub, tree. After frost in the autumn you can have flowers—alyssum, golden-rod, Iceland poppy, chrysanthemum. Even the bare spots under trees, where there is dense shade and no moisture, can be covered with periwinkle or Creeping Charlie. Of course, you do your part, too. You cannot leave everything to nature. But if you are interested in such things and really care, you will undoubtedly succeed. And the greater the difficulties you overcome, the greater will be your delight!

Opportunity for Slave Dealers.

The St. Louis exposition afforded a great opportunity for Chinese slave dealers and white confederates in California. The ring is said to have made $100,000 already by importing large numbers of Chinese through San Francisco for service at the exposition and giving a bond of $500 for each that he or she will return to China within 30 days after the close of the exposition. Very few of the imported slaves will ever return, and each of them is worth more than the $800 it cost his or her owner to make the landing.

Reason for Naming Alexis.

It has been a tradition, since the time of Nicholas I. to name the czarevitches alternately Alexander and Nicholas. But the murder of Alexander II. caused his name to be considered unlucky, so there will be no more Alexanders on the Russian throne, as there will be no more Pauls or Peters. The czarevitch was therefore named Alexis, after the father of Peter the Great. He was a powerful and successful ruler.

40,000 Piles for Canal.

It is thought that the Panama canal commission will procure from the Columbia river the 40,000 piles that will be needed in the construction of the canal. That will be equivalent to 32,000,000 feet of lumber, or equal all told to four of the huge rafts that are built on the Columbia river and towed to San Francisco at the rate of three each summer.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Westfield Baseball Association has arranged a series of five games with the Trenton Y. M. C. A. at Trenton, for the coming season. There will be two Saturday and three Wednesday games.

It now seems to be a sure thing that George Mallen will manage the Westfield team this season. His place in the field will probably be taken by another player and Mallen will be on the bench close to President Denman.

The Westfield Baseball Association has made a liberal proposition to the Aeolian team to consolidate with Westfield for the coming season, and there is a movement on foot to interest the team at Cranford. If this plan fails no doubt the team will go on the road for Saturday games, as it has no grounds at Garwood.

The Westfield Standard has this to say in its last issue: "Plainfield has lines out to secure most of the Hoboken team, including "Pete" Lamar, Dave Driscoll, "Red" Gray, Kiernan and Bill Tierney. It is also stated that "Pete" Cregan will again cover left field, with Billy Lauder on second, Harry McCormack and Dave Fultz in the outfield. This is a money bunch, but if they can be secured, would make a few teams hereabouts lay down in a hurry.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

For the purpose of making arrangements for the try out in the inter-scholastic athletic meet, to be held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. on March 11, a meeting of the North Plainfield High School Athletic Association will be held tomorrow. The outline of preliminary events will be made out and the date set for the try out.

TOLD OF PEKING SIEGE

Preacher Declared That Prayer Saved the Missionaries.

TRYING EXPERIENCES

Rev. Dr. F. D. Gainewell Addresses Large Congregation at Grace M. E. Church Yesterday.

In Grace M. E. church, yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. F. D. Gainewell, for many years a missionary in China, related to a large congregation his personal experiences during the memorable siege of Peking. With many other Christian workers he spent seventy-six days in the city and the glimpses he gave of the trying ordeal conveyed to his hearers what must be suffered in order that the Gospel be spread.

The power or prayer was the main thought running through Dr. Gainewell's address and he expressed the belief that the uprising was a fulfillment of the prophecy contained in the second Psalm. The deliverance of the imperilled missionaries and their friends he ascribed to the invocations that went up from every part of the world.

To bear out his belief he told how on June 20, when United States Minister Conger received orders from the Chinese ministers to leave the city within twenty-four hours, prayers were everywhere being made for the safety and also for the missionaries whose lives were in danger. The Boxer uprising, he said, was started with the intention of expelling the Christians from the empire and to prevent the spread of the gospel, the Chinese officials being responsible for its beginning.

In the course of his address, Dr. Gainewell graphically described some of the dangers to which the missionaries were exposed during the siege after they had taken refuge in the British Legation and before the relief column arrived: The sight of the allied troops, representing eight countries, marching through the streets, he declared to be one of the most memorable he had ever witnessed.

Dr. Gainewell addressed the Sunday-school in the afternoon and on both occasions a collection for foreign missions was taken.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The missionary committee of the Church of the Holy Cross has sent a box of useful articles to Rev. Mr. Conover's school at Gladstone, Somerset county.

A patriotic service is to be given in Hope chapel next Sunday afternoon. Miss Petrie is to give a talk on mission work among the Indians as an added feature.

The Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross has voted $105 from the proceeds of the recent fair for the interest on the church debt, and $300 toward the liquidation of a note for $300 held by the Plainfield Trust Company.

Wm. Dunn, of Princeton University, son of Rev. Charles Dunn, now of Philadelphia, presided at the organ in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday by special request. He has exceptional ability as an organist and his work yesterday was very satisfactory.

An interesting lecture will be given tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of Trinity Reformed church by Miss Louise Fisher, of New Brunswick. Her subject will be "Holland History". All are invited. No admission will be charged, but a collection will be taken.

The officers of Hope chapel Sunday-school will tender a reception Wednesday night to Mrs. Noble C. King, who formerly taught the primary department and who is soon to leave for Chicago to make her home. The primary members and their parents are to be guests of honor.

Rev. H. B. Turner, chaplain of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute at Hampton, Va., accompanied by the Hampton Quartette, will be at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Thurday night. The quartette will sing some of the old-time plantation melodies. Admission will be free.

In response to an appeal for two sets of prayer books and hymnals for the use of the clergy in the sanctuary and chancel at the Church of the Holy Cross, one set has been given by the altar committee in memory of Miss Lydia Colton, and the other by W. J. R. Hegeman in memory of his father, Benjamin A. Hegeman. Both sets are in excellent print and bound in morocco.

Mrs. Wood remained about an hour and the couple were engaged in an earnest conversation all that time.

Two Still Alarms.

The borough fire department attended two small fires yesterday. One was for a slight blaze in some rubbish in the cellar at George Conover's home on Jackson avenue and was put out with extinguishers. The other was for a supposed fire in the basement of the new school building at 11 o'clock and was only the smoking of the furnace which had been lighted for the first time.

AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most remarkable realistic stage settings ever seen in a musical comedy is said to be the deck of a ship shown in "Fantana," the piece which Jefferson DeAngelis, Adele Ritchie and Katie Barry are presenting at the Lyric. Vessels have long been common in performances of this sort, those in "Pinafore" and "The Little Tycoon" being notable examples, but the one at present in question is sufficiently extraordinary to have occasioned much comment. It is an exact reproduction of the forward deck of F. G. McLemore's yacht, "Orient," having been copied from a photograph. Every spar and ratline is in proper place. The ship is put together at the beginning of every engagement and never taken apart again until the conclusion of the run. Instead, it is hauled up to the roof of the theatre when not in use and hangs suspended there throughout the other two acts of "Fantana."

SCHOOLS HOLD EXERCISES

In City and Borough Washington's Birthday is Observed.

THE PROGRAMMES

Birth of Father of His Country Commemorated in Appropriate Way by School Children.

Patriotic songs, interesting addresses and appropriate recitations marked the Washington and Lincoln celebrations at the public schools this morning. The rooms were decorated in flags and bunting for the occasion. In most of the primary grades the pupils took part in the programme of recitations and exercises. The exercises at the Bryant and Lincoln schools will be held on Friday evening, when the birthdays of both Washington and Lincoln will be observed.

At the Plainfield High School, two addresses constituted the main part of the programme, while singing was a feature of the exercises. Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, was the first speaker. He took for his subject "The Inspiration of Great Persons," referring particularly to the life of George Washington. He spoke of the feeling of strength and "Americanism" which is always experienced when the life of the first president is considered." The good which a man like Washington accomplishes in his life is but a small part of the accomplishments which his memory and inspiration cause," said the speaker. Following Rev. Mr. Nickerson, Andrew M. Parker, a graduate of the school in 1874, was introduced, and made a few remarks with regard to the changes which have come about in the school since he was a pupil. The exercises were concluded by singing the school song, "The Red and Blue."

The exercises at the Washington school were extensive, the pupils taking an active part in the programme. The following are those who took part in the recitations, songs and patriotic exercises: Miss Annie Fisher, Walter Glaentzer, Charles Creger, Howard Sweeney, Louis Cahill, Viola Caffets, Raymond Todd, Ida Freedman. The programme ended with an effective flag march, in which the entire school took part. There were nine selections by the school, and three readings.

At the Irving school, the programme opened by singing "America," and the following took part in the recitations: William Daniels, May Larlour, Katherine Parker, Theodore Martin, Millard McAfee, Edson Woodhull, Viola Rose, Valeria Cozsins, Julia Regen, George Leighs, Bradford Williams, Edith Swartz, Frank Reed and William Murphy.

The exercises in the borough school were held at different periods, those of the high school department taking place in the morning and the primary grades this afternoon. At the former readings were given by Lawrence Milne and John Peacock and piano solos by Miss Alberta Waterbury and Miss Sadie Fountain. There were also patriotic songs.

At the primary exercises recitations were given by Ruth Weinberger, Percy Diehl, Leonora Fisk, Amanda Matthews, Laura Warneck, Charles Martin, Ellen Hovey, Hazel Hyatt, Roy Love, Elmer Johnson, Edmund Kenney, Elsa Hafner, Walter Thomas and Charles Tompkinson, also piano solos by Ellen Hovey, Elsa Schwed and Maude Martin. The entire school rendered songs appropriate to the occasion.

The funeral services of Thomas Renison were held this morning at 11 o'clock from the parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, undertakers, in Park avenue, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church, officiating. The interment was in the Methodist cemetery in Plainfield avenue.

COMPANY K'S FAIR STILL A DRAWING CARD

COMMENCEMENT OF THE SECOND WEEK SHOWS NO DECREASE IN ATTENDANCE.

Commencement of the second week showed no abatement in the popularity of Company K's fair, last night. The friends of the soldier boys were out in large numbers and the armory was again the scene of animation that was evident all last week. As a special feature, last night, the company gave an exhibition drill and it was an innovation to many of those present. Captain Martin was in charge and he was greatly pleased with the showing.

Tonight and tomorrow night the dancing will continue until 2 o'clock and for the remainder of the week there will be several specialties. Thursday night, Professor McMunn, the hypnotist, will give a demonstration and on Friday Colonel Collins will present the 100 per cent. medals won by the members.

MISS CRUIKSHANK WINS EQUESTRIAN HONORS

CAPTURES PRIZE IN JUMPING EVENT AT EAST ORANGE.

Miss Leila Cruikshank, an enthusiastic member of the Watchung Hunt Club, in a recent competition given by the East Orange Riding Club at East Orange, won second prize in the jumping contest. She was mounted on her favorite horse MacGregor, and took four feet, six inches. The competition was open to several clubs in the State, and there was a large representation from the Watchung Hunt Club. Though several other horses were entered by riders in the local club, Miss Cruikshank's mount was the only successful one, and in fact, the only one to achieve any creditable accomplishment. The first prize in the jumping event was won by a member of the East Orange Club.

The Watchung Hunt Club was again disappointed in its plans for a chase on Saturday afternoon, though the members met at the jumps for practice and exercise. For over a month, the weather has given the members of the club no opportunity to follow the hounds, but it is hoped that after the long vacation, a slight thaw will permit the event to be held on Wednesday. The club has planned for an extensive holiday chase, and if possible the riders will meet in front of the Crescent Avenue church, at the corner of Crescent avenue and Seventh street at 10:30 o'clock.

At one time he was president of the New Jersey Senate. The bride is well-known in Somerville, where she is a great favorite.

FORGED NAME TO CHECK

Young Colored Man Pleads Guilty to the Charge.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

James Springs Attempted to Get Money on Check he Signed in Name of Mrs. J. B. Zook.

James Springs, a young colored man who has been employed as cook at Trueli Inn, was arraigned before Justice Huff, this morning, charged by Mrs. Justine S. Zook, a wealthy patron at the Inn, with forging her name to a check for $300 on the Indianapolis National Bank. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was held in $1,000 bail to await trial.

Springs contrived to steal a check book belonging to Mrs. Zook and wrote out a check for $300 made payable to James Baskitt, signing her name to it. It was a crude affair all through but Springs mailed the check to the Indianapolis bank with the request that the money be sent on to Baskitt at the Plainfield general delivery. The bank officials immediately sent check, letter and all to Mrs. Zook and she informed Chief Kiely.

Springs was suspected through the signature and when his room was searched, the missing check book was found. Papers were also discovered showing were he had practiced writing Mrs. Zook's name. The arrest followed but it was sometime before he acknowledged his guilt. Springs is about thirty years old and came to this city from Roselle.

WEST END GIRL SPURNED NEW YORKER'S ARDENT LOVE

CAME FROM METROPOLIS TO PRESS HIS SUIT AND THE COPS GOT HIM.

Unrequited love led to the appearance in the city court, this morning, of Frederick Schaub, a fiery young Swiss who made a special trip out from New York, last night, to pour his tale of love into the unwilling ears of a young woman who resides with a family on West Fifth street, near Grant avenue. Neither she nor her guardians would listen to his pleadings for a quiet tete-a'-tete with his supposed affinity and he stormed around the grounds in anything but the manner that ardent swains are supposed to do. He became such a nuisance that finally he was invited in and so filled with joy at the prospect of gaining the girl's consent to fly with him that he failed to notice that a policeman was summoned over the telephone.

All of Schaub's love-making tendencies had fled when he faced Judge Runyon but he insisted that though he had spent a night in a cell he was still "a gentleman" and if allowed to go he would hie himself to the metropolis and seek other fair damsels. He made several remarks in the course of his plea that led His Honor to think that he was still under the influence of the Fifth street magnet and while he suspended sentence, he instructed Officer McCarthy to see Schaub safely away on an east bound Jersey Central express train.

P. S. C. MAN ARRESTED

Legal Action to Prevent Borough Sts. Being Obstructed.

SWEEPER'S WORK

S. C. Southard, a Foreman, to Appear Before Recorder Doud Tonight—P. S. C. to Fight Case.

Determined to stop the practice of the street railway company in throwing ice and snow from its tracks so that it obstructs the roadway on either side, Chairman James K. Arnold, of the borough street committee, last night, ordered the arrest of S. C. Southard, foreman of the electric sweeper. He was taken from it as it came to a stop on the Somerset street switch by Marshal Emmons and was taken before Recorder Doud on a charge of obstructing the streets. The railway officials secured his release by depositing $20 and he will be given a hearing tonight.

Ever since the last big snow storm Somerset street has been in a bad condition through the manner in which the snow was piled up by the trolley company. The usual methods were employed to remove the huge drifts but just as soon as each side of the track was made passable, the sweeper would throw more ice and snow out on the cleared portion.

Yesterday afternoon, the trolley gang began clearing out ice from the center of the street and the sweeper coming along would throw it toward the curb. The borough scraper happened to be out putting the gutters in condition and the men put the ice back again. This continued for some time until Marshal Pope, acting under instructions, warned Southard, who was running the sweeper, that if he persisted in his action, he would be arrested. He stopped for the time being but came back again last night, with the revolving sweepers going at full speed and the scrapers out in front. The borough authorities were in waiting and as the machine came to a slow-down on the switch, Marshal Emmons arrested Southard at the lever. Two men who were with him were instructed to take the sweeper back to the West Fourth street barns.

Southard communicated with Division Superintendent Phillip Maguire and he and other officials were soon on the scene. It is said the Public Service will have its counsel on hand at the hearing tonight.

When Mayor Smalley was spoken to about the matter this noon he said that an attempt was being made to settle the matter amicably and that in all probability no hearing would be held. The borough ordinance covers the snow problem definitely, he said, but the last heavy storm had altered conditions and there is a possibility that an agreement will be reached in regard to meeting future exigencies.

The affair will take place at the rooms in the Babcock building. The programme for the occasion will consist largely of musical and literary numbers.

Though the entire order of the anniversary entertainment has not yet been decided upon, it is expected that the affair will be one of the most successful social functions which the lodge has ever conducted. Refreshments will be served during the evening. The affair is in charge of the following committee: Horace J. Martin, chairman; Wilbur Randolph, Richard Kenney, William Day and Edward Young.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER YEAR FOR FIREMEN

BILL FAVORING NON-PAID MEMBERS OF SMALL DEPTS. IN LEGISLATURE.

A bill to establish a compensation of $15 a year to firemen in every municipality in the State where firemen are not otherwise paid for their services was introduced in the Assembly last night by George H. Dalrymple, of Passaic. The bill, which calls attention to the fact that, according to the recent decision of the Court of Appeals the bill to exempt firemen from taxes on $500 worth of property is unconstitutional, was prepared by William A. Cotter, counsel for the State Firemen's Association, and it was considered by the executive committee of that organization on Wednesday night and passed upon.

Mr. Dalrymple is a member of the executive committee of the association and he was selected to present the bill.

PARISH PUBLICATIONS GROWING IN NUMBERS

HALF A DOZEN MONTHLY PAPERS INTERESTING LOCAL CONGREGATIONS.

As a means of keeping in touch with church work the "parish paper" issued monthly seems to be quite a success in this city. There are a half a dozen of these publications.

At the Church of the Holy Cross "The Messenger," is edited by Rev. William Montgmery Downey, the rector, who gathers from month to month many items of interest to his parishioners. Under the direction of Rev. R. Vicars Stevenson, rector, and J. Paul Nolting, of Grace church, "The Pilot" appears once a month and is the most elaborate production of its kind. This is one of the older publications and has been very successful.

Among the latest church papers to make an appearance is "The Messenger," issued under the direction of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, by William D. Murray, editor. The policy of this paper is somewhat different from others in that advertisements are excluded. The support of the congregation is depended upon entirely to meet the expense and thus far this has been a success. Hope Memorial Chapel Mirror is one of the oldest papers. Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard, the pastor, is its editor. Rev. Arthur S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, recently began the publication of "The Messenger," a little smaller than the other church papers, but just as bright and interesting.

Another feature in this line that has grown considerably during the past year or so is the weekly publication of bulletins giving from week to week the events of interest in the churches. This method has been decided an improvement over the old style method of having the minister announce from the pulpit, at the sacrifice of much time, the notices for the week.

JUNIORS IN COMEDY.

N. P. H. S. Pupils to Play "Mr. Bob," in March.

Rehearsals have begun for the North Plainfield High School junior class production of "Mr. Bob," a comedy in two acts, which will be given by the class in March in preparation for the reception to the senior class which is given annually in the nature of a farewell. The date for the production of "Mr. Bob" has not yet been decided upon, though it will be attempted to hold the affair early in March.

The cast in the comedy includes the following: John Peacock, Laurie Miller, Frank Webster, Marie Clark, Florence White, Mary Robley and Marion Overton. The play is full of fun, and is within the capabilities of an amateur cast. It is written by Rachel Baker, the author of several short comedy sketches. The members of the cast are being coached in the acting by the faculty.

Whatever proceeds of the play which exceed the expenses of the senior reception, will be devoted to the class treasury.

Senator Childs' "Blow-Out."

Senator S. S. Childs, of Somerset, has invited Governor Stokes and the members of the Senate to be present at a dinner to be given at the Hotel Astor, New York, Friday night. Following the dinner the guests will attend at performance at Fields' new theatre.

SCHOOL HOUSE PROBLEM

Piscataway Board Considered Rock Avenue Proposition.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Matter Laid Over Until March 20—Judge Runyon and William Jeffery Spoke for Petition.

The question of providing suitable and ample school accommodations for the children of Piscataway Township, was discussed at some length at a meeting of the township school board held at New Market, yesterday. The first proposition asking for a schoolhouse in the vicinity of Rock avenue was considered and laid over to Monday, March 20.

In all three propositions have been presented and it was the first of these that the board considered. It was presented by Lawrence Kerwin and provides for the erection of a $5,000 building near Rock avenue. In support of the proposition remarks were made by City Judge William N. Runyon and William Jeffery, who appeared in behalf of the Investors' Realty Company, interested tax-payers. Judge Runyon made an earnest appeal showing the necessity for a new school-house to supplant the present unsanitary Maple Grove School building at Clinton avenue. His remarks had a tendency to harmonize the various factions.

Mr. Jeffery then stated on behalf of many property-owners and residents, whom he represented, that it would be agreeable to all concerned to have the new school erected in the vicinity of Rock avenue and Seventh street. This met the approval of those present and it was voted that the issuance of a call for the three proposed schools in the township be deferred until the meeting to be held Monday, March 20.

It was the original intention have the school building situated on Rushmore avenue near Fourth street, but the site on Rock avenue seems to meet with general approval. It now looks as though the perplexing school question will be solved by the erection of two or three smaller schools throughout the township, thus changing the present method of compelling the children to go long distances to the school at New Market. At the same time it is quite likely that a suitable building will be erected at New Market, to cost about $30,000. A third school building will be erected near Dewey Park to cost about $5,000.

BUSINESS MEN ACTIVE.

Have Good Schedule Ahead of Them—Team of Older Men Organized to Play Montclair.

The Business Men, of the Y. M. C. A., played a match with the basketball team known as the Triangles, of Rahway, last night at the local gymnasium. A strong schedule still awaits the Business Men. They will play Leal's School a rubber on next Monday, and games are arranged with the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. Business Men, the Passaic aggregation and the local first team.

A second team, composed of the older men in the Business Men's class has been organized and will play its first match at Montclair on Thursday evening. A pleasant social is anticipated after the game. The team will be composed of the following: Rushmore, Garragus, Davis, VanDyke and Shaw.

In the City Court.

The following cases were disposed of in the city court yesterday morning: David McLernon, drunkenness, sixty days straight; Charles Long, drunkenness, sentence suspended; James Gardner, recently suspected of incendiarism, drunkenness, sentenced to thirty days while Judge Vail can be apprised of his case; Dominicus V. Huff, charged by Mrs. Mary Kitchell with disorderly conduct, complaint dismissed.

To Organize Men's Club.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, there will be a meeting of the Men's Association of the Crescent Avenue church, for the purpose of forming a regular organization. After the completion of the organization an address will be given by Rev. Dr. Amory H. Bradford, of Montclair, on "The Unity of the World." All the men of the congregation are invited to be present.

—The Plainfield Dancing Academy, 330 West Front street, will hold a grand ball on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 23, 1905.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Before selecting your wall-papers consult I. N. Wyckoff, of West Front street, and let him show you his fine stock. He also contracts for first-class painting.

Ask Herman Hansen for estimates if you have any idea of building yourself a home. He is a contracting carpenter and has had many years of experience in this line.

If you have never tried Thorp's celebrated foot relief, you know nothing of the virtues of this wonderful remedy. Better purchase a bottle and give it a trial.

A bouquet of pretty cut flowers is like a breath of summer, especially to the invalid. Charles L. Stanley has them at his North avenue store every day, direct from his Netherwood greenhouses.

William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, furnish vans for moving to all parts of the country and they have a first-class storage warehouse for pianos, furniture, etc. The firm telephone number is 1722.

Get that coal bin full. You don't know when you will have the most urgent need for coal. Don't trust to a half a ton now and then, get John Johnston to fill up with the finest grade of coal on the market.

Powers' Somerset street pharmacy is a convenient place for cigars and soda water as well as drugs, patent medicines and toilet articles. Bear in mind also that Powers has an up-to-date prescription department.

Demolli & Co., the French caterers, are capable of doing any kind of work in the line of receptions, dances, parties and weddings. The service is perfect. Stop in at the store on West Front street, and try some of the confectionery.

Endress has on stock this week an extra fine line of home dressed poultry, consisting of turkeys, ducks, fowl, broilers and chickens. Jersey lamb and home-cured hams are examples of the excellent quality of all Endress' meats.

It certainly is a great comfort to return home in the evening and enjoy the paper while the logs crack merrily in the open fire place. John Mobus, the Watchung wood dealer, makes a specialty of fire blocks; send him an order by postal.

The variety of perfume which is carried at Hodge's drug store is far superior to the ordinay drug store stock. The highest grades of cologne are sold in attractive form at Hodge's. His store is also the headquarters for good drugs and prescriptions.

The signs of the zodiac point to some wet weather for the next few days. Better be prepared and get a pair of VanArsdale's storm shoes. They are positively water proof and are cut high. The best rubbers on the market are included in VanArsdale's stock.

For hardware, iron and steel house-furnishings, tinning and plumbing go to A. M. Griffen's store on East Front street. Estimates are given on plumbing and sheet metal work, all of which is guaranteed. A full supply of paints, varnishes, oils, stoves and ranges always in stock. There is no better place to trade than at this store and you will always get full value.

In addition to the Saturday specials which are attracting so much attention at Woodhull & Martin's store, shoppers do not want to forget the February housefurnishing sale which is still on. Here is offered an exceptional opportunity to get the best goods at the lowest prices. If you have not visited the carpet department at this store you have no idea of the bargains offered there. Everything you need from the smallest rug to as much carpet as you may require. The quality is the best and you cannot beat the prices in New York.

Nasal catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. A remedy for nasal catarrh which is drying for exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail. A cold in the head immediately disappears when Cream Balm is used. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York.

—R. H. Barnard, of Binghamton, N. Y., the successful baker at Woodhull & Martin's store, has concluded to take up his residence in the borough and on April 1, Mr. Barnard and wife will reside at No. 3 Verdon avenue.

John Kenney, of East Second street, attended the funeral of his wife's cousin, John Cahill, of Elizabeth, yesterday morning.

TO THE PEOPLE

EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE for March with the latest instalment of my story "Frenzied Finance" is out today.

BUY IT!

In it I begin the main story of the Crimes of Amalgamated.

I take up and handle fittingly, I think, some of the scoundrelly "System's" character thugs—deal with them and—deposit them.

Rogers' Man Friday, Denis Donahoe, and the "Martin Expose" they have concocted I swing through the air once, twice, then with a mop-the gutter motion, drop.

I reach once for James H. Eckels, Ex-Controller of the Currency of the United States, the young financial phenomenon, who jigged the big Cleveland bond juggle, now President of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago, and who is steering for the "System" in the West in a split-tongue, mud slinging, after-dinner skit "Eckles plays Lawson the stock jobber," which the insurance companies are circulating by the million—I reach for him and I think—get him. Anyway, it is for you the people to say.

James M. Beck, Ex-Assistant Attorney General of the United States, valiant "trust-buster" and people's champion, who got such a peep behind the government scenes in the Northern Securities hold-up that he was picked off by Rogers, Rockefeller and "Standard Oil" for legal adviser—I think I get three fingers and a thumb over and under his collar and in a jerk, pull and twitch, expose just why James M. Beck is delivering garbage bouquets before the college and insurance round-ups in the East, tagged "Beck grills Lawson as a frienzied fakir."

This is the brilliant reformer who came to Boston on the eve of the recent infamous gas trial and was so anxious that I should "match up" my testimony with Rogers. Do you know what "matching up" testimony means?

Other things and people of moment are man-handled and headed for the hospital.

Let me say right here—this number of EVERYBODY'S contains Russell's second chapter on the Beef Trust which it behooves all patriotic Americans to read. If this March number had no "Frenzied Finance," nothing but the Beef Trust story between its covers, I would willingly contribute $15,000 to $20,000 worth of advertising to get it into the hands of the people.

Last month the edition of EVERYBODY'S numbered 900,000—unprecedented in the history of general magazine making, an increase of 200,000 over the previous month. Stop and think that this 200,000 increase in itself is much greater than the entire circulation of many of the leading magazines of the country such as "Harper's," "Scribner's," "The Century," and "The Review of Reviews." Still, I calculated that every copy would be sold within three days and that this month's edition should be at least 1,100,000 or 1,200,000. I was mistaken. The West and South stood right up and went ahead as in the other months, but the East fell behind. They tell me it was because my instalment was slow and heavy; that there was not enough raw-edged-and-bloody-boneness about it. Maybe so, but it was the most important chapter I have yet written. It is full of valuable educational material. It was a brain-clearer—absolutely necessary to an understanding of the "System" and the Crimes of Amalgamated. But with the lively chapter in the March issue, and the tremendously hot instalments that are to follow I feel that the halt in the increase (this month's issue is the same as last, 900,000 copies) is but momentary.

Let the American people, as they thumb over this exquisite March number of EVERYBODY'S, ponder what Russell's and my work means.

Ireland at the end of a hundred years of tortured struggle for Home Rule, will probably not attain that end before another five or ten have passed.

The French were fifty years trying to exchange their royal collar for the ballots of free men.

It took the stalwart strenuous Yankees a decade to convince Royal George that his room was better than his company.

The Russians have been working their bloody kinetoscope night and day in the interest of constitutional government, and are still at it.

Sixty days after the people had "Frenzied Finance" in their hands, the "Standard Oil" monster was compelled after forty years of silence to publicly doff its insolent bonnet to the people.

Three months after the people got their eyes fixed on the deviltries of the "System" they elected as President a people's champion, with a popular majority greater than ever given any of his predecessors.

Four months after "Frenzied Finance" was introduced into American homes three leading insurance companies were discharging their agents in bunches, and the aggregate business of the three was falling off at the rate of $4,500,000 a week.

After five months, a single blast of truth from one man shook Wall Street to its foundations and over $200,000,000 of what the people have been taught to believe was real values ran off in the gutters in the form of dirty water.

In six months, for the first time in the history of our country, the President of the United States was able to take by the throat the greatest business combinations and trusts the world has ever known, and shake them until their teeth chattered and their back bones rattled like hung dried corn in a fireplace when the wind gets at it.

In seven months the greatest national bank in the country, The City Bank of New York, was being hung up by the heels where all the people could see it in a lower and more contemptible transaction than I had even accused it of.

In eight months one of the greatest insurance companies of America was rent by internal dissensions and its trustees were gouging and mauling each other in a public brawl as to who saw the people's savings first and who should have the larger part of the loot. Now these trustees of a great and sacred institution are accusing each other of things and hinting at crimes which even I have not touched upon.

And right here, in the beginning of my 9th chapter, Kansas——God Bless her——has risen and is sweeping her end of the "System" into the muddy waters of the Missouri to the tune of "Douse the dirty reptiles——douse!"

The people should ponder these things as they read this month's issue of

ERIE FLIER WRECKED

THREE DEAD, SEVENTY-NINE INJURED

Express For New York, Going a Mile a Minute, Derailed by Broken Truck, Plunged Down Embankment Into Ditch.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 21.—Three lives were lost and seventy-nine persons more or less seriously injured when the Tuxedo club special of the Erie railroad was ditched on the Bergen short cut midway between Warren Point and Fairlawn, N. J., about four miles north of Paterson. The train left the track and rolled down an embankment into a deep ditch.

Of the three killed but two have been identified—Miss Grace Matthews, on her way to New York to seek a position to aid her aged mother, and Miss Mary Spees, eighteen years old, of Turners, N. Y. The third was a woman about seventy-five years old.

That the wreck was due to a flaw in a casting on the truck of the engine tender was the statement of an official of the Erie company. He declared the accident unavoidable and said no one was to blame.

Of the 150 passengers on the train were many wealthy residents of Tuxedo, Suffern and other points near by. They were mostly brokers, lawyers and business men on their way to New York to business. The train was made up of a parlor car, smoker, a day coach and a Tuxedo club special car. The train started from Suffern and was half an hour late, making up lost time when the accident occurred.

One mile a minute is said to be the schedule time of the club train at the point where the smoking car left the rails. The train is said to have been making nearly that speed, and for nearly half a mile the smoker was dragged and bumped along the track before the cars and engine left the track.

In his effort to pull the bell rope and stop the train when the smoker left the track Clifford Wall, an office boy employed in New York, was hurled against a window and severely cut about the head.

All that saved the wreck from being one of the most horrible in the annals of railroading in this section was the fact that after the cars jumped the track they pounded along on the ties for a quarter of a mile before plunging down the embankment. The entire train of four cars—a combination baggage and smoking car—went into the ditch, but speed had been slackened, and the ditch was full of snow.

The train, running at high speed, had just passed over a switch at Warren Point when the rear truck of the tender broke. The back of the tender swung to one side, and this threw the first of the five cars off the track and broke the coupling between the car and the tender. The train plunged ahead for a distance of a thousand yards, tearing up the tracks as it went, and finally, while the passengers were trying frantically to reach the doors, all five cars rolled over the ten foot embankment alongside the track. Three of the cars turned completely over and now lie upside down. The engine did not leave the track and ran nearly half a mile before it could be brought to a stop.

Those who were killed sustained their injuries by being jammed between the seats as the cars were crushed together. Another train following close behind took the injured on board, where they were cared for.

The wrecked train was running on what is known as the Bergen branch, a short cut from Ridgewood to Passaic.

Among the injured at Paterson hospital are: O. H. Cutler of Suffern, injured in back; Frank Furman of Suffern, head and leg injured; R. E. Mesner of Middletown, head cut; Walter Duryea of Suffern, head cut; E. M. Post of Tuxedo, injured about the head; S. D. Moore of Tuxedo, head injured; Edward Roberts of Tuxedo, badly injured about the head and face; Carlisle Norwood of Tuxedo, cut about the face and head; Joseph Sedgmore of Suffern, injured on head; John Van Houton of Paterson, injured on head; J. E. Ford of Suffern, injured about the body; Raymond Wayton of Monroe, N. Y., injured head and arm; Arthur Day of Tuxedo, injured on head; Mrs. Joseph Noonan of Chester, N. Y., had her left eye gouged out, and she was otherwise injured about the head and face; Edna McConnell of Suffern, cut about face and head; Elizabeth Mitchell of Madison avenue, New York city, injured about the face and arms; William O'Brien of Washington street, Brooklyn, injured about the head and body; G. D. Moore, injured about the body.

Others injured are: D. F. Shuit of Monroe, injured about the body; Jessie Cooper of Suffern, head injured; George Frederick, Jr., of Chester, N. Y., injured about head; Harold Baus of Suffern, leg bruised.

Both Get Life Sentence.

MASON, Mich., Feb. 21.—Mrs. Carrie Joslyn, who pleaded guilty to murdering her husband by poison, and Isaac Swan, her paramour and former farm hand for the Joslyns, were both sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison at Jackson. Swan was convicted today of murder principally on the evidence of Mrs. Joslyn.

Drum of Carbonic Gas Exploded.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 21.—A large drum containing carbonic acid gas exploded at the works of Bishop & Babcock here. Alfred Keepe, bookkeeper for the company, was instantly killed, and two others were injured.

DECIDES FOR SOBOR

Emperor Nicholas Will Convene Russian Parliament.

MARTIAL LAW AT TSARSKOE-SELO.

Spirit of Revolution Stirs St. Petersburg Students—Destroyed Czar's Portrait—Wave Red Flag—Demand That War End.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Emperor Nicholas has decided to convene the zemsky sobor and that an imperial manifesto announcing the convocation probably will be issued on March 4, the anniversary of the liberation of the serfs by Alexander II.

Martial law has been declared at Tsarskoe-Selo owing to numerous threatening letters being received at the palace.

The chief of the secret police has ordered special precautions to prevent any outrage on the imperial family.

The spirit of revolution had complete possession of the great meeting of professors, students and directors of the St. Petersburg university, which assembled at noon to discuss the question of joining in the general strike begun by similar institutions in Russia, and decided to close the university till fall.

In anticipation of possible trouble when the meeting broke up squadrons of Cossacks again paraded the streets, especially the Nevsky prospect and the neighborhood of the Kazan cathedral, which is always a point for student demonstrations.

It was the first joint meeting of students and professors ever authorized, and in view of the gravity of the situation it was hoped the presence of the professors, most of whom are in complete sympathy with the liberal movement, would exercise a restraining influence.

The meeting was held in the auditorium of the university on Basil island, Neva hall being comparatively small and incapable of holding one-fifth of the 4,000 students assembled. The auditorium was packed to suffocation, and the doorways and window embrasures were banked with students, who held others on their shoulders.

It was a strange gathering. Most of the students were poorly clad, and all were in a state of intense excitement. A small rostrum in a corner was occupied by the speakers. A bell with which the student who presided tried to stop the thunder of applause with which the orators were greeted was unavailing.

From the outset student orators set the imagination of their auditors aflame with the spirit of liberty, unsparingly denouncing the course of the government, declaring that promises could no longer avail and that the only satisfaction would be freedom of speech, conscience and the press and the convocation of a national assembly.

The majority coupled this with a demand for ending the war. Almost every orator went back to the French revolution for parallels. Again and again was Russia declared to be on the eve of a revolution.

The whole student body sang the Russian "Marseillaise," which begins:

You fell victims of love of your country.

A wild scene followed. The students unfurled a red flag on which was written, "Hail to the Constituent Assembly!"

A large portrait of the emperor in the great auditorium of the university where the meeting was held was torn into strips. The police did not interfere.

The meeting, at which over 3,000 students voted with practical unanimity to suspend studies until Sept. 1, also adopted a set of political resolutions demanding the formation of a constituent assembly and characterizing the proposed summoning of the zemsky sobor as inadequate for the emergency.

With the decision of the student body of the great University of St. Petersburg to suspend studies for the remainder of the university year almost the whole educational system of Russia has entered upon a period of stagnation, the protest of the youth of Russia against the bureaucratic system and other governmental grievances. Other universities of Russia, gymnasia and even grammer schools were already on strike, and the military in various portions of the empire have been obliged to resort to force to restrain even schoolboys of tender years, who are joining the general movement.

Assassin Was Afraid of Taking Cold.

MOSCOW, Feb. 21.—Although the identity of the assassin of Grand Duke Sergius has not yet been ascertained, the police have become convinced that he is not a workman, but a man of good birth. His underclothing is of good quality and fashionably made, and his outer workman's garb evidently was assumed as a disguise. He strongly objected to donning prison attire and refused for a long time to take off his warm undershirt for fear of catching cold.

Canada to Guard Her Own Coasts.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—The Dominion government will take charge of Halifax and Esquimalt defenses on July 1 next. An arrangement to this effect is said to have been completed between Canada and the imperial authorities.

NAVAL BILL PASSED

Congress Voted $99,000,000 For Defense.

TWO MORE BATTLESHIPS ORDERED

New York Representative Condemned Action of President In Sending Condolence to Russia Regarding Late Assassination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The house after a seven hours' session passed the naval appropriation bill, carrying a total of $99,914,359. The provision for two battleships, as reported by the committee on naval affairs, was retained. Both the majority and minority were badly divided over the proposition, at least forty members of the latter going over to the Republicans, while about an equal number of Republicans voted in opposition. Several important changes in the bill were made. The proposed increase of 1,200 men and officers for the marine corps was stricken out, as was also the provision authorizing the construction of a collier somewhere else than at the Mare Island navy yard in California. In order to do the work better an item of $175,000 was inserted for the proper equipment of the Mare Island navy yard.

Several times during the debate the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius was referred to, the subject being brought up by Mr. Baker (N. Y.), who condemned the action of President Roosevelt in sending a message of condolence to Russia expressing the sentiment that the government and the American people viewed the act with abhorrence. The people, he declared, did view with abhorrence the massacre in St. Petersburg on Jan. 22, but the president, he said, had not seen fit to send a message of condolence on that occasion.

He was replied to by Mr. Grosvenor (O.), who took the ground that, regardless of the character of the duke or the question of the right or wrong of Russia's policy toward her subjects, the president in sending the message he did had done exactly what civilization recognized as his duty.

With particular reference to that action Mr. Grosvenor (O.) was bitter in his criticism of Mr. Baker. Mr. Baker's action he declared to have been unprecedented. Had adjournment been taken, he said, it would have been a meaningless and stupid exhibition of ignorance. The public and the world knew that the American congress did not sympathize with riot and unnecessary bloodshed. Whether it was necessary or not there was no doubt a strong critical opinion in the country, but he said no intelligent man would suggest that congress express an opinion on that subject.

Mr. Grosvenor spoke of Grand Duke Sergius as a cabinet officer of the emperor. He denied that the president fell short of his duty and said that as regards the killing of the grand duke it would have been little short of impropriety had not the president sent his message of condolence.

The climax came later in the day when Mr. Baker read a resolution on the subject, which he subsequently introduced and which in effect was a reiteration of his remarks previously made. He explained that his object in so doing was because it had been suggested that in that event a motion would be made to expel him. He shouted defiance to any member of the house to make the motion as he deposited the resolution and took his seat amid the confusion and turmoil which the incident had created.

Pneumonia Epidemic at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 21.—Owing to an epidemic of pneumonia in this city the health authorities have issued a warning. Since New Year's 600 persons have been affected, nearly one-half of this number dying, and as yet there is no relief. During the last week out of 170 deaths 70 were due to this disease, and in the six previous weeks there were 194 deaths from the same cause, making 266, or 25 per cent of the deaths in 1905, due to pneumonia.

Miss Roosevelt to Visit Philippines.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—It is understood that Miss Alice Roosevelt will accompany Secretary and Mrs. Taft on their visit to the Philippines next July unless other engagements prevent. It is probable that the trip will be made on the army transport Sumner and will occupy about three months, allowing one month each way and one month in the islands.

No Smoot Report This Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—No report will be made in the Senator Smoot case during the present congress. This has been agreed upon by several members of the senate committee on privileges and elections, for the reason that time does not remain for consideration by the senate of such report as the committee might make.

A Sweeping Labor Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—A labor bill of sweeping effect was introduced in the assembly last night by Mr. Thompson of Kings county. It establishes the eight hour day as the legal day of labor and prohibits agreements for more than eight hours in state or municipal employment.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 21, 1905.

Washington's birthday will be observed by The Daily Press and no paper will be published from this office tomorrow.

Judge Woodbridge Strong, of Middlesex County, celebrates his seventy-eighth birthday today. The people of the country could find cause for celebration should the jurist resign from the bench.

In an address delivered in that place the other night, a New Brunswick man said that visitors frequently remarked: "you have a beautiful city." Very unkind of guests to poke fun in that fashion.

L. A. Thompson, the Republican leader of Somerset County, was married last night. Mayor Smalley, who has led the fight against him for several years, dryly remarks that no wedding cake has been received in North Plainfield.

Captain Martin, of Company K, Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., made a mistake when he sought for his company a place in the inaugural parade, made all arrangements for the entertainment of his men while in Washington and then asked the State authorities for permission to take the company out of the State "armed." He ought to have consulted the military board first and if he had, there might have been no objection to Company K, marching in the parade. There could have been little reasonable opposition to going to Washington since the members were willing to defray their own expenses, but Captain Martin didn't show the military board proper respect. He went over its head and after he had landed on the other side of it, sought its approval of his jump. Report says that the company will visit Washington as a civic body and that the members will probably appear in a special "Rough Rider" uniform. The idea is a good one.—Trenton State Gazette.

As in several instances in the past, the tone of the State-Gazette's editorial gives a strong impression that it is prompted by a member of the Military Board to defend what appears to be an uncalled-for slap at Captain Martin and one of the crack companies of the State's soldiery. The excuse is given that because Captain Martin had the forethought to make all arrangements for his company in ample time, the State Military Board was offended. That the captain would take it for granted that permission would be promptly given is not strange for it is customary in this and other States. There was to be no expense to the authorities whatever. Company K agreed to foot its own bills. The local military boys twice carried off the honors and last year were tied for first place in the shoot at Sea Girt and they are the youngest company in the regiment. And this little request was refused them. It will require a more satisfactory explanation to make us believe that there is not something more behind the refusal.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Leah Kleschna" as it is so admirably played by Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, continues to exert a potent influence on the theatre public, crowded audiences regularly sitting under the spell of this remarkably dramatic representation of an engrossing story. The unusual achievement of Mrs. Fiske and the fine company of players that supports her in this drama is the enforcement of an illusion that is rare in the theatre. One sitting in the Manhattan as "Leah Kleschna" is developed forgets that he is witnessing a play and is impressed by the story as it is revealed as one would be while witnessing incidents in real life. Such is the art of Mrs. Fiske and the others who assist in the development of this play, in short, that the experience to audiences is almost wholly unlike any other of the theatre, for the characters seem actually to live in a series of happenings that hold attention from first to last with a grip that does not release the interest until the final moment, in which the hero and the heroine are reunited in one of the most charming pictures known to the modern stage.

"When the question 'What shall I do with Jesus, that is called the Christ?' confronts us, as it did Pilot, it should not be answered by the decision from the judgment seat of society, but should be answered from the court of highest appeal, the Bible," was the substance of Rev. A. E. Finn's sermon at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday night. The theme of his sermon was "The Judgment Seat of Society," and he led up to his topic by telling the story of Pilot's decision when Christ was on trial. "Not being an enemy of Christ, and feeling the injustice of a charge against Him, Pilot tried in every way to turn the responsibility, and to alter the disposition of the mob," the speaker said. "He finally gave them their choice between Jesus and Barrabas, and when they chose to release the latter, he put to them the question, calling upon the judgment seat of society to give the decision 'What shall I do with Jesus, which is called the Christ?' It is this appeal to the judgment seat of society, this questioning of 'what will people say, or think' that in the present day influences men, whether it is a matter of food, apparel, church membership, or the question which Pilot asked. These questions are not given unbiased judgment, but are considered in the light of society's opinion. When the styles change, the old garments are thrown away; when one joins, or fails to join the church, it is because he fears either that he will be thought neglectful, or considered too pious. The important question, however," Rev. Mr. Finn said, "is 'What shall I do with Jesus, which is called the Christ?' The answer to this is not found by an appeal to the monarch, public opinions; it is not answered by an appeal to the judgment seat of society; it is sought and found in the highest court of appeal, the Bible, in these words, 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved.'"

Paul P. Lyon, of Mt. Jewett, Pa., is visiting friends in Plainfield for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ball, of 34 Sycamore avenue, spent Sunday at Basking Ridge.

S. C. Peck, the dry goods merchant, is detained at his home in West Front street by a severe illness.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The evangelistic services at the Presbyterian church last night were in charge of Rev. W. T. Stuchell, of Rahway. Rev. W. W. Casselberry, the regular pastor, also officiated. The service was well attended, though many who intended to be present were kept away by the bad weather. Rev. Mr. Stuchell's address was a stirring one and appropriate to the occasion. Tomorrow evening there will be no service. The meeting tonight will be in charge of Rev. W. I. Stearns.

The funeral services of James Sebring, who was killed by a train Tuesday night, were held from the home of his brother-in-law, George Vail, Sunday afternoon, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. 'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

One of the finest musical treats the town has ever enjoyed was the programme rendered last night by The Plainfield Symphony Club, at the concert held in the Baptist church, under the auspices of the Sunday-school. Every selection rendered was well received, especially so the duets rendered by Leader Kenneth Shupp, trombone, and Whitney France, cornet. The two vocal solos of J. M. Skiff was another enjoyable number on the programme and received encores. At the close of the musical programme a social hour was held in the church parlors. During social chat, cake and lemonade were served. The disagreeable weather no doubt interferred somewhat with the attendance, although the sale of tickets was good. Should the programme be repeated, the Symphony Club would no doubt receive a welcome from a much larger audience. The committee from the school who arranged the pleasant affair were Miss Minnie Hesinger, Miss Mary Westcott and Benjamin Allen.

Coasting on Spencer's Hill is better than it has been for years. Every afternoon and night coasters are out enjoying the exciting but dangerous sport. Efforts by the authorities to put an end to the practice seems to be of no avail. Last week an order was issued prohibiting coasting on the hill, but it was ignored and the sport goes on.

The memory of the Father of Our Country was appropriately honored this afternoon by the scholars and teachers of the school, an interesting programme of recitations, songs and addresses being rendered in the assembly room at 1 o'clock. At the close of the exercises school was dismissed until Thursday.

The local voters will miss the usual excitement of the annual spring election with its factional fight, but the law is a good one even if it does rob one of some of the excitement and spice of life.

Indoor Tennis at New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—In the national indoor tennis championship on the courts of the Seventh Regiment armory here three players have won their places in the semifinal round of the singles. Dewhurst, University of Pennsylvania and Huntington Valley Country club, won his bracket by defeating Calhoun Cragin in a fast three set match. Cragin's drives for passes almost worked the downfall of Dewhurst, who won in the last set by sheer rapidity of his cross court shots. Grant won from the Harvard captain, Prentice, in three sets, and Palmer took his place easily in two sets.

Two Great Auto Races This Year.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The international automobile committee has agreed that the races for the James Gordon Bennett cup and the Grand prize shall be run separately this year. Should the government not consent to authorize an extra race over the Auvergne course the cup contest will take place in Belgium.

To Bar Married Women as Teachers.

ALBANY, Feb. 21.—On behalf of Superintendent Maxwell of the public school system of New York city Assemblyman Hartman last night introduced a bill prohibiting married women from teaching schools in New York city. Mr. Hartman said: "A married woman teaching school is morally wrong, for she cannot do her duty to her home and the school at the same time. The younger element are withheld from positions by the older married women, many of whom teach school to earn pin money." In the bill widowed and divorced women are considered single, and exceptions are made of legally separated women.

Visitors at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. — Former Governor A. M. Dockery of Missouri, who is in Washington renewing old acquaintances, paid his respects to the president. Mr. Garfield, commissioner of corporations, had a long talk with the president, presumably about the oil investigation. He said that his visit was by appointment and had to do with "several matters pending before the bureau."

Crown Prince of Germany In Trouble With Future Mother-in-law.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—A person in the confidence of Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany has told how the story of the breaking of the prince's engagement with the Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin originated. When the plan was first proposed by the crown prince to visit the Duchess Cecilia somewhere in the south Emperor William made the condition that she must be accompanied by her mother, the Grand Duchess Anastasia, which conformed with German ideas of propriety in such cases. The grand duchess was angry because the emperor had not permitted the meeting to take place at Cannes, but finally consented to Florence as the place for the meeting, but when the date arrived she delayed her departure and let Cecilia go alone, promising to follow in a few days. The crown prince, seeing the awkwardness of the situation arising from the absence of his fiancee's mother and the delay in her arrival, wrote to the emperor for advice. The emperor telegraphed: "Send Cecilia to her mother. You return at once."

While the incident has necessarily caused some friction between the two families, it is stated on the highest authority that the engagement has not been broken off. The ruling family of Mecklenburg-Schwerin evidently is considerably agitated over the matter. The Grand Duchess Alexandrine, elder sister of the Duchess Cecilia, suddenly came to Berlin on Saturday and had an hour's private talk with Emperor William, after which she took the next train for home.

SHE CALLED HIM "WILLIE."

Cody Divorce Trial at Cheyenne. "Old Reprobate," Said Wife.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 21. — The trial of the Cody divorce case was resumed in the district court, witnesses for both sides being examined. Dr. C. L. Gillam of Cody, Wyo., gave testimony for the plaintiff, William F. Cody. He accompanied Colonel and Mrs. Cody and a large party on a hunting trip in the Big Horn country in 1899. On that trip, he testified, he heard Mrs. Cody say that her husband had wanted her to accompany him to Europe, but that she "would not go anywhere with the 'old reprobate.'"

Charles F. Iddings, a merchant of North Platte, Neb., was called for the defense. He had attended many social affairs given by the Codys, he testified, and had never seen Mrs. Cody use liquor. In reply to a question as to how Mrs. Cody treated those about her, and especially the members of her family, the witness said:

"She was always very kind and considerate both with the members of her family and their guests. She seemed to be very proud of Colonel Cody and addressed him as 'Willie.'"

Rojestvensky's Command at Nossi Be

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius, Feb. 21.—The Russian second Pacific squadron, with colliers, totaling seventy ships, is still at Nossi Be. The Russians were buying stores largely, especially wines and liqueurs. They asked for 10,000 bags of flour and 50,000 cans of potatoes at prices meaning fortunes for the sellers.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Pockets Once More In Evidence. Blouse Waist Hints.

What a luxury it is to be allowed pockets again, at least in our coats! After denying us these comforts for so long Dame Fashion now decrees that they shall appear on all the modish coats. Where a coat would be made bulky with a real sure enough pocket, prettily braided flaps on the hips take the place of the actual pocket.

Nothing is prettier than an all over lace blouse with the pattern outlined in fine colored chenille. A waist of this kind has collar, cuffs and girdle of some becoming velvet. Hand work of all kinds brings fabulous prices, but clever fingers could embroider a blouse length with little trouble and small expense.

The newest short tailor made skirts have a decided swing at the feet. To accomplish this required effect cords are run about the bottom of a skirt. Stiffening of all kinds has a wicked way of protruding itself at unexpected moments, and it is not pleasant to find oneself held up by the heels when descending the staircase. A binding of leather is a very successful and practical means of avoiding such an accident. It has the advantage, too, of being easily cleaned should the skirt come in contact with any mud or dirt.

A charming gown of cream serge is illustrated. Fitted flounces form a tablier in front and run up into plaits at the upper part of the skirt. In the back the ruffles are straight. The waist is plaited on the shoulders and at the waist. A pretty little vest of green velvet strapped with braid gives a touch of color to the costume. The sleeves are composed of two puffs separated by tucks.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Kid and Leather Stocks Are Modish. Spotted Effects In Ties.

Corduroy has gained in popularity lately, and the corduroy shirt waist for morning wear has become quite a feature.

Kid and leather stocks are nearly always the accompaniment to the corduroy blouse. They may be bought in white or in all the modish colors.

Spotted effects in stocks and ties are very much in evidence. Attractive examples are fashioned with two smart bows and long plaited ends reaching almost to the waist.

Sleeves on evening frocks are elaborate affairs. Many of the daintiest are composed of a short baby puff to the elbow. A band of embroidery or ruche of ribbon dotted with tiny rosebuds of mousseline de soie forms a heading to the popular fall of lace at the elbow.

In evening dresses the tendency of modes is toward fussiness in detail. The street gowns, however, and smart visiting toilets are, generally speaking, simpler than they have been for years.

Instead of the dress harmony which has prevailed all winter, an edict comes from Paris proclaiming violent contrasts the mode. For instance, with a skirt of dahlia will be worn a waist of mauve, red and eau de nil, violet and reseda, brown and rose, and the like.

The sketch represents a ball frock of soft blue taffeta. The plain full skirt is effectively trimmed with narrow ruchings of plaited valenciennes lace. The corsage is draped crosswise above a corselet of taffeta embroidered in pearl sequins. The chemisette of fine white mousseline is interlaced with blue ribbon.

CHAPTER XXIII.

INTO THE PRIMITIVE.

Tested upon purely diplomatic principles, Miss Van Brock's temper was little less than angelic, exhibiting itself under provocation only in guarded pin-pricks of sarcasm, or in small sharp-clawed kitten-buffetings of repartee. But she was at no pains to conceal her scornful disappointment when David Kent made known his doubts concerning his moral right to use the weapon he had so skillfully forged.

He delayed the inevitable confession to Portia until he had told Loring; and in making it he did not tell Miss Van Brock to whom he owed the sudden change in the point of view. But Portia would have greatly discredited her gift of insight if she had not instantly reduced the problem to its lowest terms.

"You have been asking Miss Brentwood to lend you her conscience, and she has done it," was the form in which she stated the fact. And when Kent did not deny it: "You lack at least one quality of greatness, David; you sway too easily."

"No, I don't!" he protested. "I am as obstinate as a mule. Ask Ormsby, or Loring. But the logic of the thing is blankly unanswerable. I can either get down to the dirty level of these highbinders—fight the devil with a brand taken out of his own fire; or—"

"Or what?" she asked.

"Or think up some other scheme; some plan which doesn't involve a surrender on my part of common decency and self-respect."

"Yes?" she retorted. "I suppose you have the other plan all wrought out and ready to drop into place?"

"No, I haven't," he admitted reluctantly.

"But at least you have some notion of what it is going to be?"

"No."

She was pacing back and forth in front of his chair in a way that was almost man-like; but her contemptuous impatience made her dangerously beautiful. Suddenly she stopped and turned upon him, and there were sharp claws in the kitten-buffetings.

"Do you know you're spoiling a future that most men would hesitate to throw away?" she asked. "While you have been a man of one idea in this railroad affair, we haven't been idle—your newspaper and political friends, and Ormsby and I. You are ambitious; you want to succeed; and we have been laying the foundations for you. The next election would give you anything in the gift of the state that a man of your years could aspire to. Have you known this?"

"I have guessed it," he said quite humbly.

"Of course you have. But it has all been contingent upon one thing: you were to crush the grafters in this railroad struggle—show them up—and climb to distinction yourself on the ladder from which you have shaken them. It might have been done; it was in a fair way to be done. And now you turn back and leave the plow in the furrow!"

There was more of a like quality—a good bit more; some of it regretful; all of it pungent and logical from Miss Van Brock's point of view; and Kent was no rock not to be moved by the small tempest of disappointed vicarious ambition. Wherefore he escaped when he could, though only to begin the ethican battle all over again; to fight and wander among the tombs in the valley of indecision for a week and a day, eight miserable twirlings of the earth in space, during which interval he was invisible to his friends and innocuous to his enemies.

On the morning of the ninth day Editor Hildreth telephoned Miss Van Brock to ask if she knew where Kent could be found. The answer was a rather anxious negative; though the query could have been answered affirmatively by the conductor and motorman of an early morning electric car which ran to the farthest outskirts of the eastern suburbs of the city. Following a boyish habit he had never fully outgrown, Kent had once more taken his problem to the open, and the hour after luncheon time found him plodding wearily back to the end of the car line, jaded, dusty and stiff from much tramping of the brown plain, but with the long duel finally fought out to some despairing conclusion.

The city hall clock was upon the stroke of three when the inbound trolley-car landed him in front of the Clarendon. It was a measure of his purposeful abstraction that he went on around the corner to the Security bank, dusty and unpresentable as he was, and transferred the packet of incriminating affidavits from the safety deposit box to his pocket before going to his rooms in the hotel.

This paper weapon was the centering point of the struggle which had now lasted for nearly a fortnight. So long as the weapon was his to use or to cast away, the outcome of the moral conflict hung in the balance. But now he was emerging from the night wanderings among the tombs of the undecided.

"I can't give it up; there is too much at stake," he muttered, as he trudged heavily back to the hotel. And before he went above the stairs he asked the young woman at the house telephone exchange to ascertain if Governor Bucks were in his office at the capitol, and if so, if he were likely to remain there for an hour.

When he reached his rooms he flung the packet of papers on the writing-table and went to freshen himself with a bath. That which lay before him called for fitness, mental and physical, and cool sanity. In other times of stress, as just before a critical hour in court, the tub and the cold plunge had been his fillip where other men resorted to the bottle.

He was struggling into clean linen, and the packet was still lying where he had tossed it on entering, when a bell-boy came up with a card. Kent read the name with a ghost of a smile relaxing the care-drawn lines about his mouth. There are times when a man's fate rushes to meet him, and he had fallen upon one of them.

"Show him up," was the brief direction; and when the door of the elevator cage clacked again, Kent was waiting.

His visitor was a man of heroic proportions; a large man a little breathed, as it seemed, by the swift upward rush of the elevator. Kent admitted him with a nod; and the governor planted himself heavily in a chair and begged a light for his cigar. In the match-passing he gathered his spent breath and declared his errand.

"I think we have a little score to settle between us as man to man, Kent," he began, when Kent had clipped the end from his own cigar and lighted it in stolid silence.

"Possibly: that is for you to say," was the unencouraging reply.

Bucks rose deliberately, walked to the bath-room door, and looked beyond it into the bedroom.

"We are quite alone, if that is what you want to make sure of," said Kent, in the same indifferent tone; and the governor came back and resumed his chair.

"I came up to see what you want—what you will take to quit," he announced, crossing his legs and locking the huge ham-like hands over his knee. "That is putting it rather abruptly, but business is business, and we can dispense with the preliminaries, I take it."

"I told your attorney-general some time ago what I wanted, and he did not see fit to grant it," Kent responded. "I am not sure that I want anything now—anything you have to offer." This was not all he had intended to say; but the presence of the adversary was breeding a stubborn antagonism that was more potent on the moral side than all the prickings of conscience.

The yellow-lidded eyes of the governor began to close down, and the look came into them which had been there when he denied a pardon to a widow pleading for the life of her convicted son.

"I had hoped you were in the market," he demurred. "It would be better for all concerned if you had something to sell, with a price attached. I know what you have been doing, and what you think you have got hold of. It's a tissue of mistakes and falsehoods and backbitings from beginning to end but it may serve your purpose with the newspapers. I want to buy that package of stuff you've got stowed away in the Security vaults."

The governor's chair was on one side of the writing-table, and Kent's was on the other. In plain sight between the two men lay the packet Bucks was willing to bargain for. It was enclosed in a box envelope, bearing the imprint of the Security bank. Kent was looking steadily away from the table when he said:

"What if it isn't for sale?"

"Don't you think it had better be?"

"I don't know. I hadn't thought much about the advisable phase of it."

"Well, the time has come when you've got it to do," was the low-toned threat.

"But not as a matter of compulsion," said Kent, coolly enough. "What is your bid?"

Bucks made it promptly.

"Ten thousand dollars: and you promise to leave the state and stay away for one year from the first Tuesday in November next."

"That is, until after the state election." Kent blew a whiff of smoke to the ceiling and shook his head slowly. "It is not enough."

The governor uncrossed his legs, crossed them the other way and said:

"I'll make it twenty thousand and two years."

"Or thirty thousand and three years," Kent suggested amiably. "Or suppose we come at once to the end of that string and say one hundred thousand and ten years. That would still leave you a fair price for your block of suburban property in Guilford and Hawk's addition to the city of Gaston, wouldn't it?"

The governor set his massive jaw with a sharp little click of the teeth.

"You are joking on the edge of your grave, my young friend. I taught you in Gaston that you were not big enough to fight me: do you think you are big enough now?"

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

KANSAS OIL FIGHT.

President Promised Campbell a Square Deal All Around.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Representative Campbell of Kansas, author of the house resolution providing for an inquiry into the operations of the oil interests of the country, has had a long conference with President Roosevelt on the investigation.

Mr. Campbell gave to the president considerable information received since the adoption of his resolution. He had received from the speaker of the house of the Texas legislature a telegram urging him to request the president and the department of commerce and labor to extend the proposed inquiry to the methods of the Standard Oil company in the Beaumont field of Texas.

The Standard Oil company, Mr. Campbell informed the president, already was preparing its defense and would resist to the utmost the government's investigation. The resumption by the company of the purchase of Kansas oil, he said, undoubtedly was done in view of the action by the house of representatives in requesting an investigation. It would not surprise him either, he said, if the price of the crude oil should be advanced gradually on account of the present agitation.

President Roosevelt assured Representative Campbell of Kansas that all of the power of his administration necessary would be used in the investigation he is undertaking through the bureau of corporations into the affairs of the Standard Oil company to the end that the small producer, dealer and consumer alike shall have fair treatment and that at the same time no injustice shall be done the Standard Oil company or any other concern.

"The president realizes," said Mr. Campbell, "that this is the most important investigation of the kind which has been undertaken, and he is going into it with the determination that it shall be as thorough and successful as the machinery of the government can make it. He wants nothing but exact justice and fair play, but is determined to have both."

Among the numerous telegrams and letters received by Mr. Campbell congratulating him and the president on the developments in the matter Mr. Campbell calls especial attention to those which have come from Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Standard Has No Pull Here.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—H. V. Foster, president of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, which owns what is known as the Foster blanket lease of oil lands in the Osage Indian reservation, has made the following statement: "The Standard Oil company does not own or control a single share of stock in the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company. The controlling interest in this company is owned by the original lessees, and there is no agreement or understanding between the Standard and this company as to its policy or management."

Asked President to Hold Up Lease.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 21. — Senator Fitzpatrick introduced in the senate a resolution calling upon the president, the secretary of the interior and the congress of the United States to hold up and annul the "Foster lease" of the Osage Indian reservation.

Burning Furniture to Keep Warm.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Feb. 21.—Pere Marquette steamer No. 4, after a siege of fifty hours, is still imprisoned in a great field of ice ten miles off the harbor of Pentwater. The ice beyond the steamer extends over thirty miles. From appearances the coal on the steamer is exhausted, as but little smoke issues from the stacks. It is believed that the crew is burning the furniture and fixtures of the steamer to keep themselves and passengers warm.

Panama's Anniversary.

PANAMA, Feb. 21.—This was the first anniversary of Dr. Manuel Amador's presidency of Panama, and he received congratulations from everywhere in the republic without political distinction. A great popular meeting of all classes took place last night. After the lapse of a year the affairs of the republic are prospering, and the whole country appreciates the policy followed by the president's administration.

Russian Cavalry Raid.

MUKDEN, Feb. 21.—General Rennenkampf's division, which moved out Feb. 14, has returned from a daring reconnoissance, having succeeded in passing around the Japanese left flank and penetrating well to the rear, causing considerable consternation along the line of Japanese communications. The losses were insignificant. It was merely a raid, with no intention to strike the Japanese forces, in the direction of Yinkow.

Mining Disaster at Birmingham.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 21.—A terrible disaster has occurred in the Virginia mines, which are located about eighteen miles from here. Two hundred and fifty men are entombed in the mine, and it is believed that all are dead. One hundred and seven bodies have already been taken from the mines. The mines belong to the Alabama Steel and Wire company, which is owned by the Schulers.

Honor to Whistler's Memory.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The International Society of Sculptors, Painters and Gravers, which will open a Whistler exhibition in their gallery tomorrow, gave a dinner last night, at which ardent admirers of the great American artist from the continent as well as all parts of Great Britain were present to pay their tribute. Auguste Rodin, the celebrated French sculptor, presided.

DIAMOND DUST.

Roger Bresnahan, of the New York Nationals, will coach the University of Pennsylvania team this spring.

President Brush, of the New York Nationals has awarded contracts for $15,000 worth of improvements about the Polo grounds.

Charlie Denman, of the Westfield Baseball Association, informs Manager Woolston, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, that the New York National and American League teams can be defeated.

Louis Wiltse, of the New Madison, will again wear a Baltimore, Eastern League, uniform this season. He was held in reserve by Manager Hanlon, of the Brooklyn Nationals, but last week was released to Baltimore.

BASKET BALL.

The Business Men showed more team work in their game with the Railway aggregation last night, than they have for some time.

Concluding a most successful basketball season, the Whittier School team will play a game with the Montclair High School second team at the local gymnasium on Washington's Birthday. The game is called for 10 o'clock. The line up of the local school will be Briggs and Loughlin, forwards; Alpaugh, center; Woodhull and Fountain, guards.

GOLF.

In the election of Leighton Calkins, of the Plainfield Country Club, to the chairmanship of the handicap committee of the New Jersey State Golf Association, it is generally conceded that no better choice could be made. The matter of handicaps is one which Mr. Calkins has given much thought and attention to and when the various handicaps are announced it is predicted that they will meet with approval. The Metropolitan Golf Association is seeking Mr. Calkins' services for similar duty, but he has not yet signified his intention of accepting.

AT THE TRAPS.

The prizes offered by the Plainfield Gun Club for its shoot to be held tomorrow on the grounds, Cole's Hill, are now on exhibition at Harry Dreier's store on West Front street. They are well worth competing for and the prospects for a large number of entries are good. The shooting will commence at 10 o'clock in the morning and lunch will be furnished at noon for all contestants.

Good Tenants For You.

We have received inquiries for houses renting from $25 to $60 a month.

CLAY BIRD SHOOT.

Plainfield Gun Club to Conduct Tournament on Its Grounds Tomorrow.

What promises to be one of the largest attended clay bird tournaments of the season will be conducted tomorrow by the Plainfield Gun Club on its East End grounds. Trap shooters of wide prominence and many well known locally will be present and participate in the different events, the first of which is to start at 10:30. Among those who have entered are Jack Fanning, Marshall Herrington, Harry Welles, Sim Glover, Bob Snyder, T. H. Keller, Jr., and J. A. E. Elliott.

The sixth and tenth events are for local shooters and they have attracted widespread interest. Handsome prizes have been offered and the crack shots of the Independent and Plainfield clubs and the Brookside, of Scotch Plains, will seek to win them. Visitors are to be served with lunch on the grounds which are on the direct line of the Scotch Plains trolley.

HOLIDAY'S ATTRACTIONS

Assembly at Casino and Show at Y. M. C. A.

HUNT CLUB CHASE

Washingtonia Exhibit at Library—Co. K's Fair at Armory—Gun Club Shoot—Bowling and Basket Ball.

Washington's Birthday will be generally observed in this city by a suspension of business among the merchants and banking institutions and there will be several attractions throughout the day and evening, although the weather is not conducive to the promotion of many out-of-door sports. If the weather permits the Plainfield Gun Club will hold a shoot on its grounds at Cole's Hill, commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning. Handsome prizes will be offered in each one of the ten events. At noon luncheon will be served to the participants.

There will be on exhibition in the reading room of the Public Library, a collection of pictures relating to George Washington and New Jersey in the Revolution. The collection is loaned by the Newark Library and will be displayed about two weeks. During the day the circulating department of the library will be closed, but the reading room will be opened in the afternoon from 2 until 6 o'clock.

One of the chief society events will be the assembly at the Casino in the evening. It will be in the nature of a Martha Washington affair, and the guests will be costumed to carry out that idea. The details for the dance have been arranged on an elaborate scale.

Another attraction for the evening will be the Star Course entertainment at the Y. M. C. A., to be given by the Nicholas-Conner Combination Concert Company, assisted by the Empire State Male Quartette. The fair under the auspices of Co. K, which is being continued this week with so much success, will also be an attraction.

There will be a two-days' fair, commencing tomorrow night, at Grace M. E. church, under the auspices of the women of the church, and a number of attractive features are promised.

Other events during the day will be a chase by the members of the Watchung Hunt Club, weather permitting. The club will meet at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 10 o'clock and the chase will be about Plainfield and vicinity.

In the morning at the Y. M. C. A. there will be a basketball game between Whittier and Montclair High School, second teams, and in the evening the Triangle Bowling Club, of the Y. M. C. A., will roll a game with Bound Brook at the latter place.

In addition a number of private celebrations have been arranged for in the city and borough, all appropriate to the day. There will be no issue of The Daily Press according to custom. The postoffice will close at 10 o'clock in the morning and there will be but one delivery. The local banks as well as all of the stores will close for the entire day, while according to the rule the drug stores will close from 1 to 6 in the afternoon.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Miss Lottie Hopner, of West Fourth street, has resigned her position as stenographer with a Newark firm.

—St. Mary's Holy Name Society held its regular business meeting last night at which it was decided to hold a euchre next week.

—Hugh Adleigh, editor of The American Gentleman, a New York publication of fashions, was the guest of Charles Woolston and Marcus Hoyt yesterday.

—A positive treat is in store for all who attend the performances at the Casino Saturday afternoon and evening, when Miss Jessie Millward, the eminent English actress and her dramatic and vaudeville company appear in their great bill of entertainment. It was no idle thing to discuss when the New York daily papers first announced Jessie Millward as a convert to vaudeville, for she has only just completed a long season at the Madison Square Theatre in Clyde Fitch's "A Clean Slate," and it was one of the most extraordinary coincidences that both Charles Hawtrey and Jessie Millward, two of England's distinguished stars, happened to debut in vaudeville almost together. See advertisement for other particulars.

Y. M. C. A. Attraction.

Miss Nichols will appear with Dean Conner, Tyrio Tenor and the Empire State Quartette, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Particulars will be found in the advertisement. Fred Emerson Brooks, in writing of Miss Nichols, says: "Success is sure to come to you for you have the genius. You have more than voice and action; more than utterance and presence. You have that wonderful sympathy which no amount of culture nor art can play substitute for."

SAVED ON BRINK OF THE GRAVE

SUPPOSED DEAD WOMAN REVIVED IN NICK OF TIME.

TWITCH OF EYELASH CLEW

Undertaker Notices Signs of Life When About to Prepare Body for Last Resting Place—Had Been Given Up Three Times.

London.—"I only remember kissing my husband and feeling I was getting colder and colder. Everything is a blank to my memory until I knew I was being carried downstairs. Then I fainted again."

Thus spoke Mrs. Holden, a young woman of Hapton village, in Lancashire, in explanation of the extraordinary circumstances under which she was brought back to life while being measured for her coffin by an Accrington undertaker. She looked pale and feeble, but spoke cheerfully.

"I have been subject to fainting spells," she added, "ever since I was born, and this is the third time they have put me by as dead. When I was 15 I was laid out three days, and a similar thing happened when I was a child, but I do not remember anything about that except what my mother told me."

Mrs. Holden was supposed to have died at five o'clock one Monday morning recently, and a few minutes before that hour she told her husband she felt she was going. While he was temporarily absent she, by a supreme effort, got out of bed and actually bathed herself in preparation for the last services that would have to be rendered her.

An affecting scene occurred when the husband returned. She was motionless, but asked him in a whisper to kiss her and give her love and kisses to the children, who were sleeping in the garret upstairs.

"I thought she was dying," said Mr. Holden. "Her hands were cold and I could hardly feel her heart beating. I had nothing in the house which would revive a dying person, and I could not afford a nurse. After a time I looked at her again, and put my hand on her heart and pulse without feeling any movement. Then I thought she was dead. She had told me what she had done to save me trouble, so, after washing her face and brushing her hair, I put a piece of linen round her head and under her chin. Then I carried her upstairs, where I laid her on a mattress and covered her with a sheet."

With the exception of this covering and her night dress, the poor woman lay in the room six hours in the bitter cold.

Undertaker Waddington, through whose instrumentality Mrs. Holden was restored to life, was accompanied by an assistant when he called to measure her body.

He was leaning over the pallid form to take the measurements for the coffin when he was startled to observe the twitching of an eyelid. With an exclamation of surprise he placed his hand over the woman's heart, but all was still, not the slightest pulsation being discernible.

The next instant the twitching was repeated in even more pronounced fashion. Surely there must be life in the body, he thought, but how could the woman have lived for over six hours in an icy room with no covering except a nightdress and a sheet. But the eyes had twitched. There could be no doubt of that. If any sort of animation remained it was worth an effort to try to restore life, and Waddington applied friction to the inanimate body.

Continued effort brought its reward. Slowly and with trembling uncertainty an arm was raised, the glassy eyes quivered in ghostly fashion, and a hand, still deathly cold, clutched at his own. The awestruck husband was called, restoratives were administered, and the woman was carried downstairs.

Mrs. Holden went into repeated swoons, but they gradually lessened in duration, and she is now able to converse. Mrs. Holden, who is a good looking woman of 28, has been twice married, and is the mother of two children by her first husband.

The third of the series of assembly dances was held at the Casino last night, and it was a brilliant affair, being attended by a large number of society people from this and other cities. It was originally intended to make the function appropriate to Washington's Birthday, and while the women carried out the idea by wearing colonial gowns, the men with a very few exceptions, appeared in evening dress. The decorations were quite attractive, the stage being completely banked with palms, ferns and potted plants, behind which was seated Austin's orchestra. The varied colored lights, together with a pleasing arrangements of flowers in other parts of the hall, presented an effective scene. BRITISH SOLDIER CAPTAIN

John P. Hall Installed as Head of Crescent Co. U. R., K. of P.

A GALA NIGHT

Pythians Give an Entertainment and High Officers of Order Are Among the Guests.

One of the most pleasant affairs yet conducted by Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., took place in Perseverance hall, Tuesday night, when, after a public installation of officers, an entertainment and dance was held. The attendance was very large and the members had provided every means to properly provide for the care of their guests.

The officers installed were: Captain, John P. Hall; first lieutenant, Oliver R. Pearson; second lieutenant, Robert Gow; recorder, Thomas Osment; treasurer, Joseph U. Blimm; guard, Philip Jahn; sentinel, Elmer D. Cutting. The entire company, numbering forty members, afterward gave an exhibition drill, the movements being very creditably executed under command of Captain Hall.

Contributors to the entertainment were Elmer D. Cutting and Alexander Muir with vocal solos and Miss May Ardern with piano selections. Refreshments were served and dancing concluded the affair, continuing until well after midnight with William Feiring as the efficient floor manager. The committee which arranged and had charge during the evening comprised Robert Gow, David Bowden and Charles McGinley.

Among the special guests were Brigadier-General Hitchcock, of Newark; Colonel P. Frank Shanley, of Jersey City; Colonel Howe, of Kearny, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patterson, of Port Chester, N. Y.

The installation of Captain Hall marked the retirement of J. E. Flannery, who had been in charge of the company for fourteen years and who has been a devoted worker for its interests. No. 13 was organized in 1887 with Captain Pelhemus at the head. He was succeeded by the late John Carney, who in turn was succeeded by Horace J. Martin, Captain Flannery following. The present captain is experienced in military tactics, having served ten years in the British army, the greater part of the time being in Egypt and India. During the Egyptian campaign he was sergeant-major and at Burmah, India, he was in the mounted guard. When the English took possession of Egypt he was made a military instructor by General Kitchener.

P. H. S. CONCERT.

Glee Club Entertainment in Franklin School Hall.

Vocal and instrumental music and recitations comprised the programme of the Plainfield High School and Mandolin Club entertainment, which was given at Franklin Hall Tuesday night. It was worthy of the large crowd in attendance. The music was appreciated and applauded, nearly every selection being encored.

There were three selections by the Mandolin and Banjo Club, while the Glee Club appeared twice. Duetts by the Briggs brothers and by Theodore Gavett and Chester H. Briggs were well received, while Miss Helen Whitney's recitations, "So Did I" and "Supposing," were enthusiastically applauded. Miss Edith Hanaford is particularly deserving of mention for her rendition of "Lasco," a Texas story.

The hit of the evening was made when Messrs. Briggs, Gavett, Gaston and Smith appeared on the stage with mouth organs, and played popular airs on the harmonious quartette" plan. They were encored four times. A selection, "The Holiday," appropriately concluded the programme, while the school song, "Red and Blue," was effectively sung just before the close. The Glee and Mandolin Clubs were trained by S. H. Howe, Jr., of the faculty. A dance followed the entertainment.

Entertained Clinical Society.

Dr. J. H. Carman entertained the members of the Plainfield Clinical Society at Truell Inn, Tuesday night, there being eleven present, the full staff of Muhlenberg Hospital. Following an excellent dinner. Dr. Carman presented a paper on "Epithelioma," a treatment of tumor.

ROYAL WELCOME FOR CO. K

Member of Inaugural Committee Speaks His Mind.

ON TO WASHINGTON

"Billy" Martin Popular—Displeased at Action of N. J. State Military Board.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23—There is general disappointment among the Jerseymen here who know Captain William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, commandant of Company K, Second Regiment, of Plainfield, because the New Jersey Military Board has declined to grant permission for that organization to participate in the inaugural parade. The consensus of opinion is to the effect that if the company desired to display its patriotism to that extent, and there was no expense to the State in the trip, the permission might have been granted graciously.

Said a member of the inaugural committee: "If Captain Martin brings his company down as civilians he may rest assured we will take good care of him and his men, as he is well known among the District of Columbia guardsmen, who have a high regard for 'Captain Billy' Martin, and he will get just as much attention and consideration as though the company comes as a military organization and with the approval of the State Military Board. I cannot see any reason for the permission to come as a military body being refused. I think some of our District of Columbia people would be inclined to loan rifles to Company K if they had them to spare."

FORMALLY ORGANIZED.

Grove Street Rescue Mission Elects Officers and Arranges Meeting Nights.

The Grove Street Rescue Mission has formally organized with the following officers: President, Rev. Phil. A. Parsons; recording secretary, Mrs. Andrew Cox; financial secretary, Spencer Scribner; treasurer, Miss Carrie White; organist, Mrs. John Manley; usher, Walter Stewart; librarian, George Begga. Regular meetings are to be held in the First Church of Christ on Thursday evenings and Sunday afternoons, while a song service and business meeting will be held each Tuesday night. At Tuesday night's business meeting arrangements were made for a dime social this evening. There will be a short infermal programme, after which light refreshments will be served.

TO VISIT WASHINGTON.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Will Make Annual Trip in April.

In accordance with the annual custom at the Y. M. C. A. Boys' department, a trip will be made to the National Capitol, the date for the event having been selected for April 24. Kenneth Robbie, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will be in charge of the trip and has already made arrangements with the Government for permits to visit the prominent places at Washington.

The week during which the boys will make the trip is a spring vacation at the schools, and they plan to spend four or five days at the Capitol. Last year, the party from Plainfield was fortunate enough to meet the President, with whom they shook hands. It is expected that about ten boys will go to Washington.

Two Thousand Dollars Per Week.

When Miss Jessie Millward, who will be seen at the Casino Saturday afternoon and evening, accepted one thousand dollars a week to forsake the legitimate stage for vaudeville all the world shook its head, but when she scored in "The Queen's Messenger" a big success, she not only stood by vaudeville but now we find her actually a vaudeville manager and star combined. Besides herself and her support in "The Queen's Messenger" Miss Millward carries not less than nine unique and original specialties which embrace everything from a tragedy to opera and from circus to minstrelsy. Miss Millward and her company present all that is best in refined vaudeville.

Funeral of E. P. Kellogg.

The funeral services of Edward P. Kellogg were held from his late home at Mt. Pleasant, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated. The interment was in the North Plainfield Cemetery and the pall-bearers were Edward Randolph, Charles Payne, William Mellick and William Ellerson.

BRANTINGHAM A WINNER

Carries Off City Championship at Gun Club's Holiday Shoot.

DEN GAVIN SECOND

Total of Fifty-Six Professional and Amateur Marksmen Face the Traps.

The holiday shoot conducted by the Plainfield Gun Club on its range yesterday, was one of the most successful and best attended yet given in the city, and served to bring out local marksmen in the front rank of the amateurs. A total of fifty-six shooters faced the traps, well known professionals mingling with members of the Plainfield, Independent and Brookside clubs. The city championship went to Thomas Brantingham, who broke 13 out of 15 birds in the sixth event. Dan Gavin was second with 12, Scott Terry third, Detective McCarthy fourth and Sebring fifth. Brantingham also won the last event, breaking 9 out of 10.

First prize in the first four events was won by "Jack" Staples, of New York, which gave him a $2.50 gold piece for high amateur average. In the professional ranks, "Jack" Fanning took the high average with ease, most of his competitors showing up poorly in comparison with their exhibitions in the fall shoot in this city.

Charles Floyd, of Jersey City, known as "Jap," failed to land a prize. Dan Gavin surprised the gallery by winning firsts in the eighth and ninth events against a large field.

Among the trade representatives present were "Jack" Fanning, R. G. Schneider, H. P. Vosseler and John Terry.

LICENSE FEE USES.

To Be Divided Equally Between School and Street Funds.

Mr. Ferdyce, of Middlesex, has introduced a bill in the House which provides that one-half the license fees for selling liquors, etc., in cities shall be used for paving, repaving, repairing and improving paved streets and reconstructing sewers; the other one-half shall be used for the construction and furnishing of public school buildings.

Sentence Suspended on Southard.

Sentence was suspended on C. S. Southard, the Public Service trolley man, when arraigned before Recorder Dowd on a charge of obstructing the streets, Tuesday night. The trolley officials and Mayor Smalley previously held a conference during which both sides made agreements relative to the removal of snow and ice on Somerset street. The railway company is to stand half the expense and its sweeper is to operate in the borough only at night from 10 o'clock until 5.

Gave a Dinner Party.

In honor of Miss Helen Harman, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Rowland, of West Seventh street, gave a dinner party on Tuesday night. Covers were laid for fourteen, as follows: Miss Helen Harman, Miss Grace Kaufman, Miss Edith Fisk, Miss Trottie Smith, Miss Rowland, of this city; Miss Linderman, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Kenneth Bulkley, Gordon Abbott, Joseph Wadsworth, E. A. Pinto, Dudley H. Barrows, Charles Dupee, Mr. and Mrs D. H. Rowland.

Street Sprinkling Contract.

The Common Council street committee meets tonight and will award the bid for street sprinkling. It is generally believed that John Keely, who has held the contract since the system was inaugurated, will be the successful bidder. He has invested a considerable sum in the business and it is hardly thought possible that the committee will award the contract to some one else at this time.

Mrs. Eliza Cross Buried.

The funeral services of Mrs. Eliza Cross were held this morning at 11 o'clock from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Maurer, of West Front street, Rev. George Mooney, of the Monroe Avenue church, officiating. The body will be sent today to Massillon, Ohio, the former home of Mrs. Cross, for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Tunstall Separate.

OSHKOSH IS A SUCCESS

Half Entertainment's Profits for Casino Improvements.

CHARITY BALL NEXT

Receipts of Dance in May to be Given Muhlenberg Hospital—Donation to Children's Home.

Following the meeting of the Oshkosh Club on Friday, February 10, when it was decided to effect a permanent organization of the club, there has been considerable interest and enthusiasm shown in continuing the club, and from time to time various forms of entertainment will be given.

In view of the fact that the people of Plainfield so generally and largely supported the three performances recently given, to an extent, which exceeded all precedents here, the management of "Oshkosh" has evinced its desire to make public its statement of the show's finances, which is as follows:

Receipts from sale of tickets	$1,496.50
Receipts from advertisements	247.50
Receipts from sale of song booklets	14.45
	$1,688.45
Total expenses of production	967.95
Net profits	$720.50

When the giving of this year's show came up first for discussion, it was proposed by "Oshkosh" to the management of the Casino that the stage of the hall be enlarged and that other permanent improvements be made, for the purpose of the proposed entertainment; and of like performances to follow; and that, in return for the desired alterations, "Oshkosh" contributed its net profits to the expense of the improvements. Receipts from programme advertising, however, were reserved to be applied by "Oshkosh" as it might seem best to the club to do.

When, however, settlement of finances came to be made, one half of the amount which was rightly coming to the Casino was by former Mayor Charles J. Fisk very generously returned to the club, under the condition that this fund be held to constitute a sinking fund for "Oshkosh" itself, subject to future call of the club.

As has already been announced, the sum of $350, the entire amount of advertising receipts, has been presented by the club to the Children's Home of this city.

The unprecedented financial success of "Oshkosh at Home" is emphasized by the significant fact that the performance was this year projected, managed and consummated by the Oshkosh Club, without appeal for patronage to, or aid in any measure from, any of the social or charitable organizations of Plainfield.

The Charity Ball which will be given under the auspices of "Oshkosh" sometime in May, will have as its benevolent object the raising of funds for Muhlenberg Hospital.

RECEPTION AT HOPE.

Farewell Affair in Honor of Mrs. N. C. King.

The officers and teachers of Hope chapel, tendered a reception to Mrs. Noble C. King, formerly in charge of the primary department, in the Sunday-school rooms, last night. It was attended by the primary department members and their parents, while Superintendent H. C. Squires and Rev. L. R. Howard were in charge. Both made addresses and the former presented Mrs. King with a handsomely bound Bible in behalf of her former scholars. Refreshments were served and an hour was spent in a social way. Mrs. King leaves next week for Chicago where she will make her home, Mr. King having preceded her.

Muhlenberg Auxiliary Meeting.

The February meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow morning. The visitors for March will be appointed at that time.

Home Acknowledges Gift.

Will Consider License Applications.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Common Council on Monday night to consider the license applications. The applications are acted upon at the regular meeting to be held Monday night, March 6.

THE SINEWS OF WAR

Russians Hope to Wear Out Japan's Resources.

WARSAW-VIENNA RAILROAD TIED UP

Soldiers and Gendarmes Guard Great Terminus—No Trains Run—Kuropatkin Said to Have Been Outflanked at Shakhe.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 23.—Although the party which is advocating peace as the only egress from the present situation continues to gain strength, nothing has actually been decided, and no move has yet been made. It is officially maintained that Russia's attitude is unchanged. At the foreign office not the slightest encouragement is given to the peace talk. On the contrary, it is affirmed as strongly as ever that Japan must propose terms, while at the same time it is admitted that it is inconceivable that Japan can offer conditions acceptable to Russia and that therefore the war must go on to a conclusion.

The idea of a complete Russian victory is not harbored, but it is insisted that Russia is not beaten and will not be beaten until General Kuropatkin is decisively worsted by General Oyama and the fate of Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron is determined. The main consideration entering into the calculations of the uncompromising advocates of a prosecution of the war is that Japan's financial resources must become exhausted long before Russia's.

A Mukden dispatch this morning says that General Kuropatkin has been outflanked by a strong force of Japanese in the vicinity of Sinmintin and compelled to retire from the Shakhe river.

A Mukden dispatch says that a company of Cossacks which has returned from a long and perilous reconnaissance in the direction of Korea penetrated by mountain paths as far as Hagoumin, eighteen miles northwest of the Yalu river, where they found and burned a large depot of Japanese provisions. Turning south, the Russians captured a few miles distant a transport of supplies, of which the small command was in great need. During the course of the night Japanese surrounded the command on three sides. The position of the Russians was desperate, but happily for them a Chinese guide discovered a mountain pass, by which they escaped to Khuaizhen mountain, 100 miles due north of the mouth of the Yalu river, from whence they rejoined the army by way of little known trails.

The news of General Gripenberg's attack on General Kuropatkin has caused great indignation at Russian headquarters and in army circles. General Gripenberg's departure was a surprise, as he had received no orders from General Kuropatkin to quit his post. He left Manchuria unceremoniously without taking leave of the commander in chief. Even General Gripenberg's friends say that, no matter what grievances he may have had, the present is not a fit time for venting personal feelings, when the army must bend all its energies in the effort to secure victory.

Traffic on the Warsaw-Vienna railway has been entirely suspended, the entire force of employees, including telegraphists, having joined in the strike. Not a single train is leaving Warsaw's great terminus, which is guarded by a strong force of gendarmes keeping back the crowds clamoring for opportunities to leave the city. Two regiments of infantry are guarding the interior of the station, the yards and buildings. Chiefs of the engineering department, acting as firemen and engineers, attempted to run trains into Warsaw from outside points, but none succeeded in reaching the city, having been held up somewhere along the line. The telegraph and telephone services also have been stopped.

The strike originally was planned to begin March 1, but the men learned the intention of the authorities to proclaim the entire line under martial law and hence determined to strike at once.

It is feared the employees of the Vistula lines between Warsaw and the Austrian and German frontiers will also go out.

The Warsaw police have arrested the prominent Polish publicist and poet Andrea Niemojewski.

A telegram from Baku, Caucasia, says that the military authorities have authorized energetic measures to suppress all disturbances, but this has not been accomplished without bloodshed. Many dead bodies are lying in the streets.

According to reports received from Batum, racial disorders in the Caucasus have developed into actual revolution in the cities of Batum, Pati and Kutais, at the eastern end of the Black sea, under the lead of Armenians who have set up a form of provisional government.

THREE GREAT MEN

Pennsylvania University Honors President and Kaiser.

WASHINGTON, ROOSEVELT, WILHELM

Roosevelt Addresses the Assembly on Some Maxims of the First President—German Emperor Sent Cablegram of Thanks.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—President Roosevelt and Emperor William received the degree of doctor of laws from the University of Pennsylvania. The degree was conferred upon the German emperor in absentia, Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German ambassador, accepting the honor for his sovereign.

The conferring of the degrees was a feature of the commemoration of Washington's birthday by the faculty and students of the university. President Roosevelt was the orator of the day. He delivered a patriotic address on "Some Maxims of Washington."

The following cablegram from Emperor William was received by Provost Harrison:

"I am truly glad that the university has tendered me at the same time with President Roosevelt the academic honor that once clothed George Washington. I beg you to accept with my thanks my best wishes for the continued growth and prosperity of the university."

Mr. Harrison cabled the following reply:

"The University of Pennsylvania thanks your majesty for your gracious message and welcome to her university body the names of your majesty, President Roosevelt and George Washington."

Dr. S. Wier Mitchell, the "public orator," in presenting the president said:

"On the 4th of July, 1783, the University of Pennsylvania conferred the degree of doctor of laws upon George Washington, the first president of the United States of America.

"The trustees of the same university do now, after 122 years, once again request the provost to honor with the same degree our latest president. This makes all other comment needless."

In presenting the name of Emperor William Dr. Mitchell said:

"The breadth and earnestness of his imperial majesty's intellectual sympathies, the personal generosity which has fostered science and literature and his farsighted interest in the international exchange of university influence make it most fit that a great university recognize both in the man and in the ruler of a kindred race his services to learning."

Among others upon which the university conferred the degree of LL. D. was Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, British ambassador to the United States.

President Roosevelt said in part as follows:

"One hundred and eight years ago, just before he left the presidency, George Washington issued his farewell address, and in it he laid down certain principles which he believed should guide the citizens of this republic for all time to come, his own words being, 'Which appear to me all important to the permanency of your felicity as a people.'

"Washington, though in some ways an even greater man than Lincoln, did not have Lincoln's wonderful gift of expression—that gift which makes certain speeches of the rail splitter from Illinois read like the inspired utterances of the great Hebrew seers and prophets. But he had all of Lincoln's sound common sense, farsightedness and devotion to a lofty ideal. Like Lincoln, he sought after the noblest objects, and, like Lincoln, he sought after them by thoroughly practical methods.

"These two greatest Americans can fairly be called the best among the great men of the world and greatest among the good men of the world. Each showed in actual practice his capacity to secure under our system the priceless union of individual liberty with governmental strength.

"Among Washington's maxims which he bequeathed to his countrymen were the two following: 'Observe good faith and justice toward all nations' and 'To be prepared for war is the most effective means to promote peace.' These two principles taken together should form the basis of our whole foreign policy. Neither is sufficient taken by itself.

"Never since the beginning of our country's history has the navy been used in an unjust war. Never has it failed to render great and sometimes vital service to the republic. It has not been too strong for our good, though often not strong enough to do all the good it should have done. Our possession of the Philippines, our interest in the trade of the orient, our building the isthmian canal, our insistence upon the Monroe doctrine, all demand that our navy shall be of adequate size and for its size of unsurpassed efficiency.

"Again, Washington said, 'Give to mankind the example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence.' This feeling can be shown alike by our dealings within and without our own borders. Taft and Wright in the Philippines and Wood in Cuba have shown us exactly how to practice this justice and benevolence in dealing with other peoples—a justice and benevolence which can be shown not by shirking our duty and abandoning to self destruction those unfit to govern themselves, but by doing our duty by staying with them and teaching them how to govern themselves, by uplifting them spiritually and materially.

"Again, Washington said, 'Cherish public credit.' Just at the moment there is no attack on public credit, but if ever the temptation arises again let our people at the outset remember that the worst because the most insidious form of the dishonest debtor is that man who would persuade him that it is anything but dishonest for him to repudiate his debts.

"Finally, it is peculiarly appropriate when I have come to this city as the guest of the University of Pennsylvania to quote another of Washington's maxims, 'Promote, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge.' To merely political issues have succeeded those of grave social and economic importance, the solution of which demands the best efforts of the best men.

"It is but occasionally that a college graduate can do much outright for his alma mater, but he can best repay her by living a life that will reflect credit upon her, by so carrying himself as a citizen that men shall see that the years spent in training him have not been wasted."

An incident occurred here while the president was driving from the Academy of Music to the armory, where he was the guest of the City troop at luncheon. Before the presidential party reached the City troop armory an unknown man dashed into the street and got within eight or ten feet of the president's carriage. There he was struck with the flat of a saber by one of the four troopers who surrounded the president's carriage, and, checked by the force of the blow, he staggered back and was lost sight of in the crowd.

SIXTY-ONE VICTIMS.

Virginia City Mine Disaster—Rescuers Still at Work.

VIRGINIA CITY, Ala., Feb. 23.—The bodies of sixty-one victims of the mine disaster here have been taken out, and the rescuers say they have just discovered a room in which they counted twenty more corpses, making a total of eighty-one dead accounted for from the ill fated Virginia mine, in which the disastrous gas explosion occurred.

Today is a day of funerals at Bessemer, Virginia City, Pratt City and Ensley. The bodies have been taken to Bessemer as fast as identified, and buildings have been converted into morgues.

The rescuers are still heroically at work in the slope, and as the diggers advance the bodies farther in the mine are found to be worse burned and mutilated than those nearer the exterior.

No hope is now held out that any of the men can be alive. Only three men were found whose hearts were still beating, and they expired immediately on reaching the outer air.

The Birmingham district has come forward in the matter of relieving the destitute families of the victims, and mass meetings have been held in this city, Bessemer, Ensley and Pratt City for that purpose. Hundreds of dollars have been subscribed in the suburbs, and the Birmingham Commercial club has raised more than $3,000 for the sufferers.

Alabama District No. 20, United Mine Workers of America, voted $5,000 to be distributed among the families. Among the notable contributions was one of $20 by Jacob Riis, a warm personal friend of President Roosevelt.

In addition to the fund raised among the members of the Commercial club, that organization has issued an appeal to the citizens of Birmingham.

TRIAL OF KRATZ.

Jury Counted the Alleged Bribery Fund—Want Niedringhaus.

BUTLER, Mo., Feb. 23. — At the Kratz trial here the state introduced in evidence the small black box from the vaults of the Mississippi Valley Trust company of St. Louis, containing sixty $1,000 bills. This money comprised the alleged bribery fund referred to in testimony brought out in the trial. The money was counted by the jurors. William Desmond, chief of detectives of St. Louis, was the last witness for the state. He described his trip to Mexico, when Kratz was brought back to St. Louis under the provisions of a special treaty.

On the request of Attorney Fauntleroy, counsel for the defense, an attachment has been issued for Thomas K. Niedringhaus, the Republican caucus nominee for United States senator. "We want Mr. Niedringhaus for a witness," said Attorney Fauntleroy, "and he must come."

Woman Accused of Child Murder.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 23.—Mrs. Ellen Shugrue was before the court here to answer the charge of attempting to kill her infant by drowning in a pail of water. Continuance was granted until Saturday, as the police wish to investigate the death of the woman's husband, which was reported as poisoning with carbolic acid self administered, and the death of an infant nine days old last week from "convulsions."

Decision Against Coal Company.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 23.—The Illinois supreme court, in the case of the Wilmington Coal company versus the people, sustained the judgments of the Cook county circuit court and the appellate court in the cases where the Wilmington Coal company and sixteen other coal companies were found guilty of a conspiracy to control the price of coal.

WASHINGTON HANDICAP.

New Orleans Feature Race Won In a Gallop by Favorite.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23. — The weather was ideal for racing, and the new City Park track, though heavy, is drying out fast. Four favorites won, and as every winner with the possible exception of Bishop Poole was well played the betting public had decidedly the best of the sixteen bookmakers that drew in. The feature of the day, the George Washington handicap, at one mile, was just a gallop for Garnish. Summaries:

First Race.—Tichimingo, first; Gary, second; Dick Brown, third.

Second Race.—Bishop Poole, first; Delaval, second; Green Gown, third.

Third Race.—Garnish, first; Janeta, second; Heywood, third.

Fourth Race.—Death, first; Gold Spot, second; Lida Lieb, third.

Fifth Race.—Coruscate, first; Poseur, second; Nervator, third.

Sixth Race.—Rossmond, first; Ed Tierney, second; Tom Rowe, third.

General Opinion Favored Murphy.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—At a matinee boxing entertainment at the National Athletic club here the feature was a six round bout between Chick Tucker and Tommy Murphy, rival claimants of the featherweight championship of New York. The bout was fast and interesting. Tucker was the stronger of the two and endeavored to wear down his opponent by boring tactics. The first four rounds were about equal, but the fifth was slightly in favor of Murphy. In the last round Murphy had much the better of the contest, and if a decision were permitted by law it was the general opinion that Murphy should have received it.

Dewhurst Is Tennis Champion.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Play in the national indoor tennis championship here has been brought to a close. F. B. Dewhurst of the University of Pennsylvania and the Huntington Valley Country club won the title in the singles, and in the doubles Theodore Roosevelt Pell and H. F. Allen gained the honors. W. C. Grant, champion for the past two years, met defeat at the hands of Dewhurst in straight sets, the score being 6—3, 8—6, 6—4.

Boston Dog Show Winners.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—At the Boston bench show there was keen competition in the St. Bernard classes between the Willowmere Farm kennels of Sound Beach, Conn., and the Alta kennels of Toledo, O. The Alta entries won in the winner's class for rough coated dogs with Alta Bruce II., but in the winner's class for rough coated bitches the Willowmere farm's Baby Beautiful and Aunt Sarah took the blue and reserve ribbons respectively.

Shady Lad and Black Art Won.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 23.—The track at Oaklawn was if possible in worse shape than on any previous day when the card was run off. Two favorites, Shady Lad and Black Art, the latter at odds on, managed to flounder home in front of their fields. Donora in the fifth race carried almost as much money at 9 to 5 as did Galmada, quoted a point lower, and the bookmakers quit about even on the day.

Dr. Leggo Won the Derby.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—Dr. Leggo, winner of the Ascot Derby last Saturday, won the California Derby. When he passed the half, going easy, it was practically over, and he came home three lengths in front. Ara finished second, and A. Muskoday took third money. Dr. Leggo and Big Beach were coupled in the betting, being pronounced favorites.

Wrestling Match at Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 23.—The annual sophomore-freshmen wrestling match was won by the class of 1907, which won two events out of three. The victors were: R. I. Mount, '08, East Orange, N. J., lightweight; William Bradley, '07, Duluth, Minn., middleweight, and D. G. Herring, '07, Bloomsburg, Pa., heavyweight.

Telegraphic Chess Match.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The first telegraphic chess match between New York and Chicago chess clubs was played in both cities on sixteen boards last night. Roething scored the first victory for New York, and Halpen drew with Parks. The others did not finish.

Irvin Won Opening Match.

TUXEDO PARK, N. J., Feb. 23.—The tourney for the amateur gold racket championship opened here on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racket club. The first match, between I. T. Irvin of Tuxedo and J. I. Blair of New York, resulted in a victory for Irvin.

Kahalian Got Handicap.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 23.—The Santa Anita handicap, with a gross value of $1,950, was the feature at Ascot. Kahalian won the handicap in the easiest kind of fashion from Borghesi, with Pasadena, the even money favorite, third.

Yale Won In Fast Game.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 23.—The Yale basket ball team defeated Princeton in a fast game last night by the score of 37 to 30. Princeton's team work was inferior, and erratic shooting was also responsible for the defeat.

Government Basin Flooded.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Feb. 23.—The big basin at Henderson point, which is being excavated by the government preparatory to blowing up the entire point and deepening and straightening the Piscataqua river, was flooded by a break in the wall at high tide, and 300 laborers got out so hastily that the pumps, tools and drills were left behind.

HARPER'S CONDITION

Head of University Undergoes Successful Operation.

PHYSICIANS CALL IT "CARCINOMA"

Chicago Patient Has Rallied and Is Resting Comfortably—For Present He Must Take X Ray Treatment—Hope For Recovery.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—President W. R. Harper of the University of Chicago has been operated on here at the Presbyterian hospital. Dr. McBurney of New York handled the knife. Dr. Harper was in good condition and went courageously to the ordeal. He was not hopeful of the outcome.

Dr. Charles McBurney is a cancer specialist of New York. He was assisted by Drs. N. Senn, L. Hektoen and A. D. Bevan. A number of other surgeons were present. Miss Eleanor Ahley, who has been the Harper family nurse, acted in that capacity at the operation.

Dr. McBurney said that a condition of thickening of the posterior wall of the head of the colon and the enlargement of the glands of the messenterry was found. The entire removal of the diseased tissue was deemed impossible by the surgeons.

When Dr. Harper was removed from the operating table at the hospital the operation appeared to be successful. The chances of surviving is said by the surgeons to be 75 per cent in his favor.

Dr. Nicholas Senn, after the operation, said definitely that Dr. Harper's malady was cancer.

It was the opinion of Drs. McBurney and Devan that the disease was carcinoma. A bulletin signed by Dr. Frank Billings says: "It has been decided that President Harper shall be placed under medical and X ray treatment, with reasonable hope that the disease may be checked. It is anticipated that President Harper will make a speedy convalescence."

Carcinoma is the technical term for cancer.

"President Harper is very courageous," said Dr. T. W. Goodspeed of the University of Chicago. "His vitality and nerves are good, and if he gets through it will be because of this fact."

It was announced that Professor Robert F. Harper, who was summoned from Constantinople, did not reach the bedside of his stricken brother until several hours after the operation had been performed.

For nearly two years Dr. Harper has been afflicted with severe pains in the abdomen and about one year ago underwent an operation for appendicitis. This did not result in permanent improvement, and it was finally decided, after exhaustive examinations by his physicians, that a second operation was necessary. It was generally thought by the physicians that would reveal a cancerous condition of the intestines near the head of the colon.

The operation from a surgical standpoint was a success. The patient rallied splendidly from the shock and last night was in a condition that gives every promise of an early recovery from the effects of the operation. The ultimate recovery of Dr. Harper is a matter on which the physicians decline to commit themselves, but merely express "the reasonable hope that the disease may be checked."

Soldier Shot at Fort Caswell.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Feb. 23.—Thomas Harris, twenty-seven years old, of Biltmore, N. C., a corporal in the Thirty-first company, Coast artillery, stationed at Fort Caswell, N. C., is dead as the result of a gunshot wound inflicted by Sergeant Lee Kye of the same command. Kye had been assigned to special duty in running down the illicit sale of liquor on the government reservation and accosted Harris in the dark, commanding him to halt and consider himself under arrest. Harris, it is said, gave the sergeant an insolent reply in return and started to run, whereupon the sergeant fired. Kye is under arrest.

Polish Exile Honored.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Colonel John Sobrieski, great-grandson of John Sobieski, the last king of Poland, was guest of honor at a congratulatory reception held in Willard hall. The affair marked the fiftieth anniversary of Colonel Sobieski's arrival in America. Several speakers praised his efforts in the last forty years for the temperance cause, and then the guest of the day told of his exile from Poland with his mother after his father had been executed by the Russians.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 23, 1905.

CHAS. H. DENMAN HEAD OF WESTFIELD BALL CLUB

"RED" WALLER AND "AL" FARMER TO BE THE BATTERY.

Officers were elected and preliminary plans discussed for the coming season at the annual meeting of the trustees of the Westfield Baseball Association, held yesterday. The organization is showing a great deal of activity and it is proposed to get together a team that will defeat Plainfield's new aggregation.

These officers were elected: President, Charles H. Denman; vice president, Randolph Perkins; treasurer, Henry C. Piker; secretary, H. H. Dewar. George H. Johnston, manager of last year's Plainfield team, was elected a trustee to fill the unexpired term of H. L. Abrams, and George Maller was appointed team manager. He will have exclusive control of the team for 1905. It will be of interest to the fans to learn that "Al." Farmer, who caught for Plainfield last year, will probably officiate in a similar capacity for Westfield this season. It is understood that he is the choice of George Johnston, inasmuch as Burke, owing to injuries, will be unable to play. Of last year's team it is expected that "Red" Waller will serve up the twisters; Mike Rochford will be on the initial bag, with Tommy Barry at third, Smithson at short and McManus in left field. The other positions will be filled with equally strong players. It was stated at the meeting that Waller is in the best of condition and ready to do the trick for Westfield as of yore. There is an unusual amount of enthusiasm among the Westfield fans this year and they predict a successful season with the usual defeat of Plainfield.

TALK ON INDIANS.

Henry Ward Beecher's Granddaughter Makes An Address.

Miss Annie Beecher Scoville, granddaughter of Henry Ward Beecher, was the speaker at the regular Home Missionary meeting of the Women's Association of the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon, which was held at the home of Mrs. John M. Whiton, of Crescent avenue. The meeting was largely attended.

Miss Scoville's subject was "The Indians," a topic with which she is familiar, having lived for some time among them, and having become well acquainted with their manner, custom and characteristic at Hampton Institute. She told of the well known traits of the Indians, and emphasized many new incidents in the life at Indian Territory and Dakota, which are not familiar.

The offering at the conclusion of the address was for the benefit of the Indians at Hampton mission, where Miss Scoville's greatest amount of time has been spent. During the afternoon, solos and duets by Mrs. S. H. Tugwell and Miss Etta Raybert added to the pleasure of the occasion. Tea was served at the close.

BISHOP M'FAUL ON LIFE IN THE HOME

PASTORAL LETTER TO BE READ IN ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH SUNDAY.

Bishop James A. McFaul has issued to the clergy and faithful of the Catholic Diocese of Trenton a pastoral letter upon the subject of "The Christian Home," which, under his instructions, will be read at all the masses in churches of the diocese, including St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, next Sunday.

In his letter Bishop McFaul points out the necessity of making home "the sweetest spot on earth," refers to the duties of father, mother, husband, wife and children, and calls upon parents to make every sacrifice to keep their children in school rather than subject them to the evil influences of the workshop.

The tenement house, the Bishop says, with its swarms of inmates and its incitements to, and occasions for, sin, are a formidable enemy of the home, and he urges upon municipal authorities their duty to remedy this evil. Carefully-selected reading and the barring of "yellow journalism" from the home are also urged by the bishop, and he urges parents to keep their children off the streets at unseemly hours.

Some idea of the close attention Bishop McFaul has given the subject may be had from the fact that he has even touched upon the servant problem and advises that servants be trained for their positions. In conclusion, the need of religious instruction in the home is pointed out as a remedy against impure living.

TO INCREASE MEMBERSHIP.

Efforts to Raise Enrollment at Y. M. C. A.—The Committee.

A most promising membership committee meeting took place at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night, President Gavett, of the association, presiding. The plans for increasing the membership for the next year were discussed, and the prospects are bright for doubling the present enrollment. Last year the membership, as the report at the annual meeting showed, had fallen far below the usual standard, and a decrease of eighteen per cent. was the result.

Among those who are on the committee and who will work for the membership this year are S. H. Tugwell, A. L. Spicer, A. J. Schomp, T. E. Dickinson, James Kimball, F. R. Stevens, Harry Marshall, A. P. Atwood, Robert H. Davis, E. F. Feickert, George V. W. Moy and J. A. Powlison. Each of the above pledged himself to get ten men into the association during the year, and to get ten outside the committee to work for increase in membership.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

Since the meeting of the Board of Education last Monday, the sentiment in favor of the petition which was brought up for consideration at that meeting has grown raidly. Those who heard the speakers who backed the proposition for a school on Rock avenue were impressed with the truth of their arguments, and have subsequently discussed the matter in such a way as to point to an acceptance of the petition at the next meeting, which will be held on March 20. At that time the board will also consider the other petitions.

Mrs. Katherine E. Conley, wife of William Conley and daughter of Mrs. Katherine Maier, died at her home on North avenue Tuesday night, after two weeks' illness with pneumonia. She was in her thirty-ninth year and had been a resident of the borough at intervals for a long time. She leaves one child and is survived by a brother, Joseph Maier. Funeral services over the body will be held from St. John's church tomorrow morning and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

On account of the fact that yesterday was a holiday, the mid-week prayer meeting at the Methodist church was held on Tuesday night. Rev. S. K. Doolittle, the pastor, officiated. At the conclusion of the regular service a meeting of the teachers and officers of the Sunday-school was held. The usual monthly transaction of routine business took place.

There was no service at the Presbyterian church last night, the evangelistic services having been omitted. On Tuesday evening Rev. W. I. Stearns, of Westfield, was in charge, assisted by the pastor. Tonight and tomorrow will conclude the services, Rev. I. Aistyne Blauvelt and Rev. J. G. Mason having charge of the respective meetings.

Mrs. Lester Meseroll is entertaining out-of-town friends.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The holiday shoot of the Brookside Club was postponed yesterday, so as not to conflict with the Plainfield club's shoot. The local shooters attended the latter shoot and tried their luck with some of the fastest shots in the State.

Spencer's hill was crowded with coasters all day yesterday. The thaw of Tuesday has made the hill a glare of ice and the younger element is enjoying the sport while it lasts.

The match game between the 'Plains seconds and the Suburban seconds, which was to have been rolled Tuesday night on the local alleys, was postponed until a later date.

IMPROVEMENTS COMPLETED AT COUNTRY CLUBHOUSE

EVERYTHING NOW IN READINESS FOR THE SEASON'S OPENING.

The extensive improvements which have been going on at the clubhouse of the Plainfield Country Club, are about completed and everything will be in readiness for the opening of the season in the spring. The improvements at the house include seven sleeping apartments, which will provide suitable accommodations for members and their guests who wish to remain there over night. Arrangements have also been made for the serving of regular meals at the house during the coming season. The accommodations for the women have also been improved.

During the coming season the club proposes to have open tournaments in tennis and golf and this will bring a number of outside contestants who will desire entertainment at the clubhouse and partially with this in view the club has provided the sleeping quarters. The organization expects to have a more successful season than ever and when the programme of events is announced there will be several attractive features which will tend to increase the interest in both golf and tennis.

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Socials.

Arranged and carried out by the social committee of the organization, a series of socials and entertainments has been planned for the members of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 26.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Heroes of home missions; what they teach us.—Jer. vii, 1-19.

The New Testament makes no distinction between home missions and foreign missions. It is all "missions." The apostles were sent to the world and very appropriately were instructed to begin their work at Jerusalem, at home. But the evangelization of Jerusalem, Judaea, Samaria and the uttermost parts of the earth was but one great work, and it is to be questioned whether the division into home and foreign missions has been a wise and profitable one. Yet the distinction has been made and the title "home missions" applied to missionary work done within the bounds of one's own country. In this sense Isaiah, Jeremiah and all the prophets, the apostles and all who have labored for Christ in their own lands have been home missionaries, and their work for Christ has been of inestimable value.

Our own country soon after its settlement by Christian people became a home mission field. The first subjects of home mission efforts were the Indians, and conspicuous among the heroes of early Indian mission work were John Eliot, "the apostle to the Indians," Jonathan Edwards and David Brainerd, whose lives teach us noble lessons of heroic service and self sacrifice in the cause of Christ. Marcus Whitman in his sensational saving of the great northwest to our country stands conspicuous among the home missionaries, who teach us the lesson of Christian patriotism. Our home mission field is still a vast one. In the great west are many sections where the gospel of Christ is greatly needed, but greatest of all are the needs of our "exceptional populations"—250,000 Indians, 2,000,000 mountaineers in the south, 9,000,000 colored people, 300,000 Mexicans, 300,000 Mormons, the Alaskans, the foreign population and we may include today the 10,000,000 Filipinos. What a vast field for missionary effort and what deeds of heroism have been performed in the efforts already made to spread the gospel among these peoples—deeds that teach everywhere the same lessons of consecrated zeal and self denial in the spread of Christ's kingdom, which should fire us with new enthusiasm in the effort to win our land for Christ!

But home missions in particular present to us a class of heroes who are often overlooked. We may call them the quiet heroes. In some faroff, distant field they labor day in and day out, month by month and year by year. The world hears not of them. Their names are not upon the lips of men, but quietly, patiently, inconspicuously they labor for the conversion of souls and their comfort and sanctification in Christ. To most of us such heroism may best teach useful lessons. A life devoted to the service of Christ is a heroic life, though the field may be distant from the busy marts of men and the stories of heroic sacrifice and lonely struggle may be forever unknown to the world and unpraised by men. The Master knows—"the Master praises. What are men?"

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. lxxii, 1-10, 17; cxxxvii, 1-6; Isa. vi, 1-10; Matt. x, 5-8; xxviii, 19, 20; Luke xxiv, 45-53; John xv, 26, 27; Acts i, 8; ii, 37-40; Rom. x, 14, 15.

India Inspiration.

The one city of Cutlack has twelve Christian Endeavor societies of one denomination.

A Christian Endeavor society in Kandy, Ceylon, has started the useful annex of a Christian Endeavor class in shorthand.

Dr. Clough, the great Baptist missionary at Ongole, warmly supports Christian Endeavor and has seven societies in his institutions at Ongole.

The girls' society of Bellary, south India, has taken an extra orphan into its school at its own expense. True Christian Endeavor that.

The East Bengal union has just held its first annual convention, reporting sixty-nine societies, fifteen of them for women, five Juniors and the rest for boys and men.

Professor Sterling of the Christian college at Madras is a Christian Endeavorer. He had been in India only three weeks when he organized a new society and invigorated an old one.

The East Bengal union has divided its societies into groups of from four to six, each group being watched over by a "circle secretary," whose duty it is to see that his societies are in good condition and visit them often, an idea worth transplanting.

Enlarge the Associate Membership.

Let us enlarge our associate membership, our future working forces. This has been sadly neglected in many societies. It is the evangelistic end of our work; it is our harvest field, our fishing ground, our recruiting station. Oh, make much of your privileges, your blessed privileges, as soul winners! Christian Endeavor has given us the greatest evangelistic opportunity of the century. Win one, my brothers and sisters, each of you win one, and soon the whole wide world will be won.—Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark in Irish Endeavorer.

Gains.

In the Hawaiian Islands the growth of the past year has been 116 per cent.

The present total enrollment of societies as shown on the books at United society headquarters is 64,904 societies.

The Primitive Methodist church of the United States has officially adopted the name Christian Endeavor in addition to the name of their denominational Young People's society, their title now being the Wesley Guild of Christian Endeavor.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 26: "Medical Missions"—Matt. ix, 2-8; Acts iii, 1-8.
By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

Nothing stamps the gospel of Jesus Christ with a distinctive difference from all other religions the world has ever seen more than the manner in which it regards the diseased and unfortunate.

"Who did sin, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" seems to put in words the thought that is often unexpressed in many a mind. It is difficult to get rid of the impression that he who is infirm is not entitled to have consideration such as the strong receive. This has all degrees of force among different classes of men and finds expression in a multitude of ways. In some ages and among some peoples it has been customary to put the aged to death and so end their suffering and the care of others in helping them. The belief has been widely prevalent that the sick were in some way under the displeasure of the gods. How forcibly this is brought out in the speeches of Job's friends, who see in his calamities positive proof of the wickedness and hypocrisy of that patriarch.

No other religious teacher whom the world has ever seen has made it his special care to relieve the distress of the suffering and to base his teaching on the sympathetic care of God. Those whom others shunned as smitten, if not accursed, He received graciously and relieved.

It has been customary to center attention on the physical wonders of healing performed by Christ and to find in these the strongest proof of superhuman power and of His divinity. This has caused an unfortunate oversight of the stupendous wonder of His moral power shown in His compassion for the needy and distressed.

John sends messengers to ask Jesus if He is really the Messiah or if there is still another to come. John was the clearest visioned man of his day in regard to the age long promise of Jehovah to give an ideal Son of Man. But even he is perplexed because Jesus does not proceed as he had expected the Messiah would do.

Jesus answers him in the only way that it is possible to convey the truth to another mind. He goes straight forward with His work in the simple way He had been doing. Then He tells the messengers to go back and report what they have seen. What would be the decisive test to John of the divine mission of Jesus? Would it be the mere healing of the blind, deaf, lame or even of the lepers, however wonderful these things might be as physical cures?

The one decisive proof of the supernatural in Jesus was the fact that He cared to do these things for men. He bore our infirmities and carried our griefs. He had the heart of God and sorrowed for men. Otherwise He could never have relieved them. He did not despise or shun them. His holiness did not isolate Him from the sinful, but impelled to companionship with them.

So now with us. There is no more decisive proof of the vitality of our Christianity at the present day than the spirit of compassionate regard that is apparent in the efforts made for the bettering of the condition of the sick and suffering of all lands.

Our medical missions have given us entrance to many homes and influence in many places we could never have obtained but for them. All this is valuable indeed, but not of the highest worth. The supreme test of their value lies in the fact that they demonstrate and cultivate that deep sympathy with suffering which is the peculiar and distinctive mark of Christianity.

Our leagues should study the work done by these trained physicians and nurses, male and female, who at home and abroad are doing this most Christly work. It is to be hoped and expected that this study will lead many of our young people to devote themselves to this work and fit themselves to go to the most needy whom the church is trying in the name of her Master to relieve.

The relief of the suffering is of great importance, but the growth of the spirit of pity is of even more worth in the kingdom of God.

Be pitiful, for blessed are the merciful. The incoming of the merciful spirit fills men with a likeness to God.

Now Is the Time.

You mean to be religious some day. Now is the real time to open these deeper lives which you do mean some day to live.—Phillips Brooks.

God's Rest.

Rest, rest—His sleeping after pain;
When lights are down and curtains close, we sleep;
The stars watch on, their pale rays faintly keep
Their unseen vigil o'er the slumbering one.
Not death—but rest—the music of the spheres
His angels' lullaby of sweet repose.
We should not weep—'tis well, God knows,
And it is sweet to sleep.

Such strenuous living! How the pulses throb!
Life's little triumphs, joys, its cares and pain,
The wondrous workings of the busy brain.
Till it is time to rest—He calls us home.
Think not of death, but rest.
More peaceful and profound, that does not dream
In half unconscious pain. It should not seem
That dreadful parting—surely He knows best.

'Tis hard to say "goodby," but not "good night!"
We all must some time sleep at close of day,
And if the weary one can only pray
With soul unstained—'tis well.
"He giveth His beloved sleep"—why weep?
The wayward, weary, sin stained soul needs rest—
Rest, rest, indeed, like those their works oppressed
For them the angels weep—we all need sleep.
Not death, but God's own rest!
—Boston Transcript.

CHIC STYLES.

The New Shade of Brown—Smart Lingerie Headgear.

Spangled black tulle is used for smart evening gowns relieved with a spray of red roses or chrysanthemums and mauve mousseline de soie with wistaria blossoms.

Louis Seize bodices are growing in favor for evening gowns. Their chief features are very sharply pointed fronts. The narrow peak comes down over the skirt in front and cuts up sharply over the hips.

The new spring shade of brown is curiously unlike anything that has appeared throughout this recent brown fad. It is neither bronze nor onion brown, but a rare shade which is very beautiful.

HAT OF WHITE MULL.

All the latest models show short skirts, and most of them have an increased fullness about the hips. There is a conservatism about many of these skirts, on which the stitched down plaits still disport themselves.

Eolienne, broadcloth and silk will be made up for traveling suits and softer finished silks for extra dresses.

Lingerie hats are to be worn again, but lingerie hats that are different in every way from those of last year.

The lingerie hat illustrated is a becoming piece of head adornment carried out in white silk mull. The inner brim is a mass of soft shirrings, and the outer edge is made fluffy with lace trimmed ruffles of the mull. A chic upstanding bow is arranged at one side of the chapeau, and under the tilted brim is another knot of soft satin ribbon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FORECAST OF FASHION.

Linens Will Be Popular Again For Summer Frocks.

Although winter gowns and wraps will be worn for some time to come, the planning of the spring and summer wardrobe has already begun. Like last summer, it is to be a light season. White will be very much in evidence, with the paler colors rivaling it in favor.

Linens will again be popular in all weaves, from the heaviest to the sheerest and finest of handkerchief variety. Linen suits, linen costumes, everything linen in every conceivable color, with white as a leading note, is to be worn.

GUIPURE LACE WAIST.

There is a lovely shade of corn color in linen which is extremely new and pretty and a delicious violet, while all the pastel shades are as fascinating as ever.

Sleeves on the shirt waist suits are fuller at the top, and when of the strictly tailored sort they have the regulation cuff worn with links or a narrow band neatly buttoned.

The smart little coats of all over linen broderie anglaise will be worn with skirts of plain linen elaborately trimmed with bands of the same embroidery.

Some of the new linens have wafer dots in heavy embroidery scattered over their surface. Dots and rings also appear on many of the new colored linens. For instance, soft, dull blue and green linens have designs of interlacing rings over them at intervals.

The chic waist illustrated is of guipure lace stretched plain over a fitted lining of white silk. Ribbon two inches wide crosses the waist in bretelle fashion and narrows at the waist line into silk covered rings. At the bust these ribbons are again looped through the rings. Ribbons and crocheted loops trim the sleeves top and bottom.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"I don't think; I know," said Kent, incisively. "And since you have referred to the Gaston days: let me ask if I ever gave you any reason to believe that I could be scared out?"

"Keep to the point," retorted Bucks, harshly. "This state isn't broad enough to hold you and me on opposite sides of the fence. I could make it too hot to hold you without mixing up in it myself, but I choose to fight my own battles. Will you take $20,000 spot cash, and MacFarlane's job as circuit judge when I'm through with him? Yes or no."

"No."

"Then what will you take?"

"Without committing myself in any sense, I might say that you are getting off too cheaply on your most liberal proposition. You and your friends have looted a $70,000,000 railroad, and—"

"You might have stood in on that if you had taken Guilford's offer," was the brusk rejoinder. "There was more than a corporation lawyer's salary in sight, if you'd had sense enough to see it."

"Possibly. But I stayed out—and I am still out."

"Do you want to get in? Is that your price?"

"I intend to get in—though not, perhaps, in the way you have in mind. Are you ready to recall Judge MacFarlane with instructions to give us our hearing on the merits?"

The governor's face was wooden when he said:

"Is that all you want? I understand MacFarlane is returning, and you will doubtless have your hearing in due season."

"Not unless you authorize it," Kent objected.

"And if I do? If I say that I have already done so, will you come in and lay down your arms?"

"No."

"Then I'm through. Give me your key and write me an order on the Security bank for those papers you are holding."

"No," said Kent, again.

"I say yes!" came the explosive reassertion; and Kent found himself looking down the bright barrel of a pistol thrust into his face across the table.

For a man who had been oftenest an onlooker on the football half of life, Kent was measureably quick and resourceful. In one motion he clamped the weapon and turned it aside; in another he jammed the fire end of his cigar among the fingers of the grasping hand. The governor jerked free with an oath, pain-extorted; and Kent dropped the captured weapon into the table drawer. It was all done in two breaths, and when it was over Kent flung away the broken cigar and lighted a fresh one.

"That was a very primitive expedient, your excellency, to say the best of it," he remarked. "Have you nothing better to offer?"

The reply was a wild-beast growl, and taking it for a negative, Kent went on.

"Then perhaps you will listen to my proposal. The papers you are so anxious about are here,"—tapping the envelope on the table. "No, don't try to snatch them; you wouldn't get out of here alive with them, lacking my leave. Such of them as relate to your complicity in the Universal Oil deal are yours—on one condition; that your health fails and you get yourself ordered out of the state for the remainder of your term."

"No!" thundered the governor.

"Very well; you may stay and take a course of home treatment, if you prefer. It's optional."

"By God! I don't know what keeps me from throttling you with my hands!" Bucks got upon his feet, and

HE JAMMED THE FIRE-END OF HIS CIGAR AMONG THE FINGERS OF THE GRASPING HAND.

Kent rose, also, slipping the box envelope into his pocket and laying a precautionary hand on the drawer-pull.

The governor turned away and walked to the window, nursing his burned fingers. When he faced about it was to return to the charge.

"Kent, what is it you want? Say it in two words."

"Candidly, I didn't know, until a few minutes ago, governor. It began with a determination to break your grip on my railroad, I believe."

"You can have your railroad, if you can get it—and be damned to it, and to you, too!"

"I said it began that way. My sole idea in gathering up this evidence against you and your accomplices was to whittle out a club that would make you let go of the Trans-Western. For two weeks I have been debating with myself as to whether I should buy or break you; and half an hour before you came, I went to the bank and took these papers out, meaning to go and hunt you up."

"Well?" said the governor, and the word bared his teeth because his lips were dry.

"I thought I knew, in the old Gaston days, how many different kinds of a scoundrel you could be, but you've succeeded in showing me some new variations in the last few minutes. It's a thousand pities that the people of a great state should be at the mercy of such a gang of pirates as you and Hendricks and Meigs and MacFarlane, and—"

"Break it off!" said Bucks.

"I'm through. I was merely going to add that I have concluded not to buy you."

"Then it's to be war to the knife, is it?"

"That is about the size of it," said Kent; and the governor found his hat.

"I'll trouble you to return my property," he growled, pointing to the table drawer.

"Certainly." Kent broke the revolver over the blotting pad, swept the ejected cartridges into the open drawer, and passed the empty weapon to its owner.

When the door closed behind the outgoing visitor the victor in the small passage at arms began to walk the floor; but at four o'clock, which was Hildreth's hour for coming down-town, he put on his hat and went to climb the three flights of stairs to the editor's den in the Argus building.

CHAPTER XXIV.

DEAD WATER AND QUICK.

The cubby-hole in which Hildredth earned his bread by the sweat of his brain was dark even at midday; and during working hours the editor sat under a funnel-shaped reflector in a conic shower- bath of electric light which flooded man and desk and left the corners of the room in a penumbra of grateful twilight.

Kent sat just outside of the cone of radiance, watching Hildredth's face as the editor read stolidly through the contents of the box envelope. It was an instructive study in thought dynamics. There was a gleam of battle satisfaction in the editorial eye when Hildreth faced the last sheet down upon the accumulation of evidence, saying:

"You didn't overstate the fact in your brag about the political graves. Only this isn't a spade; it's a steam shovel. Do I understand you are giving me this stuff to use as I please?"

"Just that," said Kent.

"And you have made it serve your turn, too?"

"No." Kent's voice was sharp and crisp.

"Isn't that what you got it for?"

"Yes."

"Then why don't you use it?"

"That was what Bucks wanted to know a little while ago when he came to my rooms to try to buy me off. I don't think I succeeded in making him understand why I couldn't traffic with it; and possibly you wouldn't understand."

"I guess I do. It's public property, and you couldn't divert it into private channels. Is that the way it struck you?"

"It is the way it struck a friend of mine whose sense of ultimate right and wrong hasn't lost its fine edge in the world-mill. I did not want to do it."

"Naturally," said the editor. "Giving it up means the loss of all you have been working for in the railroad game. I wish I could use it, just as it stands."

"Can't you?"

"I am afraid not—effectively. It would make an issue in a campaign; or, sprung on the eve of an election, it might down the ring conclusively. I think it would. But this is the off year, and the people won't rise to a political issue—couldn't make themselves felt if they should."

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark, 14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

"WETS" AND "DRYS."

Councilman of Bluefield Held the Fort Against Antisaloon Men.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 23.—As a result of the bitter fight between the "drys" and "wets" of Bluefield Councilman Abe Massey of the Second ward last night was locked in his home with a repeating rifle and a large supply of cartridges awaiting the arrival of a supposed crowd of angry "drys."

For the past several weeks the Anti-saloon league, led by the ministers of the city, has been waging war against the saloons and soliciting signatures to a petition to the city council asking that body to decline to grant liquor licenses for the ensuing year. The league had succeeded in getting the signatures of a majority of the voting population of the city, including the indorsement of one-half of the city council. This would have necessitated the vote of the mayor, who was considered a "dry" man, to decide the question.

At the council meeting, however, Massey, who, it is claimed, had indorsed the petition, declined to vote, causing a decision in favor of the "wets." The Rev. Walters of the Christian church angrily denounced Massey and was applauded by a large crowd of "drys." It seemed for awhile as if Massey would be subjected to rough treatment at their hands. Later a policeman had to escort Massey to his home. Circulars were issued calling on the citizens to meet at the city hall at 7:30 last night and march in a body, headed by a band, to Massey's home. Massey purchased a repeating rifle and hurried to his home to await the coming of the crowd, but it is now said the circular was got out as a hoax.

REPORT FAVORS RUSSIA.

North Sea Commission Decides That Rojestvensky Acted In Self Defense.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—A semiofficial statement has appeared relative to the work of the international commission which has been considering the North sea incident. It is as follows:

"The Hull commission report was written by Admiral von Spaun, the Austrian member, but all the members of the commission collaborated in drawing it up.

"The commission gives no opinion on the question of the presence or absence of Japanese torpedo boats in the North sea, declaring merely that the Russian admiral quite legitimately believed that his squadron was endangered and that he had the right under the circumstances to act as he did. The commissioners refer to the Russian government's engagements to indemnify the victims of the deplorable incident.

"The report will be sent today by special messengers to the Russian and British governments."

MURDER SUSPECTED.

Body of James McMillan Found In a Bank of Snow.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 23.—County Physician Souder, after making an examination of the body of James McMillan, formerly of Philadelphia, gave it as his opinion that the man had been killed by a deliberate blow from a blunt instrument. The body was found covered in a bank of ice and snow in the woods near Weymouth, N. J.

Half of one arm was gone, the back part of the head was crushed in and a log was thrown across the chest, as if it had accidentally fallen on him. The autopsy showed that the man must have been hit and tried to defend himself.

Charles Burns, a former partner of the dead man, is under arrest, but he asserts his innocence. The two purchased a farm together, but separated. McMillan had been missing since Christmas.

War on Mosquitoes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce gave a hearing to Henry Clay Weeks, secretary of the American Mosquito society, in behalf of a "mosquito bill" introduced by Mr. Scudder of New York. The object of the measure is to have 30,000 to 40,000 acres of swamp land in New Jersey and New York states, commonly known as the Newark and Hackensack marshes, drained and thus eliminated as a breeding place for the "malarial" mosquito and the "salt marsh" mosquito.

Deathblow to "Wildcat" Insurance.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 23.—By the decision of the supreme court confirming the decision of the appellate court in the case of the North American Insurance company of Chicago versus Henry Yates, a former superintendent of insurance, a deathblow is dealt to so called "wildcat" insurance companies doing business in the state. The decision also affects foreign corporations which simply claim to have offices in the state and to operate under a charter procured from another state.

To Suffer Death For Assault.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Feb. 23.—After a trial consuming less than a day in Cumberland county superior court the judge in the case of Walter Partridge, colored, charged with criminal assault upon Mrs. Hales, white, near Fayetteville, on the afternoon of Feb. 1, brought in a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner was sentenced to be hanged on April 6.

Duel With Butcher Knives.

CIRCLEVILLE, O., Feb. 23.—In a duel with butcher knives in the warehouse of the Hosler Packing company Henry Wibbe stabbed John Price in the heart, killing him instantly, after Price had cut Wibbe's chin and nose almost off. Running home, Wibbe told his mother of the crime and disappeared.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Jack Chesbro more appropriately calls his expectorant slant the "thumb ball."

The Philadelphia All-Americans, who will open the local season with the Plainfield team, on Saturday, April 15, will play the following day with the Elizabeth Stars.

According to the Sporting Life, Dave Fultz says that he will be "on hand" with "both feet" in the spring. However, it is understood that he will accept no cut in his salary, as proposed by Manager Griffith.

Manager McGraw, of the New York Giants, has signed Shumsa Sugimoro, a young Japanese ball player, whom he considers a great find. He was with the Cuban Giants last year, making a remarkable record as a fielder. He will accompany the Giants South and is likely to go into regular service.

"Christy" Mathewson has informed Manager McGraw that he will not accompany the Giants on their spring training trip South, but that he will be at the Polo Grounds two weeks before the opening in condition to play. Last season's trip South was disastrous for "Christy" from a health standpoint and he will train in the North.

The last issue of Sporting Life says that President Harvey, of the Hudson River League, has notified Manager J. W. Dobbins, to continue his work of organizing the Elizabeth team, notwithstanding President Powers' warning. Mr. Dobbins states that he has received his receipt from Secretary Farrell, of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, also a letter assuring him that the Hudson River League had been granted protection for Elizabeth and wishing him success. The protest comes from the Newark Eastern League management, who bases its claims under the five-mile limit.

The chances for Dave Fultz being a member of the Plainfield Baseball Association this season seem to be good. The New York Sun's sporting writer has this to say: "The fact that Dave Fultz has been admitted to the bar may result in his retirement from professional baseball. The New York American outfielder said last night that although he had not made up his mind that he was through with the game he doubted if he would play this season, that he was in the law and would probably stick to it." Fultz told Manager Woolston that if he did not join the New Yorks he would join the local team and play centre field.

BASKET BALL.

The Business Men, of the Y. M. C. A., were defeated for the second time by the Rahway basketball team Monday night, the score being 30 to 19. The game was played on the local gymnasium floor, and was interesting though rather rough. The score was a positive proof of the fact that the Business Men were not up to their usual form, and though their passing was good, they were inaccurate in goal shooting.

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH YOUNG MEN FORM CLUB

ITS AIMS AND OBJECTS WILL BE THE SAME AS SIMILAR ORGANIZATIONS.

Meeting in the parlors Tuesday night, the young men of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church formally organized a Men's Club with the following officers: President, Max Munger; vice president, James E. Kimball; secretary and treasurer, Arthur Lovell; executive committee, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Harry Cochran. Those present at the gathering numbered about fifty and the majority at once became charter members. Meetings are to be held at stated intervals and committees will be appointed from time to time to arrange for instructive entertainment.

Following the organization and election, Rev. Dr. Amory Bradford, of Montclair, gave an address on "The Unity of the World." In it he spoke of the brotherhood which now exists between the nations and the tendency it has had to settle national disputes by arbitration instead of by war. He quoted statistics for the past hundred years and also for the last ten years to bear him out in his statement, showing how numerous arguments had been settled peaceably and with satisfaction to all concerned. The English speaking race, he said, has, and is, increasing rapidly and it has had a great deal to do in the preference of arbitration to war.

As Dr. Bradford concluded, adjournment was made to the lower parlors where refreshments were served.

AID FOR FISHERMEN.

Help Wanted for Dr. Grenfell's Mission.

So much interest was aroused by the lecture delivered last Thursday evening by Dr. Grenfell on his work among the deep sea fishermen of Labrador and Newfoundland, that it is proposed to make an effort to assist him in the prosecution of same.

It is not generally known that while Dr. Grenfell is the representative of the English Mission, the responsibility of procuring the means of carrying on the work devolves on him. The society in case of emergency sometimes issues an appeal in his behalf, but he is expected to raise the necessary funds. Contributions of bedding, warm clothing for men and boys, women and girls and shoes may be sent to Mrs. Samuel Huntington, 324 Franklin place, and of money to Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, Truell Inn, and same will be promptly forwarded.

While the telephone has held a very important place in the commercial and social life of Plainfield, it is now about to make a new departure. The Ladies' Aid Society, of the First M. E. church, with the sanction of the trustees, has decided to stand the expense of a telephone to be placed in the church. The women have felt for some time that a 'phone is a necessity there, for they frequently want to communicate with others while holding affairs of a religious or social character. It has not yet been decided just where the instrument will be placed, but some convenient place will be selected. Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., are the first of the local lodges to place telephones in their rooms, and it has been found a great convenience to the members, especially the professional men.

FACING MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Harold M. Wilcox on Trial for Killing Boy at Play in Westfield.

HALLOWE'EN TRAGEDY

Companions of Young John Darling, His Victim, Chief Witnesses for Prosecution.

It is now a certainty that the Wilcox case will occupy all of today and that it may not reach the jury before late this afternoon. This morning the time was taken up in closing the case for the State and this was done before the court adjourned at noon.

Model of Wilcox House.
(Cross shows where young Darling was shot.)

J. H. Hastings, who lives opposite Harold M. Wilcox's residence at Westfield, testified that Mr. Wilcox rang his bell the night of the shooting and called him to come out, adding "I am in trouble. I shot off my revolver and I hit a boy." He heard Mr. Wilcox say: "I shot at the ground and the ball must have glanced."

Dr. Tubbs testified that when Mr. Wilcox called him on the telephone on Hallowe'en night, he said he had accidentally shot somebody.

Chief of Police O'Neil, of Westfield, swore that Mr. Wilcox told him that the shooting was accidental.

Harry Barding, a neighbor of Mr. Wilcox, swore that when he was helping the latter to carry the body of John Darling up on the porch, Mr. Wilcox said: "I believe I have made a grevious mistake."

This concluded the evidence for the State and Lawyer Faulks, of counsel for Mr. Wilcox, opened for the defense. Mrs. Wilcox was called and she related incidents occurring on Hallowe'en. Dr. G. R. Vandewater and E. B. Hepburn, former controller of currency, of New York, were called as witnesses and testified to the good character of Mr. Wilcox. The rest of the afternoon will be occupied in examining witnesses for the defense.

On the night of the murder Darling with several other boys, was cutting up pranks in the neighborhood of Wilcox's house. He attempted to run away, when Wilcox shot him and the boy staggered several feet and died.

The first witness was Dr. James Greene, who testified the boy died from hemorrhages of the lungs caused by a bullet wound. Otherwise the boy was in a healthy condition.

Mrs. Darling, mother of the boy, swore her son John left on the night he was killed with two brothers about 7 o'clock. She did not see him again until she was summoned to Mr. Wilcox's house after the shooting, when she saw her son lying dead on the porch of the Wilcox house. She said Mr. Wilcox telephoned he that he had shot her son and told her to come to his house quickly. Wilcox said to witness:

"I didn't mean to do this, Mrs. Darling. Think what this means to me and my family. I have done all I can and have given myself up to the police."

Dora Ray, a colored servant, said some boys threw cold water on her Hallowe'en night while she was in ST. MARY WANTS GAMES WITH PLAINFIELD A. A.

MANAGER WEIERENGA GETTING HIS TEAM TOGETHER.

Manager Henry Wierenga, of th St. Mary Baseball Association, states that there will be some changes in the line-up of the team from that published a few days ago in The Daily Press. Assisting him in getting his team together are Manager Frank Burke, of the Elizabeth Stars, and "Warry" MacLaughlin, who will do the pitching for the Saints. Mac now intends to play Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday ball, and he will be assisted at the receiving end by Armbruster, of the New London team, who will be remembered by many of the local fans.

The association will make a proposition to the Plainfield Baseball Association for a series of three games, one on each club's grounds and the third on a neutral diamond. As yet the association has not upon grounds, there being several sites in view, one in North Plainfield and two in this city—the Orange Field Club grounds and a site on East Second street. This matter will be decided upon in the course of a couple of weeks.

Some of the players for the infield will come from the Connecticut State League, some from Poughkeepsie and others from Newburg. It is expected to sign Zimmerman, formerly of Manhattan College, for an infield or outfield position, and O'Neil, of New London, will cover shors stop. It is quite likely that one or two positions may be filled by local players. Mr. Wierenga will be able to announce his lineup within a few days and in the meantime he will prepare his schedule which he hopes to complete soon.

Besides playing the other Plainfield team, the management proposes to arrange contests with some of the best semi-professional clubs in and near New York.

Mission's Dime Social.

The dime social given by the Grove Street Rescue Mission at the First Church of Christ last evening was well attended. A short programme was rendered, consisting of recitations, dialogues and singing, after which coffee and cake were served. With the proceeds of the evening the mission is able to finish paying for the new hymn books with a small balance in the treasury. Several new names were added to the roll, making in all sixty-two.

Progressive Euchre.

The Wiota Club met last night at the residence of Mrs. E. Tapscott, 68 Willow avenue. An enjoyable evening was spent at progressive euchre, four tables being arranged. Miss Fannie Ayers secured first prize, winning six games out of seven. There were a great number of out-of-town people present, amongst them being Miss L. E. Tapscott, of Paris.

A Sleighing Party.

Miss Minnie Serrell, of Plainfield avenue, gave a sleighing party Wednesday night for a number of friends, a trip being made about Plainfield and vicinity in one of Mebus brothers' large box sleighs. Upon the return Miss Serrell entertained the young folks at her home.

RUN DOWN IN NEW YORK

Mrs. Patrick Fahy Seriously Injured on Crowded Street.

ACCIDENT AT BRIDGE

Knocked Down by Wagon—Her Back Wrenched, Foot Hurt and Many Bruises Sustained.

While crossing City Hall Park from the Brooklyn Bridge, in New York, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Patrick Fahy, of West Fourth street, was run into by a team, knocked down and seriously injured. She had been visiting her mother in Brooklyn and was hurrying to catch a boat at Liberty street ferry. The crossing was crowded and in the excitement, Mrs. Fahy stepped directly in front of the wagon, apparently unnoticed by the driver who stopped his horses after the wheel had gone over Mrs. Fahy's foot. An ambulance was called for, but Mrs. Fany refused to be taken to the hospital, and said she could walk. The driver's name is not known.

Mrs. Fahy was thrown heavily, and struck her back, sustaining a severe strain. There were hundreds of pedestrians who saw the accident. Several women fainted. Two elderly women came to Mrs. Fahy's assistance and helped her to the ferry house, where she was taken care of by friends and brought to her home in this city.

Upon reaching her home Mrs. Fahy collapsed, and when Dr. Clawson arrived was in an unconscious condition. Upon examination it was found that her back was badly wrenched, and that numerous bruises and scratches had been received as a result of the accident. Though her condition is serious, Dr. Clawson said this morning no signs of internal injuries have appeared, but that she is seriously injured.

THREE GREAT HEADS OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

REV. DR. SCHENCK REFERS TO THEM AT MEETING OF MEN'S CLUB.

The Men's Association meeting at Trinity Reformed church last night was largely attended. It was one of the best and the members are much encouraged. The newly elected president, Frank P. Starr, was in the chair. These committees were appointed: Advisory—Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, chairman, H. E. Gayle and A. K. Willett; entertainment—W. F. Oliver, chairman, Fred E. Smith, John Hoffman, P. A. Vroom and C. E. Ball. It was moved that the charter membership list be kept open through 1905.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Edward Young rendered several tener solos and Rev. Dr. Schenck delivered a patriotic address, taking for his subject "Washington and Lincoln." The speaker referred to their differences, and spoke also of their similarities. He mentioned that in their early environments the two statesmen were vastly different.

"There were many respects," said Rev. Dr. Schenck, "in which the two men were alike. Their statesmanship was marked by similar characteristics. They both had unusual physical prowess. Each of the men whose birthdays we have recently celebrated, accomplished a great work. Washington freed the Colonies; Lincoln freed the slaves, and in my mind, impartial of partisan view, I believe that Theodore Roosevelt is destined to free this country from the slavery of commercialism."

At the conclusion of Rev. Dr. Schenck's stirring address, refreshments were served by the committee. Some short talks were given incidently.

To Sell Road House.

For the purpose of settling up the estate of the late Ellis A. Campbell, there will be a public sale of the club house property situated on Park avenue, adjoining the Plainfield Driving Park, and known as the Ellis Campbell Hotel property, on Wednesday afternoon, March 15, at 2 o'clock. The premises consist of a large roomy hotel building of eleven rooms, with ample shed and stable accommodations. It is considered one of the best road houses in the State. Reed & Coddington are the attorneys for the estate and further information can be obtained from them.

—Neuman Brothers make a specialty of fancy fruits. They are constantly receiving new consignments and always sell at the lowest market price.

WILL ADVERTISE FOR STREET SPRINKLING BIDS

COUNCILMANIC COMMITTEE SO DECIDES AT MEETING LAST NIGHT.

It was decided at a meeting of the Councilmanic street committee, held last night, to advertise for bids for the work of street sprinkling during the coming season, it being the unanimous opinion that everyone should be given an opportunity to bid on this work, instead of awarding the contract to one person as was done last year. However, it is believed that John Keely, who has held the contract, will be the successful bidder as he has the general equipment and is probably in a position to do the work for a lower figure than any one else.

It having been decided to widen Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, an ordinance to that effect having been adopted on first and second readings by the Common Council, there is now a movement on foot to extend the widening between Fifth and Sixth streets. As soon as some heirs, who own property in that block, can be seen, some action will be taken in the matter, if the owners are favorable to the improvement. At the March meeting a public hearing will be granted on the widening between Fourth and Fifth streets, and if there is no objections the ordinance will be adopted on final reading.

Another matter to be considered at the March meeting will be that in reference to the appointment of commissioners to assess benefits and damages in the matter of extending the sanitary sewer system in the West End of the city. If possible this work will be taken up early in the summer.

A DOUBLE WEDDING.

Son and Daughter of Albert Lambert Married at Parents' Home.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lambert, of Madison Hill, N. J., was the scene of a double wedding Tuesday afternoon, when the son, Albert Lambert, Jr., married Miss Mary P. Applegate, and the daughter, Miss Ruth Lambert, became the wife of Albert R. Bullman, of Picton, N. J. The officiating minister was Rev. Dr. Lusk, of Newark.

The bridal parties entered the parlor of the Lambert home while the wedding march was being played by Clinton Bullman, a brother of Albert Bullman. The rooms were attractively decorated for the double wedding, and the two couples were united under a beautiful floral arch. After the ceremony a pleasant reception was held, and the brother and sister and wife and husband received the hearty congratulations of their immediate friends and relatives. Supper was served after which the two couples departed for a short wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert will make their home at Madison Hill, where they have recently furnished a new home. Mr. and Mrs. Bullman are to live for a time with the latter's parents.

Women's Auxiliary Meeting.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital met this morning in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and appointed Mrs. J. H. Cuthbert, Mrs. N. H. Currie and Mrs. Henry L. Hall visitors for March. Mrs. Cuthbert was also appointed purchaser. Mrs. Butler, having charge of the raising of funds for the furnishing of the Nurses' Home, reported that $750 had been received. The women hope to secure $900.

Anniversary and Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. George Winn, of Linden avenue, celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Wednesday, and in honor of the event they entertained a large number of friends. The affair was one of double interest by the announcement of the engagement of Fred Winn, son of the celebrants, and Miss Sarah Stites, also of the borough. Mr. and Mrs. Winn received numerous presents.

Violinist's Engagements.

Martin A. Korff, of this city, has been engaged to conduct the cantata "Belschazzar," with large chorus and orchestra, in Westfield in March. He will be the conductor of the concert to be given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra on Monday evening, February 27, and will also be the violin soloist at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon.

Ordered Coasting Stopped.

Several severe accidents have happened to bob-sled coasters on the Feltville road in Fanwood, and the authorities, fearing a fatal mishap, have ordered the coasting stopped. Large crowds were on the hill every evening.

REED NOT A CANDIDATE

Former Senator Surprised Over Boom for Judgeship.

NOT ANXIOUS FOR JOB

Says That First Intimation He Had of Movement to Secure His Appointment Was From The Press.

Former President of the State Senate Charles A. Reed returned this morning from a hunting trip to North Carolina and when seen by a representative of The Daily Press declared that he had no knowledge of any boom for him for the judgeship of Somerset County other than what he had seen in public print. "The first intimation I had," said the Senator, "was a telegram from The Daily Press asking me whether I would accept if the Governor should appoint me. I am not a candidate for the office and have never authorized the use of my name in that connection. I will have to learn more about the situation before saying anything more definite."

Notwithstanding Senator Reed's declaration that he is not a candidate for the place, his friends in North Plainfield, Somerville and other parts of Somerset County are quietly campaigning for him. It is argued by them that no man in the county has as much knowledge of the law as the North Plainfielder and that he would bring enviable distinction to the bench of Somerset. The salary is a bagatelle, $1,800, but the position would not debar Senator Reed and his partner, Judge William A. Coddington, from practicing law, except in that particular court.

MEN'S CLUB ENTERTAINS WITH MAGIC AND MUSIC

LOCAL MAGICIAN MYSTIFIES FIRST PRESBYTERIAN AUDIENCE.

The entire congregation was the guest of the Men's Club, of the First Presbyterian church, last night, at an entertainment, which was one of the best ever given under the auspices of a church society. H. Warren Rankin, of Sanford avenue, a talented magician, was the center of attraction, and for over an hour held the audience spell-bound by his sleight-of-hand tricks.

Mr. Rankin is by no means an ordinary performer, as many of his feats of magic could not be excelled by the leaders in the mystic art. Both in finger manipulation and in clever and engaging personality, he ranks high in the profession, and many were surprised at the exhibition afforded by local talent. Mr. Rankin was assisted by his wife. Mr. Rankin is a member of the congregation and kindly offered his services for the entertainment without remuneration.

The parlors of the First Presbyterian church were crowded to the galleries when Mr. Rankin began his entertainment. It was ladies' night at the club. Miss Waterbury played the piano and William VanEps furnished mandolin selections. A trio composed of Kenneth Shupp, 'cello; Mr. Mosher, violin, and Herbert Harold, piano, rendered two pleasing numbers.

At the conclusion of the entertainment, a delightful social and reception followed, during which refreshments were served by the committee. The following were on the refreshment committee: George Ballantine, Fred Lounsbury, R. H. Radford, Arthur Haseltine and Edgar George. In charge of the entertainment were G. C. Allan, L. H. Gates, I. B. Hill, Frank Haseltine, T. E. Burroughs, Dr. Norman Currie, J. M. Hummer, J. W. Johnston and E. W. Pioneer.

Presentation of Medals.

Colonel D. F. Collins, accompanied by Captain Park, of Company C, and Captain Hall, of Company I, will be present at Company K's fair tonight. The Colonel will present the 100 per cent. duty medals to the members of the company who have won them. There will be four members in the company who are entitled to medals for four years' service. Dr. Conover, assistant surgeon, with the rank of lieutenant will be present.

Democratic Outing.

Preparations have been made by the Elizabeth Democratic City Executive Committee for the eighth annual Democratic outing this summer. The date has been set for August 24. The steamer "Cygnus," which was used last year, will be chartered again. It is one of the fleet of the Iron Steamboat Company. The landing will be made as last year, at Witzel's Point View Grove, on Long Island Sound.

KILLED BY A FALLING ROOF

Dunellen Round House Roof Collapses Burying Henry Schwalbach.

R. B. CLAWSON INJURED

Hour After the Accident Body of Scotch Plains Man Was Found Covered by Debris—His Death Was Instantaneous.

With a crash that startled residents for many blocks, the center portion of the roof of the New Jersey Central's round-house at Dunellen collapsed at 8 o'clock last night, killing Henry Schwalbach, of Scotch Plains, and slightly injuring Randolph B. Clawson, of Dunellen. With the former, death must have been instantaneous as his body was found beneath tons of brick and slate upon which rested a heavy wooden girder. Clawson was in an engine cab at the time and though debris was everywhere about him he lowered himself into a pit and crawled to a rear door through which he made his way out. Several scratches and nervous shock were all he suffered.

Schwalbach and Clawson were the only ones in the immediate vicinity when the crash came, both being what is known as "hostlers," or house firemen. The noise aroused other railroad employes at the nearby towers and station and the two Dunellen section gangs were hurriedly summoned. The men worked with feverish haste to reach Schwalbach, who Clawson knew to have been near the door, but it was 9 o'clock before Foreman Owen Mohan came upon the body. It was lying just inside the building and a few steps either way would probably have saved him.

Dr. Brakeley, who had been waiting while the search was in progress, saw that life was extinct and ordered the remains removed to the Central freight house. There he conducted a further examination and found that the face had been badly burned, evidently by a flaming torch which he had been carrying, and also that the right leg was parboiled by steam from one of the engines. There were superficial crushes, anyone of which would have caused instant death.

The engine Clawson had just backed in was slightly damaged, the headlight being smashed and several minor parts being rendered useless. A second engine was covered with slates but was not harmed.

Just what caused the roof to collapse is a matter for conjecture with the railroad men as there is nothing to indicate the exact condition of this portion. It is the general belief that the constant jarring of the walls by heavy engines leaving the turntable loosened the mortar in the supporting archway and that the main girder crushed it down. The round-house was erected about thirty years ago and has always been considered by the officials to be absolutely safe.

A rumor was also in circulation that the collapse was due to Clawson striking the door of the track entrance with the engine and that it jerked the archway out of place. Several railroad men were asked about it but they either denied it or declined to venture any opinion. An effort to locate Clawson and get his version of he affair was unsuccessful.

The victim of the crash was 41 years old and resided with his aged mother at Scotch Plains, having been unmarried. He was section foreman for the Central at Fanwood for many years and four years ago resigned to take a position in the shop of the Aluminum Press Works in this city. He worked there a short time and then returned to the road, remaining at the round-house until the time of his death.

The body is still at Runyon's undertaking parlors in Dunellen and the county coroner has called an inquest to be held this afternoon, when an attempt will be made to learn the exact cause which led up to Schwalbach's death.

MUNICIPAL GARBAGE COLLECTION NEXT YEAR

REPORT THAT COMMON COUNCIL FEARS TO INCREASE EXPENSES.

While the Common Council as and a measure drafted and introduced in the Legislature giving it the power to raise money by taxation for the maintenance of the proposed system of garbage disposal and the Board of Health is anxious to have the system introduced here, it is said, there is just a possibility that the Common Council may decide not to incur the expense this year.

In conversation with a reporter for The Daily Press, yesterday, a member stated that he was not sure that it would be a wise thing to adopt the system this year and put the extra expense on the taxpayers. He intimated that there would be other improvements during the year that would call for more or less expenditure and as the various committees have decided to keep within the appropriations to be made, there is no disposition to increase the tax rate.

While the adoption of the measure permitting Plainfield to tax for the maintenance of the garbage system is looked upon as a good thing, the councilmen, it is said, feel as though nothing will be lost by waiting another year. Another point to be considered, it is stated, is that according to the present plans, it is not proposed to remove ashes. This is looked upon as a bad feature, as many believe that garbage and ashes would be included in the system.

The Board of Health did not estimate on caring for both and if the ashes are to be carted the expense is likely to be greater. On the other hand there are many who would not favor the adoption of a garbage system unless it includes ashes and no doubt this will be made a part of the system when final action is taken in the matter.

STATE HONORS WASHINGTON.

Guns Fired in Memory of George Washington.

For the first time in the history of the State of New Jersey, as far as the files in the office of the adjutant-general reveal, a salute of twenty-one guns was fired at noon Wednesday back of the State House in Trenton in honor of the birthday anniversary of George Washington, by order of a New Jersey governor.

Heretofore a similar salute has been fired by some volunteer organization not connected with the State service, and the organization had to give bond to the State for the service of a howitzer with which to fire the honoring salute to the memory of the immortal Washington. This desultory way of doing things did not please Governor Stokes, and he directed Adjutant-General Breintnall to make the honor one of State importance.

The Arion's Second Dance.

The second of the Arion Club's series of dances was held in I. O. T. Hall last night, with a large attendance, delegations being present from Elizabeth, Somerville and Scotch Plains. The committee which had charge consisted of Raymond McVey, Leonce and Edward Texier, Alexander Muir, William Baker and Harry Keen.

To Return Battle Flags.

The Senate passed a bill yesterday providing for the return of Confederate flags to Southern States. The measure has already passed the House.

—VanArsdale's special sale of shoes continues to draw the buyers.

Although there was a meeting of county baseball managers scheduled for Tuesday night at the Hotel Kensington to talk over the proposed county league, no one put in an appearance. It seems to be the opinion that the idea will die a natural death as the managers are not anxious to form a league, but rather arrange a series of games among themselves.

CZAR STILL FOR WAR

Russia, In Spite of All Defeats, Will Fight On.

THIRTY SHOT IN ROMANY RIOTS.

Western Poland Cut Off by Strike and Tie-up of Warsaw-Vienna Railway. Wife of Sergius Visits Assassin In Prison.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 24.—The emperor of Russia has elected to continue the war. His position is absolutely firm and the German court has been advised in that sense. The war will be pressed with the utmost energy, the domestic situation now being under the control of the authorities.

Those who have advised peace and suggested inquiries for Japan's terms, the French and British governments, are for the present silent and are likely to remain so unless events of an extraordinary character shake the Russian emperor's resolution. The considerations that led to the emperor's decision as understood here are:

First.—The judgment of the chiefs of the army that Field Marshal Oyama not only cannot defeat General Kuropatkin, but stands in danger of defeat himself. How cowardly, therefore, for Russia to ask for mercy with all the men and money essential to a successful war.

Second.—All the forces of criticism now directed against the government for having fought rather than yield to legitimate interests and for having failed to win victories would be continued with added fury.

Third.—A government that would crave peace of Russia's enemy while still capable of winning victory would be giving the party of change genuine grounds for a revolution.

Fourth.—The facts of the military situation, love of country and arguments of expediency were all against peace and for pressing the war hopefully.

A Warsaw dispatch says that the workmen have struck in all the factories of the Czernakowska district, the chief manufacturing suburb of Warsaw. There have been serious disturbances and strong forces of police and troops were summoned. The soldiers fired on the mob, but no casualties are reported.

The police arrested many persons, but the threats of the mob compelled them to release their prisoners. The employees of the Lodz-Koutuszka railroad have struck. Lodz is entirely cut off from railroad communication.

The situation at Warsaw is causing the greatest anxiety in all circles. The assistant to the governor general, who was interviewed, frankly admitted that the government is at a loss to know what to do.

The Vienna railway is still completely at a standstill, and there appears to be no hope of a speedy settlement of the difficulty. The directors had a long session, but were unable to find a solution.

Western Poland is completely cut off from communication with middle and western Europe.

The employees of the Warsaw-Mlava section of the Vistula railway have struck, cutting off the last direct line of communication with Germany.

The town of Baku is now quiet. All the Armenian shops have been closed, but the banks are doing business under military protection.

Order has been restored at Balakhany, but at Romany last night strikers attacked two factories, and as a result thirty persons were killed or wounded.

In Baku many terrible murders have been committed. Manager Adamoff of the naphtha refining works, together with his wife and children, have been all burned to death. A legal official named Tatanoff and a bazaar owner named Lalajeff and the latter's family have been murdered.

St. Petersburg is full of rumors that a big battle is proceeding below Mukden.

At the funeral services of Grand Duke Sergius the metropolitan advanced from the altar and spoke as follows:

"The responsibility for the premature death of the martyred grand duke falls on the whole society of Russia without distinction. The memory of Grand Duke Sergius is that of a great martyr, and the services he rendered to the state will live for all time among the Russian people."

It is stated that the Grand Duchess Elizabeth has visited her husband's assassin in prison.

Fear Filipino Marriages.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 24.—Senator Davis of Monroe and Greene counties has introduced a bill in the Indiana senate to prevent whites from marrying persons having more than one-eighth Filipino blood. The bill grew out of a situation at Bloomington, where Filipino students are attending the State university and are said to be flirting with white girls. Parents of these girls are fearful of marriages and have requested the passage of the bill.

Whalers Sold Liquor to Eskimos.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—A report up to the end of November received here from the mouth of the Mackenzie river, where a Northwest mounted police station is located, states that the whalers had a fairly good season. The only serious offenses against the law were one or two cases of liquor selling on the part of the whalers to natives.

Irving Must Rest.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Sir Henry Irving, who recently had a severe chill at Wolverhampton, has suffered a slight relapse and has canceled the remainder of his provincial tour. His physicians have imperatively ordered him not to act for at least two months.

A SPECIAL SESSION

President Calls Senate Together on March 4.

SECRETARY HAY AND THE POWERS

Long Peace Talk With Ambassadors. Rumor That Japan Would Settle "In a Quiet Way"—Cassini's Hope In Kuropatkin.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The president has issued a proclamation convening the senate in special session at 12 o'clock noon on March 4 next to "receive such communications as may be made by the executive."

Secretary Hay, after interviews with nearly every important member of the diplomatic corps, held half an hour's conference with President Roosevelt. Mr. Hay was inaccessible to any except his diplomatic visitors, nearly all of whom came solely to learn what Mr. Hay knew about the reports that a serious movement was on foot for bringing the far eastern war to an end.

The greatest reticence is shown by officers of the government in regard to the peace talk. Usually there is little difficulty in obtaining denials of important diplomatic information that has been disclosed prematurely, but in this case it is significant that no denial of the news of a rumored peace agreement that Japan had suggested "in a quiet way" and she was willing to discuss peace terms is forthcoming from any authoritative source connected with the administration.

That some important move has been made for peace there is ample reason to believe, and the indications are that the government of the United States has been made a party to it in such a way that officers do not feel justified in disclosing any relative fact even to the representatives of foreign powers.

Among Secretary Hay's visitors prior to his conference with the president were Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador; Sir Henry M. Durand, the British ambassador, and Signor Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador. Secretary Hay and Count Cassini were together for half an hour. Afterward Count Cassini said that he had received nothing from his government to indicate that peace negotiations were on.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, has gone out of town. It is said he was taking a rest in Virginia.

Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador, is the close personal friend of Lord Lansdowne and is in close touch therefore with the British foreign office. The ambassador had a long talk with Secretary Hay, calling at the state department soon after his return from Philadelphia. He placed not the slightest credence in the rumors of peace. That Japan had asked anybody to propose peace, he said, he did not believe.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, said talk of peace was never more absurd than now. The ambassador has had positive information from the very highest officials in St. Petersburg that the war will be prosecuted with increasing vigor. It is expected that General Kuropatkin with the opening of the spring campaign will accomplish much in view of the re-enforcements he has received. The emperor has every confidence in his military ability.

"The peace talk can have but one object," said Ambassador Cassini, "the assistance of a Japanese loan."

W. Franklin Gore Shanks Dead.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The death at Hamilton, Bermuda, of William Franklin Gore Shanks, president of the National Press Intelligence company, who was well known in newspaper and financial circles in this city and for eleven years was city editor of the Tribune, is announced. Mr. Shanks was born in Shelbyville, Ky., in 1837. He was a correspondent with the armies of Grant and Sherman during most of the civil war and was wounded while serving as a volunteer aid on the staff of General Rosseau at the battle of Perryville.

Blizzard at St. John's, N. F.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 24.—Another blizzard rages here. The thermometer dropped to 35 degrees below zero, and the whole country is swept with snowdrifts. The eastern coast is blockaded with ice floes, rendering ingress or egress from St. John's impossible. The steamer Ingraham, sent to Trinity bay to take passengers and mails from an express train snowbound more than a fortnight ago, has been caught in the ice and probably will be unable to escape for some weeks.

Two Killed In Elevator Well.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 24.—Deodas Heroux was killed and his cousin, Le Helin, badly injured by falling from the fourth floor to the ground in an elevator well at the Luther cotton mills here. The victims of the accident, who were lads, were riding on a floor truck, the speed of which carried it through the doors of the elevator shaft. Joseph Cote, another boy, who is said to have pushed the truck, ran out of the mill at the time of the accident and disappeared.

Porto Ricans For Inauguration.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 24.—Four companies of the Porto Rican regiment, Major Griffith commanding, have sailed on the steamer Arkadia direct for Washington to participate in the inauguration of President Roosevelt. Julio Larrinaga, commissioner elect to congress, accompanied the Porto Rican troops.

RICH WOMAN BURNED

Mrs. H. B. Ross Found In Ruins of Montclair Home.

COACHMAN SUSPECT IS MISSING.

Eccentric and Recluse Aged Lady Thought to Be Victim of Man Hired Three Days Ago—Jewels and Silver Missing.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Feb. 24.—Following the discovery of the body of Mrs. Hannah B. Ross, a wealthy octogenarian, in the ruins of her home in High street, the police have expressed the opinion that the woman had been murdered and the house fired to conceal the crime. A German coachman, who was the only domestic employed by Mrs. Ross, has not been seen since the fire. A search of the ruins failed to reveal any trace of his body. Three adjacent houses also were destroyed in the fire which started in the Ross house, but the occupants had no difficulty in escaping.

Only last Saturday Mrs. Ross made her will, which was witnessed by the missing coachman. The house and the large collection of valuable furniture which it contained she left to her adopted daughter, a Mrs. Rupe of Baltimore.

When her body was found in the ruins she was completely dressed, but this is not considered remarkable, as she frequently got up at night and wandered about her rooms for hours, talking to her canary birds.

The police are inclined to believe that if she was murdered the fire was incendiary and that the motive was one of revenge and not robbery. All the woman's rings were found on her fingers.

Mrs. Ross was a strange character. She was seventy years old and lived absolutely alone with the exception of a coachman. She had nothing to do with any of her neighbors and had never courted their society. Her eccentricities led people to talk, especially the one which found expression in the frequency with which she changed her coachman. The man for whom the police are looking now had been in Mrs. Ross' employ only three days. She alone in Montclair knew whence he came or what his name is.

The coachman's description that the police have been able to gather so far is that he is "a sporty looking individual."—He is short and stout, and some one has told the police that they heard him say in a saloon that he had been a prize fighter. He dressed flashily and seemed to be well supplied with money for a man in his position.

Mrs. Ross formerly lived in New York and in Bridgeport, Conn. Montclair became her home about three years ago. She is said to have a brother, Martin Wallace, a real estate dealer at Orange, N. J.

Verdict of Murder In McMillin Case.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Feb. 24.—The coroner's jury in the case of James McMillin, who disappeared last December and whose body has been found near here, have rendered a verdict that McMillin met death at the hands of a person or persons unknown to the jury. Among the witnesses examined by the coroner were Charles Burns, who is under arrest on suspicion of knowing something about McMillin's disappearance, and S. P. Watkins, who assisted Mrs. McMillin in a search for her husband. As neither of them could furnish bonds they were remanded to jail. Mrs. McMillin was held on her own recognizance.

Russians Bombard Poti.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 24.—Extremely alarming reports are current here concerning the situation at Batum and Poti. It is alleged that some vessels of the Black sea squadron (Russian) have bombarded Poti. An English merchant who has just arrived here says he was obliged to flee from Batum, where his life was menaced by strikers and his office destroyed. The authorities are powerless. The strikers are all Georgians and are estimated to number 40,000.

Peace Jubilee In 1915.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A peace jubilee exposition to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the close of the civil war was proposed to President Roosevelt by Newell Sanders of Chattanooga, Tenn., who, with R. L. Sharp, also of Chattanooga, had an interview with the president. Mr. Sanders suggested that the jubilee exposition be held at Chattanooga in 1915, as many of the great battles of the war were fought in the vicinity of that city.

Hoch Held For Wife Murder.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Johann Hoch was held to the grand jury without bail. The coroner's jury which investigated the death of Mrs. Marie Walcker-Hoch found that the deceased came to her death from the effects of arsenic poisoning, and it was the expressed belief of the jury that Hoch administered the poison.

Whipping Post In Denmark.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 24.—The whipping post for thugs appears destined to become an institution in this country in the near future. The minister of justice has reintroduced in the reichstag the bill which was defeated at the last session providing for the establishment of the whipping post.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 24, 1905.

The impression is growing more general every day that no mistake was made when E. C. Stokes was elected Governor of New Jersey.

President Castro's desire to have Minister Bowen recalled is a fine tribute to the fitness of the latter to represent this country in unhappy Venezuela.

Congress has passed a bill providing for the return of Confederate flags to Southern states. If our recollection serves us right, we recall a storm of no small magnitude when former President Grover Cleveland favored the idea. The country is beginning to appreciate the fact that the Sage of Princeton made a pretty good President, and this is but one instance in which his ideas have been carried out.

The Somerville Unionist-Gazette, whose political editorials are supposed to be inspired by a resident of North Plainfield, was taken with another spasm when it heard that former President of the State Senate Charles Arthur Reed was boomed for the judgeship of Somerset county. The Somerville sheet goes off into a chant over the present incumbent's administration, declaring that "he has made an excellent judge." Possibly so, but the question is whether there is a lawyer in Somerset County who possesses the legal knowledge and attainments equal to Charles A. Reed.

THE FORUM.

Appeal for Industrial Home.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Would you kindly allow me through your columns to present a need of the Industrial Home, or—what may be a more intelligible term to our citizens, the Alms House, of Plainfield. Much has been done in recent years by the Alms Committee to improve its condition by way of outside and inside improvements, to adding greatly to the comfort of its inmates. The Union County committee of the State Charities Aid Association has been very desirous to do something for its social life and has enlisted in this work the good offices of the Silver Cross Circle of the Union of the King's Daughters. It is by no means an easy task to find the points of contact with those who have drifted into this state of dependence, but, to elevate and brighten whose lives as far as may be, is emphatically the duty of some one in the community. Music seems to make a special appeal to them and it is believed a piano would be a most valuable aid to the King's Daughters in their good work.

The gift of a second-hand instrument to the Home would be most timely and greatly appreciated.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

A recent board meeting of the First Baptist church considered the plans originally made for the remodeling of the edifice, and the trustees met last night, to make additional plans. That the building will be changed there is now no doubt and the work will commence as soon as possible. The trustees approved the advised alterations, which were suggested with the view to enlarging the seating capacity, and improving the light facilities. While the work of alteration is going on a general cleaning will take place. The principal changes are to effect the platform, which will be enlarged, and gallery, which will be removed.

The evangelistic services, which have been conducted through the week at the Presbyterian church, were resumed last night, with Rev. Mr. Blauvelt, of Roselle, in charge of the meeting. Rev. W. W. Casselberry assisted. Tonight, the concluding service in the series will be held at the church, and Rev. Mr. Mason, of Metuchen, will preside. The meetings have been largely attended during the week and have been interesting and beneficial.

Miss Louise Brakeley, Maxwell Brakeley, and Miss Hoff, of Long Island, who has been visiting Miss Brakeley, spent Washington's birthday at Princeton, where they were the guests of Archibald Brakeley, a member of the sophomore class at the university. The party attended the annual inter-class games, in which the sophomores were unusually successful.

Miss Maude Mundy and Isiah C. Giddis were married quietly Tuesday night at the M. E. parsonage, Rev. S. E. Doolittle officiating at the ceremony. They are both residents of the borough, and will make their home here.

Rev. Frank Fletcher and his wife left yesterday for a trip to Washington, D. C. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher will spend several weeks in Washington, and during their absence Rev. H. N. Jordon will fill the pulpit.

The Board of Directors of the building and loan association met last night, and transacted the usual monthly routine business. The meeting was held at the office of the secretary.

The Elliott property at South Plainfield has recently been purchased by Elias Bailey, through F. J. Huff. The sale was made to settle the estate.

Miss Ethel Jameson, of Basking Ridge, has returned to her home after a visit with Miss Lulu Gise.

The fire company met last night at headquarters and went over the regular business.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bodine have returned after a visit with relatives in Brooklyn.

Miss Mae Garretson is confined to her home by illness.

Mrs. F. W. Vail is visiting out-of-town friends.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The new law allowing volunteer firemen $15 per year, which has been introduced, would be a welcome relief to the two volunteer companies in town if it should pass. Ever since the $500 exemption to firemen was declared unconstitutional, the interest in the companies has decreased and much complaint has been heard, as the members claim with the benefit taken away there is no reason why they should keep on paying monthly dues and fines. With the passage of the measure that has been introduced this feeling would be done away with, as the $15 per year would equal, if not exceed, the former exemption allowed them.

John Patterson, who has been seriously ill at Morris Plains for several weeks, does not improve as fast as his friends would hope for, his condition still being considered critical.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith will have charge of the weekly prayer meeting at the Baptist church tonight. All are cordially invited to attend these Friday night services.

The second of the Arion Club's dances, held night in the I. O. T. rooms, Plainfield, was enjoyed by many of the young people from here.

Miss Mamie Mercein, of West Fourth street, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Mercein, of Grand street.

The members of the gun club will hold a shoot tomorrow afternoon on the club's grounds.

The Bible study class meets tonight in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

A meeting of the Township Committee will be held in the town rooms toniht.

Mrs. Nicholas Alberts has been entertaining relatives from Plainfield.

Miss Cora Miller is spending a few days with Trenton friends.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A number of the young people of this place enjoyed a sleigh ride to Netherweed, Wednesday evening. On rsturning games were played and Miss Nellie B. Manning gave several piano selections. Refreshments were served at a late hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gage, whose daughters, Miss Nellie and Miss Lillian, arranged the affair.

The young son of Samael Johnson was removed to the home of his brother, William, today, where he may remain a few days on account of illness.

A dime social will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gage, Wednesday, March 1, for the benefit of the C. E. Society.

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Johnsen entertained their nephew, Arthur Pullen, and his friend from Newark, on Wednesday.

SENATORS TALK LATE.

Swayne Impeachment Case Closed For the Defense.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The senate had difficulty in securing a quorum at its first night sitting of the session, called for the purpose of proceeding with the Swayne impeachment case. The session was called for 8 o'clock last night, but it was impossible to begin business until fifty-five minutes later, when forty-six senators having responded to the roll call a vote was taken on the admission of the tabulated statement showing the payments paid to federal judges on account of expenses. The vote was adverse to the proposition, being 10 to 36.

After offering a few other documents Mr. Higgins announced the close of the case for the defense. Only two witnesses were called in rebuttal. They were Z. T. Davis and George W. Pryor, both of Pensacola. Their testimony related to the Davis-Belden contempt cases and in both instances was brief. A few papers were presented as evidence by the prosecution, and when the last of these had been received, at 9:20 p. m., Mr. Palmer announced the termination of the presentation of testimony.

"That's our case," said Mr. Palmer, and he had scarcely taken his seat when Mr. Thurston addressed the chair. He made a proposition to submit the case without argument "if agreeable to the learned managers of the house."

Mr. Palmer's response was promptly made in the negative, because, he said, some of the testimony needed explication to be understood. "Hence," he said, "it is not agreeable."

"Proceed with the argument," commanded Mr. Platt (Conn.) from the chair.

Mr. Olmstead accordingly took the floor for the prosecution. To him had been assigned the duty of opening the discussion. He dwelt upon the scope of the jurisdiction of congress in impeachment proceedings and outlined the acts that may be punished by impeachment. He contended that acts for which an official may be impeached are not necessarily official in character. He charged Judge Swayne with crimes outside his office and also said that that official had been guilty of notable misdemeanor and high crimes and misdemeanor relating to his office and urged his conviction on both states of fact.

Mr. Olmstead concluded at 10:15 p. m., and the senate adjourned.

MILES' TREATMENT OF DAVIS.

Letter From Mrs. Varina Davis Wherein She Thanks the General.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 24.—General Nelson A. Miles in a letter to the Independent of this week has partly complied with the request of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, made through the Savannah Press, that he publish in full any letter or note that he may have from her in which she thanked him for his treatment of President Jefferson Davis when held under General Miles' care as a prisoner of war at Fortress Monroe.

The letter which he publishes is as follows:

"Please receive my thanks for your courtesy and kind answers to my questions of this morning (May 23). I cannot quit the harbor without begging you again to look after my husband's health for me."

Prison Ship For Middy.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 24. — For leaving the academy inclosure and going to Baltimore, where he spent the night without notifying or asking permission of the authorities at the Naval academy, Midshipman Bradley S. Johnson is confined aboard the prison ship Santee, awaiting the department's action in his case. Young Johnson, who is from Richmond, Va., is a grandson of the late General Bradley T. Johnson, the noted Confederate officer, and a son of Colonel Bradley S. Johnson of the famous Maryland line of the Confederate army. His deed places him in danger of being expelled from the academy.

Athletes Dropped Out at Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 24.—The faculty of Princeton announced that three football players, members of the 1904 team, had been dropped from the university because of poor class standing, as indicated in the recent midyear examinations. Those dropped were E. Stannard, 1906, St. Louis, right tackle; F. W. Ritter, 1908, Greenwich, Conn., left halfback, and C. L. Holden, 1908, Bennington, Vt., left guard. This loss will seriously cripple Princeton's team for 1905.

"Local Conditions Are Peculiar."

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 24.—Governor Hoch has signed the bill providing for separate high schools for whites and for blacks at Kansas City. Governor Hoch said: "I am in hearty sympathy with them (the negroes) in their great struggle for higher and better things and am in perfect accord with the Roosevelt idea that every man should have a square deal regardless of race or color. But the local conditions are peculiar."

President Harper Doing Well.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The condition of President W. R. Harper of the University of Chicago, who was operated on Wednesday afternoon, is said to be improving. In a bulletin issued last night by attending physicians it was stated that Dr. Harper was making satisfactory progress toward recovery, all nausea having disappeared. The patient takes fluid nourishment and sleeps restfully most of the time.

FURNISHING AN APARTMENT

Some Hints For Those Who Have Limited Space.

The first thing in choosing an apartment is to have the landlord repaper such of the walls as are not light and cheerful in tone. As a rule, the rooms in apartment houses are small and none too well lighted, so that pale tinted effects are by far the best.

If you buy new furniture remember that the smaller it is the better. Anything heavy or so clumsy that it will not fit well into corners is decidedly out of place in an apartment. Put as little furniture as possible into each room and cover the floors with rugs so that they can easily be cleaned. Heavy pictures are entirely out of place. Gilt or light wood frames are best, and the more cheerful the tones of the pictures the better.

A round dining room table takes up less room than a square one and is far prettier.

In the sketch is shown a simple drawing room the tone of which is old rose. The furniture is on the Chippendale order and does not take up much room. R. DE LA BAUME.

FEMININE BLUESTOCKINGS.

How Knowledge Exudes From Her Busy Brain at All Seasons.

"Deliver me from the brainy girl!" sighed the young man. "She feels so happy at having corralled a few books that she has to let every one in on the joke.

"The other evening I called on a very nice girl with very nice parents. Father and mother were peacefully playing cards in the library, and at father's right hand stood a box of fine cigars, into which I already saw in imagination my hand descending. But, oh, that relentless girl! She dragged me off into the drawing room, where I could not smoke, and entertained me for three mortal hours with the physiology of the brain, which, it appears, she was interested in at that particular stage of the game. I believe she was trying for a degree or something, but she needn't have practiced on me.

"I remember once at a dinner during the fish course that a certain clever young person discoursed about the respective organisms of angleworms and lobsters in a way which in no way increased my appetite for the lobster on my plate, although I determined to admire her learning in future—at a distance."

"Ah, zis Americaine girl!" sighed the Frenchman. "She of ze stocking bleu—how you call it—blue? I call on a young lady, and she talk to me Eenglish all ze time. Zat is good, for in zat way I learn. But she talk of vat? I ask you of vat? Of love of ze sentiments of ze heart, of poetry, of gracieuse nothings? No—sacre! She is possessed, zat one. She talk ze entire evening on ze wild and ze tame animals of North America. Mon Dieu, think of zat! She haf learn it in school, she repeat it to me, and zat—zat she call conversation!"

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"I don't agree with you. You have your case all made out, with the evidence in sound legal form. What is to prevent your trying it?"

"The one thing that you ought to be lawyer enough to see at a glance. There is no court to try it in. With the assembly in session we ought to do something; as it is, we can only yap at the heels of the ringsters, and our yapping won't help you in the railroad fight. What do you hear from Boston?"

"Nothing new. The stock is still flat on the market, with the stock-holders' pool holding a bare majority, and the Plantagould brokers buying in driblets wherever they find a small holder who is willing to let go. It is only a question of time; and a very short time at that."

The editor wagged his head in sympathy.

"I wish I could help you, David. You've done a big thing for me—for the Argus; and all I have to hand you in return is a death sentence. MacFarlane is back."

"Here? In town?"

"Yes. And that isn't the worst of it. The governor sent for him."

"Have you any idea what is in the wind?" asked Kent, dry-lipped.

"I'm afraid I have. My young men have been nosing around in the Trans-Western affair, and several things have developed. Matters are approaching a crisis. The cut-rate boom is about to collapse, and there is trouble brewing in the labor organizations. If Bucks doesn't get his henchmen out of it pretty soon, they will be involved in the smash—which will be bad for them and for him, politically."

"I developed most of that a good while ago," Kent cut in.

"Yes; I know. But there is more to follow. The stock-smashing plan was all right, but it is proving too slow. Now they are going to do something else."

"Can you give it a name?" asked Kent, nerving himself.

"I can. But first tell me one thing: as matters stand, could Guilford dispose of the road—sell it or lease it?"

"No; he would first have to be made permanent receiver and be given authority by the court."

"Ah! that explains Judge MacFarlane's return. Now what I am going to tell you is the deadest of secrets. It came to me from one of the Overland officials, and I'm not supposed to gossip. Did you know the Overland Short Line had passed under Plantagould domination?"

"I know they elected a Plantagould directory at the annual meeting."

"Exactly. Well, Guilford is going to lease the Trans-Western to its competitor for a term of 99 years. That's your death sentence."

Kent sprang to his feet, and what he said is unrecordable. He was not a profane man, but the sanguine temperament would assert itself explosively in moments of sudden stress.

"When is this thing to be done?" he demanded, when the temperamental gods were appeased a little.

Hildreth shrugged.

"I have told you all I could, and rather more than I had any right to. Open the door behind you, won't you? The air is positively sulphurous."

Kent opened the door, entirely missing the point of sarcasm in his heat.

"But you must have some idea," he insisted.

"I haven't; any more than the general one that they won't let grass grow under their feet."

"No. God blast the whole—I wish I could swear in Sanscrit. The mother tongue doesn't begin to do justice to it. Now I know what Bucks meant when he told me to take my railroad, if I could get it. He had the whole thing coopered up in a barrel at that minute."

"I take it you have no alternative to this," said the editor, tapping the pile of affidavits.

"Not a cursed shred of an idea! And, Hildreth—" he broke off short because once again the subject suddenly grew too large for coherent speech.

Hildreth disentangled himself from the legs of his chair and stood up to put his hands on Kent's shoulders.

"You are up against it hard, David," he said, and he repeated: "I'd give all my old shoes to be able to help you out."

"I know it," said Kent; and then he turned abruptly and went away.

Between nine and ten o'clock the same evening Kent was walking the floor of his room, trying vainly to persuade himself that virtue was its own reward, and wondering if a small dose of chloral hydrate would be defensible under the cruel necessity for sleep. He had about decided in favor of the drug when a tap at the door announced the coming of a bell-boy with a note. It was a message from Portia.

"If you have thrown away your chance definitely, and are willing to take a still more desperate one, come to see me," she wrote; and he went mechanically, as a drowning man catches at a straw, knowing it will not save him.

The house in Alameda Square was dark when he went up the walk; and while he was feeling for the bell-push his summoner called to him out of the electric stencilings of leaf shadows under the broad veranda.

"It is too fine a night to stay indoors," she said. "Come and sit in the hammock while I scold you as you deserve." And when he had taken the hammock: "Now give an account of yourself. Where have you been for the past age or two?"

"Wallowing around in the lower depths of the place that Dante visited," he admitted.

"Don't you think you deserve a manhandling?"

"I suppose so; and if you have it in mind, I shall probably get it. But I may say I'm not especially anxious for a tongue-lashing to-night."

"Poor boy!" she murmured, in mock sympathy. "Does it hurt to be truly good?"

"Try it some time when you have a little leisure, and see for yourself," he retorted.

She laughed.

"No; I'll leave that for the Miss Brentwoods. By the way, did you go to tell the household goodby? Penelope was wondering audibly what had become of you."

"I didn't know they were gone. I have been nowhere since the night you drove me out with contumely and opprobrium."

She laughed again.

"You must have dived deep. They went a week ago Tuesday, and you lost your ghostly adviser and your political stage manager at one fell swoop. But it isn't wonderful that you haven't missed Mr. Ormsby. Having elected Miss Brentwood your conscience-keeper-in-chief, you have no further use for the P. S. M."

"And you have no further use for me, apparently," he complained. "Did you send for me so that you might abuse me in the second edition?"

"No; I wanted to give you a bit of news, and to repeat an old question of mine. Do you know what they are going to do next with your railroad?"

"Yes; Hildreth told me this afternoon."

"Well, what are you going to do?"

"Nothing. There is nothing to be done. They have held to the form of legal procedure thus far, but they won't do it any more. They will take MacFarlane off in a corner somewhere, have him make Guilford permanent receiver, and the lease to the Overland will be consummated on the spot. I sha'n't be in it."

"Probably not; certainly not if you don't try to get in it. And that brings me back to the old question. Are you big enough, David?"

"If you think I haven't been big enough to live up to my opportunities thus far, I'm afraid I may disappoint you again," he said doubtfully.

"You have disappointed me," she admitted. "That is why I am asking: I'd like to be reasonably sure your Jonathan Edwardsy notions are not going to trip us again."

"Portia, if I thought you really meant that. . .A conscienceless man is bad enough, God knows; but a conscienceless woman—"

Her laugh was a decorous little shriek.

"David you are not big; you are narrow, narrow, narrow! Is there no other code of morals in the round world save that which the accident of birth has interleaved with your New England Bible? What is conscience? Is it an absolute standard of right and wrong? Or is it merely your ideal or mine, or Shafiz Ullah Khan's?"

"You may call it all the hard names you can lay tongue to," he allowed. "I'm not getting much comfort out of it, and I rather enjoy hearing it abused. But you are thrusting at a shadow in the present instance. Do you know what I did this afternoon?"

"How should I know?"

"I don't know why you shouldn't: you know everything that happens. But I'll tell you. I had been fighting the thing over from start to finish and back again ever since you blessed me out a week ago last Monday, and at the wind-up this afternoon I took the papers out of the bank vault, having it in mind to go and give his excellency a bad quarter of an hour."

"But you didn't do it?"

"No, he saved me the trouble. While I was getting ready to go and hunt him, his card came up. We had it out in my rooms."

"I'm listening," she said; and he rehearsed the facts for her, concealing nothing.

"What a curious thing human nature is!" she commented, when he had made an end. "My better judgment says you were all kinds of a somebody for not clinching the nail when you had it so well driven home. And yet I can't help admiring your exalted fanaticism. I do love consistency, and the courage of it. But tell me, if you can, how far these fair-fighting scruples of yours go. You have made it perfectly plain that if a thief would steal your pocketbook, you would suffer loss before you'd compromise with him to get it back. But suppose you should catch him at it: would you feel compelled to call a policeman—or would you—"

He anticipated her.

"You are doing me an injustice on the other side, now. I'll fight as furiously as you like. All I ask is to be given a weapon that won't bloody my hands."

"Good!" she said approvingly. "I think I have found the weapon, but it's desperate, desperate! And O David! you've got to have a cool head and a steady hand when you use it. If you haven't, it will kill everybody within the swing of it—everybody but the man you are trying to reach."

"Draw it and let me feel its edge," he said shortly.

Her chair was close beside the low-swung hammock. She bent to his ear and whispered a single sentence. For a minute or two he sat motionless, weighing and balancing the chance of success against the swiftly multiplying difficulties and hazards.

"You call it desperate," he said at length, "if there is a bigger word in the language, you ought to find and use it. The risk is that of a forlorn hope; not so much for me, perhaps, as for the innocent—or at least ignorant—accomplices I'll have to enlist."

"THAT IS ONE OF THE CHANCES WE MUST TAKE, DAVID."

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark.
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.
FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

RAM'S HORN WON, EASED UP.

At New Orleans Song and Wine Was Defeated by Dance Music.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24.—Ram's Horn, who was under restraint all the way and won eased up, and Huzzah, who outclassed his company and cantered home at his leisure, were the winning favorites at the Crescent City Jockey club's track. Swedish Lad, favorite in the fifth, was cut off repeatedly. Maxey Moore, at 25 to 1, had all the speed and won with something in reserve. In the third race Dance Music, against whom the ring at one time posted 150 to 1, beat Song and Wine by a narrow margin. Summaries:

First Race.—John Doyle, first; Baggerly, second; Ponca, third.

Second Race.—Lily Brook, first; Presentment, second; Simplicity, third.

Third Race.—Dance Music, first; Song and Wine, second; John Nolan, third.

Fourth Race.—Ram's Horn, first; Matador, second; Augur, third.

Fifth Race.—Maxey Moore, first; Aules, second; National, third.

Sixth Race.—Huzzah, first; Floral Wreath, second; Goldaga, third.

Bowling Tournament at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 24.—Interest in the American bowling congress tourney now centers in the two remaining national championships in doubles and singles. Chicago bowlers so far apparently have a monopoly on first place in all the series. Not contented with carrying off the honors in the five men class by the Gunthers No. 2, the Stretch and Wolf team of Chicago bowled a magnificent game, overhauling Lord and Hardie, the crack Washington team, by a majority of 27 points and lead with a score of 1,213. Otto Kupfer of Chicago is high man, with an individual score of 638. Ott of Lacrosse and Selbach of Chicago are next, with 608.

Boston Dog Show Winners.

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—The judging of French bulldogs at yesterday's exhibition of the New England Kennel club developed into competition between Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and the Nellcote kennels of Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt took one first and two second prizes with Velour Noir and Marcus, while the Riverdale kennels was awarded two first ribbons by showing Nellcote Gamin.

Port Worth at Oaklawn.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 24.—In the racing at Oaklawn Port Worth was the only favorite to win, the other events being taken by outsiders. The track showed little improvement over the miserable condition of the past week.

Gene Hanlon at Ascot.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 24.—Three favorites, two second choices and one outsider won at Ascot. Gene Hanlon was the longest priced winner, capturing the second race from Our Pride and Nanon.

No Races at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—The races of the California Jockey club at Oakland were postponed on account of the death of the infant grandson of Colonel Dan Burns, a prominent turfman.

Ship Clara E. Wilbur Lost.

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—The suggestion that the missing four masted schooner Clara E. Wilbur was lost off the coast of Bermuda perhaps with all on board was contained in a cable message from that island. The message stated that about three feet of the stern portion of the vessel had drifted on the northwest reefs and that a board twelve feet long had been picked up bearing the name "Clara E. Wilbur." The appearance of the wreckage is said to have indicated that the forward portion of the vessel of which it had been a part had been cut off by a collision with some other craft.

Pawtucket Man Found Dead.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 24.—The police are investigating the death of James Carroll, whose body was found lying in a pool of blood in a yard of a house near the corner of Elm and Main streets in this city. The man's head was cut in several places, and after an autopsy Medical Examiner Charles H. French stated that Carroll's death was caused by cerebral hemorrhages due to a blow on the head. Carroll was last seen alive at about 10 o'clock Wednesday night.

Italian, Killed In Pistol Duel.

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—A pistol duel last night between two Italians—Sabato Nappo, twenty-six years old, and Gavano Capreci, forty-five years old—at the corner of Snowhill and Prince streets resulted in the death of Nappo. The police are searching for Capreci, who escaped. The fight, the police say, was the result of a quarrel over money matters. Nappo fired first, but the bullet went wide, and an instant later he received a ball in the brain.

Explosion and Fire at Elmira.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Feb. 24.—A disastrous fire started in the basement of a four story building occupied by G. A. Gridley & Son, hardware, and A. H. Clark, dry goods, caused by an explosion while Elisha Harris, an employee, was drawing asphaltum from a tank. Harris was horribly burned and will die. The firemen were many times endangered by explosions. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Kid" Walton, who played with the Allis team last season, will join the Ingersoll-Sergeant team this season, playing at short.

Washington, Warren County, team, has withdrawn from the proposed Lackawanna League, and Phillipsburg has taken its place. The promoters of this league are having a hard time getting the required number of teams.

The Elizabeth Times' sporting writer is slightly mixed regarding the local baseball situation. He has the members of the Plainfield Baseball Association team signing with the St. Mary's Baseball Association and says that "Warry" McLaughlin will do the pitching. All of the players mentioned by the Times have signed to play for the Plainfield Baseball Association, of which Charles Woolston is the manager. The St. Mary Association has another proposition on hand which has not fully materialized.

GOLF.

Following the resignation of Mortimer M. Singer, secretary-elect of the Metropolitan Golf Association on Tuesday, Leighton M. Calkins, of the Plainfield Country Club, was chosen to succeed him and he was authorized to allot all dates for open tournaments and the clubs to hold such events will be notified to make their claims for dates as early as possible to avoid a conflict of fixtures. Recently Mr. Calkins was elected chairman of the handicap committee of the New Jersey State Golf Association, and the new honors speak well of his acknowledged ability to handicap the members of both the New Jersey and New York Association. Mr. Calkins will fill Mr. Singer's place on the executive committee. Mr. Singer resigned owing to a pressure of business matters. The dates of June 1, 2 and 3 were allotted to the New Jersey State Golf Association for its sixth annual championship tournament, to be at the New Jersey Country Club.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

In a game in which low scores prevailed on all sides, the Triangle Club, of Manwood, was defeated in two out of three games at Bound Brook Wednesday night, by the team representing that city. The game was virtually in the Triangles hands, though it was lost through the management of Frank Neal, who displaced Wiltse, in the third game. The highest score of the game was made by Sheelen, who rolled a poor 144. The alleys were in poor condition, and the Bound Brook as well as the local pin hitters were off their game. The scores in the three games were as follows: Bound Brook, 589, 663, 632; Triangles, 610, 599, 605. This was the line up: Bound Brook—Greaney, Scott, Nelson, Graham and Dent; Triangles—Sheelen, Wiltse, Neal, Phillips, Hanagah and Egan.

FATHER TO BLAME.

City Judge Scores Parent for Neglect of His Thirteen-Year-Old Son.

Technically charged with homelessness, Frederick Huff, a bright-faced, thirteen-year-old boy, was arraigned in the city court this morning, having been turned over to the police by employes at the North Avenue station, who said that he had been sleeping about the building. The boy's father, Dominicus Huff, was in court, and he was severely scored by Judge Runyon for the manner in which he had been treating his son as it was shown that he had been taking what little money the boy earned without concerning himself the least bit about his welfare. The father was in court a few days ago on a charge of drunkenness.

He promised that he would provide for the child and with that understanding he was allowed to take him away. The police are to watch his movements and will arrest him if he fails to keep the promise.

CLOSED PORTALS.

There will be an important meeting of Winfield Scott Relief Corps in G. A. R. Hall.

Greenbrook Council, No. 1725, Royal Arcanum, will entertain the Grand Lodge officers at its meeting on Monday night. There will also be initiation, followed by a smoker.

PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL.

Rev. Theodore Englund Will Come to This City.

Rev. Theodore Englund, pastor of the Swedish church, Perth Amboy, has accepted the call to become pastor of the Swedish Pilgrem church, of this city, succeeding Rev. Mr. Lindheim, who has accepted a call elsewhere. He accepts with the proviso that the Plainfield congregation will allow him to occasionally visit the Perth Amboy church, which at this time does not feel able to support a regular pastor. This arrangement no doubt can be made as Mr. Englund can visit Perth Amboy in his own time and when services are not held here. The change will go in effect about April 1.

Necessity is the Mother, Etc.

Being in a hurry to keep an important engagement on Tuesday, State Treasurer Frank O. Briggs picked up what he thought was a pen with which he intended to sign a check, but which was a common wooden meat skewer. His clerk called his attention to the mistake, but Mr. Briggs said he was in a hurry and he wrote his name promptly and as well as with a pen. The check was made to the order of the Courier-News, and was in payment for advertising the Governor's proclamation of revoked charters of corporations.

Probable Choir Change.

Miss Edna Nichols, of Scotch Plains, a contralto of much ability, will likely be engaged by the music committee of the First Presbyterian church, to succeed Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, who has accepted a position at the First M. E. church. Miss Nichols sang at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday and her work pleased all. The change will take effect about May 1. No other changes are expected in the First Presbyterian church choir.

Marriage Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coriell, of Murray Hill, celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of their marriage at the Evergreen Hotel, of which Mr. Coriell is the proprietor, on Wednesday night, there being seventy-five couples from Newark, Elizabeth, Scotch Plains, Bound Brook, Dunellen and Plainfield. The evening was spent in dancing, music being furnished by Prof. Sam. Frazee, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Coriell received a valuable collection of gifts.

Miss Adelia Phelps, of the Plainfield Business College, was removed to the hospital in the ambulance this morning, where today she will undergo an operation for appendicitis.

the yard, and she told Mr. Wilcox about it. Mr. Wilcox went into the yard and saw the clothes lying on the ground and said he would have to scare away the boy.

William Bachman, ten years old, on the night of the shooting, with Chauncey Buckley, left home about 7:55 to attend a party. When passing Wilcox's home, on Park street, he saw Mr. Wilcox standing before the hedge with one foot on the cement walk the other on the grass. He had on a long light-colored coat. Witness heard a woman's voice from the house cry out, "Go away, boys!" and then the man in the long coat said, "These are not the boys."

Harriet M. Codding, fourteen years old, testified that on the night Darling was killed she, with six companions, Darling one of them, was on Mr. Wilcox's lawn playing Hallowe'en pranks. She was there twice. The first time the boys took the clothes from the line. The girls did nothing.

The second time they came up Summit avenue toward Westfield avenue. As they came toward the house Wilcox stepped out from behind a bush. John Darling stepped toward the bay window. Wilcox stood behind the bush and the side porch. Addressing Darling, Wilcox said:

"Stand still, or I'll shoot!"

He fired, and she saw one arm by the flash of the pistol, his right arm being held out. She saw Darling turn his head. The witness ran down on the sidewalk with Elsie Philippe. When she learned that some one was hurt she ran up to the tree.

Her brother Charley, Wilcox and another boy stood around Darling. She heard Wilcox ask whose boy it was and where he lived, and then he said, "I guess I hit him," and then something about "That's what you get."

Mrs. Ayres leaves beside Mrs. Robinson, a son, Frank F. Baynon, of New York city, and two brothers, Uel Freeman, of Rahway, and Charles Freeman, of this city. IN THE SUPREME COURT.

Case of Kane Against Fillmore Baptist Church is Again Argued.

The case of Alexander Kane against the Fillmore Baptist church, which has been dragging through the courts for some time, was again brought up yesterday, in the Supreme Court at Trenton, when W. S. Angleman, representing the defendant, argued to have the original judgment set aside. It favored Kane and was granted at Elizabeth about a month ago.

Mr. Angleman argued yesterday that the judgment was entered by default and that the defense is entitled to a hearing. On the other hand, S. H. Swackhamer, who appeared for the plaintiff, stated that the time for the argument of the defendant's lawyer was at the original trial, and that the opportunity of such a motion was lost. The court will give an opinion on the matter in the June term, having reserved its decision until that time.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Augustus Vanderbeef Healy has sent out invitations for a tea to be given at her home, 57 Willow avenue, on Tuesday, March 7, from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Mrs. F. H. Andrews and Mrs. J. Stockton Schoonmaker, together with their mother, Mrs. M. C. Schoonmaker, of Pittsburg, gave an informal afternoon at home at 963 Central avenue, yesterday. They were assisted in receiving by a number of friends and the affair was a delightful one.

Miss Millward.

The Syracuse Telegram says of the Jessie Millward vaudeville, which will appear at the Casino Saturday afternoon and evening: "It seemed good to see vaudeville again at the Bastable last night It was like old times and judging from the applause and enthusiasm, the audience thoroughly enjoyed the 'stunts' of the company headed by Miss Jessie Millward. A dainty little one act play, "The Queen's Messenger," was given by Miss Millward assisted by Percy Herbert. The Zarrow Trio did some wonderful bicycle feats, and Jack Lyle, with funny songs and Leah Russell, a Yiddish soubrette, aided in entertaining. The moving pictures were very good."

The entertainment which was to have been given by Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, tomorrow night, has been postponed on account of the death in one of the member's family, until March 25. The Council will hold its regular meeting tomorrow night and initiate several candidates.

Arthur Pryor.

Pryor's Band at Elizabeth.

Special interest is being shown in the announcement of the coming appearance at Jacobs' Theatre, Elizabeth, on Tuesday night, March 28, of Arthur Pryor's world-renowned band. Chris. Sorenson, of this city, is assistant manager of the band, and George Taggart, formerly of North Plainfield, is a special press representative for the musical organization. It was originally planned to have the band appear in this city, but it was decided that there is no place large enough here for the organization. Thousands of people who heard this band at Asbury Park last summer were delighted and the Plainfielders who were at the shore will undoubtedly take the opportunity to hear the band at Elizabeth. Mr. Pryor was for years Sousa's Trombone King, and he has gotten together an organization of musicians that is considered has not equal. A full complement of soloists accompany the band.

BANKRUPTCY ACT TO GO.

Congress Likely to Repeal Present Law.

Efforts are being made in Congress to repeal the Federal bankruptcy law. It is understood, however, that it is too late in the session to do anything now.

The opponents of the law claim that it was passed to help business men in the south and that it has now outlived its usefulness. It was never intended to be permanent. The law has burdened the federal courts with litigation. A certain class of business men have abused its privileges for personal benefit. On the other hand, the friends of the present law say that now the law is uniform business men in any section of the country can institute bankruptcy proceedings against any other person in another locality, no matter how distant, with clear knowledge of the law they are invoking.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Horne, of Hackensack, are visiting relatives in the borough.

ENGINE CAUSED ROOF COLLAPSE

Official Asserts Round-House Crash Was Due to An Accident.

COLLIDED WITH DOOR

Schwalbach Partially to Blame for Mishap at Dunellen Which Resulted in His Instant Death.

Instead of having been due to the weakening of a brick archway as originally stated by the railroad employes, there is every indication that the collapse of the Dunellen round-house roof, Thursday night, in which Henry Schwalbach was killed, was due to an accident for which he was partly responsible. It was rumored yesterday morning, that the crash came about through Randolph Clawson running an engine against a doorway attached to the arch which crumbled and an official of the road is credited with declaring this to be true. Reporters who visited the scene of the accident Thursday night and yesterday, were warded off when they attempted to get at the bottom of the affair and Clawson could not be seen to either affirm or deny the stories, although the nature of the collapse and the condition of the building belied anything but negligence on the part of someone.

Clawson is at present confined to his home suffering from nervous shock and his condition prohibits him undergoing any further excitement.

Schwalbach's relatives believe that Clawson is to blame and last night a brother of the victim, who resides at Scotch Plains, journeyed to Dunellen with the avowed intention of seeking him out and "getting even." He rode up on a West Front street trolley car and frequently informed the other passengers that Clawson would be made to answer to him for his part in the affair. He was highly excited but was evidently pacified before any trouble could occur.

If it is true that Clawson ran an engine into the door, the blame partially reverts to Schwalbach because it was one of his duties to see that the passageways were clear for the entrance of locomotives. They are generally backed in and this places the yard engineer on the opposite side from where the doors swing out. As a rule, Schwalbach stood by the doors until the engines were in but it is known that on Thursday night he went inside the building as Clawson was running the locomotive in. It was one of the heavy passenger type and would demolish the whole building before buckling. It is presumed that it just caught the door on the edge, knocking the brick archway over and causing the heavy wooden girder which it supported, to drop down carrying the center portion of the roof with it. Schwalbach was caught beneath the falling bricks and slate and the engine just entering was buried from sight. If the fall had been due to weakness, it seems strange that only this small portion of the building was affected. An investigation conducted yesterday shows the standing portions of the house to be in good condition, so much so, that the part which collapsed, will be rebuilt at once.

Coroner Quackenbos viewed Schwalbach's body yesterday afternoon and granted a burial permit, ascribing the cause of death as "accidental." There is some criticism of this action as there was no attempt to investigate the affair and see in what respect it was "accidental."

Entertained Unity League.

Miss Huntington, of Franklin place, entertained the members of Unity League, of All Souls' church, last night, progressive euchre being the feature. There were four tables. The first prizes were won by Miss Conklin and Frank Thompson, and the second by Miss Ellen Osgood and Mr. Verega.

Miss A. Hill, of this city, is stopping at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETS

North Plainfield Policemen Likely to Get Increased Pay.

MAYOR'S SUGGESTION

His Honor Recommends That Alarm Tappers Be Placed in Homes and Business Places of Call Men.

Practically held only for the purpose of receiving the annual reports and the general windup of the year's business, two important suggestions were made at last night's Borough Council meeting. The first was contained in the report of Chairman VanArsdale, of the police committee, and was to the effect that the salary of the regular marshals be increased from $50 monthly to $60 and that the chief's be made $75 instead of $60. The other was made by Mayor Smalley and related to a change in the fire alarm system which he holds to be "crude" in some respects at the present time. The entire electric system, he said, should also be placed in better condition. Both matters were laid over for future consideration.

In connection with the police salary increase, Mr. Lee said he had been chairman of that committee for four years and he found that it was impossible to secure good men and keep them because of the low rate of pay. He spoke favorably of the sums mentioned by Mr. VanArsdale but said that if the suggestion was followed out, the new rate should demand that the men buy their own uniforms. Mayor Smalley also spoke in favor of the increase but added that due care should be taken that it be done without increasing the tax rate.

Mayor Smalley brought up the fire department matter of his own accord. He informed the Council that the present system has twenty men, nearly all of whom are call men and that they are summoned by the alarm striking on a tower bell. This, he said, apprised everyone of the fact that there was a fire and its location and he thought the men should be called to duty without such hubbub. He suggested placing tappers in the homes of the men or their places of business and abandoning the bell, but informed the proper committee that he would leave the members to work out the details. The electric system now in use, he said, is costly and not altogether satisfactory and that steps should be taken to change it.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of a report from the Board of Health in which it was stated that its finances were $2,000.58. The report came in response to an order from the Council, through Dr. Honeyman's retort to Collector Brown that he could not tell how much money the Board had in its treasury.

In the regular order of business, the yearly reports were received and they will be issued in printed form as heretofore. James Lacey, of Pearl street, was appointed a regular marshal and was confirmed directly after the meeting. The borough clerk was instructed to inform the Board of Health that the regular meeting of the Council will be held next Friday night and that one or more matters involving it could be brought up at that time, or if the members desired, a special session could be held during the coming week.

Business Men at Montclair.

A party from the Business Men's class at the Y. M. C. A., accompanied by their wives and Physical Director Henckel, journeyed to Montclair Thursday afternoon, where they were the guests of the Montclair Business Men's class for dinner. After the repast, the Plainfield visitors were shown through the association rooms and a basketball game was played between representative teams.

TOLD OF FAMOUS FRIENDS

Rev. Dr. Whitney Talked on Great Men He Has Met.

IN VINCENT CHAPEL

Lecture at First M. E. Church Brotherhood Meeting—Social Time Followed.

"Some Great Men I Have Met," was the topic of an interesting talk given by Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney before the Brotherhood, of the First M. E. church, in Vincent chapel, last night. It is doubtful whether many of those present had any idea of the extensive acquaintance of Dr. Whitney, and his personal experiences in meeting many of the great men of other days was indeed a pleasure. After giving the opinion of a certain man that the two men who had accomplished the greatest good were William E. Gladstone and Bishop John H. Vincent, the speaker said that while the birthplace of a person is of no special credit to him, because he has nothing to say about it, he added that it was his good fortune to be born in Washington, the meeting place for many great men. At the age of fourteen years he was a bookkeeper in a clothing store and there he met men of prominence, both in the store and at their homes, where he was sent to collect bills, that being the custom in those days, instead of mailing them.

Referring to Daniel Webster, John Calhoun, Henry Clay and Jeff Davis, he first spoke of Webster. He said that it was universally agreed that he had the greatest mind, and was a peer among his fellows. He spoke of his piercing eye that could almost read one's mind and gave an instance when his presence completely confused a young minister who was preaching at a service he attended.

Of John Calhoun he said that he probably has as much to do with bringing on the Civil War as any one person. He considered him a giant in intellectual strength and though he and Webster were enemies in debate, outside of Congress they were the best of friends.

Magnetism he considered one of the strongest traits of Henry Clay, and he believed he had many more friends than Webster. He mentioned his winning smile that would not only win most any woman, but men as well. Dr. Whitney said that he heard him make an address at one time and was so afraid that he might get away, that he held fast to Clay's coat.

Jeff Davis he considered a gentleman in makeup, one possessed of all the graces of polished society, though had nothing to say in condemnation or approbation concerning his acts.

He mentioned a fact not generally known and that is that Bishop Vincent was General Grant's pastor in Illinois before the Civil War, and then he stated that he had the pleasure of making a New Year's call on the General, his wife and daughter, now Mrs. Sartorius. He also said that he was privileged to attend a banquet at which President Hayes and Gen. Sherman were present, and in his opinion he believed that Gen. Sherman would have been elected to the Presidency had it not been that he had a Catholic wife.

An interesting incident was related concerning the appearance on the platform of Wendell Phillips and William Lloyd Garrison, when Isiah Grinders, a leader in Tammany Hall, attacked Garrison for insulting the Constitution by saying that it was a covenant with Hell. Afterward Dr. Whitney met Mr. Phillips on his way to Paterson and questioning him about the incident, he remarked that it was true and that he intended to relate the story in an address at Paterson.

In conclusion Dr. Whitney spoke of Charles Sumner, and of an address he heard him make in Cooper Union during the Civil War. His great oratory enthused the audience to such an extent that men and women arose en masse and cheered themselves hoarse, and among those who joined in the demonstration was Rev. Dr. Lansing Taylor, a prominent divine. After Dr. Whitney's remarks a rising vote of thanks were given him and a social time with refreshments were enjoyed.

WILCOX IS ACQUITTED

Jury Returns Verdict That He is Not Guilty of Manslaughter.

HALLOWE'EN TRAGEDY

Harold M. Wilcox Tried for Shooting Young John Darling—In Union County Court.

Harold M. Wilcox was acquitted this afternoon in the Union County Court of the charge of manslaughter for having caused the death of young John Darling.

The jury was out just thirty-nine minutes after a two days' trial and when it returned a few minutes before 1 o'clock, the defendant was absent. Judge Vail received the verdict and discharged the jury.

R. V. Lindabury, of counsel for Wilcox, occupied two hours this morning in summing up, and Prosecutor English took a half hour. At noon, the court delivered its charge which was devoted mainly to definitions of murder, manslaughter and misadventure. He also reviewed the facts as presented.

Wilcox and his wife and counsel were on Broad street returning from luncheon when a stranger acquainted him with the news that the jury had decided that the shooting was accidental and he was overcome with joy.

The crime with which the defendant was charged occurred on Hallowe'en. Young Darling was among a party of lads playing pranks at Wilcox's house. Wilcox fired to scare the lads away and Darling was hit by the bullet.

He will no doubt have something to say relative to the possibilities of the Board of Trade in interesting outsiders in the town. After the address refreshments will be served. All persons interested are cordially invited to attend.

CAPT. MARTIN DEFENDED

Proceeded in Right Way in Washington Trip Plans.

HITS MILITARY BOARD

Guardsman Explains That Co. K's Captain Took Only Proper Steps in the Matter.

The press of the State is commenting generally on the action of the State Military Board in turning down the request of Company K to attend the inauguration at Washington. The Plainfield soldier boys were willing to defray their own expenses. They have twice won the trophy for marksmanship at Sea Girt and last season were tied for first place. The refusal to allow the company to make the trip came as a surprise. In excusing the Military Board's action, the Trenton State Gazette said that there might not have been any objection had Captain Martin consulted the Military Board before making arrangements for the trip.

A guardsman in touch with the situation has this to say relative to Captain Martin's action:

"Captain Martin did not have any arrangements made with the inaugural committee before his application was sent to Governor Stokes, addressed to his military representative, the adjutant-general.

"The inauguration of Governor Stokes did not take place until January 17, and it would have been folly to have made the application to the retiring governor, asking him to grant the company permission to leave the State when he would no longer be governor. Captain Martin's request was consequently not made until January 24, and was sent to Adjutant-General Brientnall, requesting permission to take companies K and L out of the State with their arms and equipments, from March 2 to 7, inclusive. This request was referred to the Military Board by the Governor. It was the Military Board that recommended that permission should not be given. This action was not taken until about February 13 or 14, twenty-one days after the request of Captain Martin had been made, and had not Captain Martin telephoned to Trenton for information he would not have received any information as to the decision upon his application until February 20, the date it was returned to him by mail.

"In reference to the arrangements Captain Martin made for a place in line and quarters in Washington provided the permit to leave the State was given, was sent to General Harris at Washington January 24, the same day he made application to the Governor, or his representative, Adjutant-General Brientnall.

"General Harris wrote and informed Captain Martin that a place would be assigned his command in the line, and that his request for quarters had been referred to M. I. Weller, chairman of the committee on public comfort. This letter from General Harris was dated February 2, and on February 3 Mr. Weller wrote Captain Martin asking for information as to the number of men he would take to Washington, the time of arrival and length of stay in the city.

"Captain Martin answered this letter on February 9, in the meantime having been in communication with Lieutenant Pierson, of the Princeton company. On February 11 a letter from Mr. Weller informed Captain Martin that quarters had been assigned to companies K and L on the capitol grounds. Thus you see the State Gazette was misinformed and Captain Martin had not made all nor any arrangements before applying for permission to leave the State. The final arrangements, which were of course provisional, and under the expectation that the State's permission would be given, were not made until eighteen days after the application was made to the State authorities.

"The State Gazette is also mistaken about the excuse for not allowing the companies to leave the State.

"The reason that has been given by the State Military Board is that it did not wish to have any military company from New Jersey out of the State three days.

"That Captain Martin has shown disrespect to the military board, or that he has gone over its head in this matter is not so. Never in his military career has he been guilty of disrespect or lack of courtesy to his superiors.

"Captain Martin claims that the State Military Board had nothing to do with this application whatever, and how could he be disrespectful to it? His application was made to the commander-in-chief of the National Guard of New Jersey. The Governor referred it to the military board, and that body returned request recommending that it be refused. This request was then returned to Captain Martin, not from the military board but by the Governor."

PARKS DEFEAT WESTFIELD

Local Team Vanquishes Leaders in Central League Match.

RECORD ESTABLISHED

Parks Rolled Its Best Game and Best Average on Local Alleys Last Night.

The Park Club bowlers were in good form last night, and in addition to defeating the Westfield Club three straight in the Central Journal Bowling League, they established new records for highest Park average and highest Park Club score. The fact that the Westfield team is now leading the league speaks well for the local team's work last night. It was a case of better all round bowling, for the Westfield scores were not low by any means.

Barlow topped the 200 mark twice, while Daniel and Ball also reached that standard. 930 was the total score of the first game, which is the highest ever rolled by the Parks, while the average of the three games, 916, is also a record for the local team. Of the Westfield bowlers, Condit hit the most pins, 213 being his score for the second game. In the three games, Parks won by a total of 144 pins.

The following is the score:

PARK CLUB.
Barlow	221	156	213
Townsend	181	191	174
Daniel	178	203	173
Dupee	183	169	158
Ball	167	205	176
	930	924	894
WESTFIELD CLUB.
Smith	160	159	193
Foster	154	159	170
Woodward	152	193	146
Condit	198	213	174
Hegeman	153	185	188
	817	909	876

The efforts of the teams in the Central Journal Bowling League to win the Elizabeth Journal trophy for the season are drawing to a close. Westfield and Roselle lead for the cup, the former having won 20 and lost 8, while the latter has won 20 and lost 10. Westfield has two more matches to roll, while its nearest competitor has also two more games. The final match between the two leaders will take place at Roselle on March 8. The Jersey City and Elizabeth game on March 10 concludes the schedule. Plainfield has a match with Jersey City and one with Newark Bay to roll.

FIRST BAPTIST WOMEN

MRS. PROBASCO'S GUESTS

YOUNG LADIES' MISSIONARY SOCIETY HOLD A SESSION.

Mrs. J. B. Probasco, of East Front street, entertained the members of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, the gathering being in the form of a missionary social. The attendance was unusually large and much interest shown. Following a short devotional service, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss gave a helpful talk on "The Beauty of Service."

After the talk there was a social time and refreshments were served. Those presiding were Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Miss May Shreve and Miss Florence Serrell.

The annual meeting of the society will be held on Friday, March 10, and the president, Miss Ada Fountain, appointed a nominating committee, yesterday, as follows: Miss May Shreve, chairman; Mrs. W. B. Vail, Miss Bessie Flanders, Miss Annie Kinsman. This committee will prepare a list of officers to be voted for. Miss Fountain is now serving her third term as president.

New Rules for Tonsorialists.

It is the intention of the Board of Health to adopt new rules and regulations to govern the local barber shops at the regular March meeting. Corporation Council Craig A. Marsh has been asked to pass upon these rules which it is proposed to act upon and this formality will be followed by their adoption and subsequent enforcement. They will have a tendency to make less likely the carrying of contagious or infectious diseases. The majority of the barbers are in favor of the rules, although it will of necessity put them to increase expense.

U. S. Commissioner Fixes Clarkson's Bail at $2,000.

HEARING HELD TODAY

Case to be Considered by Federal Grand Jury at Trenton in May—May Plead Guilty.

Letter-carrier Frank Clarkson, who was attached to the local postoffice, and who was accused of taking money from mail matter given to him for delivery, was arraigned before Commissioner Linsly Rowe, at Jersey City, this morning.

He was held for the United States Grand Jury, April term, the bail again being fixed at $2,000. Clarkson did not present bondsmen and he was committed to the Hudson County Jail.

If it is possible for him to secure bail, arrangements for his release will be made with Commissioner Rowe.

Postmaster E. H. Bird and Chief of Police P. S. Kiely were witnesses at the hearing today.

The United States Grand Jury will meet in April at Trenton and if the accused man is indicted, he will then have his alternative of standing trial or throwing himself on the mercy of the court. It is believed that Clarkson will choose the latter course.

COMPANY K MEN RECEIVE 100 PER CENT. MEDALS

PRESENTATIONS ARE MADE BY LIEUT.-COL. CLINE BEFORE A LARGE CROWD.

The presentation of 100 per cent. medals to Company K members in the armory, last night, was witnessed by a large crowd. Colonel Collins being absent on account of illness, the medals were presented by Lieutenant-Col. Cline, who came with his staff officers, Captain J. M. Wherley and Lieut. A. G. Spencer, of Somerville, and Captain Hall and Lieuts. Montgomery and Weir, of Elizabeth. Those receiving them were Lieut. J. M. Lewis, First Sergeant C. A. Peterson, Corporal A. R. Trancband, Corporal James Niles, 100 per cent. men for four years, and Corporal G. L. Apgar and Privates Meeker, Wilson and Vail, 100 per cent. for one year. Mrs. Martin was also presented with a sofa cushion bearing Captain Martin's picture, the present of the company.

During the year, seven other company men received similar medals and at the present time twenty-five members are eligible for regimental 100 per cent. medals for attendance. The company fair will close tonight and a large crowd is anticipated.

FIRST WOMAN MINISTER.

She is Mrs. Blackwell and Will Speak in This City.

Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell will address the Equal Suffrage League at Traeli Inn, Park avenue and Eighth street, on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Blackwell is well known by her writings on religious subjects and by the fact that she is the first woman ever ordained to the ministry in the United States. Although going on eighty years of age, she is still active and vigorous. Her serene and gracious presence are like a benediction wherever she goes, and Mrs. Blackwell is a great favorite with the women's clubs of New Jersey. She is the only honorary member of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. She was educated at Oberlin College, Ohio, and is a woman of true culture and an original thinker. Doubtless many Plainfielders will welcome the opportunity to hear this distinguished woman.

On a Hunting Trip.

H. S. Taylor, local manager for the Swift Beef Company, and H. M. Swift, of Newark, have gone to Lake Waccamaw, N. C., where they will remain for ten days, as guests of A. L. Smalley.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Percy S. Dayton, of East Front street, and Miss Ida M. Mills, of Elizabeth.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Frueht's West Front street store is headquarters for musical and sporting goods. Drop in at any time and see the big display of each.

E. B. Maynard, the North avenue barber, has one of the best appointed shops in the city, and his work always gives satisfaction. Children's hair cutting a specialty.

V. W. Nash, of Park avenue, sells the kind of coal that burns free and clear, gives the most heat with the least possible waste. All orders promptly attended to.

Hoagland's express is convenient, rapid, prompt and reliable. To have your work done right, whether you want a safe or a trunk moved, give the contract to Hoagland.

There is still a month of cold nights coming and if you have not purchased your heavy underwear, stop in at Blair's on Park avenue. All makes and in all grades of weight.

If you have a troublesome corn, ingrowing toe nail or a bunion consult Dr. E. B. Stowe, of the Babcock building, and they will disappear under the doctor's special treatment.

Marchant Brothers deal in the finest milk and dairy products. They want your patronage, and they will have it if you once try their rich cream and milk. They have a complete delivery system.

If not convenient to call at W. W. Dunn's grocery, your order may be given by telephone and it will receive proper attention. Proprietor Dunn believes in honest treatment of all patrons.

When prices on goods are the same and the quality of the goods is equal to what you can get in New York, why not patronize your local merchants? They are in some ways superior. At least, Peck is.

Trousers cleaned, pressed and returned the same day would have at one time been an impossibility, but it is now possible, and being done every day at Brown & Brown's establishment on West Second street.

In their many years of business in Plainfield, Smalley Brothers have won continued success because of their methods. They believe in selling the best meat at the lowest market prices and the people uphold them.

Shirley & Johnston, in the corner store of the Babcock building, carry one of the largest lines of carpets, mattings, rugs and shades between New York and Philadelphia. Their spring styles of each are now in and they invite inspection. This is the firm which has won a name for itself in making awnings.

The banking business in Plainfield is no longer an unknown quantity. Every one is aware of the fact that the Plainfield Trust Company is a safe, reliable and profitable place to invest money. It is wiser to make a safe investment at a moderate rate of interest than to make a foolish investment at a get-rich-quick rate.

LITERARY.

"The Way to Give a St. Patrick's Day Luncheon" is told in interesting style in the March number of Madame by Elisabeth W. Morrison. Miss Morrison's sketch is delightfully illustrated, showing various conceits and dainty novelties which can be used in arranging the table for this luncheon. The male readers of Madame will be certain to take special interest in these illustrations. Madame is published by The Ford Publishing Co., Indianapolis.

We went up to the Pincio, to have a last look at St. Peter's and the Doria pines before the sun went down. There were few people; it was late, and we had the terrace to ourselves. The dome stood out, quite purple, against a clear blue sky, and seemed almost resting on the clouds. There was a slight mist, which detached it from the mass of buildings. Rome hardly existed—we only saw the dome. I was sorry W. was not there to have that last beautiful picture in his mind.—From "Italian Recollections," by Mary King Waddington, in the March Scribner's.

An array of summer cottages and little bungalows, attractively brought out with tint and color, opens the March issue of Good Housekeeping. A new department, "The Business Side," is a distinguishing feature, rich in suggestion and actual aid for the householder. Gustav Kobbe offers sound advice upon Musical Education in the Home, with photographic illustrations. Children and the Theatre, the advisability of allowing small children to witness theatrical performances, is considered by Mary Wood-Allen, M. D., and Elizabeth McCracken, author of The Women of America. The Picture Impulse in Children's Dress is treated brightly and helpfully by Augusta Kortrecht, author of Little Gardens, discourses upon A Dooryard Garden, and Isabel Gordon Curtis, the "Housekeeper-at-Large," describes with pen and camera a visit with the feminine pastor of a church in a hill town of New England.

AMUSEMENTS.

In the picturesque language of George Ade, "the trains seldom hesitate in going through Oskaloosa, Kan." The depot is more than a mile from the town. Edgar L. Davenport, of the "College Widow" company, was visiting a friend there last summer and having a business engagement in St. Joe, was in a hurry to connect with the only train that left the town that day. He was riding to the depot in the hotel 'bus and was greatly annoyed by the bad road and the general debility of the team. Finally, when the balky horses stopped altogether and Davenport heard the whistle of the train in the distance, he lost patience, and, turning to the driver of the stage, said: "What on earth made them build that depot so far from the town?" The 'bus driver shifted his quid of tobacco. "Because they wanted it to be near the railroad, I reckon," he said. The actor was silent.

Melville B. Raymond's cartoon-comedy, "Buster Brown," founded on R. F. Outcault's familiar illustrations of the escapades of that precocious youngster in the Sunday colored supplements of the New York Herald, is at the Majestic Theatre, and delights overflowing audiences composed largely of young folks. The Majestic, as the home of "The Wizard of Oz" and "Babes in Toyland," gained a great juvenile following, which is certain to rally to the support of "Buster Brown" during his run. That juvenile hero of so many comic escapades is impersonated to the life by Master Gabriel, rightfully designated as "America's toy comedian." For although he is above the age limit of the Gerry Society for allowing children to appear on the stage, he looks like a bright boy of about seven, and is bound to become a matinee idol with the little misses and their mothers alike. He is ably assisted by George Ali, the famous French animal impersonator, in the role of "Tige," the dog—Buster's inseparable companion in all his mischief-making.

"Fatinitza," the most successful of the revivals made so far by Fritzi Scheff at the Broadway Theatre, New York, can be seen only one more week, as continuing C. B. Dillingham's policy of presenting Miss Scheff in a series of the most popular examples of opera comique, "Bocaccio" is to be put on. A most elaborate and costly revival of this tuneful opera will be made. Meanwhile "Fatinitza" continues to please music lovers and Miss Scheff as the dashing "Vladimir" makes a stunning stage figure with lots of opportunity for the vivacity that is half her personality, and her fine voice also gets wide scope in many delightful numbers. The Broadway Theatre is filled nightly with music lovers, half of whom can nod their heads to airs reviving pleasant memories; and to the other half "Fatinitza" is just as enjoyable, for its melodies never stale and its fun is just as potent as it was when the opera was first produced twenty years ago. Miss Scheff is now in the fourth month of her engagement in New York, a run of success almost unequalled. Music lovers here should not fail to pay a visit to the Broadway Theatre, New York, before "Fatinitza" is taken off. As interpreted by Miss Scheff and her most capable company, it is a real treat. Matinees are given only on Saturday during Miss Scheff's engagement.

Governor Vardaman Working Hard to Prevent Lynching.

MOB VIOLENCE FEARED AT JACKSON

Negro Held as Suspect in Assault Case—Governor Offered Reward of $500 For Capture Alive of the Guilty Man.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 25.—Governor Vardaman is working hard to prevent a lynching in the capital city of Mississippi. Developments in the assault case, wherein Miss Marsh, a worthy young white woman of this city, was criminally assaulted by a negro, came thick and fast. The police have arrested a negro named Stewart Johnson, whose clothes were bloody and who bore other evidences of having been in a struggle and whom circumstantial evidence pointed to strongly.

A young negro named Jake Turnbull, about fourteen years of age, who says he was on the other side of the street when the assault was committed, was taken to the jail and identified Johnson as the one who committed the assault.

Crowds began to gather in the uptown business district and openly indulged in talk of lynching. At a mass meeting of the citizens of the city Governor Vardaman announced the appointment of Colonel R. J. Harding, former sheriff of the county, as the colonel of a regiment to be formed. A captain was named for each ward in the city, they in turn selecting the members of their company.

Governor Vardaman called out the military companies and addressed them at a mass meeting in the courthouse at midnight, saying:

"Gentlemen, a poor white woman has been cruelly used and almost killed within the shadow of the statehouse, and her blood cries out for vengeance. I hope you will do nothing to bring disgrace on the capital city, but I want 500 volunteers to place around the town and to search the homes of every suspected negro between now and daylight. I hereby offer a reward of $500 for the arrest and delivery to me of the wretch who perpetrated this dastardly crime, but I want him alive. Gentlemen, do your duty."

There were responses from a thousand throats, and in ten minutes armed men were scouring the city in every direction.

Last night there was a dense crowd in the vicinity of the city jail, but it soon became known that the negro Stewart Johnson was not in the city jail, having been removed by Sheriff Spenn. The negro was removed at the instance of Governor Vardaman, and it is believed he was taken to Vicksburg, though the officials refuse to state where he is.

His friends believe that his force of mind and mastery of will power will help a long way toward the desired result. Dr. Harper is possessed of a marvelous power of concentration, and it is his plan to demonstrate at least the partial mastery of mind over bodily ills."

THE WAR ON TRUSTS

A Resolution In Congress to Probe Armor Plants.

A COMBINE IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE

Vandiver of Missouri Would Have Attorney General Report to the House as to Carnegie and Bethlehem Steel Combinations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Representative Vandiver (Mo.) has introduced the following resolution in the house:

"Resolved, That the attorney general inform the house at his earliest convenience whether or not any proceedings have been instituted, either civil or criminal, against the armor plate trust and if not why not; and further

"Resolved, That the attorney general also inform the house what steps have been taken by him to determine whether or not the said armor plate trust should be prosecuted for violation of the United States antitrust law or other United States statutes against trusts and combines in restraint of trade."

The resolution was referred to the judiciary committee.

A preamble to the resolution recites that on Sept. 6, 1901, the attorney general was petitioned to institute civil and criminal proceedings against the Carnegie Steel company and the Bethlehem Steel company as combining and constituting what the petition alleged was an armor plate trust for controlling the prices of armor plate and that there was filed with the attorney general and with the president a statement of the facts and evidence showing a conspiracy whereby the trade and commerce in armor plate had been monopolized and the armor plate trust enabled to sell many thousand tons of armor plate to the United States government at prices ranging from $445 to $520 per ton after a duly appointed board of expert naval constructors had reported that the actual cost of the armor did not exceed $197 per ton. The preamble further alleged an agreement between the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies as to prices and that they have divided the contracts of the government between themselves, each bidding lower than the other for one-half of the armor required at any time by the government. Additional evidence of this conspiracy to prevent free and open competition in bids for armor plate, the preamble continues, has been shown in the hearing of the present secretary of the navy when on Jan. 26, 1905, Secretary Morton stated to the house committee on naval affairs that the bids of the Bethlehem and Carnegie companies for 7,820 tons of armor plate which had been opened on Jan. 12 last were discovered to be identical.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—United States Minister Dawson, at Santo Domingo city, has cabled the state department that an attempt was made there to assassinate President Morales, but that the attempt failed. Five of his assailants were captured, and the remainder escaped.

The affair is supposed to have grown out of an attempt on the part of the revolutionary element in Santo Domingo to prevent the consummation of the financial agreement between that government and the United States.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Buyers Placing Liberal Orders.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Better weather has greatly improved trade in many sections of the country, spring merchandise being distributed freely by jobbers, while retail business and mercantile collections are more normal. Interior buyers are placing liberal orders in the large cities and preparations for structural work are hurried. Manufacturing lines have made splendid progress since the opening of the year, especially the various divisions of the steel industry, and textile mills are well engaged. Shoe shops have ample spring business, but orders for fall delivery are delayed by the recent advance in prices that was necessitated by higher cost of production, particularly as to the raw material.

In almost every branch of business there is confidence in active trade with the appearance of settled weather. Winter wheat is in good condition, but cotton planting will average much later than last year. Prices of commodities are still firm. Railway earnings for the month of February thus far were 6.2 per cent smaller than last year, and foreign commerce at this port for the last week made another phenomenal record as to imports, exceeding the same week last year by $9,347,234, while exports were $2,321,406 larger.

A slightly firmer money market has accompanied further new high records for the season in the local security market, to the activity of which is partly due the large increase of 77.4 per cent in bank exchanges as compared with the same week last year. At other leading cities the gain was 11 per cent.

Commercial failures for the week in the United States were 252 against 258 last week, 256 the preceding week and 240 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 29 against 32 last week, 27 the preceding week and 22 last year.

A HUNDRED BODIES FOUND.

Miners Will Devote One Day's Pay to Relief Fund.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 25.—With the recovery of 100 bodies from the ill fated mine at Virginia City the work of rescue was abandoned last night. Mine officials now seem confident that not more than seven more bodies are in the mine, and it is possible this number will be decreased by three or four.

Pipes are being laid in the mine to pump out the water, which is in some places 100 feet deep in the lifts.

The remaining bodies are all thought to be under water, and it may be several days before they are recovered.

The fund for the relief of the widows and orphans has grown to over $20,000. A plan has been started to induce the miners of the district to give one day's work to the fund.

The Sloss mines, near Bessemer, were the first to respond, and the entire wages of the miners for today will be given to the fund. In this one mine $1,000 will be raised in this way.

The movement meets much sympathy among all the miners of the district.

HEIR TO MILLION MISSING.

Police of Country Looking For Man Gone Twenty-three Years.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—All over the country circulars and advertisements have been sent calling upon Henry Scott Bartlett, scion of one of the oldest families in Brooklyn, to come forward and claim his share of a fortune of almost $1,000,000 which is tied up because of his strange disappearance twenty-three years ago.

Dr. Homer L. Bartlett, the head of the family, died at Thomasville, Ga., on Feb. 3. Not until his will was filed for probate in the surrogate's court in Brooklyn did the tragic story of the son's disappearance become generally known. In the will Dr. Bartlett recited the history of the boy's mysterious absence, and with one last forelorn hope that he might still be alive left one-third of the big estate to him, stipulating that before the wealth was divided all possible means to find the missing youth should be exhausted.

IN THE SENATE.

Vote on Swayne Impeachment Case Monday—Statehood Bill Up.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The time of the senate yesterday was divided between the Swayne impeachment trial and the motion of Mr. Beveridge to appoint conferees on the joint statehood bill. In the Swayne case Messrs. Perkins, Clayton and Powers made arguments in behalf of the prosecution, and Mr. Higgins responded in Judge Swayne's behalf, leaving Mr. Thurston still to speak for Judge Swayne and Messrs. De Armond and Palmer for the house.

It is the expectation of the senators who are managing the impeachment trial of Judge Swayne that an agreement will be made today to take a vote on Monday.

Mr. Morgan antagonized the motion to appoint conferees on the statehood bill and held the floor in opposition when the senate adjourned for the day.

Cornell Student's Peculiar Claim.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Rudolfe Roth, a student at Cornell, contests payment of a bill to the Ithaca hotel for lunches on the ground that he is an attache of the Argentine legation at Washington. The hotel proprietor sued Roth for the amount of the alleged debt, and Roth entered a defense that he is an infant under the direct control of the Argentine minister, Senor Don Martin G. Merou, and further that because of treaties between the United States and the Argentine republic he is not subjected to the jurisdiction of a local court.

Double Tragedy at Macon, Ill.

MACON, Ill., Feb. 25.—A strange double tragedy has occurred here. I. H. Hull, a farmer, killed himself by taking poison. His body was found in a barn and was taken into his house. His son, Clinton, twenty-one years old, affected by the occurrence, went to the barn and hanged himself. No reason is known for the father's suicide. He was well to do. Two years ago the former owner of the same farm hanged himself in the same barn.

Charges Against Governor White.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 25.—A resolution was offered in the senate that the charges against Governor White made by Senator Caldwell and those made by Governor White in his message against Caldwell should not be permitted to be withdrawn, but the charges should be fully and fairly investigated after adjournment of the legislature and the guilty, if they are found, should be punished. The resolution was tabled.

Steamer Big Kanawha Destroyed.

MAYSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 25.—The steamer Big Kanawha, plying in the Cincinnati and Kanawha river trade, has been torn from her moorings here and carried downstream, where she caught fire and sank. The vessel will be a total loss. It is believed that all of her crew were saved, though several had narrow escapes.

WANT VLADIVOSTOK

Kuropatkin Reports Japanese Flotilla Off Siberian Town.

RUSSIA WATCHING NORTHERN KOREA

Fighting Along Whole Line Near Tsinkhetchen—Oyama Continues to Advance, Driving Czar's Vanguard Back.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—A St. Petersburg dispatch says:

"General Kuropatkin telegraphs that twenty Japanese torpedo boats and one warship have been sighted off Vladivostok."

Vladivostok, it is reported, is well supplied with food and could stand a long siege. The naval attaches of foreign governments are leaving the town by request of the Russian authorities.

Reports of activity at Vladivostok in anticipation of an attack on that place by the Japanese are thus confirmed, but the town continues in its accustomed gayety, in which the civil and military elements participate.

A telegram from Hunchun says that the gradual forward march of the enemy continues.

A dispatch from Sachetun says:

"The Japanese in superior numbers have forced the Russian detachment at Tsinkhetchen to abandon their base at Beresneff hill. The battle has been desperate on both sides. The full results are not yet known."

A Tokyo report says that large numbers of Russian troops are reported in the extreme northeastern part of Korea, on both sides of the Tumen river, apparently placed at strategic points. The line of communication between Kyongsong and Vladivostok is strongly guarded. Russian scouts have again come south as far as the neighborhood of Songjin.

It is reported that the force of Russian troops which was lately threatening the railway on the left of the Japanese position is now in neutral territory west of the Liao river.

A Tsinkhetchen report says there has been fighting along the whole line in that district. The Japanese, continuing their persistent and systematic advance, drove in the Russian vanguard posts and came in touch with Russian fortified positions. A stubborn combat is expected today, the Japanese apparently intending to attempt to drive out the Russians and capture their redoubts. The Japanese are circling eastward.

MRS. ROSS MURDERED.

Autopsy Disclosed That Death Resulted From a Blow.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Feb. 25.—Additional evidence that Mrs. Hannah B. Ross, the wealthy recluse whose charred body was found in the ruins of her home, was murdered was afforded by the autopsy, which showed that death had resulted from hemorrhage of the brain, apparently caused by a blow. The police are making every effort to trace the missing coachman who on entering Mrs. Ross' service gave the name of Robert Everett and an address which has since been found to be fictitious. The man is said to have shown a suspicious curiosity regarding Mrs. Ross' habits during the short time he was with her and is reported to have remonstrated with her against locking her door at night, saying that he wished to rush in and rescue her in case of fire. Mrs. Ross is said to have declared that she was afraid of the man and had determined to discharge him.

No trace has been found of much silverware and jewelry known to have been in the house.

A Canadian Line to France.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—The Dominion government has entered into a contract with the Allan line for a steamship service between Canada and France. The ports of call in France will be Havre and Cherbourg. In Canada the summer ports will be Montreal and Quebec and in winter Halifax and St. John, N. B. The government will pay the steamship company a bonus of $100,000.

Warsaw Railway Strike Ended.

WARSAW, Feb. 25.—The governor of Warsaw has been notified by the Warsaw and Vienna railway that the railway council at St. Petersburg has consented to increase wages of employees of the road this year by a sum of $325,000. The men have been notified that their demands have been acceded to, and a resumption of traffic is expected today.

Maxim Gorky to Be Free.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 25.—The report of the release of Maxim Gorky is premature, but it is expected he will be set at liberty in a day or so. He is suffering from the effects of confinement, and the authorities consider the case as not sufficiently strong to demand his retention.

Unknown Steamer Ashore.

CAPE HENRY, Va., Feb. 25.—An unknown steamer went ashore near Little Island life saving station at 11 o'clock last night. Surfmen are working to save the crew.

Canadian Canals Free.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—Canadian canals will be free for another year, an order in council having been passed remitting canal tolls for the coming season.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 25, 1905.

The Bound Brook State Centre-Record asks: "Does the voting machine register the wish of the voter?" Sometimes, and sometimes another person's wish.

No need for alarm because an infernal machine was sent to United States Senator Penrose. The Pennsylvanian is quite accustomed to handling a much more dangerous "machine."

According to his own age, Dr. Osler, the Baltimore physician who says that all men of sixty should be chloroformed, has two years of grace left to him. He is now fifty-eight and the public may as well be prepared now to hear of the sudden death of that distinguished man in 1907.

It is hardly likely that anyone will object to the recommendation of the North Plainfield Councilmanic police committee to increase the pay of the borough marshals. Great difficulty has been experienced in the past in getting the right sort of men to serve, the remuneration not appealing to those who would make efficient police officers. The police committee has been seriously handicapped because of this condition and now that a more reasonable figure has been suggested it is hoped that the Council will lose no time in agreeing upon it.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS TO PRESENT "THE RIVALS"

CAST WILL BE COMPLETED DURING THE COMING WEEK.

The senior class committee at the Plainfield High School has selected "The Rivals" to be presented by them in the Casino in April, and it is thought that the cast will be completed by the first of next week. The play is a comedy, full of action, and within the capabilities of an amateur cast. Samuel B. Howe, Jr., of the faculty, will coach the players, and with the assistance of Principal Travell will select the cast. Mr. Howe has had considerable experience in amateur theatricals, having been on a dramatic club in college.

The non-important characters will be placed by appointment, but for the principal parts competitions are being held among the following pupils: Theodore Gavett, George Bentley, Chester Briggs, Harry Thompson, Howard Craig, Howard Lapsley, and the Misses Anna Runyon, Jessie Maclay, Edith Jarvis, Carro Bird, Ada Westphal, Aimee Conant, Emily Wignant and Lillian Snedgrass.

SHRINERS' OUTING.

Plainfielders Attend Function at Newark Last Evening.

Local members of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Newark, accompanied by their wives, attended the "ladies' night" entertainment in Newark, last night, there being nearly nine hundred guests. The party from here comprised thirty-five and the trip was made in a special trolley, leaving the Watchung avenue stand at 6 o'clock. It was two hours later when they reached Newark. The first part of the programme was devoted to vaudeville, followed by a supper in Krueger's Auditorium. This was followed by a dance.

The Plainfielders left Newark on the return trip at 1 o'clock, reaching here at 3:30 o'clock.

Ascertaining Exact Mileage.

Street Commissioner Gavett has been engaged during the past couple of days preparing data showing exactly how many miles of macadam streets there are in the city. This will be used as a basis for bids for the contract of street sprinkling to be advertised.

The rush of work still continues at the Pond Machine Tool Works and the night gang will keep on for an indefinite period. Besides the contracts for the Japanese Government, other large contracts have been received recently.

HOPE BOYS' CLUB PRESENTS DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT

YOUNG ARTISTS ACQUIT THEMSELVES CREDITABLY IN TWO SKETCHES.

Members of the Hope chapel Boys' Club exhibited commendable dramatic talent, last night, when they presented two sketches in connection with an entertainment that was largely attended. They were "The Editor's Troubles" and "The Doctor's Assistant" and the young artists went through both with a smoothness that was surprising. The audience was kept laughing continuously and by hearty applause showed its appreciation.

The cast of characters was as follows: "The Editor's Troubles;" "Editor," Peter Sweeny; "Palmer," Frank Rimmer; "Mr. Pinchpenny," James Kenny; "Bill Bloodso," Allen Snyder; "Shadow," Alfred Becker; "Pat Muldoon," Walter Firstbrook. "The Doctor's Assistant;" "Doctor," Morris Hunter; "assistant," Frank Rimmer; "Mr. Simpkins," Donald Mortimer; "policeman," Harry Kenny.

Other numbers on the programme were piano selections by Miss Lillian Duckworth and Miss Bertha Jones and vocal solos by Thomas M. Muir, assisted by the club membership. Mrs. G. H. Condict acted as accompanist during the evening.

The affair was arranged by Mr. Condict and S. B. Howe, who were assisted by a committee from the club composed of Peter Sweeny, chairman; Frank Rimmer, Walter Firstbrook and James Kenny.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

Though as yet no definite steps have been taken toward the reorganization of the borough baseball team, the subject is being discussed by enthusiasts, and from the general tone of conversation there is no doubt that the borough will have a good nine on the diamond this year. The material will be about the same as that of the 1904 season. Phil Smith has stated that he will play with the Y. M. C. A., and that puts the pitcher problem up to the management, but there are undoubtedly others, and that position on the diamond will not be vacant. Harvey Moynihan is the most likely candidate for the pitcher's box. He will be in Bound Brook next year and has kept in good pitching form during the winter. Though he may be on some Bound Brook team, he will be able to fill the bill for the borough as well. Davis, Smith's catcher, will not be among the local players next year, though Craig, nother of the P. H. S. men, will be one of the line up. Walters, Alberts, Giles and others of the old nine are considering the next season with a view to playing again.

The Baptist church pulpit will be filled tomorrow, in the absence of Rev. Frank Fletcher, who is in Washington, D. C., by Rev. Mr. Jordan, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Rev. W. W. Casselberry, the regular minister, will preach at the Presbyterian church. One of the most successful and profitable series of evangelistic meetings which has ever been conducted in the borough, concluded last night at the Presbyterian church. During the entire week, with the exception of Washington's birthday, the church has been well filled, and the various pastors in charge of the meetings have deliverd interesting and instructive addresses. Last night the meeting was in charge of Dr. Mason, of Metuchen.

The funeral services of Mrs. William Conley, who died on Tuesday, were conducted yesterday in St. John's church. They were in charge of Father Dunphy and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Assisting Father Dunphy were Father Bogard, of Somerville, and Father Egan, of Plainfield. Albert Matthews and Miss Anna Daley, of Plainfield, rendered solos during the mass. The interment was at St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

The next meeting of the Friendship Circle will be held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Joseph E. Meeker. The usual business will be transacted and a social hour will be enjoyed.

Having recently decided to resume the regular weekly meetings of the club, the G. E. Society, of New Market, will meet at the home of Mrs. George Caskey on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. William H. Cole, who has been confined to her home by illness, is improving and will be able to be about as usual in a few days.

Mrs. Mary Coriell's new home, which is in progress of construction, will be ready for occupancy about April 1.

Mrs. John Force, of Glen Gardner, has returned to her home after an extended visit with Mrs. J. C. Gardner.

Frank Humpston, formerly of the borough, has recently moved to Newark, where he will make his home.

Mrs. Nelson Crouk, of Montour Falls, N. Y., is the guest of Mrs. Herbert Pierce, of the borough.

The personal property of Samuel B. Merrill was sold at auction yesterday afternoon.

Miss Laura VanNuis, of Plainfield, has been visiting her brother, Charles VanNuis.

Miss Bessie Tappan, of New Market, is confined to her home by illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The signal light recently placed on the corner of Park avenue by the trolley company to protect the single track from Park to Cook avenues, can be seen from town, which makes it very convenient as it gives patrons a chance to get a move on and many times catch cars that they would miss were it not for the warning light.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching by pastor, 10:45, subject "The Philosophy of Love;" B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15; evening preaching, 74:5, subject "The Philosophy of Hope."

Mrs. Palmer, of Gloversville, N. Y., is spending a week with Mrs. E. G. Kieb, of the borough. Mrs. Palmer was formerly Miss Fulton, a popular teacher in the public school here several years ago.

Regular routine business and the paying of a number of bills was the business transacted at the Township Committee meeting held last night in the town rooms.

Special Collector Harry Pangborn will shortly begin the annual crusade against the delinquent taxpayers.

The two-weeks' fair of Company K, which has been attended by many from here, will close tonight.

Mrs. William H. Lee is entertaining Miss Gallagher, of Metuchen, for a week.

Mrs. Ella Rogers, of Brooklyn, has been visiting relatives in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Since the spring elections have been abolished by an act of the Legislature, officeholders whose terms would expire in March will be retained in office until January. The act relates to townships as well as to boroughs.

Included in the budget for the next school year in the township, adopted by the board for recommendation at the annual meeting is $300 for fitting up another room in the local school building.

Rev. George B. Shaw, of Plainfield, will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. The evening service will be conducted by the Christian Endeavor Society at 7:30 p. m.

Frank O. Nelson, of Piscataway township, recently lost two horses with spinal meningitis, and has others ill with the same disease.

Middlesex county receives this year as its apportionment of State school money $103,102.52, an average of $318.21 per teacher.

The annual report of the township officers recently issued shows the township to be in a healthy financial condition.

UNIVERSITY OF HUMANITY.

Chief of Salvation Army Would Found a School for Research Into Human Ways.

London (Eng.) Special.

Gen. William Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, will lead a movement for the founding of a university of humanity.

"The reasons why such a university should be established," said the general, "are many. At the present time we have such universities as Oxford and Cambridge. At these places it is possible for a man—and for a woman, too—to be trained in art, science, literature, medicine, law, theology, and almost everything you can mention, is taught, but up to the present there has been no place established upon a similar basis where men shall be trained from the social and human standpoint. When I was in America I met the late

GEN. WILLIAM BOOTH.
(Commander in Chief of the Salvation Armies of the World.)

Mark Hanna and many of the most distinguished men in the states. With them I talked the matter over, and had Mark Hanna lived, he and myself would have succeeded in getting some of the philanthropic millionaires to give us the money to start the scheme.

"What I want is two such universities—one in New York and one in London. Their business will be to train men to carry out the same kind of work that our officers carry on at the present time. We want men to have as thorough a training in the knowledge of men—as human beings—as they already have in everything else.

"Take the present poor law system, for instance, and couple the cost of carrying on its work with the money spent in the same direction from voluntary sources. It should be possible to train up men who will do all that these are doing, turn out better men and women, and, at the same time, minimize the cost. We want a class of men who are training in a knowledge of the fitness and capacity of the child and youth—men who will be able to perceive and detect the criminal and immoral instincts in human nature, and be able to divert it in the right direction. In short, we want men who will be able to turn out the human being as perfect as it is possible to turn him out."

"And the cost, general—do you want the country to bear it?"

"No—not at all. I don't, of course, see why the country should not make grants in just the same way as some of the colonies make us grants now in order to assist our work among the criminal and depraved classes, but the bulk of the money should come from voluntary sources." Then, with an emphatic gesture, he added: "Let them give us the money—we already have the humanitarian professors."

A FISTIC DUEL IN A TREE.

Kentucky Negroes Engage in Unique Combat in View of Hundreds of Spectators.

James Askridge and Mason Thomas, negroes, who live near Middletown, were the principals in a fistic duel fought high in the branches of a large tree at the picnic grounds near Warwick Villa, Ky. The duel was the result of a quarrel between the negroes.

Askridge, it is said, told Thomas he could lick him anywhere—on the ground, in the air or under the deep blue sea. This boast was too sweeping for Mason, and he took issue with him.

"I can lick you up in dat tree," boast-

"I CAN LICK YOU IN A TREE."

ed Askridge, "an' if you don't b'leve it, come on."

"You can't do nuthin' you say you kin—you can't whip me no whar." And with this state of things the two clambered up among the branches to prepare for the supreme test of prowess in battle in the air, while a crowd of interested spectators gathered to witness it. When the negroes reached a distance of 12 or 15 feet from the ground each announced ready, and while clinging to a friendly branch with one hand, each proceeded to pummel the other with a determination that furnished amusement for the crowd of picnickers below and bruises for the combatants among the limbs.

Finally Askridge hit Mason a telling blow on the jaw and almost knocked him from the tree, Mason saving himself by catching a limb below him. The victor, in taunting tones, then asked the apparently vanquished Mason if he was satisfied.

"Now, if you is satisfied I kin lick you in de air, jus' cum down on de groun' an' I'll do it down dar," said the confident Askridge.

Mason seemed to have sufficient proof and the two crawled down from their strange dueling ground, and after eyeing each other suspiciously for a time separated and forgot their differences.

HOW BROWN WENT HOME.

He Hailed a Cab and Made an Innocent Medical Man Pay for the Ride.

Brown always was a quick-witted chap. Only one other possession of his was as nimble as that wit of his, and that was his money. He was always broke, and always reckless withal. He took a cab once, being a bit unsteady, to convey him from the club to his dwelling, the latter some distance.

The cool night air blowing through the open windows sobered him enough to permit of his realizing that he had no money to pay the cabman's fare. Just at this moment the driver made that very usual inquiry:

"What address did you say, sir?"

And Brown said promptly:

"Dr. So-and-So, No. 4 Blank street," the same being around the corner from his own abode.

The house reached, Brown dashed up the steps, rang the bell furiously, and through the speaking-tube he implored the doctor to go at once to such-and-such a house. A cab was at the door, and would the doctor take the cab? When the doctor came down Brown bundled him in, gave the driver an address, and then started off.

Of course Brown went home around the corner, and of course the cabman searched in vain for the number, and of course the doctor—well, what could he do?

SPRING COLORS AND FABRICS

New Weaves In Diaphanous Goods and Ribbon to Trim Them.

Every season the wash goods take on some new beauty in finish or design until it seems that there is nothing further to be desired. The mercerization of all these fabrics gives them the glossy finish of silk and makes them softer to the touch and less difficult to drape. The greatest difficulty in cotton goods heretofore has been that they were either stiff and unwieldy or else too soft and flabby after one or two days' wear. Now we can choose between the thick linen finish of the kinds of cotton goods designed for waists and the material used for full dresses only. The first sort is designedly made rather heavy and close and makes admirable waists for everyday wear, while the others are admirably adapted to make one look pretty. Among the heavier goods are the dark blue and red cheviots, and these are all mercerized, so that they have the rich luster of silk. The colors are very dainty and artistic, running mostly in grays, dull reds, blues of various tints, lilacs and heliotropes. In fact, these colors seem to be in evidence in every line of goods, completely displacing the browns of the past season. A few tans are seen and a few delicate biscuit shades, but the colors mentioned are those of the spring of 1905. In addition to them are seen champagne, old rose, cardinal, green in several shades, canary, black, creme and wild rose pink.

Diaphanous Tulles.

The new tulles are almost as diaphanous as the old ones, but since they are intended for summer gowns nothing could be more dainty. They are printed in delicate colors and are to be made up with many ruffles or flounces and trimmed with much lace and abundance of ribbon. The nets are very new, and, being produced in so many beautiful colors, they will become very popular. In string color they were very fashionable some ten years ago, but now they are infinitely handsomer. They are strong too. In the colienes there are over twenty-five beautiful colors and also black and white, and they may be made into pretty gowns with the aid of lace and ribbon. Ribbon will be much more in demand this season than for some time. Some of the cotton goods have borders so arranged that they can be used for ruffles or flounces, as may be preferred. Silk dotted mulls are very pretty and are shown in many varieties so far as color and size of dots are concerned.

Dimity, with its delicate floral fancies strewn over the cords; satin liberty, also with dots and different floral designs, and new and exceptionally pretty organdies are among the summer goods which are now being eagerly bought for construction during Lent. So are the excellent shrunken linen suitings in dull finish and in colors and white. There are many embroidered mulls and swisses to choose from, all so fine and delicate that one would almost shrink from cutting such fabrics. I notice, too, that there is a large range of new designs in all wool challies. This is a beautiful material, soft and fine, and a favorite with women of refined tastes for home wear, though it is quite suitable for the street in its season. Polka dots are seen in fully half of these.

The Vogue of Ribbons.

Ribbons are to have a greater prominence than they have had for some time, and the newest of them are truly beautiful. Moire sash ribbon is seven inches wide and comes in blue, pink, turquoise, nile, cardinal, navy, white, cream and black. There are two shades of each color. There is a crepe de chine ribbon seven inches wide, in all the colors, very soft and flexible, and a failletine, five and a half inches wide, in all the shades, besides the novelties in shadow, pompadour fancy striped, polka dotted and plaid effects. Plaids of all sorts are seen. There are many dress goods of plaids of various kinds, but mostly those of the quietest colors. Several designs of cotton goods are plaid and mercerized so that they resemble silk. The tartan plaids are made into shirt waists, with the fold down the front made bias, or perhaps the waist itself is cut bias. Some of the plaids are scarcely more than checks, but the colorings are in good taste, being white and red, black and reseda, brown, pink, pale blue, navy blue and tan and heliotrope.

Shirt waists are of every color, but the white ones are certainly the most pleasing, especially the linen ones, which have a distinction and are made in tailor style, with straps, plaits or drawn work or a little fine embroidery done by hand. Some very fancy waists are made of valenciennes all overs, and others of imitation cluny are very dressy. In spite of the fact that prophets said otherwise, it seems that everything is made up into separate waists.

Feminine Snapshots

Co-operative Housekeeping, Like Marriage, Sometimes a Failure

Lately there appeared in a newspaper an amusing account of how some girls tried to realize the harmony of community housekeeping. They began beautifully—new furniture, pretty china and stuffy little "cosy corners" till you couldn't rest. It was so sweet, so homelike, so restful and all that, they said. Presently one girl determined to make all the others keep their rooms, even to their closets and bureau drawers, in the exact apple pie order in which her own were maintained. Of course there was a grand kick, and feminine irritation followed. Next the girl who managed the co-operative housekeeping purse invited one week several of her friends to dinner, thus entailing added expense. Of course her sense of justice should have prompted her to pay the added expense herself. But she apparently had no sense of justice, so she told the co-operative family they must economize the next week, and that girl was mean enough to cut down the meals and skimp all the rest to pay for her hospitality. Next there was a girl whose special brand of theology was not approved by some of her mates, and they undertook to reconstruct her. If there is one thing the powerful feminine mind is strong on it is theology, and the girl refused to adopt a more fashionable creed than the one she held already. More friction. At length some of the women undertook to tell one of their number how she should dress herself, and that was the last drop in the bucket. "Harmony flat" broke up in disorder. Will women ever learn to mind their own business and not meddle with one another?

If you are obliged to speak disagreeable truths, practice gentle ways of uttering them, that you may give as little hurt as possible.

"There's an old lady here who looks like a perfect picture. She's one of our saleswomen," said a girl in the suit department of a great store. "She must be seventy years old. She has been here years and years, but she never misses a day or an hour from her work. Some of the girls give up and stay away from business if the least little thing gets the matter with them. Mrs. Blank goes right along. She's got more grit and more endurance than a dozen young girls." Later I saw Mrs. Blank. Really, seventy years old though she was, she had the handsomest face on that floor, although it was the suit department, where the good looking saleswomen are generally placed. She had fine features, softly waving gray hair and a smooth, pretty complexion. She had also a sweet, gracious manner that was mightily taking. Here, then, was a woman who had passed through all life's storms and sorrows and come out at seventy years of age handsome and peaceful faced, her powers of body and mind perfectly held and she earning her living as a cloak and suit saleswoman. This item is for girls.

Note this remarkable clipping from a newspaper, "During a fire in a hotel a woman dressed herself in less than fifteen minutes." The unfeeling editor adds, "This record is likely to stand for at least a century."

Among the cabled dispatches at the beginning of the St. Petersburg outbreak was the following highly significant one: "It appears that the women are becoming a highly important element in the situation. The feminine half of the common people has become rabid for revolution, and government officials say this is the gravest development thus far."

Somebody asks whether public officials and employees are paid to be civil. If they are, then certainly no more than half of them earn their money. It always pays to be civil, whether we are paid for it or not.

Miss Martha S. Bensley, a graduate of Vassar and a teacher, adopted the role of nursery governess and went about investigating the child question in the families of the very wealthy. She found almost everywhere a disposition on the part of rich American parents to shunt off their family duties and hire others, almost anybody, to take care of their children. Mothers in fashionable society see their children once a day, the fathers often not for days together, Miss Bensley says. Well, if this is what we are coming to, the next move will be the fashionable infants' hotels that are talked of, where babies and little ones may be cared for night and day at a stated price and a good high one. Thus they will be no bother at all to their parents except perhaps when some of them die and require a funeral.

Here is something women should bear constantly in mind: In so far as we depend on others to that degree we weaken our own powers. If a wife lets her husband manage all her financial affairs, she being in utter ignorance as to them, she will suddenly find some fine day that he has managed them into the ground and there is nothing left for her.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

She nodded.

"That is true. But how much is your railroad worth?"

"It is bonded for fifty millions first, and twenty millions second mortgage."

"Well, seventy millions are worth fighting for: worth a very considerable risk, I should say."

"Yes." And after another thoughtful interval: "How did you come to think of it?"

"It grew out of a bit of talk with the man who will have put the apex on our pyramid after we have done our part."

"Will he stand by us? If he doesn't, we shall all be no better than dead men the morning after the fact."

She clasped her hands tightly over her knee, and said:

"That is one of the chances we must take, David; one of the many. But it is the last of the bridges to be crossed, and there are lots of them in between. Are the details possible? That was the part I couldn't go into by myself."

He took other minutes for reflection.

"I can't tell," he said doubtfully. "If I could only know how much time we have."

Her eyes grew luminous.

"David, what would you do without me?" she asked. "To-morrow night, in Stephen Hawk's office in Gaston, you will lose your railroad. MacFarlane is there, or if he isn't, he'll be there in the morning. Bucks, Guilford and Hawk will go down from here to-morrow evening; and the Overland people are to come up from Midland City to meet them."

There was awe undisguised in the look he gave her, and it crept into his voice when he said:

"Portia, are you really a flesh-and-blood woman?"

She smiled.

"Meaning that your ancestors would have burned me for a witch? Perhaps they would: I think quite likely they burned women who made better martyrs. But I didn't have to call in Flibbertigibbet. The programme is a carefully guarded secret, to be sure; but it is known—it had to be known—to a number of people outside of our friends the enemy. You've heard the story of the inventor and his secret, haven't you?"

"No."

"Well, the man had invented something, and he told the secret of it to his son. After a little the son wanted to tell it to a friend. The old man said, 'Hold on; I know it—that's one'—holding up one finger—'you know it—that's eleven'—holding up another finger besides the first; 'and now if you tell this other fellow, that'll be one hundred and eleven'—holding up three fingers. That is the case with this programme. One of the one hundred and eleven—he is a person high up in the management of the Overland Short Line—dropped a few words in my hearing and I picked them up. That's all."

"It is fearfully short—the time, I mean," he said after another pause. "We can't count on any help from any one in authority. Guilford's broom has swept the high-salaried official corners clean. But the wage-people are mutinous and ripe for anything. I'll go and find out where we stand." And he groped on the floor of the veranda for his hat.

"No, wait a minute," she interposed. "We are not quite ready to adjourn yet. There remains a little matter of compensation—your compensation—to be considered. You are still on the company's pay-rolls?"

"In a way, yes; as its legal representative on the ground."

"That won't do. If you carry this thing through successfully it must be on your own account, and not as the company's paid servant. You must resign and make terms with Boston beforehand; and that, too, without telling Boston what you propose to do."

He haggled a little at that.

"The company is entitled to my services," he asserted.

"It is entitled to what it pays for—your legal services. But this is entirely different. You will be acting upon your own initiative, and you'll have to spend money like water at your own risk. You must be free to deal with Boston as an outsider."

"But I have no money to spend," he objected.

Again the brown eyes grew luminous; and again she said:

"What would you do without me? Happily, my information came early enough to enable me to get a letter to Mr. Ormsby. He answered promptly by wire this morning. Here is his telegram."

She had been winding a tightly folded slip of paper around her fingers, and she smoothed it out and gave it to him. He held it in a patch of the electric light between the dancing leaf shadows and read:

"Plot Number Two approved. Have wired one hundred thousand to Kent's order Security Bank. Have him draw as he needs."

"So now you see," she went on, "you have the sinews of war. But you must regard it as an advance and name your fee to the Boston folk so you can pay it back."

He protested again, rather weakly.

"It looks like extortion; like another graft," he said; and now she lost patience with him.

"Of all the Puritan fanatics!" she cried. "If it were a simple commercial transaction by which you would save your clients a round $70,000,000, which would otherwise be lost, would you scruple to take a proportionate fee?"

"No; certainly not."

"Well, then; you go and tell Mr. Loring to wire his Advisory Board, and to do it to-night."

"But I'll have to name a figure," said Kent.

"Of course," she replied.

Kent thought about it for a long minute. Then he said: "I wonder if $10,000, and expenses, would paralyze them?"

Miss Van Brock's comment was a little shriek of derision.

"I knew you'd make difficulties when it came to the paying part of it, and since I didn't know, myself, I wired Mr. Ormsby again. Here is what he says," and she untwisted a second telegram and read it to him. "'Fee should not be less than five per cent. of bonded indebtedness; four-fifth in stock at par; one-fifth cash; no cure, no pay.'"

"Three million five hundred thousand dollars!" gasped Kent.

"It's only nominally that much," she laughed. "The stock part of it is merely your guaranty of good faith: it is worth next to nothing now, and it will be many a long day before it goes to par, even if you are successful in saving its life. So your magnificent fee shrinks to $700,000, less your expenses."

"But heavens and earth! that's awful!" said Kent.

"Not when you consider it as a surgeon's risk. You happen to be the one man who has the idea, and if it isn't carried out, the patient is going to die to-morrow night, permanently. You are the specialist in this case, and specialists come high. Now you may go and attend to the preliminary details, if you like."

He found his hat and stood up. She stood with him; but when he took her hand she made him sit down again.

"You have at least three degrees of fever!" she exclaimed; "or is it only the $3,500,000 shock? What have you been doing to yourself?"

"Nothing, I assure you. I haven't been sleeping very well for a few nights. But that is only natural."

"And I said you must have a cool head! Will you do exactly as I tell you to?"

"If you don't make it too hard."

"Take the car down-town—don't walk—and after you have made Mr. Loring send his message to Boston, you go straight to Dr. Biddle. Tell him what is the matter with you, and that you need to sleep the clock around."

"But the time!" he protested. "I shall need every hour between now and to-morrow night!"

"One clear-headed hour is worth a dozen muddled ones. You do as I say."

"I hate drugs," he said, rising again.

"So do I; but there is a time for everything under the sun. It is a crying necessity that you go into this fight perfectly fit and with all your wits about you. If you don't, somebody—several somebodies—will land in the penitentiary. Will you mind me?"

"Yes," he promised; and this time he got away.

CHAPTER XXV.

ON THE HIGH PLAINS.

Much to Elinor's relief, and quite as much, perhaps, to Penelope's, Mrs. Brentwood tired of Breezeland Inn in less than a fortnight and began to talk of returning to the capital.

Pressed to give a reason for her dissatisfaction, the younger sister might have been at a loss to account for it in words; but Elinor's desire to cut the outing short was based upon pride and militant shame. After many trap-settings she had succeeded in making her mother confess that the stay at Breezeland was at Ormsby's expense; and not all of Mrs. Brentwood's petulant justifyings could remove the sting of the nettle of obligation.

"There is no reason in the world why you should make so much of it: I am your mother, and I ought to know," was Mrs. Brentwood's dictum. "You wouldn't have any scruples if we were his guests on the Amphitrite or in his country house on Long Island."

"That would be different," Elinor contended. "We are not his guests here; we are his pensioners."

"Nonsense!" frowned the mother. "Isn't it beginning to occur to you that beggars shouldn't be choosers? And, besides, so far as you are concerned, you are only anticipating a little."

It was an exceedingly injudicious, not to say brutal way of putting it; and the blue-gray eyes flashed fire.

"Can't you see that you are daily making a marriage between us more and more impossible?" was the bitter rejoinder. Elinor's metier was cool composure under fire, but she was not always able to compass it.

Mrs. Brentwood fanned herself vigorously. She had been aching to have it out with this self-willed young woman who was playing fast and loose with attainable millions, and the hour had struck.

"What made you break it off with Brookes Ormsby?" she snapped; adding: "I don't wonder you were ashamed to tell me about it."

"I did not break it off; and I was not ashamed." Elinor had regained her self-control, and the angry light in the far-seeing eyes was giving place to the cool gray blankness which she cultivated.

"DAVID KENT?" SAID THE MOTHER.

"That is what Brookes told me, but I didn't believe him," said the mother. "It's all wrong, anyway, and I more than half believe that David Kent is at the bottom of it."

Elinor left her chair and went to the window, which looked down on the sanatorium, the ornate parterre, and the crescent driveway. These family bickerings were very trying to her, and the longing to escape them was sometimes strong enough to override cool reason and her innate sense of the fitness of things.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

BOOT AND SHOE WORKERS

They Have a Strong Organization Which Is More Conservative Now Than Formerly.

Boston (Mass.) Special.

The first organization of shoe workers was perfected in 1867 and was known as the Knights of St. Crispin. In 1869 this organization had almost 50,000 members enrolled, but a few years later it went to pieces and many of the local unions became affiliated with the Knights of Labor. Political differences wrecked the powerful Knights of St. Crispin, and the Knights of Labor went down largely from the same causes a few years later. At one time the shoe workers were the principal mainstay of the Knights of Labor in New England.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' International union has been affiliated with the

JOHN F. TOBIN.
(President Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union.)

American Federation of Labor since it was first organized, and it has done much to better the conditions of shoe workers throughout the country. Through persistent and intelligent agitation to create a demand for its union stamp, it has made it profitable for employers to organize their factories and use the stamp.

John F. Tobin is president of the union, having held that position for many years. At one time he was a radical socialist, but he is now considered one of the most conservative leaders in the country.

Charles L. Baine is secretary-treasurer, and, being a Chicagoan, is well known in western labor circles. The headquarters of the organization are in Boston.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

New President of the Great Educational Institution Is Famous in Academic Circles.

Urbana (Ill.) Special.

Edmund J. James, who has recently accepted the presidency of the University of Illinois, located at Urbana, resigned the presidency of Northwestern university, at Evanston, to become identified with the growing institution of his native state. Mr. James is the son of Rev. Colin D. James, a well-known pioneer Methodist preacher, of southern and central Illinois, and, consequently, belongs to the first families of Illinois, in order of time, at any rate, and came naturally by his interest in education and educational affairs. It is interesting to note that he is the first native of Illinois to be called to the presidency of such an important educational institution as Northwestern. He was also the first native of Illinois to be offered the presidency of the state university of Illinois, which he declined some ten years ago. In a certain way, one may say the state is educationally become of age, and is able to find men within its own borders, native to the state, and the children of natives of the state, for important educational positions.

EDMUND J. JAMES.
(New Executive Head of the University of Illinois.)

Pretty nearly every strain of blood which flowed into the colonies from Europe is to be found in President James' veins—Scotch, Irish, English, Dutch, German, French, Welsh—with no ancestry in any line who came to the country later than 1754, the earliest, Thomas Blossom, having come in 1629.

Cradle That Cost a Fortune.

An interesting gift just presented to the Musee Carnavalet is the cradle of the prince imperial. The cradle was the gift of the city of Paris to Empress Eugenie in 1850. Designed by Baltard, it is of rosewood, and takes the shape of a ship. At the prow figures the imperial eagle, and at the stern rises an allegorical statuette in silver representing the city of Paris, and holding aloft a crown from which the curtains hang. No fewer than three artists collaborated in the construction of the cradle, which cost the city of Paris 160,000 francs.

BASKET BALL.

The Whittier School defeated a team from the juniors at the Y. M. C. A. in a close game of basketball Wednesday afternoon by the score of 14 to 13. It was the closing game for the Juvenile champions, and though it was expected that the contest would be with the Montclair High School second team, the latter were unable to appear. The star of the game was Woodhull, who though playing at guard, threw four goals from the field. Whittiers lined up as follows: Martin and Loughlin, forwards; Alpaugh, center; Woodhull and Fountain, guards.

Two games of basketball in the league at the Y. M. C. A. men's class started off the new series of games, which will be played among teams in the association for the league championship, Thursday night. The Orioles defeated the Monarchs, and the Triangles won from the Yankees by default. The game between the first two teams was an interesting one, and the score was 18 to 13. The teams played with four men on each side. The lineup of the teams was as follows: Monarchs—Jacot, Shephard Templin, and Collier, captain; Orioles—Cullingworth, McNaughton, Morris and Sebring, captain.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Fifteen entered for the trial meet at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night, preparatory to the annual indoor athletic meet of the associations of Northern New Jersey, which will be held at Newark on March 1. The events included the high dive, high jump, fence vault, fifteen yard dash, shot put, one mile relay race. The following qualified, and will be the local representatives, two men being allowed to enter each event: High jump, McNaughton and Steiner; high dive, McNaughton and Steiner; fence vault, Caboone; shot put, Collins; 15 yard dash, Scull and Woodland; one mile relay race, Koons, Scull, Overton and Smith.

DIAMOND DUST.

The towns represented in the Lackawanna League include Orange, Dover, Morristown-Chatham, Stroudsburg, Phillipsburg and Summit.

"Mike" Leonard, who will play third base for Plainfield this season, told a local fan a few days ago, that he would be on hand when the season opens, despite reports to the contrary.

As soon as the snow leaves the ground, Manager Woolston will make arrangements to have Crescent Oval and the grandstands put in condition. The bleachers will also receive attention.

Lines Groo, one of the management of the Plainfield Baseball Association, who has been living in Westfield, will remove to North Plainfield next week and will reside in the house on Somerset street, formerly occupied by J. A. Blatz.

Manager Woolston, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, is constantly receiving requests for dates from some of the strongest teams in this part of the country. He will soon be able to announce his schedule and he says it will be a strong one.

Manager Frank Burke's Elizabeth Stars will open the season with the Cuban Giants on Sunday, April 2. The line-up for this season will be as follows: Yale, first base; Foster, second base; Mooney, third base; Ross, catcher; Lyster, pitcher; Supple, short stop; Finn, left field; Middleton, centre field; Bethfuss, right field. Ross and Mooney are the only two new players.

It is now an assured fact that Lindsman, formerly of the Hoboken team, will be given a trial by Manager McGraw on the southern training trip. The draft by New York practically ties him up and in case he plays with any other club without the premission of the Giants, he will be placed under the ban as the Hoboken club was last year. In Lindeman's place a strong pitcher has been secured, one equally as good, but for reasons his name cannot be announced at present.

Consideration of the other applications will be taken up at the regular March meeting.

Dressed as Babies.

A new feature in parties was introduced by Miss Elsie Smith, of Westervelt avenue, last night, at a masquerade in which the guests were dressed as babies. There were about twenty present. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and dancing, and refreshments were served during the latter part of the evening.

Miss Rodman's home was attractively decorated for the occasion, and presented a pleasant appearance, while the many guests came and went during the afternoon. Popular Vaudeville Tonight.

One thing is quite certain—Miss Jessie Millward is a capital actress. She has to be that, of course, because she is the particular stellar attraction of the company which appears at the Casino this afternoon and evening. Miss Millward appears as the "masked lady" in the drama called "The Queen's Messenger." The sketch is intensely interesting, and easily excites the closest attention of the audience. The bill also includes George and Harrington, bar exploits; Charlie Duncan, singing comedian; Miss Leah Russell, Yiddish soubrette; Miss Mabelle Adams, violinist; Frank Kennedy, black face comedian; moving pictures, and the Tee Zarrow Trio, comedy cyclists.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher, of Dover, formerly residents of this city, are visiting Mrs. Fisher's sister, Mrs. John DeNise, of West Front street.

HORSE SHOW A CERTAINTY

Committee Decides to Hold One Early in June.

DATES NOT FIXED

Those Interested Perfect Permanent Organization and Elect Officers.

Plainfield will have its second annual horse show this year. This was decided upon at the first meeting of the executive committee of last year's show, held at the home of Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, on Saturday night. Nearly the entire committee was present and much enthusiasm was shown in the coming show. Among the first things considered was the perfection of an organization and this was done by electing Lewis E. Waring president and chairman of the executive committee, Dr. M. O'M. Knott secretary and J. Herbert Case treasurer.

Matters of a preliminary character were discussed and it was decided to have the show early in June, possibly the 9th and 10th. It was learned that Wilmington, early in the year, had asked the National Horse Show Association for these dates, and if so, the Plainfield show will be held on last year's dates, June 16 and 17. The committee does not want to conflict with the dates of other shows where there is a possibility of securing good horses for the local exhibition. By not conflicting with Wilmington it will be possible to secure some of the horses exhibited there for the show here, as it will be an easy matter for the owners to stop off en route to New York and other points in the east.

While the first show was pronounced a success and a considerable sum of money made, the committee proposes to make the second exhibition larger and better than the first. Already promises have been secured from owners of thoroughbred stock that they will exhibit in Plainfield and some of the best known horses in the country will be brought here. It is also proposed to have some running and jumping events and other attractions, with suitable prizes. The committee of judges will comprise men well-known in the horse world and there will be plenty of good music both days of the exhibition.

W. S. Blitz, who has met with so much success in his management of horse shows, has been re-engaged for this year and he will take full charge under the direction of the executive committee.

When the meeting adjourned Saturday night it did so subject to the call of the president and another meeting will be held within the next two weeks. In the meantime Mr. Waring will confer with the National Horse Show Association so as to fix a date that will not clash with any other show in this part of the country. The committee would like to secure dates following the Philadelphia Horse Show for then many horses at that show can be secured for Plainfield.

Other committees will be appointed to look after details in connection with the affair and it is likely that other names will be added to the executive committee. Those present at Saturday night's meeting included Lewis E. Waring, O. T. Waring, Charles J. Fisk, Francis DeLacy Hyde, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., Dr. M. O'M. Knott, William J. Buttfield, J. Wesley Johnson, George A. Beaton, Robert A. Fairbairn and Henry Talmadge, 3d.

Will Compile Factory Statistics.

For the purpose of collecting valuable information and statistics regarding State manufactures, special agents have been appointed to do this work under the direction of the Census Bureau. Harry B. MacDonald, of this city, has been appointed as one of these agents. It is believed that the whole State can be covered in three months. The statistics will comprise everything of value regarding the manufacturing industries of New Jersey. Benjamin J. Crosby has been appointed for Westfield.

The Mayor's Office?

The mayor of Plainfield says he often visits saloons to meet acquaintances and discuss business with them. The citizens of Plainfield should provide the mayor with an office and require him to use it when he discusses public business. Business and the things that are for sale in saloons do not mix well.—Trenton State Gazette.

REV. PHIL A. PARSONS TALKS ON THE ELECT

URGES CONGREGATION TO SEEK SPIRITUAL LIFE.

"Who Are the Elect?" was the subject of an interesting discourse delivered by Rev. Phil A. Parsons at the Christian church, last night. He took his text from Psalms 24-3:5. The preacher emphasized the words of Scripture that those who have clean hands and a pure heart and have not lifted up their soul to vanity, nor sworn deceitfully, shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation.

Mr. Parsons spoke of the necessity of always having a pure heart and clean hands and of always being ready when the Lord shall call. He related a pathetic incident where a man had accumulated a considerable fortune and he had declared that he would now take his ease for the rest of his life. Within a short time afterward word was received that he had died, leaving his fortune and everything else behind him. Mr. Parsons then urged that his hearers not lay up for themselves treasures on earth, but to prepare for a Heavenly home.

LEAL'S OUTCLASSED IN INTERSCHOLASTIC GAMES

FAIL TO GET A PLACE AT BARNARD SCHOOL ANNUAL MEET.

Leal's School was thoroughly outclassed in the annual Barnard School interscholastic games, held at the Eighth Regiment armory, Saturday afternoon, which were won by St. Paul School, with DeWitt Clinton a close second. Against such competitors, which made almost collegiate records, the local school had no show, and not a point was made. The meet, which is held at the armory every year, is open to all the prep. schools, academies and high schools in New York and New Jersey, and brings together a husky lot of athletes.

For the first time in over five years, the Leal's School track team has been represented at a metropolitan interscholastic meet, and the result was far from encouraging. The points in the contest were for St. Paul, 28; De Witt Clinton, 25; Hill School, 12. Among those in the local school who competed were Jewett, high jump; Lawrence, 50 yard, jr., and 60 yard novice; Manning, 600 yard run; Daniels, 60 yard sr., and 220 yard dash, sr.; Glenney, 50 yard novice, 600 yard run and one mile, novice; Heeley, 300 yard run.

Abandon County Road.

In the county courts at Somerville on Friday, it was decided to abandon the road running from the borough of Bound Brook to the Chimney Rock bridge. This is along the Middle brook, which in times of high water makes it impassable. Samuel W. Davenport and William B. Sharp, of Bridgewater; Peter P. VanPelt and William B. Wood, of Branchburg and Jacob O. Gulick and Abram V. Gulick, of Hillsborough, surveyors of highways, were appointed to assess damages. They will meet at the County Hotel, Somerville, March 16, for that purpose.

Funeral of Mrs. Ayers.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary H. Ayers, who died on Friday in her seventy-first year, was held from the home of her step-daughter, Mrs. Sarah Robinson, on East Front street, yesterday afternoon. It was largely attended. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. The pall bearers were Sandford Robinson and Mr. Atkinson, of this city, and Uel and Charles Freeman, of Rahway, brothers of the dead woman. The burial was at Evergreen cemetery.

Public Hearing on Franchise Act.

Those who are interested in the bill introduced in the Legislature which provides for the limiting of franchises to twenty five years, are asked to attend a public hearing to be held at Trenton at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that several members of the Board of Trade will attend and possibly some of the city officials.

C. F. Krewson Brings Suit Against a N. Y. Police Capt.

STORY OF A RAID

Plainfielder Believes He Was Injured by Alleged False Arrest—Captured in "Pool" Room?

Claiming that he was falsely arrested, Charles F. Krewson, proprietor of the billiard parlors on West Front street, has brought suit for $10,000 damages against Acting Captain Bourke, of the Sixteenth police precinct, New York. The papers were filed Saturday by the plaintiff's counsel, Lewis H. Nichols, of 256 Broadway, and the defendant has twenty days in which to make answer to the charges.

Captain Bourke was recently placed in the Mercer street district and his anxiety to make an impression on his superiors is what led to the trouble. He was particularly set against pool rooms and acting under his instructions his men were constantly making raids. One of the places picked out by him was a saloon near Greene and Third streets and on the afternoon of January 24 he decided to descend upon it, having information that a "game" was in progress in a rear room.

With a precinct detective, Bourke went to the saloon and on the first floor broke in the door of a room which, the Captain says, looked to him just like a real busy pool room. Inside he says he found two telegraph instruments, a big sheet of paper with figures on it and a crowd of men. Underhill grabbed at the latter and catching several took them to the station house.

Among the prisoners was one who gave his name as Charles F. Krewson, of Plainfield. He, with the others, was arraigned before Magistrate Crane but was discharged for lack of evidence.

This is the version of the affair as given by Captain Bourke, yesterday. Krewson was seen by a Daily Press reporter this morning, and while admitting that he was the plaintiff in the case, declined to discuss the matter, referring his interrogator to his counsel. He did say, however, that the story as told by Captain Bourke is false in several respects and that he was not in the saloon when the raid was made. He said he would have no difficulty in proving his side of the case when it came to trial.

At the present time Bourke is enmeshed in another case through his zealousness and the impression prevails in New York police circles that he has been a little too industrious in a wrong direction.

COURT HOUSE COMMITTEE INSPECTS PRESENT BLDG.

VISITED OLD STRUCTURE AT SOMERVILLE ON SATURDAY.

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders has taken further action in regard to building a new Court House at Somerville. The matter of appointing a committee to have charge of the erection of a suitable structure was left to the discretion of the Director. He has named Richard W. Heagland, the member from Hillsborough; Thomas E. Gibson, of Franklin and William J. Logan, of Bridgewater.

The committee met on Saturday afternoon and thoroughly inspected the old building, and in the near future will be ready to consider plans.

The regular meeting of the Board will be held in the Court House Tuesday, March 14.

Miss Millward Well Received.

A good house greeted Miss Jessie Millward at the Casino Saturday night, in her one act drama "A Queen's Messenger," which marked the inauguration of a new policy by the management of the local opera house to introduce in this city first class theatrical companies. Miss Millward was supported by Percy Herbert, a talented actor, who took the part of the English soldier in J. Hartley Manners' fascinating sketch. A high class vaudeville company provided the remainder of the bill.

Death Benefit Paid.

Regent R. H. Lowry and Treasurer D. W. Littell, of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, have paid to the widow of Charles J. Feytell, formerly of Plainfield, $3,000. Eleven days elapsed between the time of death and payment of the claim.

DINNER IN HONOR OF "ARCH" HACQUER

COURIER-NEWS STAFF'S PLEASANT AFFAIR.

Laying down their pads and pencils and abandoning the relentless quest for current events for the time being, twenty newspapermen from this city and other places, gathered about the banquet table in the Hotel Kensington, Saturday night, to bid formal farewell to Archibald Hacquer, who recently graduated from the local field to the editorial staff of the Newark Advertiser. The affair was arranged by employes of the Courier-News but attaches of contemporaries joined in the festive occasion and it proved one of the most enjoyable of its kind ever given in the city. It began at 8:30 and speeded along for several care-free hours.

James E. Martine, the "farmer orator" and friend of the newspapermen because of his personality and ability to furnish "copy," presided at the head of the table and acted as toastmaster in his own unrivalled way. The guest of honor was on his right and Councilman William S. Bullock, engaged in newspaper work in New York, sat to the left. Others who divided the time between bidding Hacquer farewell and asking what came next on the menu were John J. McGowan, city editor of the Elizabeth Daily Journal, and James McMasters, of the same staff; Allen E. Beals, of the Elizabeth Times; Charles B. Morse, of Compressed Air, of New York; John J. Gaffney, of the Newark Evening News; Thomas Hanna, of the Elizabeth Star of Hope; Thomas M. Muir, of The Daily Press; Charles H. Frost, William W. St. John, Millard F. Elderton, George E. Firstbrook, Robert Heffman, George Ballentyne, William Morrison, Frank Jones, Harry Stimpson and William Dunn, of the Courier-News. Others who had been invited and were unable to attend sent regrets by telegram-night press rate.

All responded to toasts and the happy gathering of men who are wont to grow cynical from getting at the heart of people and things, passed many quips and quibbles at each other's expense as only pencil pushers can. No one was spared, not even the disciple of Bryanism, who had the pleasure of seeing himself as others see him when John McGowan reproduced his pet speech attacking the trusts. Wits sharpened by daily contact with all classes of people pitted themselves against others in wordy combat for the benefit of the whole and for a time the affair resembled New York's famous Amen Corner dinner.

Through it all genuine regret was expressed at Mr. Hacquer's leaving while hearty well wishes for his future success were unanimously extended. As a token of their esteem he was presented with a woolly dog to take the place of "Teddies," the local newspaper canine whom he harbored but who refused to migrate to Essex county with him. The presentation was made by Mr. Martine and the surprised recipient responded by dealing out verbal roses that carried figurative thorns, but in the end everyone sang, "Auld Lang Syne" as though a love feast had just terminated.

The menu card were novel affairs in the form of a newspaper "Extra" issued at 8:30 and containing a few gentle knocks edited by George E. Firstbrook and "Teddies." Each guest was also presented with a souvenir of the occasion in the form of a linotype slug containing his name and having a new penny cast in the lead.

The affair was arranged by M. F. Elderton, George E. Firstbrook, W. W. St. John and Charles H. Frost.

A Patriotic Service.

The members of Hope chapel's Sunday-school held a patriotic service, yesterday afternoon, as being appropriate to Washington's birthday. A missionary address was given by Miss Grace Petrie, who has worked among the western Indians and other remarks were made by Superintendent H. C. Squires, Rev. L. R. Howard, G. H. Condict and G. E. Simons.

J. B. Dumont Property Sold.

Charles Detweiler, of Jersey City, has purchased the handsome residence at Watchung avenue and West Seventh street from John B. Dumont. He will be married in April to Miss Hassell, daughter of James A. Hassell, of West Seventh street. Mr. Detweiler, is an architect.

LIQUOR LICENSES TONIGHT

Common Council Will Probably Turn Down J. J. Goff.

OTHER REMONSTRANCES

Neighboring Business Men to Protest Against Shantz's New Location.

The adjourned meeting of the Common Council to be held tonight will be of unusual importance as the liquor license applications will be acted upon. The licenses now in force expire on Wednesday and if they are to be renewed the applications must be granted before that date. It is expected that there will be a strong protest against the granting of a license to John J. Goff for his hotel on West Front street, below Clinton avenue, as several petitions have been in circulation during the past few weeks. There is a feeling that the application will be denied, as it is reasonably sure the necessary number of votes can be obtained to turn it down.

Another application of interest is that of Charles Schantz, who wants to remove his place in Park avenue to 136 Park avenue. A remonstrance has been drafted by William H. Coddington and presented to the police committee against the licensing of a place at 136 Park avenue. The signers to this remonstrance include these interested property owners: John Cory, Mrs. Theodore J. Pruden, Joseph B. Coward, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., Charles W. McCutcheon, William R. Coddington, B. J. Schreiner, William Feiring, the Misses Gosline, S. H. Schleif, H. E. Gayle Hardware Company, Charles K. Vail, J. Hervey Deane and A. Willett & Son.

In addition, B. J. Schreiner, the druggist, has made a personal remonstrance against locating a saloon near his store. The main point of contention is that there is no need for a saloon on Park avenue, that within a short distance of the place proposed to be licensed there are a number of drinking places, sufficient to satisfy the demands of all persons wanting liquor. Another point is that property interests will be affected by the saloon.

The police committee will meet at the Common Council at 7 o'clock tonight to receive petitions and remonstrances against the granting of a license to Charles Schantz for the place proposed, and any other petitions on the license question. They will be considered prior to the time for taking action on the applications. It is also understood that the Common Council is not disposed to grant a license to John Shea for a place on West Third street for the reason that the present number of licensed places is considered sufficient.

REV. C. H. SCHNEEGAS ANNOUNCES ACCEPTANCE

SUCCEEDS REV. JOHN JUSTIN AS GERMAN REFORMED'S PASTOR.

It was announced to the congregation of the German Reformed church yesterday, that Rev. C. H. Schneegas, of Stapleton, S. I., had accepted the call to become its pastor and enter upon his new duties at once. He preached yesterday as he has been occupying the pulpit for some time in the absence of a regular pastor, Rev. John Justin having resigned nearly a year ago. The church trustees are now securing a home for the new incumbent, the regular parsonage having been rented.

Rev. Mr. Schneegas is but thirty-six years old and is an able preacher. He is married and has three children, his family now being at Stapleton. He has a faculty of making friends and under his charge the German Reformed church will undoubtedly enter upon a very prosperous period.

Renovating First National Bank.

The work of redecorating and painting the interior of the First National Bank building was started Saturday afternoon after banking hours, and was continued a day yesterday with a force of seven men. Woolston & Buckle, of North avenue, have the contract and the work will probably be completed within a few days. The whole interior is to be painted and redecorated.

CO. K MADE ABOUT $750 AT ITS BIG FAIR

OVER 700 PEOPLE ATTENDED ON THE CLOSING NIGHT.

With fully 700 people crowding the armory, Company K's two weeks' highly successful fair was brought to a close, Saturday night. The attendance was larger than at any time during the twelve nights it was conducted and broke all previous records for local affairs of this kind. The dancing floor was fully occupied all the time but despite conditions the young people had a thoroughly good time.

The different booths were liberally patronized and the receipts from this end were also heavy. Those in charge of the finances estimate the net profit to the company from the fair will reach $750. It was originally intended to spend the greater part of it in going to Washington but much of the sum is needed for general armory expenses.

The company feels highly elated over its success and within a short time will tender a reception to the committees and the young women assistants who brought it about.

WM. NEWCORN HONORED AT CONVENTION OF RED MEN

CHAIRMAN OF RECEPTION COMMITTEE TO U.S. REPRESENTATIVES OF ORDER.

At the recent convention of the Great Council, Improved Order of Red Men, which was concluded at Trenton Friday evening, William Newcorn, of this city, was appointed chairman of the committee to entertain the representatives of the Great Council of the United States. These representatives were Great Junior Sagamore John W. Cherry, of Virginia; Past Great Incohonee James Parsons, of Pennsylvania, and Past Great Sachem John Buck, of Pennsylvania.

The reports at the conference showed that an increase of 2,300 was made in the enrollment, which brings the total enrollment up to 25,583. $150,000 has been expended in relief funds, and the total amount now invested in the tribes is $548,000.

There were in all 400 representatives at the conference, over which William Newcorn presided at the first meeting. Other important business of general interest was transacted, the only item directly effecting the local tribes being the appointment of Past Sachem Price, of Westfield, is deputy of the tribes in the vicinity, which includes Wetumpkah and Miantonomo. These tribes were represented at the meeting by Charles L. Holstein and Michael Armstrong.

DUNELLENITES JUGGED.

Journeyed Into Town Looking for Trouble and Got It in Large Chunks.

Filled with something stronger than Netherwood water, Walter VanFleet and his son Charles, of Dunellen, perked their eye along West Front street, Saturday night, looking for trouble. They found it in the form of Patrolman Overbaugh and Patrol Driver O'German, who placed them under arrest after giving them all the warning the law allows. Sire and son objected to the proceeding and it required a few gentle reminders from the officers' night sticks to overcome their scruples against a trip cellward.

During the night they came to their senses and were released by Judge Runyon on their own recognizance to appear for trial tomorrow night.

Talk to Endeavorers.

Mrs. E. J. Olsen, of East Second street, gave an interesting talk before the Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Presbyterian church, last night, telling of the work at Dorien Institute, South Carolina, where Miss Gertrude Conover, of this city, is engaged in mission work.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Andrew S. Hoff, of West Second street, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Saturday while attending a horse sale at Somerville. He was brought to Plainfield on the train and removed to his home in a carriage. Today he is slightly improved.

'PLAINS ON THE DIAMOND

Village to be Represented by Strong Aggregation.

COMBINATION PLAN

Aeolian Team Likely to Fuse With Scotch Plains—The Lineup Announced.

Scotch Plains has a prospect of being represented upon the ball diamond this season with one of the strongest teams the town has ever fostered. Plans for resuming the sport, which until last season, was so popular at the 'Plains, are only in their infancy, but the prospects are quite encouraging. A combination of the local fans and the Aeolian team is being talked of and oversures have been made to the "organ" players to land the team as the 'Plains. The union of the two forces, it is believed, would give one of the strongest associations in this part of the State, and would be of mutual benefit to both places.

Scotch Plains has always been noted as a strong baseball town and for several years supported one of the best of teams, but bickering and strife between the club members allowed interest to die out, and last season the club only played the game until the treasury balance of the previous year was spent. With the disbanding of the team the local fans were obliged to go elsewhere for their usual Saturday and holiday games. This soon became tiresome and the desire for another local team began to manifest itself, but as it costs money to start such a project, no action has been taken, although the interest in the game has remained and only needed a little fanning to revive itself.

On the Aeolian side, is a strong team that has been playing fast ball for several seasons, but the grade of baseball furnished does not meet with the support of the Garwood residents that it should, for this reason Manager Lentz was obliged to play many of his games away from home last season. During the fall plans were made to locate the team at Cranford the coming season, but for some reason the plan never assumed definite shape and the "organ makers," are to a certain extent homeless, with a strong team organized and a schedule of games with some of the fastest teams already arranged.

The season will open with the Trenton Y. M. C. A. team in April. The local fans believe, with this combination of interest, an Aeolian-'Plains team would be a success and the season would be a most successful one, as it would mean a revival of the rivalry of two years ago between Westfield, Garwood, Plainfield and the 'Plains.

The lineup of Manager Lentz's team is: Maurer, p; Cooney, c; Heffman, 1b; Flynn, 2b; Duke, ss; Gray, 3b; Alberts, lf; Drew, rf and change pitcher. Center field is yet open but several good men are being considered and this part of the field will be covered by a good man.

To Present "Fire Dance."

For the first time in this city, the fire dance will be executed at the Casino on March 3, as a feature of the production of David Garrick by local talent. Miss May Fuller will perform the dance. The requirements of a plate glass floor, and mirrors made it impossible to present the dance here in former years, but since the remodeling of the building it has been made adequate for the performance of the fire dance. An electrical contrivance under the glass floor causes the remarkable fire effect, and the exquisite color changes in the flowing robe, which comprises 100 yards of cloth.

Large Order for New Engines.

The New Jersey Central and Reading Railroad Companies have placed an order with the Baldwin Locomotive Works for forty locomotives for freight and passenger traffic, according to the railroad editor of the Newark Daily Advertiser. The new rolling stock will represent an expenditure of nearly $500,000.

Dog Attacks Telephone Man.

James Gannon, an employe at the local telephone exchange, was attacked by a dog in a Stelle avenue residence last week and had his right hand badly torn by the animal's teeth. The wounds were cauterized by Dr. Hedges but he is still unable to return to work.

John Doughty in Skating Contest.

Among the eight competitors for the figure skating championship in the contest of the National Amateur Skating Association held at St. Nicholas Rink, New York, is John Doughty, of this city.

COMPILING DIRECTORY OF JERSEY INDUSTRIES

BUREAU OF STATISTICS WILL SET FORTH THE RESOURCES AND ADVANTAGES.

The State bureau of statistics is engaged in making ready for publication at an early day a new and enlarged edition of the "Industrial Directory of New Jersey," revised and brought up to date. The first edition was published in 1901 and was the only work of the kind ever issued by any State in the union.

The statistics for the new book are being gathered from every factory in the State, and special circulars are being sent to all postmasters in New Jersey, asking for special information about every village, town and city. The aim is to make the work of practical value to the State by bringing to notice at home and abroad the many advantages offered by its hundreds of communities for manufacturing, mercantile, professional and residential purposes.

The new work will include all the features of the old in an improved form, besides which its scope will be greatly enlarged, so that it will be twice the size of the former issue.

The departments to be added will give full information of every community in the State in regard to the schools, churches, fire protection, the price of vacant lands and in agricultural communities the agricultural products. A circular being sent out by the bureau asking for information for the books says: "We particularly desire to have it complete so that absolutely every species of article or commodity produced by a New Jersey manufacturer, together with the name and location, may be found properly classified. The directory will be widely circulated."

JOURNALISTIC OPINION.

Almost Too Hot to Print.

We were tempted to omit the proceedings of the City Council from the paper last evening. The personalities that were indulged in at that meeting did not sound well at the time and did not look well in print, but the readers of The Journal have depended upon this paper to give them verbatim reports, and while having no desire to injure or offend the feelings of any man, we could not withhold from our readers the record of our Council proceedings.—Asbury Park Journal.

SNAP SHOTS.

Captain Humphries, of West Point, who was the guest of Miss Waring at a dinner party given by her on Wednesday night, and who later attended the assembly dance at the Casino, had a lively experience at the military academy before coming to Plainfield. Wednesday morning there was a fierce fight between two thoroughbred bull dogs, one of which belongs to the captain. Fearing that the scrap would terminate disastrously for his pup he made an effort to seperate the dogs, with the result that one planted his teeth in the captain's left hand deep enough to draw blood. Although the wound was promptly cauterized, it left his hand in a very sore and irritated condition, besides causing him great inconvenience.

Great attention is being paid at this time to the motive power department of the Reading Railway, which includes the Central Railroad of New Jersey. This company has just placed an order with the Baldwin Locomotive Works, of Philadelphia, for forty locomotives, all of which are to be built and delivered before July. This is one of the largest orders placed by the Reading in years, and calls for twenty-six heavy freight locomotives, four fast freight ones and ten for switching purposes. The order involves an expenditure of between $500,000 and $600,000. The Reading and Central Railroad of New Jersey have also placed an order each with the Pullman Company for six cafe cars, which will be used in the Royal Blue Line service between Jersey City and Philadelphia on the hourly fast express service. Four of these will be built for the Reading and two for the Central.

The subject of establishing building lines in the business part of the city has given rise to the question as to what can be done with buildings that now extend far outside of the proposed lines. It is said that the Common Council can condemn the property and have commissioners appointed to assess benefits and damages and thus cause the buildings to be put back on the line. Just now there are several instances where buildings will interfere with building lines to be established and it is possible that the Common Council may take advantage of its powers in this direction. At the March meeting of the Common Council it is likely that an ordinance will be introduced calling for the widening of Park avenue between Second street and the railroad bridge on the south side, in accordance with a petition from the Plainfield Trust Company, C. W. McCutchen and Boice, Runyon & Co., owners of property on that side of Park avenue. Other ordinances establishing building lines will also be adopted on final reading. There has been considerable adverse comment regarding the line of buildings on West Front street, between Park and Madison avenues, it being the expressed wish of those interested in the business property that some method could be devised to straighten these buildings and thus give the street a far better appearance.

The Daily Trade Record, devoted exclusively to textile news service and recognized as one of authority, has this to say about Henry Baldwin Drake, of Duer street: "From reports it would seem evident that in Department 2, Division B, the Weybosset cloths styled by H. B. Drake have thus far outsold their competitors in this division. Of course no official confirmation of this is obtainable. Among the most successful cloths from this mill, from reports we have collected, are the Weybosset 6000 range, 18 oz., through and through wool and worsted at $1.37½; 6600 range, 20 oz., through and through all worsted mixture and twist, at $2, and 6700 range, satin back worsted, with fine face, 20 oz., at $2.22½. We are led to comment as above because Mr. Drake is a very young man. He is a graduate of the Philadelphia Textile School, and was one of the few mill men to grasp this season that what buyers would want was a through and through cloth. Mr. Drake came with the American Woolen Co. when it was first formed, and it has been through the method of civil service advancement in operation in the American Woolen Co. that Mr. Drake was given the opportunity to prove his ability. The men who stood sponsor for him were none other than Mr. Wood and Mr. Woodhull. Older men in the organization said, when it was proposed to give Mr. Drake the styling of this big mill, that it was too much responsibility to put on such young shoulders, for if he did not succeed it would kill his future chances. His ability and courage have won. Of course his friends are jubilant over his success."

HOT SPRINGS BURNS

Greatest Fire Arkansas Has Ever Experienced.

FIVE DEAD; LARGE AREA LAID WASTE

Water Pressure Failed Brigade—One Hundred Houses Destroyed—Hotel Patrons Victims of Flames. Loss, $1,500,000.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 27.—Fire has swept the southern portion of this city, doing immense damage and causing the known death of five persons. The losses are estimated at $1,500,000. As several persons are reported missing the death list may be increased. The fire was the worst this state has ever experienced and in five hours burned over an area of one square mile. Block after block of residences, business houses, hotels and other buildings was swept away, and the entire town was panic stricken.

The fire department rendered good service until 6 o'clock, when the water pressure gave out. Bucket brigades were then formed, and hundreds of citizens and visitors volunteered their services.

The spring season always attracts a large number of visitors to this resort. The city has been filling up for several weeks, and it is estimated that fully 20,000 strangers are here. The three large hotels, the Arlington, the Eastman and the Park, were not damaged by the fire.

About 100 houses were destroyed. The district between Ouachita avenue and Prospect street was swept clean. More than 2,000 persons are homeless. Fortunately the cold weather has passed and springlike temperature prevails. The streets are filled with merchandise taken from stores in the threatened district.

The bodies of three women and two men were found in the ruins of the Grand Central hotel. The bodies are charred beyond recognition and may never be identified. The register of the hotel was destroyed, and there is no record of the guests at that place.

The firemen made every effort to save the county courthouse and jail, but both were consumed. Many records were burned and twenty prisoners in the jail were rescued with difficulty. The Jewish synagogue, Central Methodist church and the homes of Mayor Belding and Sheriff Williams were among the buildings destroyed.

The passenger station of the Rock Island, although surrounded on all sides by the flames, escaped injury. The Little Rock and Hot Springs Western station is also safe.

When the fire broke out a general alarm was turned in. A high wind was blowing and it soon fanned the flames into a conflagration which swept the wooden buildings in its path as though they were constructed of paper. The guests of the leading hotels were awakened, and many dressed and, securing their valuables in case the fire should turn to the direction of the hotels, joined the throngs in the streets and did what they could in an effort to check the progress of the flames.

To the west of the fire swept district is a wooded park, and this arrested the progress of the fire.

The first estimates of the damage done by the great conflagration were not exaggerated. More than fifty city blocks have been eaten away by the flames, and the most conservative estimates place the loss at a million and a half dollars, while several insurance men may say the figures will reach $2,000,000.

The relief committee has systematized its work to such an extent that no deserving person rendered destitute by the conflagration has suffered for the ordinary comforts of life. Nearly every residence in the city has been thrown open to such persons, and the management of the Oaklawn race track has tendered the use of its grand stand and cottages.

The devastated district will be speedily rebuilt. Property owners are already planning with architects, and in three instances carpenters began work yesterday on temporary structures.

The arrests were made in connection with what the police allege was an extensive conspiracy to defraud the company.

ALWAYS DEFEATED.

Kuropatkin Reports a Repulse at Tsinkhetchin.

TRIED TO HOLD FORTS OF TAITSE

Japanese Pressed Home Bayonet Charges Over Their Own Dead. Loss of Czar's Troops Not Yet Known, but Heavy.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says that General Kuropatkin has reported to the emperor a defeat of the Russians near Mukden, his troops having been driven out of Tsinkhetchin after severe fighting. The general says that the losses are not known, but that there are twelve officers and about 800 men in hospital at Sanlunyu and that the percentage of killed was very heavy.

The commander of the detachment reports acts of bravery by many detached bodies of troops.

General Kuropatkin instances many cases of close fighting and bayonet charges and concludes:

"A battalion of the enemy advanced in the direction of Papin pass, six miles southwest of Sanlunyu, and during the evening the enemy's outposts commenced to approach the passes occupied by us."

A Mukden report says that an action of no mean proportions is in progress on the Russian left flank. The advantage thus far is on the side of the Japanese, though at heavy cost. From advices received from the front it is difficult to say how severe the losses have been or how decisive the reverse and whether the Japanese are likely to attempt to drive in the Russian left much farther. General Kuropatkin evidently has been trying to establish his left flank far in advance to command the crossings of the Taitse river, the operation being a counterpart of General Gripenberg's movement on the right flank to secure the fords of the Hun river preparatory to the breaking up of the ice in the spring. The scene of the operations is fifty miles southeast of Mukden, beyond Da pass, an important defile commanding the road to Fuchau. Both armies occupying apparently impregnable positions on the centers, General Kuropatkin evidently planned to inaugurate widely sweeping operations on both flanks, but the Japanese countered hard.

A Vladivostok dispatch says that the entrance to that harbor is open and that the Russian squadron, which is seaworthy, is apparently taking no risks, but is saving its strength for co-operation with Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron.

A Tokyo dispatch reports that two infantry attacks by the Russians in the neighborhood of Maiton mountain have been repulsed.

A Tsinkhetchin report says that the Japanese attack on Beresneff hill developed into an encounter of the most sanguinary nature. The Japanese, pressing forward a bayonet charge, were received with pyroxylin hand grenades, or were blown up by buried mines, and the Japanese machine guns, which took positions to support the advance, were silenced for a time and beaten back.

The Japanese came on with greater resolution, however, and the Russians finally yielded the hill in the face of greatly superior numbers and a determined series of attacks.

General Sacharoff, chief of staff, reports that when the Japanese attacked and captured the hill after severe fighting they were in superior force and advanced literally over the bodies of their own men.

A Tokyo report says that the German steamer Romulus, bound for Vladivostok with a cargo of Cardiff coal, has been seized by the Japanese.

General Stoessel, late commander of the Russian forces at Port Arthur, and his party have arrived at Moscow. He was met by the governor, nobility, numerous officers and civil officials. Colonel Dimansky made an eulogistic address of welcome, declaring that "your splendid defense of Port Arthur amazed the world and created immortal glory for Russia."

At Kursk station, where the crowd which had assembled was disappointed by the nonstoppage of General Stoessel's train, some students made a hostile demonstration against Colonel General Reiss, late chief of staff at Port Arthur, who traveled direct to St. Petersburg. The incident incensed the crowd, and in a scuffle that ensued three students were beaten by a policeman.

UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

Civil War In the Caucasus and Rioting at Baku.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 27.—All the Russian railways except the Central Asian have been placed under martial law.

In the Caucasus the situation is extremely bad, practically amounting to civil war. In Baku the inhabitants, barricaded in their houses, are petitioning the central authorities at St. Petersburg for relief from the existing condition of affairs.

The government is sending re-enforcements of troops, but while these may be able to stop the reign of terror they will be impotent to start the wheels of industry. Proprietors fear that the oil wells will be utterly ruined if pumping is suspended much longer. Conditions in other towns in the Caucasus are equally desperate.

In Siberia as well as in other parts of the empire the government has granted considerable concessions to railway employees, in some cases according them a reduction of the hours of labor to nine a day. This renders the situation of private employers increasingly difficult, as they claim that it is impossible for them to concede so much.

Americans Want Strong Man.

NEWCHWANG, Feb. 27.—The American consulate at Newchwang is in charge of a local English merchant who is also representing Germany and The Netherlands. In view of American interests in Manchuria local residents regard it as a mistake to have no consul at the only treaty port. A repetition of the Russian raids might at any time bring the fighting to Yinkow at a time when it is felt that a strong man's presence would be necessary.

Fear Police Strike at Warsaw.

WARSAW, Feb. 27.—Every policeman on duty here is accompanied by a soldier. The authorities, fearing a strike by the police, have adopted this precaution so that in the event of an officer leaving his post it will not be unprotected. The police demand $12.50 per month, the same scale that is paid in St. Petersburg. The present pay here is $6 per month. The private coachmen and livery stablemen have struck. The strike of street railway employees continues.

Prince Frederick Goes to Far East.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, who recently returned from a visit to Emperor Nicholas at Tsarskoe-Selo, started last night for Genoa on the way to the far east.

MINE EXPLOSION.

Rescue Party at Bluefield, W. Va., Brought Out Fifteen Dead.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 27.—As a result of an explosion in shaft No. 1 of the United States Coal and Coke company at Wilcoe twenty-three miners are supposed to have lost their lives, and it is possible that the number will exceed this. Fifteen dead bodies have been taken from the shaft.

A large rescuing party is in the mines, and it is barely possible, but not likely, that some of the remaining entombed miners will be rescued alive. The explosion was of terrific force and shattered glass windows a mile distant. Immediately after the shock great numbers of miners, who were off duty, rushed to the shaft to find great clouds of smoke and dust gushing from its mouth.

Mothers, children and other relatives soon were weeping and pleading for the rescue of those dear to them entombed in the mine.

The officials of the mines, including General Manager Reis, were soon on the ground, and the work of rescuing the miners is now being directed by Mr. Reis. The dead miners thus far recovered are all Italians and Hungarians and have not as yet been identified.

The company usually work in this shaft about seventy-five miners.

The United States Coal and Coke company, with principal offices in Pittsburg, is a part of the United States Steel corporation.

The cause of the explosion has not as yet been determined, and since it is hardly probable any of those in the mine will be recovered alive the cause of the explosion may never be known.

G. A. R. Commander Seriously Ill.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 27.—Richard G. A. Donnelly, quartermaster general of New Jersey, is seriously ill at his home here. He is suffering with Bright's disease and heart trouble, and his death may occur at any moment. General Donnelly, who is sixty-four years of age, served with a New Jersey regiment of volunteers in the civil war. He served two terms as mayor of Trenton, was twice elected to the house of assembly, and in 1892 he was chosen commander of the G. A. R. department of New Jersey.

Akron Opera House Burned.

AKRON, O., Feb. 27.—The Grand Opera House, the second oldest playhouse in the city, was destroyed by fire yesterday, entailing a loss of $50,000. The adjoining building, containing the plant and stock of the Commercial Printing company, was damaged to the extent of $15,000. Firemen William Shaughnessy, John J. Jose and John Dorner were caught by a falling wall and injured. Shaughnessy had a leg broken in two places.

Every Member Will Be Subpoenaed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 27.—A conference between County Prosecuting Attorney Charles P. Benedict and Attorney General Charles W. Miller was a final move before the opening of the grand jury investigation of the alleged bribery and corruption in the legislature. Subpoenas, it was announced, will be served on every member of the house to appear before the grand jury.

Heavy Gale on English Coast.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A heavy gale prevailed off the British coasts Saturday and Sunday, resulting in several casualties. A boat put off from Holyhead in response to signals of distress, but was capsized, and five of her crew were drowned. A French ketch was wrecked off the Lizard, and two members of her crew were drowned, the others swimming ashore.

Fire Raging at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—A fire is raging at the Illinois Central railway terminal at Stuyvesant docks. The indications are now that the entire property, including two immense grain elevators, will be destroyed, containing more than 1,000,000 bushels of grain. Hundreds of cars and thousands of dollars' worth of freight already have been destroyed.

NORTH SEA DECISION

Blame Laid on Russia by Paris Commission.

ROJESTVENSKY WAS NOT JUSTIFIED

Decision of Admirals Was Against Czar's Commander—English Fishermen Committed No Hostile Act—Japanese Smiled.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The report of the international commission on the Dogger bank affair, which was read in a sonorous voice by the French delegate, Admiral Fournier, in the state reception room of the ministry of foreign affairs in the presence of a fashionable gathering of 600 persons, many of whom were smartly gowned women, gives satisfaction here, as a practical compromise, in which Russia comes out second best, inasmuch as the commission, in spite of the categorical testimony of Captain Clado and the other Russian officers, finds that there were no torpedo craft in sight when the firing began. The decision says:

ADMIRAL ROJESTVENSKY.

"The delay of the Russian transport Kamshatka following the breakdown of her machinery was perhaps the cause of the incident. The commander of the Kamshatka signaled to Admiral Rojestvensky during the evening that he had been attacked by torpedo boats. The admiral therefore had reason to believe he might be attacked and gave orders for strict vigilance against the possible approach of torpedo boats.

"The majority of the commission considers that Admiral Rojestvensky's orders were not excessive in time of war, particularly under the circumstances, and that he had every reason to consider the situation very alarming."

The commissioners recognize unanimously that the fishing fleet committed no hostile act, and the majority of the commissioners being of the opinion that there were not, either among the fishing boats or in their vicinity, any torpedo boats, the opening of fire by Admiral Rojestvensky was not justified.

The Russian commissioner did not share in the latter opinion.

"The commissioners are glad to recognize unanimously that Admiral Rojestvensky personally did all he could from the beginning to the end to prevent the trawlers from being the object of fire by the Russian squadron.

"The testimony of British witnesses proved that the trawlers carried regulation lights, followed the usual fishing rules and were directed by their commodore by means of conventional rockets.

"The leading divisions of the squadron, including Admiral Voelkersam's, passed the trawlers unsuspectingly. Admiral Rojestvensky's division, the last, noticed green flares, really a fishing signal, which created alarm, and then observed a vessel topping the waves. Admiral Rojestvensky ordered his ships to open fire, on the result of which rests his responsibility.

"The commissioners declare that their views are not of a nature to cast any disrespect upon the military valor or upon the sentiments of humanity of Admiral Rojestvensky and the personnel of his squadron."

The members of the Japanese legation seemed pleased with the report, which they listened to attentively with affable smiles.

Seal Hunters Icebound.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 27.—Three thousand seal hunters to man the steamers of the sealing fleet which is to sail two weeks hence are unable to reach this place owing to the railroads being blockaded by a succession of blizzards and coast navigation being interrupted by ice floes. It will be necessary to send a special steamer to collect the men and bring them here.

Elkins Hurt Playing Squash.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—While playing squash with his brother, William L. Elkins, the eighteen-year-old grandson of the late financier of that name, narrowly escaped losing the sight of the right eye by being struck by the ball. The glasses he wore were broken, and the small particles of the powdered glass were driven into his eye.

Ex-Mayor Cooper Dead.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. — Edward Cooper, a former mayor of New York and a son of Peter Cooper, died suddenly at his home, 12 Washington square north, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered last Sunday morning.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 27, 1905.

Brooklyn minister has found a bone of a Pilgrim father. Jaw bone or backbone?

Religious revival has swept Ocean City, N. J., the mayor, alderman and other officials being converts. Philadelphia paper fears that the movement will spread to that city.

The Sunday edition of the Newark News has been very wisely discontinued and it is announced that the intelligence and skill that was spent on it will be devoted to the regular evening edition, which stands foremost among daily papers of New Jersey. It was quite evident from the appearance of the evening edition recently that a policy of retrenchment was being followed and the natural supposition was that money was being sunk in the Sunday paper, which had to make a hard fight against the New York newspapers. The News is one of the best edited papers in the country and the support heretofore given the Sunday edition should make it all the more valuable to the public.

AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Maude Adams' phenomenally successful engagement at the Empire Theatre has only three weeks longer to run. During this time she will continue to present the two plays, "The Little Minister" and "Op O' Me Thumb," in which she has achieved such distinct triumphs. "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" begins its second crowded month at the Lyceum Theatre. It is the most successful of all Augustus Thomas' plays. Every movement of its performance is filled with fun and besides it furnishes a veritable feast of fine acting, for four leading men and three leading women—all accomplished artists—unite in cleverly presenting its principal characters and making its numerous comic situations exceedingly enjoyable. Francis Wilson begins the seventh week of his great laughing triumph in "Cousin Billy" at the Criterion Theatre. Crowded houses enjoy Mr. Wilson's performances, finding him funnier and frisker than he has ever been before. An evening spent with "Cousin Billy" means unlimited fun and all the laughing that a full set of ribs can hold.

is a fairly large amount of money. How to get it is a question, and how to take care of it after you do get it is another. The way to get it is to save, and deposit a certain sum each month. By allowing the interest to compound semi-annually, the principle is surprisingly increased. We take care of the large and small deposits and pay 3½ per cent. interest.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

After warning for over a month by notices and in the papers, the list of delinquent taxpayers in the borough has been posted, and is a large one. The collector has, according to custom, made all possible attempts to collect the amounts due, but having executed his duty in giving full warning, he has quoted the names of all those who owe the borough for taxes in his recently made-public report. There are over 100 names on the list published, and the sum owed is in the vicinity of $1,200. Nearly $800 in addition is owed for unpaid sidewalk assessments.

Among the considerations which will come up before the Council at the next meeting on March 6, will be a petition recently sent to the Mayor from the Public Service Corporation requesting that it be granted a franchise to extend its gas pipes through the borough. It is not the first consideration which the P. S. C. has given the matter, as it was looked into last summer. It is an important improvement for the borough, however, and will doubtless be given careful consideration.

There is rumor that a manufacturing concern, which puts out a superior grade of metal polish, is to locate in Lincoln. The property formerly owned by Charles Sebring has been secured, and the machinery is being installed. It is expected that business will commence at once.

The members of the fire department at a recent meeting elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, J. M. Apgar; vice president, John Moynihan; secretary, C. H. Dodwell; treasurer, William Wyckoff; chief, C. M. Whyhuskey; foreman, Walter Runyen.

The auditing committee of the Borough Council will be entertained at the home of Collector Day Monday evening. It is an annual custom for the committee to be entertained by the collector, and a supper will be served and a social hour enjoyed.

The Literary Circle will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. George Schenck. Miss Emma Marlow will read the paper, the topic for the meeting being "attention."

The Married Ladies' Card Club met at the home of Mrs. Margaret Dealaman last week. The prizes were won by Mrs. Wilson Frederick and Mrs. Annie Abbott.

Miss Emma Giddis, Robert Giddis, of the borough, and Dr. A. E. Giddis, of Plainfield, have been appointed administrators of the estate of the late Isaac Giddis.

The life insurance benefits from the I. O. F. have been received by the heirs of the late William S. Brokaw and Peter Mehan.

The G. E. Society, of New Market, will meet at the home of Mrs. George Oakey tomorrow night.

Miss Emma Space has returned to her home after a visit with friends in New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gise have been entertaining out-of-town relatives for two weeks.

Mrs. O. M. Mitchell has been entertaining out-of-town relatives for a few days.

Mrs. Charles Ward is confined to her home by illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of Henry Schwalbach, who was killed in the accident at the Dunellen round-house Thursday night, were held this morning at 8 o'clock from his late home on Montague avenue, and at 9:30 from St. Mary's church, Plainfield, where a requiem mass was given for the repose of his soul. Rev. Father Egan had charge of the obsequies, which were attended by many of the neighbors and friends who had known the deceased for a number of years and were saddened by his untimely end. A number of handsome floral pieces bore mute expressions of sympathy for the family from friends. The pall bearers were Edward L. Hand, William Jamison, James Riley, Jacob Sourmilob, Harry Pangborn and Ferdinand Crocker. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Saturday's and Sunday's thaw about ended the excellent sleighing which has been enjoyed for several weeks past, as the roads are beginning to show many bare spots which are some encouragement that spring will eventually come.

The local gun club failed to hold a shoot Saturday afternoon as usual. For some reason the local trap shooters are beginning to lose interest in the club's weekly shoot.

Miss Nancy Wade led the monthly missionary meeting of the Epworth League, held last night at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Jr., has returned from a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Gere, of Brooklyn.

An interesting weekly meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union was held last night in the church parlors.

The Baptist church stage resumed its regular Sunday services trips for the borough residents, yesterday.

Miss Evelyn Buckley, of South avenue, spent Saturday and Sunday with her aunt, Miss Susie Parse.

Rev. G. M. Shett occupied the pulpit of one of Newark's Baptist churches yesterday.

Miss Mary Westcott has been entertaining out-of-town friends over Sunday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

County Superintendent H. B. Willis has issued his regular February letter to the different Boards of Educations of the county, calling their attenion to a number of important school matters. Among other things mentioned is keeping school buildings and grounds in proper order. He also refers to the importance of securing only competent and successful teachers.

The Neighborhood Social Committee gave Mrs. Samuel Dayton a handsome chair for a parting gift, as she will soon move from the neighborhood.

Charles Manning, of Newark, spent Sunday with his father, Samuel Manning, of Piscataway.

Miss Emma Faulk spent Sunday with her friend, Miss May Ayers, of Westervelt.

George Ryno is very ill at his home.

Dr. Charles Squires, of this city, who is on the medical staff at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, is spending a week with his sister-in-law, Mrs. G. Harry Squires at Summerville, Ga., where she is stopping this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Burke, of Ravine road, and their sons, Russel and Clinton Burke, have gone to Chicago, where tomorrow night, Russell Burke will be married to Miss Mary Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney C. Blair, of that place.

Foremost among the social events of the week is the musicale to be given by Miss Hartridge Wednesday evening at the Casino. Several prominent New York artists, Maurice Kaufman, violinist; Ida Abarie, soprano, and Manfred Malkin, pianist, have been engaged for the occasion, which promises to be delightful.

—Mrs. Howard Allegar, of 143 East Second street, has purchased No. 451 West Fourth street, and will take possession Wednesday.

Inspected the Streets.

Theodore D. Wilson, chairman of the Councilmanic street committee, accompanied by Street Commissioner Gavett spent considerable time driving about the city Saturday afternoon and yesterday. The unusual condition caused by a moderation in the weather resulted in the flooding of sidewalks and crosswalks. The street gang was out opening up gutters and making ways of escape for the water. The gang is still engaged in the work.

—The White Label canned goods include spinach, beets, peas and beans. Either one is very acceptable at dinner and Neuman Brothers strongly recommend them.

PANAMA CANAL IN TEN YEARS.

Sea Level Scheme Recommended 150 Feet Wide, 35 Feet Deep.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The first definite engineering plans for the construction of the Panama canal have just been laid before the Isthmian canal commission by the engineering committee, Commissioners Burr, Parsons and Davis.

The principal recommendations are that the committee recommend for adoption a plan for a sea level canal, with a bottom width of 150 feet and a minimum depth of water of 35 feet and with twin tidal locks at Marafiores, whose usable dimensions shall be 1,000 feet long and 100 feet wide, at a total estimated cost of $230,500,000.

It is recommended that the Chagres river be controlled by a dam at Gamboa, built on a crest height of 200 feet, and the waters of the lake thus created disposed of through tunnels.

A sea level canal can be completed within from ten to twelve years from the present time.

These recommendations are the conclusion of a report to the commission prepared in the canal zone based on complete engineering reports on all of the problems involved.

May Reduce Canal Commission.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Conferees appointed on the part of the senate and house to consider the isthmian canal bill have taken no definite action on any of the senate amendments. The conference proceeded far enough to assure the acceptance of all of the senate amendments except that relating to the continuance of the commission. The house bill abolishes the commission, and this was amended by the senate to provide for its retention. Representatives of both houses stood pat at the conference, and no compromise plan was suggested. A movement is on foot, however, looking to an agreement for a reduction of the commission to three members.

MACKAY GOT GOLD RACKET.

Ex-National Champion Defeated Irvin of Tuxedo in Final.

TUXEDO, N. Y., Feb. 27.—The final round for the gold racket championship brought together on the courts here Clarence H. Mackay, ex-amateur national champion of the New York Racket and Tennis club, and I. Townsend Irvin of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racket club, which resulted in an easy victory for Mackay by three straight games.

Irvin reached the final by default, as Erskin Hewitt was unable to play. Irvin played pluckily throughout and stuck to his opponent until the last ace was won. Mackay showed his old form of three years ago, when he defeated all comers.

In addition to a special prize, Mackay by this victory will get a leg on the gold racket presented by Hugo Baring to the club for competition.

Fatal Affray at a Wedding.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—Anna Onaffrey was the central figure in a bloody battle at the Strickler works of the Veteran Coal company in Mount Pleasant township in which two men were killed and six others were stabbed, shot or slashed with knives. John Kopkas, Jr., and Michael Leshow are dead. Of the wounded Tom Polak may die. Anna Onaffrey's refusal to dance with George Lukesz, an unbidden guest at a wedding celebration, started a riot which converted the company house where the dance was held into a slaughter house. Large quantities of beer and whisky had been provided for the entertainment of the guests by the groom.

War Against Election Bribery.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Another gun in the legislative campaign against election bribery will be fired when Minority Leader Palmer will introduce in the assembly three bills and an amendment to the penal code aimed at this practice. Those behind the measures are anxious to have them understood as nonpartisan, for which purpose, it is said, they will be introduced on the senate side by a Republican.

New York Woman Murdered in Italy.

NAPLES, Feb. 27.—Miss Catherine McCready of New York was found murdered in her villa at Caserta yesterday. She was the daughter of the late Dennis McCready of New York, and on the death of her father she and her brother inherited his estate. Miss McCready had lived alone at Caserta for about eight years. The safe in her villa was empty, although it had not been broken open.

Tributes to the Dead in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The memories of three deceased members of the Fifty-eighth congress were subjects of tribute by the house of representatives in a session which occupied that body for nearly three hours. Tributes were paid to the late Representative Mahoney of Illinois, the late Representative Croft of South Carolina and the late Representative Otis of New York.

A Revolt to Depose Castro.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Joseph L. Andara, former judge of the supreme court of Venezuela and later foreign representative of the unsuccessful revolution against President Castro in 1903, has arrived here from Curacao to urge the United States to refrain from interfering in the affairs of Venezuela until a revolution, now being organized, shall have deposed Castro.

LIFE INSURANCE IS VAST.

Assets of Companies in New York State Declared to Exceed Two Billions.

If the assets of all the life insurance companies engaged in business in the United States were distributed equally to all the population of the world, each man, woman and child of every continent and every country, from Africa to Labrador, would receive two dollars each, says a writer in the Era Magazine. There would be two dollars for every human being on the globe. The assets of the life insurance companies of this country—that is, the actual property, real estate, bonds, stocks, etc., which they own—amount in the aggregate to more than $2,000,000,000. The companies doing business in New York state, and these include also practically all of the companies with headquarters in other states—had at the close of 1903, assets, in exact figures, equal in value to $2,226,423,202. Such is the magnitude of the institution of life insurance! If all the adult men in America, of every race and occupation, should contribute simultaneously $100 each toward a fund, that enormous sum would not equal the value of the property owned by the American life insurance companies. More than $500,000 of the money paid to the companies every year by policy holders goes to defray the expense of maintaining a spy system. After all the preliminary precautions have been taken, the medical examination made, the references looked up—after the policy has been granted, detectives are employed to watch policy holders. Your money is paid to employ men to follow you through your daily walks, track you into restaurants, to interview your servants, to use all the other low and contemptible means which these creeping shadowers employ. The spy system of the "combine" is interesting.

UNITED STATES AS A FARM

Whole States Devoted to One Crop and a Vast Domain Still Remains Untilled.

The area of the United States, exclusive of Alaska and insular possessions, is 3,000,000 square miles. Census returns give 650,000 square miles of this as "improved farm" land. An interesting illustration lies in assuming a segregation of the principal farm products within specific areas of familiar boundary. In the following arrangement the areas, if not absolutely accurate in all cases, are sufficiently close to give a good idea of what the national farm would look like if it were parceled out in such a manner. Thus planted, Maine and New Hampshire would be the oat field. Rhode Island, with 300 square miles from eastern Connecticut, would be the tobacco plantation. The rest of Connecticut, with Long Island, would be the potato patch. Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Delaware would form a vast wheat field. Virginia and West Virginia would be a hay field. Maryland would be planted in rye, barley and buckwheat. North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia would be covered with corn. There is a choice between Texas or a combination of Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin as the pasture and grazing land and for the cultivation of minor crops and garden truck. With this vast area thus occupied, is left nearly three-quarters of the national domain in the form of unimproved land and forest. It is the biggest farm in the world and an empire is left for settlement and cultivation.

STORY OF SIAMESE TWINS.

Barnum, the Circus Man, Asked Peculiar Questions by a Visitor from the Country.

The late P. T. Barnum was a keen student of human nature, as well as a natural humorist, and nothing which set forth human traits that were odd or amusing escaped his attention. He was fond of telling stories of incidents that brought out features in human character, and one of them that delighted him immensely was connected with the Siamese twins. When he was exhibiting those oriental freaks the press of the country made them widely known and they became soon one of his best drawing cards. One day there came to see them a back-country rustic, who was perfectly absorbed in them, and inquisitive enough in regard to them to require almost a bureau of information to answer his innumerable questions. Mr. Barnum happened to be the one questioned, and he was asked their age, occupation, original home, whether they were single or married, their weight and stature and their religious belief. Nothing at any rate, was too trivial or irrelevant for the rustic to think of, all of which interested the showman intensely. Finally the bucolic visitor started slowly, but reluctantly, to leave; but after walking away a few steps he returned and said with the most solemn simplicity: "They are brothers, I presume?"

Very Valuable Raiment.

The women of savage tribes have not infrequently a wardrobe consisting of furs which would be worth from $5,000 to $10,000. Grundeman, the explorer, relates how one fair Greenlander wore a dress of sealskin with a hood of that costly fur, the silver fox. The garment was lined with fur of the young seal otter, and there was a fringe of wolverine tails. About $600 is probably the average worth of the dress of Indian women on the Columbia and Fraser rivers.

Spoils of War.

Among the spoils of war taken at Liaoyang was a pet pigeon belonging to Gen. Kuropatkin. It is now in Tokio.

AIDS TO GOOD LOOKS.

Brains and Graceful Hands Add to Woman's Attractiveness.

Amelie of Portugal, the handsomest queen in Europe, declares no woman can be beautiful who is not also intellectual. Every woman not a born idiot has brains enough to cultivate and develop if she will look after them. Queen Amelie herself has been so impressed with the necessity of intellectuality for a woman who would be attractive that she has studied law, medicine and art. She takes a live interest in all that pertains to the welfare of her subjects, and they love her enthusiastically.

Amelie of Portugal is a skilled athlete. She swims, rides horseback, cycles and takes long walks. She bids women who would make themselves comely to live outdoors as much as possible. She says: "Breathe outdoor air. Live in it. Revel in it." To the end that pure air may circulate freely through houses, Queen Amelie bids women throw away their portieres and bric-a-brac. "Don't have useless trifles around," she says, which is advice most excellent. Nothing is more conducive to first class lung trouble than dust catching bric-a-brac and the air hindering, stuffy, stifling draperies and curtains in some women's houses. It makes one feel crawly and sneezy to look at them.

"Away with such trash!" says lovely Queen Amelie.

To Limber the Hands.

Women who do much housework often find their hands and fingers becoming stiff and therefore awkward. Perfectly limber wrists and fingers can never look awkward, and their owner will never be at a loss what to do with her hands.

Certain simple exercises, in the power of the busiest woman to perform, will prevent the stiffening process and even stop it after it has set in. The first is that movement of the arms which sets free the shoulder muscles. Stand erect, with the muscles of your hands, arms and shoulders as limber as possible. Then raise your arms, palms upward, to a level with your shoulders and stretch them as far as you can outward on each side of you. Think of yourself as trying to tear your arms and shoulders away from your backbone, and you will get the idea. Do this rapidly a dozen times at least once a day.

Delsartean exercises of the kind called "devitalizing" will free the hands, wrists and arms below the elbow. For these, stand erect as before. Hold your hands up in front of you like the fore legs of a kangaroo. Now, by an effort of your will pull all sensation and consciousness out of fingers, hands and fore arms, and let them be as lifeless and limber as if you did not possess them. Then, using only the muscles from the elbow downward, shake your hands and fingers violently, as though you were trying to shake your fingers loose, and let them fly off into the air. This is done with a wrist motion—forward, back and from side to side, revolving the fore arm for the purpose.

Such shaking, practiced once a day for a few minutes and persisted in, will make lithe and nimble and graceful any woman's fingers and wrists. Another good finger exercise is to stretch the arms out right and left from the shoulders as far as possible, then spread the fingers as far apart as you can at the knuckles, in and out, in and out, till they fairly ache. This promotes circulation. A lady who does all her housework and attends to a small dairy besides keeps her fingers limber with this simple exercise once or twice a day.

Care of the Hands.

No matter how rough the work a woman does, it is possible to keep her hands nice looking. Wherever she can she should wear gloves while doing the roughest and heaviest work.

One of the main points in taking care of the hands is to keep them clean. When a manicure operates on the nails the first thing she does is to soak the fingers in warm soapy water. This is an excellent plan unless the hands are already shriveled and rough from having been working in water. But in every case a brisk rub with a hand scrubbing brush is one of the best means of making clean, pretty hands. Just a small scrubbing brush that usually costs 5 cents is as good a finger and nail brush as is made, and it can be kept handy in the kitchen.

After the nails are scrubbed and the hands are thoroughly clean and dry a lotion of some kind should be rubbed into them. For this there is nothing better than the old standard one of strained lemon juice and pure glycerin mixed in equal parts. Used at night, it will keep the hands smooth and white.

MARY ELIZABETH HART.

Notable Women

The Feminine Sex Still Talks, but Also Acts

That original and independent thinker, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, has recently sailed for Europe on a lecture tour. One of Mrs. Gilman's odd ideas is that not every mother is wise enough or has time enough to bring up her children in the best manner. For this reason Mrs. Gilman thinks it would be in the interest of the race if public nurseries and homes were provided where mothers might have their little ones taken care of in the most scientific way. The public nursery should be presided over by trained nurses and sanitarians and governesses, who would give the infants loving, likewise hygienic, care. The parents of the children meantime may have access to them at any time. When Mrs. Gilman promulgated her plan she was met by a shower of imprecations. It was said she would break up the family, that foundation stone itself of civilization. Now, however, comes a move looking toward putting into practice the very suggestions of Mrs. Gilman. Moreover, it emanates from the inner circle of London social high life. In that city has been started a children's hotel and nursery, where rich people's little ones may be taken care of permanently and at the top notch of style and tenderness, the parents paying liberally for the same. In London at least there must have been a demand for such an infant hostelry or it would not have been established.

CHARLOTTE PERKINS GILMAN.

Alice Moore McComas.

That plucky and untiring newspaper woman, Mrs. Alice Moore McComas, is in faraway South Africa on a tour with her gifted daughter, Carroll—"Carroll the Whistler." The young lady, who whistles like a mocking bird, is likewise an actress and a trained dancer. An advantageous offer to exhibit her accomplishments on the stage in Europe was made to Miss Carroll, whereupon Mrs. McComas gave up for the time her own aims to accompany her daughter on the tour. It has extended beyond what was at first expected, and Carroll and her mother are now in South Africa, Carroll meeting with great success. A note was recently received by a friend from Mrs. McComas in Johannesburg. She writes of South Africa: "This is a wonderful country, with a great future. The people are of the right sort, and the country is rich in resources."

A Negro Woman's Industrial School.

"At least," say the southern people, "in the old slave days the negroes were trained to useful work. The men learned carpentering, blacksmithing and other trades, and the women were skilled cooks, nurses and seamstresses. The generation of free negroes that has grown up since the civil war can do nothing, and the blacks are often idle and vicious." A young colored woman, Jennie Dean, of Manassas, Va., realized the truth of this charge against her people better than the whites did and set herself to remedy it. She had only good health, determination and an expert knowledge of cookery. Behold! With that capital she has established and now maintains an industrial school farm of 126 acres. It has a dozen excellent buildings, in which are taught to negro boys and girls skilled trades of all kinds. Girls learn cooking, sewing, general housework and child's nursing. Those who desire are also perfectly trained in poultry raising and dairying. The name of the enterprise is the Manassas Industrial school. Jennie Dean saved her own wages as an expert cook. She next roused the ambition of the negroes themselves around Manassas. White friends both north and south aided Jennie in her work. The mayor of Manassas says the empty jail of his town is due to Jennie Dean's industrial school.

MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

The Conventional Idea.

Recently a very black negro appeared in the mayor's office in New York city. He convoyed a negro woman under his wing. "I'm the Rev. Dr. Cooper, sah, of North Carolina, sah, and she's my wife. I want a divorce from her because she won't obey what I tell her. She's a good girl, but she won't obey, and I want the mayor to give me a divorce." The Rev. Dr. Cooper had the usual ideas of masculine supremacy even though he didn't know enough to know the mayor could not grant divorces.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

But into the turmoil of thoughts half indignant, half self-compassionate, came reproach and a great wave of tenderness filial. She saw, as with the sudden gift of retrospection, her mother's long battle with inadequacy, and how it had aged her; saw, too, that the battle had been fought unselfishly, since she knew her mother's declaration that she could contentedly "go back to nothing" was no mere petulant boast. It was for her daughters that she had grown thin and haggard and irritable under the persistent reverses of fortune; it was for them that she was sinking the Grimkie independence in the match-making mother.

The tears in Elinor's eyes were not altogether of self-pity when she put her back to the window. Ormsby was coming up the curved driveway in his automobile, and she had seen him but dimly through the rising mist of emotion.

"Have you set your heart upon this thing, mother?—but I know you have. And I—I have tried as I could to be just and reasonable; to you and Penelope, and to Brookes Ormsby. He is nobleness itself: it is a shame to give him the shadow when he so richly deserves the substance."

She spoke rapidly, almost incoherently; and the mother-love in the woman who was careful and troubled about the things that perish put the match-maker to the wall. It was almost terrifying to see Elinor, the strong-hearted, the self-contained, breaking down like other mothers' daughters. So it was the mother who held out her arms, and the daughter ran to go down on her knees at the chair-side, burying her face in the lap of comforting.

"There, there, Ellie, child; don't cry. It's terrible to hear you sob like that," she protested, her own voice shaking in sympathy. "I have been thinking only of you and your future, and fearing weakly that you couldn't bear the hard things. But we'll bear them together—we three; and I'll never say another word about Brookes Ormsby and what might have been."

"O mother! you are making it harder than ever now," was the tearful rejoinder. "I—there is no reason why I should be so obstinate. I haven't even the one poor excuse you are making for me down deep in your heart."

"David Kent?" said the mother.

The bowed head nodded a wordless assent.

There was a tap at the door and a servant was come to say that Mr. Brookes Ormsby was waiting in his auto-car. Was Miss Brentwood nearly ready?

Elinor said, "In a minute," and when the door closed, she made a confidante of her mother for the first time since her childhood days.

"I knew what you have suspected ever since that summer in New Hampshire, and it is true," she confessed. "I do love him—as much as I dare to without knowing whether he cares for me. Must I—may I—say yes to Brookes Ormsby without telling him the whole truth?"

"Oh, my dear! You couldn't do that!" was the quick reply.

"You mean that I am not strong enough? But I am; and Mr. Ormsby is manly enough and generous enough to meet me half-way. Is there any other honest thing to do, mother?"

Mrs. Hepzibah shook her head deliberately and determinedly, though she knew she was shaking the Ormsby millions into the abyss of the unattainable.

"No; it is his just due. But I can't help being sorry for him, Ellie. What will you do if he says it doesn't make any difference?"

The blue-gray eyes were downcast.

"I don't know. Having asked so much, and accepted so much from him—it shall be as he says, mother."

The afternoon had been all that a summer afternoon on the brown highlands can be, and the powerful touring car had swept them from mile to mile over the dun hills like an earth-skimming dragon whose wing-beat was the muffled, explosive thud of the motor.

Through most of the miles Elinor had given herself up to silent enjoyment of the rapture of swift motion, and Ormsby had respected her mood, as he always did. But when they were on the high hills beyond the mining-camp of Megilp, and he had thrown the engines out of gear to brake the car gently down the long inclines, there was room for speech.

"This is our last spin together on the high plains, I suppose," he said. "Your mother has fixed upon to-morrow for our return to town, hasn't she?"

Elinor confirmed it half-absently. She had been keyed up to face the inevitable in this drive with Ormsby, and she was afraid now that he was going to break her resolution by a dip into the commonplaces.

"Are you glad or sorry?" he asked.

Her reply was evasive.

"I have enjoyed the thin, clean air and the freedom of the wide horizons. Who could help it?"

"But you have not been entirely happy?"

It was on her lips to say some conventional thing about the constant jarring note in all human happiness, but she changed it to a simple "No."

"May I try it I can give the reason?"

She made a reluctant little gesture of assent; some such signal of acquiescence as Marie Antoinette may have given the waiting headsman.

"You have been afraid every day lest I should begin a second time to press you for an answer, haven't you?"

She could not thrust and parry with him. They were past all that.

"Yes," she admitted briefly.

"You break my heart, Elinor," he said, after a long pause. "But,"—with a sudden tightening of the lips—"I'm not going to break yours."

She understood him, and her eyes filled quickly with the swift shock of gratitude.

"If you had made a study of womankind through ten lifetimes instead of a part of one, you could not know when and where to strike truer and deeper," she said; and then softly: "Why can't you make me love you, Brookes?"

He took his foot from the brake-pedal, and for ten seconds the released car shot down the slope unhindered. Then he checked the speed and answered her.

"A little while ago I would have said I didn't know; but now I do know. It is because you love David Kent: you loved him before I had my chance."

She did not deny the principal fact, but she gave him his opportunity to set it aside if he could—and would.

"Call it foolish, romantic sentiment, if you like. Is there no way to shame me out of it?"

He shook his head slowly.

"You don't mean that?"

"But if I say that I do; if I insist that I am willing to be shamed out of it."

His smile was that of a brother who remembers tardily to be loving-kind.

"I shall leave that task for some one who cares less for you and for your true happiness than I do, or ever shall. And it will be a mighty thankless service that that 'some one' will render you."

"But I ought to be whipped and sent to bed," she protested, almost tearfully. "Do you know what I have done? —how I have—"

She could not quite put it in words, even for him, and he helped her generously, as before.

"I know what Kent hasn't done; which is more to the point. But he will do it fast enough if you will give him half a chance."

"No," she said definitively.

"I say yes. One thing, and one thing only, has kept him from telling you any time since last autumn: that is a sort of a finical loyalty to me. I saw how matters stood when he came aboard of our train at Gaston—I'm asking you to believe that I didn't know it before—and I saw then that my only hope was to make a handfast friend of him. And I did it."

"I believe you can do anything you try to do," she said warmly.

This time his smile was a mere grimace.

"You will have to make one exception, after this; and so shall I. And since it is the first of any consequence in all my mounting years, it grinds. I can't throw another man out of the window and take his place."

"If you were anything but what you are, you would have thrown him out of the window another way," she rejoined.

"That would have been a dago's trick; not a white man's," he asserted. "I suppose I might have got in his way and played the dog in the manger generally, and you would have stuck to your word and married me, but I am not looking for that kind of a winning. I don't mind confessing that I played my last card when I released you from our engagement. I said to myself: If that doesn't break down the barriers, nothing will."

She looked up quickly.

"You will never know how near it came to doing it, Brookes."

"But it didn't quite?"

"No, it didn't quite."

The brother-smile came again.

"Let's paste that leaf down and turn the other; the one that has David Kent's name written at the top. He is going to succeed all around, Elinor; and I am going to help him—for his sake, as well as yours."

"No," she dissented. "He is going to fail; and I am to blame for it."

He looked at her side-wise.

"So you were at the bottom of that, were you? I thought as much, and tried to make him admit it, but he wouldn't. What was your reason?"

"I gave it to him: I can't give it to you."

"I guess not," he laughed. "I wasn't born on the right side of the Berkshire hills to appreciate it. But really, you mustn't interfere. As I say, we are going to make something of David; and a little conscience—of the right old Pilgrim Fathers' brand—goes a long way in politics."

"But you promised me you were not going to spoil him—only it doesn't matter; you can't."

Ormsby chuckled openly, and when she questioned "What?" he said:

"I was just wondering what you would say if you knew what he is into now; if you could guess, for instance, that his backers have put up a cool hundred thousand to be used as he sees fit?"

"Oh!" she exclaimed; and there was dismay and sharp disappointment in her voice. "You don't mean that he is going to bribe these men?"

"No" he said, relenting. "As a matter of fact, I don't know precisely what he is doing with the money, but I guess it is finding its way into legitimate channels. I'll make him give me an itemized expense account for your benefit when it's all over, if you like."

"It would be kinder to tell me more about it now," she pleaded.

"No; I'll let him have that pleasure, after the fact—if we can get him pardoned out before you go back east."

She asked no more questions, being unwilling to tempt him to break confidence with Kent. But she was thinking of all the desperate things a determined man with temperamental unbalancings might do when the touring car rolled noiselessly down the final hill into the single street of Megilp.

There was but one vehicle in the street at the moment; a freighter's ore-wagon drawn by a team of mules, meekest and most shambling-prosaic of their tribe. The motor-car was running on the spent velocity of the descent, and Ormsby thought to edge past without stopping. But at the critical instant the mules gave way to terror, snatched the heavy wagon into the opposite plank walk, and tried to climb a near-by telephone pole. Ormsby put his foot on the brake and something snapped under the car.

"What was that?" Elinor asked; and Ormsby got down to investigate.

"It is our brake connection," he announced, after a brief inspection. "And we are five good miles from Hudgins and his repair kit."

A ring of town idlers was beginning to form about them. An automobile was still enough of a rarity in the mining camp to draw a crowd.

"Busted?" inquired one of the onlookers.

Ormsby nodded, and asked if there were a machinist in the camp.

"Yep," said the spokesman; "up at the Blue Jay mine."

"Somebody go after him," suggested Ormsby, flipping a coin; and a boy started on a run.

The waiting was a little awkward. The ringing idlers were good-natured but curious. Ormsby stood by and answered questions multiform, diverting curosity from the lady to the machine. Presently the spokesman said:

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL, RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MISS ALDERMAN'S NERVE.

Lexington Woman Shot Burglar Discovered in Her Bedroom.

LEXINGTON, Mass., Feb. 27.—Edward Barrow, aged twenty-one years, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Miss Ottiline S. Alderman upon being discovered in the latter's bedroom early in the morning. His condition is critical.

Miss Alderman, who is about fifty years of age, lives with her mother and maiden sister. She told the police that she was lying awake in bed reading about 2:30 a. m. when the light was suddenly extinguished. She is quite deaf and did not hear the intruder, but distinguishing the outlines of a man's form commanded him to leave. When he moved toward her she reached for a shotgun kept by her bed and fired. Barrow sank to the floor with a charge of birdshot in his abdomen. Barrow is employed by a forester at Arlington Center. If he survives he will be held for burglary.

EX-GOVERNOR BOUTWELL ILL.

Physicians Hold Out Small Chance of Recovery For Aged Statesman.

GROTON, Mass., Feb. 27.—Former Governor George S. Boutwell, who is ill at his home here with pneumonia, passed a comfortable day and at times showed some improvement. His condition, however, continues very grave.

The venerable statesman realized the gravity of his illness and said to his daughter, Miss Georgianna Boutwell, "I think my chances of recovery are pretty slim."

During the night his temperature rose to 103 and his pulse to 120, but at midnight both were reduced, and the night passed uneventfully. He awoke apparently refreshed, took considerable nourishment and showed a disposition to talk.

Dr. W. B. Warren, his physician, said that owing to the age of the governor a sudden change for the worse might be looked for at any time.

IT WAS AN ENGLISHMAN.

Coffin Discovered by Ambassador Porter's Search Not Paul Jones'.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A preliminary examination which Ambassador Porter is making for the body of John Paul Jones, the naval hero of the Revolutionary war, recently disclosed a leaden coffin.

The name plate on the coffin was very much corroded, but the inscription has finally been deciphered, showing that it was the coffin of an Englishman buried May 5, 1790, two years before the death of Jones. Consequently the coffin will not be opened. The examination continues.

The finding of this leaden coffin has the advantage of establishing the fact that those buried in the Protestant cemetery about the time of Jones' death lie in the vicinity of the present excavations.

Italian Railways Crippled.

ROME, Feb. 27.—In order to escape the penalties for striking, the railway employees throughout Italy have engaged in a harassing system of literal and exaggerated obedience of rules and orders, which is having the effect of badly crippling traffic, provoking great indignation on the part of the public. The effect has been the cancellation of trains and the delay of others. The passenger traffic has been reduced in consequence about 60 per cent. The employees demand certain concessions from the railroads and the repeal of the law prescribing severe punishment for railway employees who engage in strikes.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

There is probably no better baseball manager in the country than Phillip Daab, of the Hoboken Club. He is built on the square and this accounts for his popularity. It has been said of him that in his entire baseball career he has never had a ball player go back on him or fail to do as agreed. Mr. Daab stands for clean sport and he says that he will not harbor a player this season who has any entanglements with the major or minor leagues. They must have the proper record to play for Hoboken.

The Hoboken Inquirer, of which Phillip Daab, manager of the Hoboken team, is the publisher, has this to say regarding the Hobokens playing in Plainfield this season: "Negotiations have just been concluded whereby Manager Daab will take his All Star Hoboken team to Plainfield, and there, for the coming season, represent that city. This deal has been under consideration for some time and the matter has only just been consummated. Plainfield is a city of about 25,000 inhabitants and one of the most beautiful in the State. At all times baseball has been "the sport." Billy Keeler, Dave Fultz, Tuck Turner, George and Lew Wiltse all made their initial bow in Plainfield. It is doubtful if any one section has turned out more professional ball players than Plainfield and last year through the able management of "Grader" Johnston, an exceptionally strong team represented that city. Hoboken visited there twice, and both times succeeded in defeating the home team. Among the players on last year's team were "Pop" Dietrich, "Gene" Bassford, "Al." Farmer, Fred Smith, "Lefty" Davis and "Pete" Cregan, all well-known here. In the last game played between these two teams Jack Cronin, of the Brooklyn Club, occupied the box for Plainfield and Hoboken succeeded in making sixteen hits off Cronin. These little (?) exhibitions were sufficient evidence to the Plainfield people that the Hoboken club was good, and that there were none much better, and the Plainfield people are always desirous of having the best and will get it."

A series has also been arranged with the Saturday Night Club, of Westfield, and the first match being scheduled to take place on Friday, March 3, at Fanwood. Roselle, Westfield Country Club and Somerville, are among the clubs with whom series will be arranged.

Clarkson Still in Jail.

Judge William N. Runyon is counsel for Frank Clarkson, the letter carrier who was given a hearing before Commissioner Rowe, at Jersey City on Saturday, on the charge of rifling the mail. Efforts are now being made to secure bail for him, cash to the amount of $1,000 or security on unencumbered realty valued at $2,000 being required. Unless this is forthcoming, he will be confined in the Hudson County jail until trial in May or June if the United States Grand Jury in April finds a true bill against him. Clarkson has already confessed to four or five thefts and much sympathy is expressed for his heartbroken mother and father.

Preparing for Summer.

The Public Service Corporation shops are just now a hive of industry preparing the summer cars for service. In addition to a general overhauling which all cars will receive, each one will be painted yellow, that color having been selected for all the rolling stock as a mark of distinction. It is said that when warm weather arrives the corporation's rolling stock will be in better shape than ever. The work of repair is divided between the shop at Elizabethport and the one in Jersey City, while the John Stephenson Company has contracted to do some of the work. Many of the winter cars were considerably damaged during the recent blizzard and all of these have not yet been put in good condition. This work naturally interferes with that on the summer cars.

Collins would pick Co. K as one. Under the present system the Military Board makes the selections and it has turned Co. K down.

REFUSE TO INCREASE LICENSES

Common Council Turns Down the Applications of J. J. Goff and John Shea.

SCHANZ TO REMOVE

The Ministers Successfully Plead Against Hotel License in West End — Tyler Makes a Speech.

After much consideration at the meeting of the Common Council, last night, the usual number of liquor licenses applications, thirteen, were granted, and the new applicants, John J. Goff, who asked for a license for his hotel on West Front street, and John Shea, who asked for a saloon on West Third street, were refused. In the case of Mr. Goff, Councilmen Daniel, Bullock, Hibbard, Higham, C. O. Randolph, Tyler and Wilson voted against the application and Councilmen Telles, Gleak and Frank DeW. Randolph for it, and on the application of John Shea, all the members voted in the negative. Mr. Murphy voted against every application, and Frank DeW. Randolph joined him in voting against Frank Linke's. On the application of Charles Schanz the vote stood six to five in favor, Councilmen Gleak, Higham, C. O. Randolph, F. DeW. Randolph, Telles and Daniel being in the affirmative and Councilmen Bullock, Hibbard, Murphy, Tyler and Wilson being in the negative.

These applicants received licenses: Eastern Bottling Company, wholesale, West Second street and Central avenue; Jacob Blimm, hotel, Somerset street; A. D. Findlay, saloon, East Second street; J. A. Staats, hotel, North avenue; Henry Windham, hotel, East Front street; Henry Haurand, hotel, East Front street; John Rafferty, saloon, Park avenue; Christian Gloeckler, saloon, West Front and Somerset streets; Frank Linke, wholesale, West Front street; Jerome Leary, hotel, Park avenue and West Second street; Charles Schanz, saloon, 136 Park avenue; Bernard Clark, saloon, West Third and Liberty streets; Michael Watson, saloon, Grant avenue.

There was a big crowd on hand when the meeting was called to order. In taking up the license matter, Mr. Tyler, as chairman of the police committee, having them in charge, reported back A. B. Rosell's application for the hotel at the corner of Park avenue and East Second street, stating that he had withdrawn it, having sold the business to Jerome Leary, who is now the proprietor of the place.

Schanz's Transfer of Location.

The applications were then taken up in the order in which they were granted. Everything went along smoothly until Charles Schanz's application was reached, when Mr. Gleak offered a resolution providing that the same be granted after certain improvements were made, such as the placing of an iron gate with a lock and key at the entrance to the driveway adjoining the Marcus Silbert place at 136 Park avenue, and the installation of proper toilet arrangements in the building, all to be approved by the police committee.

Mr. Tyler then stated that he had drafted the resolution and had hoped to vote for it, but when he had learned certain additional facts he had decided to oppose the granting of the license. He mentioned two reasons for changing his mind. One was that the licensing of this place would affect property interests, and the other was that Mr. Schleif, who leases the adjoining property, has a family with four children and their only playground would be at the back door of this saloon.

Mr. Murphy stated that there were other places obtainable by Mr. Schanz, and by refusing the application it would leave one side of Park avenue free from saloons. Mr. Gleak said that the police committee had agreed to grant the applications under the conditions noted and if 136 Park avenue was not licensed Mr. Schanz should be given the right to apply later if he secured another place. Mr Bullock remarked that he did not consider the opinions given at the early meeting of the committee as final and he thought it would not be right to grant the aplication under the circumstances. He said that he did not know Mr. Schanz, that he did not make a habit of going into saloons with the Mayor or anyone else, and did not know what kind of place the applicant kept. However, he thought another application would be considered if made by Mr. Schanz. Frank DeW. Randolph wanted to know if Mr. Schanz was held up a month in getting his license whether one-twelfth of the fee would be deducted. The president informed him that the fee is now $1,000 for a year or any part of it. Mr. Telles, speaking for Mr. Schanz, said that he had held a license for years and there had never been a complaint against his place. He could see no good reasons for refusing the application. "One year ago," added Mr. Telles, "one of the opposition tonight was paid to work for Mr. Schanz and now he is paid to work against him."

The vote was then called for and resulted as noted above.

Tyler's Speech.

The next application was that of Bernard Clark and before action was taken, Mr. Tyler took occasion to speak in a general way on the license question. In part he said:

"In recommending the granting of the applications of Clark and Watson the committee desires to have its intent clearly understood. I am heartily opposed to both places. If our vote tonight would accomplish anything of account it would be a simple matter. But the committee has undertaken the complex question, how to make permanent, before we lose it, that excellent precedent, that at least we will have no more saloons than now, and we are resolved to build permanently this time, even if more slowly, for perhaps we are building better than you know. I refer to the restrictive ordinance heretofore introduced, which in every city where it has been tried has worked the best solution of the whole problem.

"The City of Minneapolis has been working for the past twenty years under such a law, which defines a small district in the center of the city, outside of which no liquor may be sold. Mr. Merrill, the president of the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company, one of the leading financial institutions of Minneapolis, was in my office last week, and I took the opportunity to question him. Mr. Merrill says that he believes that for a residence city it solves the saloon problem as no other plan can. He has lived in Minneapolis for more than twenty years and has watched the work of the law from the start and compared is results with the experience of other similar cities. He says the law was bitterly opposed at first as being arbitrary, needless and serving no possible purpose (the same arguments which we hear in Plainfield now), and that it was carried only after a contest of several years, but that once in operation its merit soon won for it such universal satisfaction and popular support that today it would not be safe for any party or faction to venture its repeal.

"In reply to a letter of inquiry, the City Attorney of Minneapolis has written me to the same general effect.

"An instructive discussion of the results of the Minneapolis law was published in The Outlook of August 27, 1904, where it is stated that 'Not the least benefit under the system we are discussing, as under the Gothenburg and dispensary system, is the enthusiastic support of the best elements of the city.'

Experience Elsewhere.

"In Atlanta, Georgia, a similar ordinance was enacted about 16 years ago, as a compromise between the advocates and the opponents of the license system. The Corporation Counsel of Atlanta writes me that (to quote from his letter) 'There is now such a general sentiment in its favor it would be quite impolitic for any one to question its validity.'

"The same saloon district system is in force in many other residence cities and always with the same remarkable success in every case where I have inquired. I am convinced that for us the same system will solve many dangerous and disagreeable features of the problem; will remove the whole matter from the sphere of politics; and best of all will do so permanently, because if given a fair trial, it will receive the lasting seal of popular favor.

"Now to use a simple figure if you would set a bonfire of leaves from a match, you would not heap the whole barrelful of leaves on the match at once, and I can assure you, gentlement, that such a barrelful is a poor

WEST END PEOPLE WON

The Fight Against Licensing Goff's Hotel Successful.

MINISTERS PROTESTED

Rev. George Mooney and Rev. L. R. Howard Argued Before City Fathers Against More Saloons.

There were many remonstrances presented against the granting of additional liquor licenses at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, while there were also petitions asking the members to grant the applications of J. J. Goff and John Shea.

Among those who spoke against increasing the number of drinking places was Rev. George Mooney, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. He referred to the recent utterances of a citizen of Plainfield on the floor of the Common Council rooms which he said had held up the members to ridicule. "I wish I could say something that would gain as much publicity as those remarks and I wish that there was some one here who would say with just as much emphasis that 'by the help of Almighty God I never took a drink over the bar with any man.' In 1889 when this city was without licensed places there were fifty-one arrests in drunk and disorderly cases and the next year when the saloons were opened there were five times as many arrests. I emphatically opposed J. J. Goff's application for two cogent reasons. One is that for five cents and with plenty of time a person can ride to the very doors of this place, and I venture that this place, if licensed, would be more troublesome than any other no matter who owned it. Another reason is that there are factories located in the vicinity and I champion the cause of the defendless ones who must suffer, these who do not need any President Roosevelt to preach race suicide to them, these who depend on their livelihood for their weekly wage. We are told that if this place is not licensed there will be speak-easies. I have never heard such an argument before. Certain rumors are so persistent, however, that the police department ought to investigate things in the West End of the city, things which have almost reached the scandal point. I have back of me the Monroe Avenue church which for ten years has stood for righteousness. Don't open a pitfall in that section of the city. The police cannot cope with it unless the force is enlarged and we see a bluecoat oftener than we do now."

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, made a statement to the effect that three of the four persons who had signed petitions favoring the granting of the new applications have families that have been helped through his efforts, the heads of the families not sufficiently supplying their needs.

Brewing Co.'s Position.

Edward Nugent, Esq., of Elizabeth, counsel for the Rising Sun Brewing Company. Referring to the Goff matter, he said that George Seiber, now president of the company he represented, purchased the West Front street property with the understanding that it would make a good hotel site and that he secured the property simply as an investment. He alleged that the company did not have one dollar of interest in the place that he knew of. He added that the owner constructed the hotel in a modern manner and he thought it was as safe and commodious as any place in the city.

Mr. Tyler questioned Mr. Nugent with a view to learning some of the propery interests between the brewing company and the local tenants, but the representative of the company cleverly avoided committing either himself or the company. Mr. Nugent declared that by giving up Schanz's present location, the brewery company would lose the profits of the business but when Mr. Tyler fenced for an explanation, the lawyer successfully dodged and evaded the questions.

Fred R. Phillips, of West Front street, who has interested himself in the effort to keep additional saloons out of the West End, took the supporters of the new applications by surprise when he presented a map showing precisely every residence in the vicinity of Mr. Goff's place, thereby proving how near some of the signers live to the place. This was examined closely by the members of the Common Council.

There was a remonstrance from the Plainfield Ministers' Association against the granting of additional licenses, one with ninety-one signatures, including fifty property-owners,

Local Republicans Given Good Place in Civic Division.

BADGES FOR MARCHERS

Sleeping Car Accommodations Must be Engaged Before Thursday Night—One Pullman for Women.

On the train which will carry the Union County Republicans to Washington Friday night, the rear Pullman car will be reserved for women, a large number of whom are going to make the trip to the inauguration from Union County. The train will stop at the North Avenue station at 10 o'clock.

In the civic division of the great parade the Union County Republicans have been awarded a prominent position. They will fall in line in ninth place after the Frelinghuysen Lancers, of Newark, and will be followed by the Railsplitters, of Toledo, Ohio. The Republican Club of New York will head this section of the procession, followed by the Unconditionals, of Utica, N. Y.; the Buckeye Republican Club, Columbus, Ohio; the Republican Glee Club, Columbus, Ohio; the Original Roosevelt Club, St. Paul; Tippecanoe Club, Cleveland; Blaine Invincibles, Washington, D. C.

Then come the Frelinghuysens and the Union County contingent, followed by dozens of other organizations from all over the Union. The civic division will fall in line after the military grand division.

An ornate badge will be distributed to the Union county delegates. It is blue and gold with a good likeness of President Roosevelt on a large button and one of Senator Kean on a smaller button. There is a miniature flag and this inscription: "Inauguration of Roosevelt and Fairbanks, Washington, D. C., March 4, 1905."

Those who wish sleeping berths on the special train will have to make application for them by Thursday night. There will be a meeting of the Union County committee Thursday evening at headquarters in the Dix Building in Elizabeth.

HEALTH BOARD FUNDS

Power to Raise Them is Still Vested in Borough Councils.

ITS EFFECT LOCALLY

North Plainfield City Fathers Taking Advantage of the Laws May Refuse More Funds.

Chapter three of the laws of 1905 abolishes spring elections in townships and boroughs, and in view of the fact that it has been customary in townships for the voters to fix by ballots at these elections the amount of moneys to be raised for the expenses of local government each year, a question has been brought up as to how this money could be raised in the borough this year.

Chapter four of this year's laws provides that the township committee or other local governing body shall fix on or before July 1, 1905, the amount to be raised for all lawful purposes for the current year. It provides that at the fall election the voters shall fix by ballot the amount for 1906 and at each succeeding fall election they shall also fix in like manner the amount to be raised for the succeeding year.

In boroughs this right is vested in the Mayor and Council, so that the new law does not effect boroughs in that respect. The only item of taxes voted by the people in boroughs is that for the Board of Health. Under the new law the Mayor and Council will fix for 1905 the amount which the Board of Health will receive this year.

Inasmuch as it has been disclosed that the Board of Health has a balance of over $2,000 on hand it is not likely to get any appropriation this year according to reports.

Discussed the Budget.

The Borough Board of Education held a special meeting last night, at which the budget for the coming season was discussed. Numerous suggestions were made as to its make-up but the whole matter was left in the hands of the finance committee which will report on March 14.

TALKS TO WOMEN

Mrs. Blackwell Blames Public for Type of Press News at Equal Suffrage Meeting.

There was a large attendance of members and their friends at the meeting of the Equal Suffrage League, at Tyrell Inn, yesterday afternoon, the speaker of the day being Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, of Elizabeth. Although verging on eighty years of age, Mrs. Blackwell's voice is strong and clear, her step as quick and elastic as that of a young woman. All were deeply interested both in the address and in the speaker herself, whose meek and serene presence reminds all of the beauty of old age—of the old age that crowns a well-spent life.

Mrs. Blackwell's subject was "The Change in the Position of Women." When she said that her first speaking in public was in 1846, nearly sixty years ago, her hearers could scarcely believe it. She spoke of the difficulties that lay in the path of the pioneers. Evidently it required courage to persevere in those days, "when friends solemnly assured women desiring a college education that a woman's brain could not master the difficulties involved."

She said in part:

"An appalling increase of crime of various sorts, out of proportion to increased population, should lead to earnest inquiry into causes.

"Never before has the country known a veritable contagion of assaults on women and young girls both in the South and in the more temperate North; while startling dishonesty, in high places and in low, keeps even pace with the most degrading vices.

"The almost omnipresent daily or twice and thrice daily newspapers most of them seize upon, greedily enlarge, and scatter broadcast the vicious scandals of the day; but we are all responsible. No one has fully realised the subtle undermining influence of evil communications of this public sort.

"Freedom of the press sacred! Make the press as broadly free as possible; but within wholesome decent moral limits. No other country so cruelly dishonors and misrepresents itself by bring its humiliating facts into such undue prominence.

"The appeal to the respectable public to help in creating an active sentiment which shall make all newspapers ashamed to exploit vice for the general delectation. The appeal to the press to loyally second us in this greatly important matter. A popular newspaper has no call to become the scavenger of all the vice and crime of a nation; and certainly it has no right to drench the commonwealth with the contagious accumulation of vicious degeneracy.

"Hopefully then, we appeal to the majesty of the law to prohibit the reproduction in word-pictures of the very crimes to which it attaches its gravest penalties."

At the close of Mrs. Blackwell's address tea was served, and a social half hour followed. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, vice president of the league, and Mrs H. D. Haven. Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, the president, presided over the meeting. She announced that Mrs Minola Graham Sexton, State president of the Suffrage Association, would speak at the next meeting, on March 27, and David Prescott Hall, of this city, would address the league in April, his subject being "The Origin and Nature of the Constitution of the United States."

Disappeared Simultaneously.

Walter Ulmer, a young man who has been employed at a local livery, disappeared from his boarding place on North avenue, Sunday. Since then a new overcoat, a suit of clothes and $7 belonging to his room-mate known as "Loop," have been missing. The police think Ulmer and the articles went off together.

Hotel Attachment Off.

The attachment placed on the Hotel Rosell by Sheriff Cerriell a week ago at the instance of Mefford R. Giles against A. B. Rosell, was declared off today. Giles and Rorell held a conference and the matter was satisfactorily settled. The attachment was for $875.

HOUSE PASSES CREMATORY BILL

Unanimous Vote for Plainfield Measure in Legislature.

NOW BEFORE SENATE

Bill Empowers Plainfield to Maintain a Garbage Disposal Plant — Its Provisions.

By an unanimous vote the House passed Plainfield's crematory bill this morning. Within half an hour afterwards, the measure was transmitted to the Senate for action and it will probably be voted on this afternoon.

Governor Stokes has been requested to consider the bill as soon as it reaches his hands, which it is likely to do tomorrow.

Assemblyman Coyne asked for action on the bill at 11:30 this morning. He explained its provisions and object. There were fifty-three members present and every one voted in favor of the measure's passage.

The bill in question gives the municipality of Plainfield power to conduct a garbage disposal plant. Under the present laws, Plainfield is empowered to purchase a plant, but no provision is made for conducting it.

The Common Council has already purchased a plant in the West End and when legally entitled to do so proposes to establish a system of collection and disposal of garbage.

The bill now in the Legislature was drawn by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DROPS DEAD IN NEW YORK

LOUIS A. WRIGHT SUCCUMBED TO AN ATTACK OF HEART TROUBLE.

Louis A. Wright, for many years a prominent resident of Plainfield, dropped dead at Eighth avenue and Twenty-Eighth street, New York, on Washington's birthday. He was the son of the late Benjamin F. Wright, the night watchman in the business district before the police force was fully organized, and a graduate pharmacist. He was employed for a long time by William H. Voorhees, the druggist who was succeeded by L. W. Randolph, and left Plainfield to engage in the same business at Jersey City, afterward going to New York. He is survived by two brothers, William Wright, of this city, and Peter B. Wright, of Europe.

Physicians who examined the body ascribe heart trouble as the cause of death. Interment was made in the Kensico cemetery, Saturday.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB.

Entertained at Homes of Mrs. D. Groendyke and Mrs. John G. Foster.

The Current Events Club was entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. D. N. Groendyke and Mrs. John Gray Foster at their home on Mercer avenue, when a paper written by Mrs. Isaac L. Miller was read by Mrs. D. M. VanVliet, the theme being "The Value to the Individual Member of the Club Devoted Entirely to Literary Study."

Following the paper, Mrs. William L. Saunders favored the club with some songs, Mrs. James R. Joy accompanying her. Mrs. Schoonmaker's instrumental music also gave great pleasure. Mrs. VanVliet and Mrs. Joy presided at the tea table, assisted by Miss May Sneve and Miss Ruth VanVliet.

Company K Elects.

Following Company K's regular drill last night, the members elected the following officers: George Apgar, from corporal to sergeant; Robert A. Geidsack and Ashley Weaver, from privates to corporals. The company was given orders by Captain Martin to hold itself in readiness to attend the funeral of Quartermaster-General R. A. Connelly at Trenton, Thursday morning. It is probable the local company will go by special train.

More Boys for Inauguration.

Governor Stokes has received word from Washington in answer to his telegram, that the New Jersey delegation of High School boys to represent the State in the inauguration might be increased to sixteen in place of the original allotment of ten. On the recommendation of Charles J. Baxter, State superintendent of public instruction, the following additional boys were at once appointed: Trenton High School, Oscar Peterson; Paterson High School, Morris Levine; Atlantic City High School, Carleton Adams; New Brunswick High School, Joseph Steiner. This leaves one boy yet to be appointed and he will be named later.

M. C. Debbins, the veteran cigar maker, is preparing to move from his place on Park avenue to one directly adjoining. However, it will in no way interfere with the sale of the Nickle Yara and other popular cigars.

A free examination at Atwood's dental parlors may save you a great deal of expense later on. If your teeth need attention the time to have them operated on is the present. Don't wait till it is too late, and your teeth are in a useless condition.

Some wise old philosopher has said that "A penny saved is a penny earned," which is all true enough but not complete. Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—The student strike at the Hanover Technical institute has ended. Dr. Studt, the Prussian minister of ecclesiastical affairs, instruction and medical affairs, having conceded nearly all that the students asked. He also gave permission to reorganize the students' committee, which he had ordered disbanded, and consented that the students of the various universities and technical institutions may confer with each other through delegates regarding their common interests.

The minister also ordered a reversal of Student Heile's expulsion, letting him off with a reproof.

The students have sent Minister Studt a telegram of thanks for his prompt settlement of the difficulty and the restoration of good relations. The students will resume their attendance on lectures today.

DESPERATE FIGHTING AT DA PASS.

Kuropatkin Reports Tsinkhetchen Position Turned at Both Flanks. Claims to Still Hold Mountain Passes.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—According to a Newchwang report, the Japanese are shelling Mukden with eleven inch mortars. The bombardment, which was recently commenced, has caused great damage far in the rear of the Russian lines.

Advices from Chinese sources say that a general engagement is in progress all along the line. The heaviest fighting is reported to be occurring on the Japanese right, and General Kuroki is said to be sweeping far north and threatening to crumple the Russians back on the railroad.

A special force is reported to be moving from the south and west with the intention of cutting off the Russians' communication by railroad with Vladivostok.

A Madyadani (Manchuria) dispatch says that after fighting of the most desperate nature the Russians remain in possession of the Che and Da passes, against which the Japanese had been flinging themselves madly from noon until dark. The Russians, who were greatly outnumbered, sustained repeated attacks, some units losing as high as 70 per cent in killed or wounded in hand to hand fighting with the bayonet, to which they were reduced after they had fired their last cartridges. In order to hold Da pass the last reserves were sent to the firing line.

The Japanese turning operation in the region of Sauto pass was checked by a battalion of Russian infantry and several squadrons of cavalry, who repulsed the Japanese with heavy loss. The Japanese also tried to advance on Nango and Vanupudzi, but were repulsed.

The present operations began when the Japanese made a night attack on Haba pass, seven miles south of Tsinkhetchen.

They attacked Vanz pass, seven miles southeast of the Tsinkhetchen positions, which are far in advance of the general front of the army. The Russians made a counter attack and temporarily gained ground, but in the face of superior numbers were flanked and retired on the fortified line of Tsinkhetchen.

A dispatch from General Kuropatkin at Mukden says:

"The enemy is continuing the offensive against the front of our Tsinkhetchen detachment and has turned both its flanks.

"The Japanese have also advanced against Kantie pass, turning our left flank, but all his attacks an Tangu and Beydaling have been repulsed. His offensive movement against Bomapudz has also been repulsed. At some positions our riflemen forced the Japanese outposts to retire. Colonel Gorsky was severely wounded."

A Harbin report says that the Japanese have crossed the Shakhe river, driving in the pickets of the Russian vanguard. Russian supports then came up and stopped the Japanese advance.

On the Russian right flank all is quiet, but movements of the Japanese indicate an intention of attacking the Russian center, at least in the way of a demonstration.

The soldiers of the Tsinkhetchen division are in good spirits in spite of the heavy losses they have sustained and the necessity which compelled them to retreat. They are encouraged by the execution they wrought upon the Japanese, whose bodies were piled in heaps outside the redoubts at Beresneff hill and the trenches at Tsinkhetchen.

It is semiofficially announced at St. Petersburg that in view of the appearance of Japanese troops in the rear of the Russian army west of the railway Russia will address a circular to the powers protesting against Japan's persistent violation of Chinese territory.

WILL EXILE GORKY.

Governor Trepoff Causes Rearrest of Russian Author Just Released.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 28.—Maxim Gorky had but a short glimpse of liberty when released on $5.000 bail here. The noted author was immediately rearrested and conveyed to a place of confinement pending deportation to some distant city or province where his continued residence, it is thought, will not be so dangerous to the welfare of the government as it would be here in St. Petersburg.

The release of M. Gorky was effected by order of Governor General Trepoff, who, after the friends of the writer had overcome obstacle after obstacle and won the grudging assent of the hierarchy and officials, signed the mandate admitting him to bail. The rearrest also was the act of the all powerful governor general, who is unwilling to allow such a firebrand to be at large in the capital of which practically he is the supreme ruler.

M. Gorky knew nothing of the governor general's decision when the doors of the cell which had been his home for the past five weeks swung open. His disappointment, therefore, was pitiable when, just as he was passing out of the great gate of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, he was again placed under arrest. His appearance indicated that his health had suffered from the effects of his confinement, even though the rigors of prison life had been relaxed in his favor.

In the custody of two officers of the department of secret police, which is charged with the protection of members of the imperial family, M. Gorky was placed in a closed carriage and conveyed to the headquarters of the secret police in a house formerly belonging to the poet Pushkin, where he spent the night pending the receipt of orders assigning his place of future residence.

Disappointed as was M. Gorky at the outcome of the day's business, he was no more so than were his wife and children, who, having been informed of the decision to release him on bail, awaited his return home for hours.

The windows of the apartments occupied by the author's family were brilliantly lighted in honor of the anticipated appearance of the husband and father. Mme. Pieshkoff was at the door the instant the bell sounded, not waiting for her servant to answer the summons, and an eight-year-old son of the author darted out from an adjoining room. She concealed her disappointment bravely when informed of the re-arrest of her husband and forced herself to smile as she discussed the probable place of his exile, saying she hopes it will be where the climate is such that her husband's health will not suffer, as it did in his former exile, when he was forced to appeal for permission to change his residence to the milder climate of the Crimea.

Russian Officers Must Return.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The Russian government has directed the three naval officers who broke their parole and escaped from the Lena at San Francisco to return to that ship immediately. Admiral McCalla, who is directly responsible for the detention of the Lena's personnel, is thus relieved from what otherwise might be the disagreeable necessity of abridging the shore leaves of the Lena's officers and crews in the future. The action also relieves the state department from making apologies to Japan for permitting a breach of neutrality.

THIRTEEN DEAD.

Brooklyn Church Floor Collapsed With Three Hundred Worshipers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Thirteen persons were killed and upward of fifty injured, some probably fatally, by the collapse of the flooring of the Fleet Street African Methodist Episcopal church in Brooklyn last night. Of those killed ten were women, two men and one child. The building was an ancient ramshackle frame structure, erected sixty years ago in the heart of the colored section of Brooklyn, in Fleet street, near Myrtle avenue.

Arrangements had been made last night to hold the funeral services of Sydney Tainter, one of the older members of the church, and the auditorium, which is on the second floor of the building, the ground floor being occupied by the Sunday school, was crowded with an audience of upward of 300 persons, of whom the majority were women.

The congregation was waiting in silence for the arrival of the body, and Pastor Jacobs was standing at the altar awaiting the summons to meet the funeral procession at the door when a sharp cracking of timbers was heard, and in an instant the half of the auditorium nearest the door collapsed, carrying down more than 100 persons, who were crushed in the wreckage of the flooring and pews. A great volume of dust for a few moments hid from view the victims. The remainder of the audience, finding themselves cut off from the door and expecting every instant that the rest of the flooring would collapse under them, fought madly to reach the windows and in some instances leaped from them and sustained serious injuries.

On the arrival of the police and firemen the work of rescue began. Those remaining uninjured on the portion of the floor remaining intact were taken from the windows by ladders. Those lying in the mass of wreckage on the lower floor could only be got at after the firemen had hewed their way to them with axes. Out of the wreck ten bodies were recovered and taken to a station house and about thirty removed to the Brooklyn hospital, where three women died soon after being admitted.

A KAISER'S MECCA.

Evangelical Lutheran Cathedral Dedicated at Berlin.

AMERICAN CLERGY CABLE EMPEROR

Ceremony Witnessed by One of the Most Brilliant Courts of Europe, Clad in Scarlet and Gold—Many of Our Delegates Present.

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—Emperor William's mecca for Protestants, the Evangelical Lutheran cathedral, was consecrated here in the presence of a most brilliant assemblage, among whom were delegates from all the Protestant nations. The service was simple and stately and was enriched with wonderful music.

Bishop Potter of New York and a long list of American clergy sent a lengthy telegram of congratulations to the emperor. It was signed by Henry C. Potter, bishop of New York; O. W. Whitaker, bishop of Pennsylvania; William Lawrence, bishop of Massachusetts; Bishop Edward G. Andrews of the Methodist church, New York; the Rev. President W. H. P. Faunce, D. D., of the Baptist church, New York; Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of the Union Theological seminary; J. B. Remensynder, D. D., LL. D., pastor of St. James' Evangelist church of New York, and S. G. F. Krotel, pastor of the Evangelist Lutheran church of New York.

The nave was filled with hundreds of known personalities of one of the most brilliant courts of Europe, clad in scarlet and gold, blue and white, black and yellow and a maze of other color combinations. The ambassadors and their wives, including the American ambassador and Mrs. Tower, sat on the first bench below the chancel with Chancellor von Bulow in the center. Behind them were the diplomats of lesser rank, members of the cabinet and foreign clergy, among them the bishop of Ripon, the Right Rev. William Boyd Carpenter, with many orders on his stole; Scandinavian preachers, with white ruffs around their necks of the time of Gustavus Adolphus; Swiss ministers, with lawn cravats falling over black cassocks, and the American delegates, Professor Francis Brown of the Union Theological seminary, in a plain black gown; the Rev. Dr. J. H. Prugh, pastor of Grace Reformed church of Pittsburg; the Rev. J. J. Heischmann, pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran German church of Brooklyn, and the Rev. Dr. Dickie, pastor of the American church in Berlin, in black with crimson bands.

Behind these were placed, according to precedence, a great number of generals, purple robed senators and academy officials. The emperor and empress, having upon one side of them Prince Arthur of Connaught and on the other Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark, with thirty-two princes and princesses of German states, sat in the gallery opposite the altar, attended by heralds in particolored costumes with enormous plumed hats.

The whole scene, with the sunlight pouring from the dome on the white interior, with gilded capitals and mosaics, suggested a gala opera or a reception in the great white hall of the palace rather than a religious service.

Somewhat in the shadows, in the side aisles and corners on banks of benches, were several hundreds of men and women of the parish, most of them poor and self conscious and in striking contrast to the flower bed effect of the nave.

One quiet figure for whom the emperor had caused a special place to be reserved was Dr. Luther of the Berlin health department, one of the last survivors of Martin Luther's descendants.

Mrs. Young Indicted at Macon.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 28.—The grand jury has brought in two indictments against Mrs. Maggie Young, charging her with impersonating Mrs. Mary Hinson, an inmate of the Paupers' home here, for the purpose of fraudulently obtaining from the Pennsylvania, Mutual and New York life insurance companies $5,000 each. A short time ago, it is alleged, Mrs. Young had the life of Mrs. Mary Gloss, another inmate of the Paupers' home, insured, with herself as beneficiary. The police allege that she had Mrs. Gloss removed to her own home, where she died the same night. The policies have not yet been paid.

The counsel for the Rising Sun Brewing Company earned his fee for appearing in behalf of Shann's petition for change of location at the Common Council meeting last night. He did not divulge the particulars when questioned as to what he meant by saying that the Elizabeth concern would lose "profits" by the applicant's removal from the present location.

Do not spend so much effort in telling in your advertising what you are "going to do," that you will have none left for the performance of your promises. It is a very easy matter to create a good impression, because that depends merely upon words, but unless you live up to the good impression created by your advertising it will not prove very profitable.—Advertising, Chicago.

measure of the smothering swarm of irrelevant controversy which would bury our new simple proposition out of all chance of fair consideration should we attempt to yoke with it the discussion of those bitterly contested questions relating to the purely individual rights of these two saloon keepers—questions of property right, personal friendship, and the like—having nothing whatever to do with the merits of the ordinance. The questions of Clark and Watson and all the rest will never be settled until we can get down to some permanent working principle. We are sure we have such a principle in this ordinance and all it needs to become permanent is that good citizens, the city over, shall rally to its support and make it a foundation of united action in this bitterly contested subject. Many would go farther, many not so far. There is no subject about which opinion is more scattered and the public action more disorganized. The saloon element is organized. They know their working principle and stand together on it. Before we can act together at all we must have some definite principle upon which we can unite even if we don't agree as to details but merely because it is right as far as it goes. Let me state the principle simply. It merely says, 'So far, but no farther,' with the emphasis on the 'no farther.' It is simple, easy to follow, and right to the point."

Mr. Murphy then attacked Mr. Tyler's scheme by stating that while he opposes the saloon among the homes, he excepts two drinking places now located in the West End. "Your bill does not do what is claimed for it and I'll not vote for it," declared Mr. Murphy. "It is neither fish, flesh or fowl. It is a travesty and I cannot see the consistency of it." Then followed the granting of the applications of Bernard Clark and Michael Watson.

Goff Again Refused.

There was considerable argument when John J. Goff's application was taken up, there being a question as to whether an inn and tavern license carried with it the privilege to sell liquor. Mr. Murphy thought it would be safer to deny the request for an inn and tavern as well as liquor license, and Mr. Hibbard especially asked for information on the subject as he did not care to take any chances. He said that he had property interests in that part of the city and was personally opposed to the licensing of Goff's place. This discussion led to an endless talk regarding "speak-easies," Mr. Tyler defending the statement made to him by an official of the police department that there is nothing in the talk about such places in this city. He did not deny that there were some here, but nothing in comparison to the number reported and he did not think the argument of sufficient importance to call for the granting of a license to Mr. Goff with a view of shutting up such places.

Mr. Gloak stated that he had suggested to the police committee that all licenses be refused, but the members would not listen to this.

Mr. Bullock replied to Mr. Gloak by saying that there are some politicians in the city who would like to see the town "dry," believing it would cause a revulsion of feeling. I disagree with them. I am a license man and we have a good body of saloon-keepers as those things go and as long as they keep within the law the sentiment seems to be in favor of the present system and the present number of drinking places. "There is no need of anyone going dry as long as they have the price to pay for a drink," concluded Mr. Bullock.

Mr. Tyler said that he was ashamed of the argument regarding speak easies. He stated that one in a position to know had informed him that the drug stores had given more trouble than the illicit-selling places. Mr. Tolles gave his experience when he was a member of the Grand Jury two years ago, when fifteen indictments were found against keepers of local speak-easies, but he added: "We could not convict them." "Now I know as much about speak-easies as Mr. Tolles," replied Mr. Tyler. "More! more!" was Mr. Tolles' quick retort, and during the laughter Mr. Gloak was heard to say something about Rev. John MacMurray making a statement a year ago that there were 180 such places in this city.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Managers Dayton and Vail, of the Dunellen and New Market baseball teams, will meet in a short time to arrange for a series of games between the borough and the township, to be played during the season. It is expected that a five game series will be run off. The Orange Field Club, of Plainfield, is another possible applicant for the proposed baseball league among the Dunellen, New Market, Clinton Avenue, and the Plainfied Y. M. U. A. teams. The baseball fans are awakening after a recess which the winter has made necessary, and the national sport bids fair to have even greater support in the borough than was given it last season. It is probable that there will be several other teams from the borough in the field next year, as the employes at Lewering & Garrigues' are considering the advisability of putting out a baseball aggregation.

The Literary Circle met last night at the home of Mrs. Margaret Dealaman, the subject of the meeting being "Attention." The paper was read by Miss Emma Marlow. The meeting was an interesting and an instructive one, and was attended by a large number of the members of the society.

A three game series has been arranged between the management of the local bowling aggregation and the Triangle Club, of Plainfield, whose headquarters are at the Fanwood Suburban Club. The dates secured are March 6, 13 and 20. The matches will be rolled on the Taylor alleys.

Accoording to the annual custom, the auditing committee of the Borough Council was entertained last night at the home of Collector Day. A pleasant evening was spent at the conclusion of a plentiful repast. The dinner was well attended.

It is expected that the work of repairing the round-house will begin at once. Arrangements have been made, and the material for effecting the repairs will arrive the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Meeker are staying temporarily with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Morrison, of Plainfield.

Alvan Gray, who has been confined to his home with illness, is now greatly improved.

William Dealaman has returned after a recent visit with friends in New York.

Miss May Shotwell has been entertaining friends from Brooklyn for a few days.

Miss Elizabeth Herlick is visiting friends at Basking Ridge.

After a serious illness, Mrs. William Cole is slowly improving.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The sidewalks in some places in the borough are still impassable, it is said. The blizzard of several weeks ago left drifts that were impossible for the snow plow to get through, so walks were cut out wherever it was possible to run the plow, but the roadway at present is anything but pleasant to walk in, being covered with several inches of slush and water during the middle of the day.

Should the Aeolian team decide to consolidate with the local fans the well known voice of the rooter will once more be heard on a local diamond.

Miss Elsie Shott, who has been at home for a week with a severe cold, has returned to her studies at Peddie Institute, Hightstown, N. J.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen, as in the past, has a very small delinquent tax list to hamper the borough finances this year.

Rev. G. M. Shott was in New York Monday attending the Ministers' Weekly Conference meeting, of which he is secretary.

John E. Flannery, of East Second stree, has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. George H. Johnston.

Miss Lottie Lyons, who has been visiting friends in town, has returned to her home in Plainfield.

Edward D. Johnston has returned from a stay with friends at Hackettstown.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The regular Tuesday evening prayer and conference meeting will be held in the lecture room of the Baptist church, this evening.

John McNably, of Danbury, Conn., returned home yesterday, after spending sometime with his sister, Mrs. J. J. Hannen.

William Hamilton is employed building a carpenter's wagon for a carpenter in Perth Amboy.

Mrs. William McAdams died Sunday night in her seventy-first year.

Mrs. P. C. Johnson has returned after a visit in Newark.

Edgar Boice has purchased a horse of Howard Snowden.

GENUINE GYPSY WEDDING SOON TO BE SOLEMNIZED

NOMADS TO GATHER AT KEASBEY FOR THE PICTURESQUE EVENT.

Within the next few weeks Plainfielders may see some of the largest processions of gypsies that have ever passed through this section, all intent on reaching Keasbey, just east of Metuchen. It is estimated that 700 of the Nomads from all parts of the country will gather at that place for the first bona fide Gypsy wedding that has been solemnized in northern New Jersey. The contracting parties are to be Miss Tryphena Buoland, of Pennsylvania, and Henry Green, of Plymouth, England. Miss Buoland has spent all her life travelling in the gaily painted canvas wagons and Plainfield has been a stopping place for her tribe a score of times.

If the weather is favorable, the wedding will take place out of doors, otherwise it will be in Gaiaida's Hall at Keasbey. The picturesque Gypsy marriage customs are to be observed throughout and a aquaint old tribal chief will officiate. All the attendants will wear typical Nomadic costumes while music will be furnished by a Gypsy band that is being brought from Roumania. Friends of the Buoland tribe in this city, Metuchen, Perth Amboy and New Brunswick have received invitations to the affair.

The bride-to-be is a sister-in-law of Gypsy Sam, the wealthy and highly educated Roumanian who camps nearly all the year at Florida Grove and it is through his intercession that the marriage is to take place at Keasbey. He is to present her with a $700 travelling wagon as a wedding gift, in accordance with an old Nomadic law.

asking that John Shea receive a license. Two other petitions representing sixty-six property-owners and 613 voters requested that J. J. Goff receive a license, while another lengthy petition remonstrated against the granting of a license to Mr. Goff. In addition the Board of Trustees of the Monroe Avenue church also protested against the licensing of Mr. Goff's place.

There was a personal remonstrance from W. R. Coddington against the granting of a license to Charles Schanz for 126 Park avenue, this taking the place of the petition signed by many property-owners which was lost and could not be found. The names of the signers were published in yesterday's Daily Press. B. J. Schreiner, the druggist, made a personal protest against Charles Schanz's application, as did also the Misses Gossline.

The petitions in favor of the applications of Mr. Goff cited as reasons therefore the need of a first-class hotel in that part of the city where suitable accommodations could be had. All of these petitions were referred to the police committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Benbrook, of West Fifth street, will soon give up their residence here and return to their former home at Hackettstown.

TO REGULATE BAKERIES.

Senator McKee to Introduce Bill in Legislature.

It is said that Senator Wood McKee, of Passaic, proposes to introduce a bill in the Legislature for the regulation of bakeries, along the lines of a similar measure which he introduced toward the close of the last session, but which never left the committee. It appears that when the new labor department was created, with Colonel Bryant as commissioner, in the labor measures which were passed at that time no provisions were made for the regulation of bakeries, this matter being left for the new department to regulate.

Bakeries are therefore operating under an old statute, which is claimed to be out of date in many respects, and the bill that it is said Senator McKee is to introduce is to improve the condition of bakeries and those who work in them.

RICH MATRIMONIAL PRIZE.

Miss Bertha Krupp Who Has a Fortune of $125,000,000 and Is Handsome Besides.

Berlin (Germany) Special.

Miss Krupp, who on the death of her father became chief proprietor of the world-famed Krupp works, at Essen, in Germany, is the richest girl in the world. A great deal of the artillery of Russia and Japan, France, Germany and Italy was manufactured at the Krupp works; and during the South African war England had to apply to the Krupp works to supply urgently needed weapons. Practically every gun on every Russian and Japanese warship has been constructed in the Krupp works, and similarly every gun mounted on every German warship and every Italian warship bears the Krupp trademark. Sweden and Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Greece, Turkey, Switzerland, and all the South American countries are equally dependent on the Krupp works for their naval and military armaments. Miss Krupp is a charming German girl, who wields her power with discretion and generosity. The city of Essen, with its 100,000 inhabitants, is practically her private property, so that she possesses almost despotic power over her 25,000 employes and their families.

The kingdom over which Bertha Krupp reigns is one of enormous magnitude. Employed in her various works are 4,190 officials and 45,289 workmen. The total number of the workmen and of the women and children dependent on them exceeds 100,000. Among the establishments controlled by the company owning the name of Krupp are included not only the famous steel works at Essen, but numerous coal and iron mines, large shipbuilding yards, iron foundries in various parts of the empire, machine works, a stretch of country 20 miles long for artillery practice, mines of various minerals in Spain, and a flourishing line of shipping, with its headquarters at Rotterdam.

All Germany is awaiting the announcement of the coming marriage of Fraulein Krupp. Herr Deichmann, the son of a Cologne banker, is named as the fortunate man.

Young Duchess Wooed by German Crown Prince Is Pretty, Rich and Good Housekeeper.

Berlin (Germany) Special.

Duchess Cecilia, the bride of the crown prince of Germany, is 17 years old. Her only brother is grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and her eldest sister is the wife of the Danish crown prince. She is pretty and clever, and was described by her future husband the other day as a "sensible and charming" young woman, who had made him "immensely happy." Her girlhood has been spent at Cannes, where her mother has a villa noted for its beauty, and at her brother's palace in Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Her eyes are brown, her hair is light and she is tall and slight. Her disposition is sweet, and her tastes domestic. She is a good housekeeper and is said to be a firm believer in "Kirche, Kinder, Kuche" (church, children, kitchen), as the fields for woman's work. It is said the crown prince proposed across a table while sipping a cup of tea with the young duchess.

First Seedless Orange Tree.

The parent tree of all the seedless oranges of the United States may be seen in the orangery of the agricultural department, Washington. It came from Bahia, Brazil. Buds from the Brazilian tree were grafted upon native plants, and as these became sturdy the department sent specimens to Florida and California.

COIN DOLLARS IN PRIVATE.

Italian Tells of Money Which Is Minted in Palermo—Shows Samples.

One evening I was sitting with an Italian friend in a restaurant, relates an Everybody's Magazine writer, and we were discussing American laws and restrictions, at which he was very much inclined to scoff.

"Did you ever see a dollar that is not a dollar?" said he. I shook my head, and he rolled across the table to me a silver coin. It seemed to me to be a dollar. I examined it with every care, and getting another from the cash register, compared the two. They were exactly alike in weight, sound, color, milling and all. At last I got them confused, and only my friend was able to point out which was which.

"That is what we call a Palmero dollar," he said. "Do you remember some years ago that western silver miners were caught taking about $7,000,000 worth of silver into the Nevada City mint and having it turned into money without being recorded? Well, that is just what is going on in Palmero to-day, with variations. Silver is brought in San Luis Potosi, Mexico, or thereabout, shipped to Paris, taken to Palmero, and minted with reasonable privacy. The dollars are jumbled with stones to nick them and laid in greasy clay, then come over here in third-class baggage for distribution. They cost about 43 cents and defy detection, except that the nicks are too similar, and it is said that the 'M' on the neck is not quite deep enough, and that the 'I' in pluribus is a thousandth of an inch crooked. You know every counterfeiter makes some little mistake."

TEACHING OYAMA TO SHOOT

American Tells of Delightful Experiences with Now Famous Japanese Field Marshal.

"Twenty-five years ago I was an experienced rifle shot," writes Horace Fletcher, in World's Work, "and could hit a moving object every time. The 22-caliber rifle and machine-made cartridge, which came into general use in the '70s, made extensive rifle practice possible. I wrote and published at the time a pamphelet on how to shoot with a rifle. It happened that copies of the pamphlet reached Japan, where I passed some time soon after. Japan had just begun to make a military organization on the most modern lines and Marquis Oyama was minister of war. He invited me to visit him in his home at Tokio and showed great interest in learning to shoot at a moving object with a rifle. He had already seen the pamphlet. I had a number of American rifles and ample ammunition with me in Japan and Marquis Oyama and the then Col. Murata (inventor of the Japanese military rifle) joined me several afternoons at target practice. They entered enthusiastically into the spirit, Oyama in particular showing the enthusiasm of a boy. I shall never forget his keen joy the first time he hit a moving object with a bullet. It was a teapot thrown in the air, I believe, and when it came down in dust and pieces he capered about and screamed in his delight like an excited schoolboy.

AMERICA'S FOREIGN SCENES

No Better Way to Go Abroad Than to Start Journey in Southeastern Pennsylvania.

Those of our fellow citizens who imagine that the only way to go abroad is via a trans-Atlantic liner, need to get acquainted with certain spots in southeastern Pennsylvania. There is no better starting point and time for his voyage after novel sights and interesting experiences than the city of Lancaster, the seat of the richest county in the state, on any local market day, says W. H. Richardson, in Four-Track News. Most of these people are representatives of one of the most curious survivals in all America, the Amish Mennonites, a schism of the Mennonite society which seceded from the main body about the year 1693. So far as language, manners, dress and traditions are concerned the Amish, as they are locally known, are foreigners in America. Their tongue is almost the same as that of their ancestors from the far-off Rhine two centuries ago; the dress of the women suggests Holland or Brittany of to-day; their religion, with its austerities and its curious practices and observances, smacks of the days of the reformation.

A Colt That Assisted.

One rainy day a farmer opened the barn door and tried to call in the cows, so that he would not have to walk in the deep mud to drive them. One cow refused to come, although he called her name repeatedly. A colt, standing at the other side of the yard, watched him, as he vainly tried to drive the cow without stepping into the mire. Then the colt quietly stepped up to her and bit her. Of course she moved. He followed, giving her a nip whenever she moved in the wrong direction, until she went through the door into the barn. Then he trotted back to the other side of the yard.

Pyramid Building Not So Hard.

When the pyramids were built the laborers did not work under such disadvantages as have long been attributed to them. Researches show that they had solid and tubular drills and lathe tools. The drills were set with jewels and cut into the rocks with keenness and accuracy.

Over Hamlet's Grave.

A railway is about to be constructed near Elsinore which will run across the spot traditionally believed to be the grave of Hamlet. Numerous signed protests against the projected railway have been addressed to the government.

BUSINESS HINTS FOR WOMEN

Things They Do and Things Men Wish They Wouldn't Do.

"We are told that women are becoming more businesslike every day," remarked the wife of a prominent lawyer, "and yet I cannot see any apparent decrease in the number of those who conduct their affairs foolishly or carelessly. Every now and then, for instance, my husband comes home and tells me about a case where a widow is at the mercy of some man who administers her estate. I don't mean a man her husband has left in charge, but one she herself has permitted the court to appoint because she blushingly confessed she knew nothing about business. Why a woman will give herself a tyrant of this description I don't see when by retaining the administration of her own estate and merely appointing her lawyer her agent she can still enjoy his advice and yet be able to do things without his permission. I know of one silly woman with two grown daughters who appointed an uncle of hers administrator of her husband's estate, and, lo and behold, she had to ask the cross old man's consent even to shingle the roof on her summer cottage!

HAD TO ASK HIS CONSENT.

Every now and then I hear the officials of a bank largely patronized by women complain of the multitude of small checks they are compelled to bother with. Why on earth will women write checks for $2.38, for instance? Another thing, why will some women always sign their checks as Mrs. Robert Brown instead of Mary Smith Brown as ordinary common good sense and taste should teach them to do? These are feminine mysteries as well as the distracting habit some women have of never adding up the checks they issue and consequently obliging the bank to notify them that they have overdrawn their account.

Then take the incidents of daily life. It is the women who favor installment plan furniture—not the men, when they can help it. A woman only sees the small cost of the initial payment.

MARION TERRY.

CHILD DISCIPLINE.

A Peculiar Phase of Training From the Maternal Standpoint.

Some parents' attempts to discipline the child seem to be much in the nature of a boomerang. It is rather hard to determine who is going to be hit.

I shall never so long as I live forget an instance I beheld. It was about Christmas time, and the mother of a large family was busy getting ready the annual basket of cast off toys and clothing for the poor. The eldest children contributed cheerfully, as was their custom; then came the turn of the youngest, but she firmly refused to part with any of her belongings, no matter how hideous or dilapidated.

GAVE THE DOLL TO THE POOR.

Thoroughly shocked by such callousness, the mother administered a severe lecture on the evils of selfishness, and then, to punctuate her remarks, she took a rag doll from the child and packed it in the basket.

Cry? You never heard anything like the agonized sobs of that poor infant. That child learned a lesson not of charity, but of injustice, and imbibed as well such a hatred of the said poor that she would not bestow even as much as a copper on a beggar in the street until she was almost grown up and things began to assume their normal proportions.

And how many mothers you and I know who punish or "discipline" their children in the same senseless manner?

Gossip In the Arcadian Simplicity of a Village—Female "Swappers"

"Isn't it idyllic living in a small town like this!" sighed the city visitor. "It doesn't seem possible you can have cares and worries. Plenty of fresh air, plenty of green grass around each house, no brick fronts, no ostentations—you know every one, and every one knows you"—

"And your business!" put in Mrs. Jones, the object of all this envy.

Then, as she noticed the astonishment on her visitor's face, she went on: "You people in the city can form no idea of the gossip in a small place like this. Between the maids over the back fences and the hackmen at the station I can assure you we need no reporters for our daily paper. Anyway, your neighbors consider that you ought to tell them your business. It is your duty, and if you don't provide that slight recreation they resent it bitterly. It appears I am considered rather close mouthed, as I found out recently.

News at Any Cost.

"When they haven't actual news they make it up. Recently a friend stayed with us while she was attending to the funeral of a near relative. The night before the ceremony I went out in a closed depot carriage (it was after 8 o'clock and a cold night) to get the minister, as my friend wanted to talk with him and arrange matters. The minister stayed an hour and then went away. Two evenings later my daughter Anna rang up a hack from the station and started off, as she supposed, for a musicale at a friend's house. When the driver stopped she looked out and saw, to her surprise, he had drawn up at the minister's house. 'What is the matter?' she cried, sticking her head out. 'Oh, I thought you'd want to stop here on the way for Mr. Nichols. He dropped in here on his way to the party,' was the rejoinder. And with a very puzzled expression the driver condescended to move on. Not until she reached home was the matter made clear to the girl, and then she learned the whole story amid shrieks of delight from her sisters. Through the station hackmen a rumor was afloat that, to put it in their own language: 'One of the Jones girls was married last night. Jim was rung up from the station to take the mother to the minister's in a closed rig, and the minister stayed just long enough in the house to marry 'em.'"

THE HACKMAN STOPPED AT THE MINISTER'S HOUSE.

"Well, I never!" gasped the city visitor.

The Swapping Habit.

There is a mania among men known as the swapping habit. They swap watches, rings, horses—everything except wives, and in the divorce courts there have been cases of that even. But the disease is not confined to men. I know a lot of women who would swap their eternal souls if they thought they were getting a bargain.

On the whole, I'm not sure the sort of woman who progresses in her belongings, so to speak, is not more clever than she who "hangs on" indefinitely. The great idea is to get rid of things when they are going out of style or you feel you won't need them any more—to get rid of them at that very moment—and let the money go toward the new things needed instead of hoarding useless stuff. Some women make friends of the secondhand dealer and sell all their old things to the betterment of their house; others regard him as their natural enemy.

I have actually seen a woman refuse to sell an old piece of furniture she had used several years because the secondhand man wouldn't give her the original price. She was angry too! Five years later she drew it out of the garret, where it had been stored, and gave it away for lack of a purchaser.

That's all the difference between a good housekeeper and a bad one. The bad one goes on accumulating old truck; the good one uses judgment and keeps gradually getting rid of the shabby things and investing the proceeds in the new articles she needs.

THE GRAFTERS

By

FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company.)

"Is this here the steam-buggy that helped a crowd of you fellers get away from Jud Byers and his posse one day a spell back?"

"No," said Ormsby. Then he remembered the evening of small surprises—the racing tally-ho with the Inn auto-car to help.

"What was the trouble that day?" he asked, putting in a question on his side.

"A little ruction up at the Twin Sisters. There was a furss, an' a gun went off, accidintally on purpose killin' Jim Harkins," was the reply.

The machinist was come from the Blue Jay, and Ormsby helped Elinor out of her seat while the repairs were making. The town office of the Blue Jay was just across the street, and he took her there and begged house-room and a chair for her, making an excuse that he must go and see to the brake-mending.

But once outside he promptly stultified himself, letting the repairs take care of themselves while he went in search of one Jud Byers. The deputy sheriff was not hard to find. Normally and in private life he was the weigher for the Blue Jay; and Ormsby was directed to the scale shanty which served as the weigher's office.

The interview was brief and conclusive; was little more than a rapid fire of question and answer; and for the greater part the sheriff's affirmatives were heartily eager. Yes, certainly; if the thing could be brought to pass, he, Byers, would surely do his part. All he asked was an hour or two in which to prepare.

"You shall have all the time there is," was the reply. "Have you a Western Union wire here?"

"No; nothing but the railroad office."

"That won't do; they'd stop the message. How about the Inn?"

"Breezeland has a Western Union all right; wire your notice there, and I'll fix to have it 'phoned over. I don't believe it can be worked, though," added the deputy, doubtfully.

"We can't tell till we try," said Ormsby; and he hurried back to his car to egg on the machinist with golden promises contingent upon haste.

Miss Brentwood found her companion singularly silent on the five-mile race to Breezeland; but the lightning speed at which he drove the car put conversation out of the question. At the hotel he saw her into the lift with decent deliberation; but the moment she was off his hands he fairly ran to the telegrapher's alcove in the main hall.

"Have you a Western Union wire to the capital direct?" he inquired.

The young man snapped his key and said he had.

"It has no connection with the Trans-Western railroad offices?"

"None whatever."

Ormsby dashed off a brief message to Kent, giving three or four addresses at which he might be found.

"Send that, and have them try the Union station train platform first. Don't let them spare expense at the other end, and if you can bring proof of delivery to room 261 within half an hour, it means a month's pay to you, individually. Can you do it?"

But the operator was already claiming the wire, writing "deth," "deth," "deth," as rapidly as his fingers could shake off the dots and dashes.

CHAPTER XXVI.

BY ORDER OF THE COURT.

Between the hours of 8:30 and 10 p. m. the Union passenger station at the capital presents a moving and spirited spectacle. Within the hour and a half, four through and three local trains are due to leave, and the space within the iron grille that fences off the track platforms from the public part of the station is filled with hurrying throngs of train-takers.

It was the evening of the last day in the month; the day when the Federative Council of Railway Workers had sent its ultimatum to Receiver Guilford. The reduction in wages was to go into effect at midnight: if, by midnight, the order had not been rescinded, and the way opened for a joint conference touching the removal of certain officials, a general strike and tie-up would be ordered. Trains in transit carrying passengers of United States mail would be run to their respective destinations; trains carrying perishable freight would be run to division stations: with these exceptions, all labor would cease promptly on the stroke of 12.

Such was the text of the ultimatum, a certified copy of which Engineer Scott had delivered in person into the hands of the receiver at noon.

It was now 8:45 p. m. The eastbound night express was ready for the run to A. & T. junction; the fast mail, one hour and 35 minutes late from the east, was backing in on track nine to take on the city mail. On track eight, pulled down so that the smoke from the engine should not foul the air of the train-shed, the receiver's private car, with the 1,010 for motive power and "Red" Callahan in the cab, had been waiting since seven o'clock for the order to run special to Gaston. And as yet the headquarters office had made no sign; sent no word of reply to the strike notice.

Gaston was on for the night run eastward with the express; and "Dutch" Tischer had found himself slated to take the fast mail west. The change of engines on the mail had been effected at the shops; and when Tischer backed his train in on track nine his berth was beside the 1,010. Callahan swung down from his cab and climbed quickly to that of the mail engine.

"Annything new at the shops, Dutchy?" he inquired.

"I was not somet'ings gehearing, nein. You was dot Arkoos newsbaper dis evening sehen? He says nodings too, alretty, about dot strike."

"Divil a word. Ye might think Scotty'd handed the major a bit av blank paper f'r all the notice he's taking. More thin that, he's lavin' town, wid me to pull him. The Naught-seven's to run special to Gaston—bad cess to ut!"

"Vell, I can'd hellup id," said the phlegmatic Bavarian. "I haf the mail and egspress got, and I go mit dem t'rough to Pighorn. You haf der private car got, and you go mit dem t'rough to Gaston. Den ve quits, ain'd it?"

Callahan nodded and dropped to the platform. But before he could mount to the foot-board of the 1,010, M'Tosh collared him.

"Patsy, I have your orders, at last. Your passengers will be down in a few minutes, and you are to pull out ahead of the express."

"Is it to Gaston I'm goin', Misther M'Tosh?"

The fireman was standing by with the oil can and torch, ready to Callahan's hand, and the train-master drew the engineer aside.

"Shovel needn't hear," he said, in explanation. And then: "Are you willing to stand with us, Patsy? You've had time enough to think it over."

Callahan stood with his arms folded and his cap drawn down over his eyes.

"'Tis not f'r meself I'm thinkin,' Misther M'Tosh, as ye well know. But I'm a widdy man; an' there's the bit colleen in the convint."

"She'll be well cared for, whatever happens to you," was the quick reply.

"Thin I'm yer man," said Callahan; and when the trainmaster was gone, he ordered Shovel to oil around while he did two or three things which, to an initiated onlooker, might have seemed fairly inexplicable. First he disconnected the air-hose between the car and the engine, tying the ends up with a stout cord so that the connection would not seem to be broken. Next he crawled under the Naught-seven and deliberately bled the air-tank, setting the cock open a mere hair's-breadth so that it would leak slowly but surely until the pressure was entirely gone.

Then he got a hammer and sledge out of the engine tool-box, and after hooking up the safety-chain couplings between the private car and the 1,010, he crippled the points of the hooks with the hammer so that they could not be disengaged without the use of force and the proper tools.

"There ye are, ye ould divil's band-wagon," he said, apostrophizing the private car when his work was done. "Ye'll ride this night where Patsy Callahan dhrives, an' be dommed to ye."

Meanwhile the trainmaster had reached the iron grille at the other end of the long track platform. At a small wicket used by the station employes and trainmen, Kent was waiting for him.

"Is it all right, M'Tosh? Will he do it?" he asked, anxiously.

"Yes, Patsy's game for it; I knew he would be. He'd put his neck in a rope to spite the major. But it's a crazy thing, Mr. Kent."

"I know it; but if it will give me 24 hours—"

"It won't. They can't get home on our line because we'll be tied up. But they can get the Naught-seven put on the Overland's Limited at A. & T. junction, and that will put them back here before you've had time to turn around twice. Have they come down yet?"

"No," said Kent; and just then he saw Loring coming in from the street entrance and went to meet him.

"I have the final word from Boston," said the ex-manager, when he had walked Kent out of earshot of the train-takers. "Your terms are accepted—with all sorts of safeguards thrown about the 'no cure, no pay' proviso; also with a distinct repudiation of you and your scheme if there is anything unlawful afoot. Do you still think it best to keep me in the dark as to what you are doing?"

"Yes; there are enough of us involved, as it stands. You couldn't help; and you might hinder. Besides, if the mine should happen to explode in our direction it'll be a comfort to have a foot-loose friend or two on the outside to pick up the pieces of us."

Loring was polishing his eye-glasses with uncommon vigor.

"I wish you'd drop it, David, if it isn't too late. I can't help feeling as if I had prodded you into it, whatever it is."

Kent linked arms with him and led him back to the street entrance.

"Go away, Grantham, and don't come back again," he commanded. "Then you can swear truthfully that you didn't know anything about it. It is too late to interfere, and you are not responsible for me. Go up to see Portia; she'll keep you interested while you wait."

Then Loring was gone Kent went back to the wicket in the shed; but M'Tosh, who was always a busy man at train-time, had disappeared again.

It was a standing mystery to the trainmaster, and to the rank and file, why Receiver Guilford had elected to ignore the fact that he was within three hours of a strike which promised to include at least four-fifths of his operatives; had taken no steps for defense, and had not confided, as it appeared, in the members of his own official staff.

But Kent was at no loss to account for the official silence. If the secret could be kept for a few hours longer, the junto would unload the Trans-Western, strike, tie-up and general demoralization, upon an unsuspecting Overland management.

None the less, there were other things unexplainable even to Kent; for one, this night flitting to Gaston to put the finishing touch on an edifice of fraud which had been builded shamelessly in the light of day.

Kent had not the key to unlock this door of mystery; but here the master spirit of the junto was doing, not what he would, but what he could. The negotiations for the lease had consumed much time at a crisis when time was precious. Judge MacFarlane had to be recalled and once more bullied into subjection; and Falkland, acting for the Plantagould interest, had insisted upon some formal compliance with the letter of the law

DOUGLAS ON TRADE SCHOOLS.

Governor of Massachusetts Spoke at Brockton Banquet Last Night.

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 28.—Governor William L. Douglas spoke last night in advocacy of "Trade Schools" before 130 executive officers of shoe and leather concerns in New England. The occasion was a banquet of the Superintendents and Foreman's association. President F. A. Gurney presided and introduced Governor Douglas, who took occasion at the outset to defend his project for the establishment of industrial and trade schools, which had been criticized adversely by several newspapers. He understood the object of the schools to be, first, the benefit to the individual who is compelled to earn his living by the work of his hands and, second, to provide a sufficient amount of skilled labor to enable the manufacturing industries of Massachusetts to keep in the lead.

The governor expressed the opinion that the United States is far behind other nations in the establishment of trade schools. He said that to those who have given the subject but limited study it is apparent that the future of Massachusetts is dependent almost wholly upon the success of her manufacturing industries. A thorough system of technical education would result in a lessening of the cost of production and a raising of the wage scale.

In conclusion the governor said that skill and workmanship would decide the future of Massachusetts and that it was only by the use of the best skilled labor that America could compete with the German, English and French workmen. Competition could best be met and overcome with expert labor, and the trade school would unquestionably give that expert labor.

DR. CRUM'S LECTURE.

Charleston Collector Spoke at Capital on Racial Subjects.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Dr. William D. Crum, collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., gave a lecture last night at the Metropolitan A. M. E. church on the subject "Is the Negro a Hindrance to the Progress of the Nation?"

Bishop Wesley J. Gaines presided at the gathering, and the speaker was introduced by Congressman Morrell of Pennsylvania. Dr. Crum declared that the negro is not a hindrance or a menace to the country, but is an important factor in the development of the resources of the nation. Since citizenship had been conferred on him the negro had advanced along all lines. Eighty-seven per cent of them are engaged in agricultural pursuits and 13 per cent in learned professions. He believed that the course being pursued by Professor Booker T. Washington is the best method of advancing the development of his people. He indorsed heartily industrial education, but was not opposed to the higher education of the negro.

Social equality, said Dr. Crum, is a humbug and is only used as a scarecrow. Nobody is asking for social equality; that, he said, is a matter which regulates itself, but we do ask for civil rights and a fair chance in the race of life.

The collector called on the president during the day.

SWAYNE NOT GUILTY

Senate Court of Impeachment Acquit Florida Judge.

VOTE WAS MOSTLY ON PARTY LINES

Closest Vote Was on Last of Twelve Charges, When Thirty-five Senators Voted Against Accused and Forty-seven For Him.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The senate, sitting as a court of impeachment for the trial of Charles Swayne, district judge for the northern district of Florida, has acquitted him on all of the twelve articles of impeachment brought by the house of representatives. On none of the articles was there even a majority for conviction, although it required two-thirds to convict.

The closest vote was on the last article, the contempt case of W. S. O'Neal, when thirty-five senators voted guilty and forty-seven not guilty, while on two articles only thirteen senators voted for conviction. The voting for the most part was on party lines, though there was not a strict alignment on any article. At the conclusion of the voting the presiding officer directed the secretary to enter an acquittal upon the records, and the court then adjourned sine die.

Judge Swayne was not in the senate during the roll calls, but in the president's room just back of the chamber. The result of each ballot was sent to him by his attorneys.

There was an exceptional attendance of senators, and the galleries were crowded. Many members of the house were also in attendance. They occupied seats especially set apart for them in the rear of the senate chamber and followed the proceedings with the closest attention.

On the first article, which charged Swayne with certifying a false claim for expenses, the vote was: Guilty, 33; not guilty, 49.

The vote on the second and third articles, being similar charges, resulted in each case: Guilty, 32; not guilty, 50.

The fourth article related to Swayne's use of the private car of the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railroad company. The vote resulted: Guilty, 13; not guilty, 69.

The sixth article charged Judge Swayne with nonresidence in the district. The vote was: Guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

The seventh article was similar to the sixth, and the vote was 19 guilty, 63 not guilty.

The eighth article related to the contempt case of E. T. Davis; guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

On the ninth article the vote was: Guilty, 31; not guilty, 51.

Article 10 related to the contempt case of Simeon Belden, and the vote was: Guilty, 31; not guilty, 51. Article 11 was similar to article 10, and the vote was the same. The twelfth and last article was the contempt case of O'Neal, and the vote was: Guilty, 35; not guilty, 47. This acquitted Judge Swayne of all the charges.

Herman became infatuated with the girl through hearing her play at St. James' Catholic church, where she was organist.

WASHINGTON ROCK AND VAIL HOMESTEAD

GENERAL GEORGE WASHINGTON VISITED BOTH PLACES.

With the passing of another anniversary of the birth of George Washington, attention is once more directed to the mass of rock, near Plainfield, which bears the immortal general's name. It is of the variety known as trap, and is located in the Watchung Mountains, about two miles from the city. It rises abruptly from the eastern face, and its whiteness makes it visible for a long distance, for it is kept that color year after year, by some public-spirited citizens, who whitewash it every spring.

From the summit of this rock, history has it, General Washington viewed the country spread out before him, and watched the movements of the British troops in and about New Brunswick. It is said that he paid several visits to the mass of stone shortly after the beginning of the Revolution, and it is because of this that it is now known as Washington's Rock. It affords a commanding view of the country stretching out to the north, south and east.

There is one well authorized story of Washington's visit to that neighborhood. He spent one night with Edward Fitz-Randolph, in the house known as the Vail Homestead. Early in the morning Washington and his staff made their way up the mountain to the big rock, over a path known to few besides Fitz-Randolph. There, standing on the summit of the rock, Washington looked around to note the position of the British troops.

The Vail homestead, situated on the Green Brook road, saw some stirring times during the Revolution. Once two travelers begged a night's shelter there from the storm. The mistress of the house, in her husband's absence, granted it and let them stay all night, giving them breakfast next morning. But there were British officers about, and the next day the husband, who had returned, was arrested and charged with giving aid and comfort to spies, who were the enemies of King George.

The unfortunate master of the Vail homestead was sentenced to be hanged, unless the spies could be caught and killed. A rope was put about the patriot's neck, and search was made for the two travelers. They were caught and brought back to the house. One was stabbed to death and his body thrown into the parlor of the house through a window. It is said, that the floor boards still bear his blood stains. The other alleged spy was hanged on a tree that still stands near the old house. Not until this vengeance had been meted out was the master of the house allowed to go free from the menacing rope. He, however, was held a prisoner. He escaped hanging through efforts made in his behalf by Colonel Ephriam Martin. In honor of that gallant old man, there has been an Ephriam Vail ever since, and it is said there always will be so long as there is a son to bear the name.

There was once a hotel located back of the rock, and there a sort of a summer resort was established, but the hotel was burned down twenty years ago. An attempt was also made to erect a monument on the rock, but after the cornerstone was laid interest in the project died out, and there were not enough funds to complete it.

"An Evil Environment, and How to Live In It," was the subject of Rev. Charles E. Herring's sermon at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, a sermon particularly written for the business man who finds himself in an uncongenial atmosphere during his working hours. The preacher said that he often hears the comment from a business man that though he himself is living an upright life the concern for which he works is not conducting an honorable business. The question is often asked of him, Rev. Mr. Herring said, how can a man retain his hold on Christian life and continue to live in an evil environment? "It is exceedingly unfortunate for a young man, who desiring to be a Christian, has to work among men who are not Christians," said the speaker, "but it was infinitely harder for the saints which were of the household of Nero to keep their faith. It was perilous to remain steadfast in Nero's household, when nightly, Christians were being burned to posts, as torches for Nero's games. Instead of being burned alive at the present time, men only have to face the ridicule of their fellow-workmen, yet they flee from it, and follow the easier course."

The Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel will hold a business meeting tonight at the home of Rev. L. R. Howard, 446 West Fifth street.
